HEAVY SNOWFALL AT WESTERN POINTS

A Precipitation of Over Six Inches Recorded in Parts of Manitoba and Saskatchewan—Seeding Operations Suspended

WINNIPEG, April 19.—More than half a foot of snow covers the ground in the eastern part of Saskatchewan and the western part of Manitoba. While rain teemed down in Winnipeg last Saturday afternoon and night, snow was falling less than a hundred miles westward, and a similar kind of storm was prevailing in the border American states. Six inches of snow was reported on Monday night at Brandon, Portage la Prairie, Virden, and other points west of Winnipeg, while the precipitation was even greater across the international boundary. The weather is mild, however, and the snow is rapidly melting.

Rain commenced in Winnipeg on Saturday afternoon and continued almost without cessation up to Monday evening. There were traces of snow on Sunday, and on Monday night over an inch fell. The probabilities for to-day, however, are "clearing and mildet," and while all seeding operations have been held up by the storm farmers expect to be on the land again within three days. While checking operations temporarily, the heavy precipitation of moisture is hailed with delight in the country for plenty of moisture means a good seed bed and vigorous growth.

Heavy Snow at Brandon.

BRANDON, MAN., April 19.—Seeding operations which were well under way in this district, have been suspended. Monday afternoon snow began to fall heavily here, and the country once more bears the appearance of mid-winter. The snowfall, however, was badly needed. During the past two days heavy northwest winds have been blowing and a dense dust storm has prevailed. Old timers state the land was never so dry at this time of the year. Now, however, the heavy fall of snow has completely soaked the ground and as soon as it melts, seeding will go ahead with a rush.

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE

Considerable damage has been caused to the structure of the Montgomery Hotel by the recent rising of the creek. When at its highest the water tore away some of the beams under the south west portion of the building, with the result that that part of the hotel is out of service. An Examiner reporter paid a visit to the hotel this afternoon, when it was perceived that the pantry floor had completely severed its connection with the main structure, and hung down at one corner, enabling the onlooker to see the fast running waters of the creek. All the utensils had to be taken out of the room, which is inaccessible. The South West corner of the dining room has sunk more than a foot, thus tearing away the plaster from the wall and ceiling. Several tables had to be removed. Although an estimate of the damage could not be given it is anticipated that it will cost a considerable amount of money to repair the building. The work has just been commenced.

Slight damage was also caused to the floor of the dressmakig establishment of Mr. S. Fineberg, next door to the Hotel.

Good Season For Stony Lake

Mrs. T. H. Darcy of Burleigh Falls is in Peterborough for a few days, visiting friends and also making preparations for help for the coming season.

The hotel at Burleigh is being thoroughly renovated, also the boats and all equipment so as that every thing will be in tip-top shape for the opening of the season.

Takig correspondence for the reservation of accomodation into consideration, Burleigh is receiving more at this season of the year than any of the former ten years of the present management, and has a tendency to lead one to think that there will be a very good season on Stony Lake.

NEED NO POLICE PROTECTION

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I noticed a letter in your paper last night, from a person, evidently afraid to sign his or her name, complaining that boys gathered at the corner of Park and Bonacord streets, used disgusting language and acted the part of rowdies, generally. Now, I live at the corner mentioned, and want to protest against such unfounded complaints. It is true that boys do meet at the corner, but I have never heard any of the bad language referred to, and I have a complaint to make of their conduct. We are not asking for, nor do we need any police protection in this matter as the writer of last night's communication suggested.

Yours sincerely,

J. R. Goodfellow.

WESTMOUNT TO BE OPENED

Land Association of C.G.E. Employees Have Secured Posession of Building Property

WILL OPEN THREE STREETS

The Westmount Land Association have secured possession of seven acres of building property on what has been known as Morrow's Hill at the west-end of Sherbrooke st. It extends from High st. behind the Chamberlain estate, back to the Gravel Road and along High st. about 500 feet.

OPEN THREE STREETS.

Property owners on the north and south side of this section have agreed to give a strip of land which, with a part of the newly purchased section, will be opened as streets, and the members of the association are running a street down the centre. Thus there will be three streets opened in this district.

The work of surveying the ground was to have been begun to-day, but was postponed on account of the weather. The work will be proceeded with on Monday. It is believed that there will be 68 lots in the section, and each will have a frontage of forty feet.

CALL IT WESTMOUNT.

The Westmount Land Association is made up of employees of the C.G.E. Company, seventeen in all, having entered upon this scheme. The ground is high and dry, and the locality is regarded as being generally attractive. Each of the members will have four lots it is thought, and in any case three. Some intend to build, and others may dispose of their holdings. The name Westmount is likely to come into general use, and Peterborough, like Montreal, may in the near future have its Westmount built up with desirable residences.

Ald. Gordon Has a Proposal for the Council

The consolidation of the city's by-laws is a proposal that Ald. Gordon is considering and will likely introduce at a council meeting in the near future. This would mean that the by-laws would have to be printed and prepared in booklets. At present they are kept at the city clerk's office in typewritten form. Ald. Gordon desires that they should be so prepared that anyone wishing to read a by-law could secure a [illegible]. This would also enable the police to have copies, which could be carefully studied by new men.

The Long-looked-for Schedule Has Arrived At Last

Peterborough Booked to Open at Hamilton, While St. Thomas Will Play the Opening Game Here on May 22 ---Draft on the Whole is Satisfactory, Although the Local Club Will Ask For Some Changes.

A copy of the tentative Canadian League schedule has at last reached Peterborough, Secretary Davidson receiving the draft yesterday. As announced, Peterborough opens the season at Hamilton, while the St. Thomas Club will play the first game in Peterborough on May 22. The schedule is not available for publication until after the league magnates have placed their approval upon it. There will likely be a meeting of the executive called in a day or two. From a Peterborough standpoint, the schedule is considered fairly satisfactory. Saturday and holiday dates are well looked after, but there is a long series of twelve games at home in June that the local club will ask to have broken up. Peterborough has fifty-one home games, and gets May 24th, July 12th and civic holiday games at home.

CITY ATTRACTIONS.

The illustration of the sea-bird drawn to its doom by the glare of the beacon light finds no truer prototype than in the case of the country girl lured from her home by dreams of fortune to be realized in the great city. As ignorant of the wiles of evil as a mouse is of the mechanism of a trap, unsophisticated in the blandishments of sins; holding blankly to the belief that sheep and goats never mingle she drops into maelstrom of a city existence as a snowflake settles into the river—"One moment white, then gone for ever." There lie in wait for innocence, the wide world over, a legion of plotting devils arrayed in livery of light, honest appearing advertisements that are tent hooks with which the devil angles for souls; employers who scarcely take the pains to hide the fangs of wolves behind their smiling lips; boarding-houses infested with other and more hideous vermin than the rat and the roach; companionship of more fatal effect to the soul than hydrant water to the health; counsellors who spin viewless webs and plot ruin as the spider works destruction to the stupid fly. All these, and a great many more, pitfalls lie in the way of the country girl as she turns her light step from the cowslip and the green turf to take her place in the ranks of those who walk the path of daily toil.

SAY CURLING STONES WERE THEIR DOWNFALL

Scottish Curlers Claim Weights of Stones Proved a Big Handicap and Accounted for Losses

LONDON, APRIL 19.—The Royal Caledonian Club last night entertained the Scottish curlers, who recently returned from Canada. Replying to the toast proposed by the president, Lord Iverclyde, Colonel Aikman, the captain of the team, spoke in the kindliest terms of the free hospitality they received at the hads of the Canadians, and alluded to the many manifestations of British loyalty they witnessed. While the team was satisfied on the whole with the result of the tour, he said the difference in the weight of the stones proved a great handicap, and accounted for their being outclassed in the "art of scopin," which lost them several matches, especially in Montreal and Toronto, where they sustained their severest defeats. "We cannot compete with our Dominion friends until they adopt Scottish rules" added Col. Calkman, but we hope before they pay another visit the Canadians will be asked to play under our rules.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

Brantford Expositor: Interest in sporting circles is rife as to the ball team that Amby Kane will bring to this city on April 30. President Nelson and the other officers of the club are very optimistic for this year's chances. Already a large number of players have been signed, and as many more could ad will be signed if the squad fails to show the necessary speed for the league this year.

Last year at this time everything was an uncertainty, it was hardly decided whether or not this city would be represented in the league, but now the sport-loving fans of the city are assured of seeing just as good ball as in any C class league in America. When the Canadian League opened it was difficult to get first-class players, the salaried men not being anxious to cast in their lots with a new organisation. Now all is changed; the players are all anxious to get a tryout in a league that has already aroused so much favourable interest. President Nelson has received over 50 applications for tryouts this spring, and in all probability every other club has received just as many. This shows to some extent how this league is being looked upon by men anxious to make a name for themselves in the baseball world.

Hamilton Spectator: Manager Lee sat down with a pencil and piece of paper yesterday afternoon, and started in to clean house. A little calculation and reference to the club files brought forth the fact that Knotty had thirty-four players under contract, and he finally made up his mind that this was just about ten too many, so that he lost no time in pruning down. This was made easy by reason of the addition of Teed, Mueller, Keenan, Martin and one other player to the list, with the result that the players who have been ordered to report here on April 24th, are as follows:

George Lee, manager and outfielder
Tom Hess, catcher.
H. Wendelborn, catcher.
Walter Teed, pitcher.
Wm. Rose, pitcher.
Chick Mueller, pitcher.
Wm. Garlow, pitcher.
Edward Lloyd, pitcher.
Bert Molineaux, pitcher.
D. O'Brien, pitcher.
Chas. Kelsoe, pitcher.
John J. Farrell, first base.
Harry Schaefer, first base.
H. Mangon, first base.
Joe Keenan, infielder.
Marty Killilea, infielder.
Paul Schilling, infielder.
Frank Maguire, infielder.
Jack Martin, infielder.
Carl Marshall, infielder.
Edgar Homer, infielder.
R. C. Boyd, outfielder.
Harry Corns, outfielder.
C. J. Pierce, outfielder.

This makes twenty-four players, including Manager Lee, who are under instructions to report one week from to-day. Of the balance under contract seven have already been notified that their services will not be desired.

Ottawa Free Press: "I know but very little about the other clubs of the Canadian league, but they will have to be very good to push us out of the first division," said Manager Louis Cook of the Ottawa club, this morning.

"We have a crackerjack outfield, and will also have a fast infield. Our pitching staff will be the best minor league string of pitchers I have ever seen. If all the men report on the minute at Chatham and get in two solid weeks' work we will set a warm pace this season."

Cook arrived in Ottawa last night, coming from Fort Wayne, Ind., by way of Detroit. He is a clean-cut fellow of medium height and looks like a ball player. He was somewhat surprised to find Ottawa was a real big city, considerbly above the appearance of the minor league town, and was generally impressed with his new home.

"This is my first visit to Canada, and everyone whom I have seen tells me I will like it here. I am all wrapped up in my club jut now, and if I can come through with a fast team I know I'll like the place all right. No matter how nice a town is, if you are behind a losing team it's hard to like the place or be liked by the fans. That's why I'm going to stretch a few points to get a winner, if possible."

Cook would have gone right out to Lansdowne park this morning to see about getting the skinned diamond under way had it not been for the rain. The first break in overhead conditions and he will get the work under way.

Cook brought along the contract of a colossal first baseman, a 19-year-old youngster by the name of Gus Champene, who measures in altitude six feet, three inches, and weighs 180 pounds. He is a left-handed hitter and thrower, and can reach out to right field for wild throws. Cook says he stretche half way up the diamond to meet the ball. He is reported to be a good hitter.

TIT FOR TAT.

WHAT HE BOUGHT.

A Syracuse business man, living in one of the suburbs, says Judge's Library, decided to give up his spacious backyard to the raising of currants as a profitable side issue. So, wishing to absorb all the information he could acquire on the subject of the currant industry, he went downtown one Saturday afternoon recently and returned with his arms full of books.

"Well, Toby," inquired his enthusiastic spouse, as he dumped the volumes on the table, "did you succeed in getting what you wanted?"

"Sure I did!" he replied, proudly pointing to the books. "I bought a whole year's editions of a standard work on current literature!"

TOO MUCH PASSWORD FOR HIM.

Senator Bacon of Georgia piloted a constituent around the Capitol for a while and then, having some work to do on the floor, conducted his visitor to the Senate Gallery. After an hour or so the visitor approached a gallery doorkeeper and said:

"My name is Swain. I am a friend of Senator Bacon. He brought me here, and I want to go out and look around a bit. I thought that I would tell you, so I can get back in."

"That's all right," said the doorkeeper. "But I may not be here when you return. In order to prevent any mistake I will give you the password, so that you can get your seat again."

"What's the word?" Mr. Swate asked.

"Idiosyncrasy."

"What?"

"Idiosyncrasy."

"I guess I'll stay in," said Swate.—Toledo Blade.

JUST LIKE HOME.

The two little girls—six years old or so—were playing housekeeping all along the garden wall. On some principle that no grown-up could realize one section of it was the kitchen, another the dining-room, another the sitting-room ,and so on. One small maid was the mistress of the house and the other was the servant girl.

Then the big man came strolling along with a book in his hand and, all unconscious, perched himself on the softest stone in the middle of that wall.

"Oh, look how he comes and spoils our play," wailed one of the twain.

"No, indeed," replied Audrey, with a happy inspiration. "He's my husband and he's reading in his den and he's not to be disturbed, so we needn't notice him."

And so the game went on.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

SLUGGARD AND THE ANT.

The Sluggard was watching the ant. It was hurrying along with a breadcrumb twice its size.

"By Jove!" exclaimed the Sluggard, "the little beggar is a hustler!"

The Sluggard went back to his work He found that by not idling he could do twice as much as he usually did. True, he missed looking out of the window. The songs he used to sing, he missed them, too. But what did that matter Was he not doing twice as much work? And he looked back at his idle ways with loathing.

A month later three doctors stood by the Sluggard's bedside. They shook their heads. It was a bad case. One of them said:

"Our patient has nervous prostration brought on by overwork."

From that time, whenever the Sluggard saw an ant working it gave him a headache.

The moral being that each of us has his own rate of speed.—Troy Times.

TRUE COURTESY.

True courtesy is "the beauty of the heart." How well it is that no class has a monopoly in this kind of beauty; that while favourable circumstances undoubtedly do render good manners more common among persons moving in higher rather than in lower spheres, there should nevertheless be no positive hindrance to the poorest classes having good manners. Here is an illustration of true politeness exhibited by both classes of society. One day, in hastily turning the corners of a crooked street in the city, a young lady ran with great force against a ragged little beggar boy, and almost knocked him down. Stopping as soon as she could, she turned around and said very kindly to the boy, "I beg your pardon, my little fellow. I am very sorry that I ran against you."

The poor boy was astonished. He looked at her for a moment in surprise; and then, taking off about three-quarters of a cap, he made a low bow and said, while a pleasant smile spread itself all over his face: "You can hev my parding, miss, and welcome; and the next time you run agin me, you can knock me clean down and I won't say a word." After the lady had passed on he turned to his companion and said, "I say, Jim, it's the first time I ever had anybody ask my parding, and it kind o' took me off my feet."

FORMAL OPENING OF THE MUSEUM

At a meeting of the Public Library Board last night, it was decided to have a formal opening of the museum on Tuesday evening next, April 23. The rooms will be thrown open from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m., and an orchestra will be in attendance. It is hoped that there will be as large a number present as possible, not only to view and show an interest in the exhibit, but also as a tribute to Mr. T. A. S. Hay, to whom Peterborough is indebted, more than can be adequately expressed in words, for the vast amount of labour ungrudgingly given during past years to the curatorship of this very interesting collection.

HE'S NOT THE MAN.

D. McDonald Offers Jail Term as an Alibi.

Toronto, April 20.—The fact that he spent nineteen days in the Don Jail got Donald McDonald out of a nasty scrape yesterday morning, when an effort was made to extradite him by the Buffalo police on a charge of shooting Abe Paniamo, a Buffalo pawnbroker, with intent to kill, on Sept. 27. The case was heard by Judge Winchester, the local extradition judge.

Three Buffalo citizens identified McDonald as the man who did the shooting, although Paniamo was not quite so sure. One of the citizens was quite positive, he said that McDonald was the man.

It was shown, however, that on Sept. 27, the day the shooting took place, McDonald was tried before Judge Winchester in the Sessions on a charge of fraud. He had registered at the Gladstone Hotel, while under the influence of liquor, and left without paying his bill. He was let out on suspended sentence, however, as he had made restitution, and had been in jail nineteen days.

When this evidence was proved by court and police officials, Detective Sergeant J. S. Ryan, of Buffalo, said he was quite satisfied that McDonald was not the man he wanted, but said that his double must exist somewhere.

After lecturing McDonald on the evils of drinking, the judge allowed him to go.

OUTLINES POLICY

English Education for Every Child, Says Mr. Rowell

DEPARTMENT'S FAILURE

Toronto, April 20.—Pointing out the inadequacy of the policy promulgated by Sir James Whitney to solve the problem of the English-French schools in Ontario and bring these schools to a state of efficiency, Mr. N. W. Rowell made several recommendations before a meeting of Ward Six Liberals last night.

The conditions shown to exist in these schools by Dr. Merchant's report, said Mr. Rowell, indicated a complete breakdown in the administration of the Department of Education. No more severe condemnation could be passed upon the Department than the facts shown in this report.

The dismissal of the officials directly responsible for the present unsatisfactory conditions in the English-French schools.

The establishment of additional training schools to secure supply of English-speaking teachers, and the providing by the Government of financial aid to secure this result.

The carrying out of the present law with regard to the language of instruction to be used in schools.

The replacing of inefficient or unsympathetic inspectors by others who will adopt sympathetic attitude towards the teachers and pupils in the English-French schools.

The appointment of supervising inspectors with larger experience to see that the school laws and regulations are carried out, and to help secure the sympathetic co-operation of teachers and pupils in the policy of the Department of Education.

Financial assistance to be given by the Government to schools in sparsely settled districts to enable them to obtain well-qualified teachers.

The discontinuation of all denominational teaching and of the use of unauthorized text-books in public schools.

WITNESSES ARE HELD

Ismay, Officers and Men Must Stay to Testify

PROBE WILL BE SERIOUS

New York, April 20.—The seriousness of the enquiry by the Senate investigating committee into the Titanic disaster was disclosed last night when Senator Smith of Michigan, chairman of the committee, at first flatly refused to let any of the officers or the 200 odd members of the crew of the sunken steamship get beyond the jurisdiction of the U. S. Government. The men were all to have sailed to-day on the Red Star liner Lapland. Later it was settled that the greater part of the crew would be permitted to sail, but that twelve men and four officers among the survivors now under subpoena, together with Mr. Ismay, would not be permitted to depart.

The intention of the committee was made clear at adjournment, when, with Alfred Crawford, a bedroom steward, on the stand, Senator Smith, pleaded weariness.

"We have been at this all day and into the night," he said, "and I believe we had better cease until to-morrow. I am not through with Mr. Crawford yet and would like to question him further to-morrow, together with other members of the crew and the officers.

C. C. Burlingham, counsel for the White Star Line, interposed.

"There are 200 men who are to sail to-morrow," he said, "surely the committe does not intend to hold them. We are perfectly willing to pledge the presence of the four officers and the twelve men desired by the committee, but these men are entitled to return to their homes."

"I am not prepared to permit that," said the Senator. "We cannot say whom we may want and they cannot go."

"We cannot care for them, then," retorted Mr. Burlingham. "When the Lapland sails we shall cease to be responsible for them."

Senator Smith declined to recede from his position and at that time. The committee then adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning. At a conference the decision to let all the men go except those under subpoena was reached.

The Titanic's rate of speed, which was approximately 26 1-2 land miles, was brought out yesterday from the lips of J. Bruce Ismay, president of the International Mercantile Marine, and managing director of the White Star Line, a witness before the U. S. Senate committee, which is investigating the disaster.

Nervous, but not in tears, as was Capt. Rostron of the Carpathia, who followed him on the stand, Mr. Ismay told in whispers of his escape from the sinking liner, from the time he pushed away in a boat with the women, until he found himself, clad in his pajamas, aboard the Carpathia. He was not sure in just what boat he left the Titanic, nor was he sure how long he remained on the liner after she struck.

He added, however, that before he entered a lifeboat, he had been told that there were no more women on the decks; he denied that there had been any censoring of messages from the Carpathia.

Other witnesses, including Captain Rostron, bore him out in this, with the explanation that the lone wireless operator on the rescue ship, swamped with personal messages, was unable to send matter for the press.

Second Officer Lightholder described how he filled his boat, and said that he had chosen woman passengers first. Lightholder testified 218 members of the crew were saved.

"If the same course was pursued on the starboard side as you pursued on the port, in filling boats, how do you account for so many members of the crew being saved?" asked Senator Smith.

"I have enquired especially and have found that for every six persons picked up, five were either firemen or stewards."

Lightholder declared that some lifeboats went back after the Titanic sank and picked up some.

Lightholder described how the ship went down. He told how the ship tilted as it was going down. The crow's nest was described as being level with the water when the bridge was entirely submerged.

"Was there any demonstration?" asked Senator Smith.

"No, sir."

"There must have been 1,500 people aboard and yet no lamentation?"

"I heard none; not a sound."

He, like Col. Gracie, went down with the ship and had a miraculous escape.

Mr. Ismay was the first witness called at the morning session.

Asked by Senator Smith to describe the trip of the Titanic, Ismay said that at no time was the ship run at full speed. He stated that she was capable of "80 revolutions" a minute, but that at no time had she exceeded 75. On the second day, he said, she logged 519 miles, and on the third day 546 miles.

Continuing his evidence, Mr. Ismay said:

"Captain Smith said to me, 'We have struck ice.' I asked him whether he considered the situation serious, and he said that he did. I then saw the chief engineer and he also considered the situation serious."

Mr. Ismay then stated that he had sent no messages from the Carpathia.

"Were you on deck when the order was given to lower the boats?" he was asked.

He replied that he was, that Captain Smith had simply turned and given the order to lower the lifeboats. All the boats, he said, were on the sun deck. The women and children were put into them and they were lowered into the sea.

"I would like to express my sincere grief for this catastrophe," Mr. Ismay said. "As far as we are concerned we have nothing to conceal, and we court the fullest enquiry. The Titanic was built in Belfast—not by contract, but by commission—and she was the latest thing in ship construction.

"I helped to get a number of the boats out and assisted in getting the women into them," said Mr. Ismay. "I left the ship—the last to leave so far as I know—in the starboard collapsible boat. I floated about all night. It was terrible."

Captain Rostron said he took the Carpathia to New York instead of Halifax because the survivors could more easily be taken care of at the former city.

Mr. Ismay was asked how long he remained on the crippled ship.

"That would be hard to estimate," he responded. "Almost until she sank. Probably an hour and a quarter." Then Senator Smith asked the circumstances under which he left the boat.

"The boat was being filled," began Mr. Ismay. "The officers called out to know if there were any more women to go. There were none. No passengers were on the deck. So as the boat was being lowered I got into it."

"The ship was sinking?" asked Senator Smith.

"The boat was sinking," almost whispered Mr. Ismay.

Senator Newlands asked about the lifeboats at great length.

"Take the Titanic," he said, "whose tonnage is three times that of the Carpathia, how many additional lifeboats could she accommodate without inconvenience?"

"I don't know the ship," said Captain Rostron, "but if she couldn't carry more than twenty she could be made to."

Captain Smith Chose Death.

New York, April 20.—At the American Seamen's Association, where 150 of the rescued crew of the Titanic are being fed, clothed and housed, G. A. Hogg, able seaman, told last night of the last of Captain Smith. Hogg says that as the Titanic sank a big wave washed him over the side, and he landed on a raft carrying 35 persons.

"The next moment I saw Captain Smith in the water alongside the raft. 'There's the skipper,' I yelled. 'Give him a hand,' and they did; but he shook himself free and shouted to us, 'Good-bye, boys. I'm going to follow the ship.' That was the last we saw of our skipper."

Province Seeks Loan.

Toronto, April 20.—Public subscriptions for the raising of a $2,000,000 loan on provincial bonds are being advertised for by the Government. These bonds will be made payable to the bearer, and on request of holders will be exchanged for "Ontario Government stock" at any time. The loan is generally raised annually, and is for the purpose of meeting the expenditures on Hydro-Electric extensions and various other public improvements.

A further loan of $210,000 is being advertised for on similar terms to the $2,000,000 loan. The smaller amount is to enable the Government to purchase certain territory at or adjoining the Algonquin National Park, which is wanted for purposes of reforestation.

Committed For Trial.

Toronto, April 20.—Edward Elmer McIntosh was committed for trial yesterday on a charge of having stolen 4,000 half-signed $5 Traders' Bank notes from the Dominion Express Co in March, 1909. He appeared in the police court, pleaded not guilty and was committed for trial.

The missing money was being forwarded from Ottawa to Toronto by C.P.R. in a special locked car. McIntosh was a brakeman on the train.

GLOOM IN LONDON

Mournful Assembly Gathers in Great Cathedral

SHIP'S DESIGNER FAINTS

New York, April 20.—The World has received the following from London:

The tragic story of the Titanic holds the British public in its terrible grip as none has ever done before. The only relief from the all-pervading gloom is the glory in the magnificent heroism that emerges from the ghastly horrors of that last scene.

St. Paul's Cathedral was thronged yesterday by a congregation of 10,000 at the memorial service for victims of the disaster. The scene when the vast throng, overcome by the sadness and solemnity of the occasion, joined tearfully and with intense feeling in singing the final hymn, was one to be remembered. The most sensational incident of the service was the fainting of Mr. Carlisle, designer of the Titanic. He collapsed in his seat and had to be removed by an ambulance corps. Ever since the catastrophe, Mr. Carlisle has been in an overwrought condition and has not slept.

Mourning was more general in London Thursday and Friday than at any time since the death of King Edward. Another indication of the extent to which the calamity has taken hold of the public mind and heart, is the sudden drop in attendance at the theatres and other places of amusement. Even the houses which have been doing a big business have been half empty for the last three nights. Subscriptions are being made liberally to the relief funds, and whatever money can do to alleviate the suffering caused by the disaster, will be forthcoming.

Public interest in every detail of the wreck continues to be insatiable. The newspapers contain almost nothing else and the demand for them is unprecedented.

The opinion is becoming stronger and more general here that reckless navigating for the purpose of making a record and overconfidence in the overwhelming immensity of the ship, were responsible for the catastrophe.

The report that the Titanic was proceeding almost at full speed in the ice field, although she had been fully warned of her peril, seems to indicate a negligent or indifferent condition of mind incredible under circumstances of such tremendous responsibility.

First Result of Disaster.

London, April 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—All Allan Line steamers that are sailing to Canada this week carry extra lifeboats sufficient in fact to accommodate every soul on board. The management of the C.P.R. liners state that all their ships are to be equipped immediately with such life-saving appliances as will accommodate passengers and crew in case of emergency. It is also probable that the Cunard and Booth Lines will follow suit.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA

Price, large bottle, 100 full doses 50c and well worth it too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at a low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year.

There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps nature throw off the dullness that comes from the indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's remedies.

CHAPTER I.
THE PLAINSMAN.

The man was riding just below the summit of the ridge, occasionally uplifting his head so as to gaze across the crest, shading his eyes with one hand, to thus better concentrate his vision. Both horse and rider plainly exhibited signs of weariness, but every movement of the latter showed ceaseless vigilance, his glance roaming the barren ridges, a brown Winchester lying cocked across the saddle pommel, his left hand taut on the rein. Yet the horse he bestrode scarcely required restraint, advancing slowly, with head hanging low, only occasionally breaking into a brief trot under the impetus of the spur.

The rider was a man approaching thirty, somewhat slender and long of limb, but both possessing broad, squared shoulders above a deep chest, sitting the saddle easily in plainsman fashion, yet with an erectness of carriage which suggested military training. The face under the wide brim of the weather-worn slouch hat was clean-shaven, browned by sun and wind, and strongly marked, the chin slightly prominent, the mouth firm, the grey eyes full of character and daring. His dress was that of rough service, plain leather "chaps," showing marks of hard usage, a grey woollen shirt turned low at the neck, with a kerchief knotted loosely about the sinewy bronzed throat. At one hip dangled the holster of a "forty-five," on the other hung a canvas-covered canteen. His was figure and face to be noted anywhere, a man from whom you would expect both thought and action, and one who seemed to exactly fit his wild environment.

Where he rode was the very western extreme of the prairie country, billowed like the sea, and from off the crest of its higher ridges, the wide level sweep of the plains was visible, extending like a vast brown ocean to the foothills of the far-away mountains. Yet the actual commencement of that drear, barren expanse was fully ten miles distant, while all about where he rode the conformation was irregular, comprising narrow valleys and swelling mounds, with here and there a sharp ravine, riven from the rock, and invisible until one drew up startled at its very brink. The general trend of depression was undoubtedly southward, leading toward the valley of the Arkansas, yet irregular ridges occasionally cut across, adding to the confusion. The entire surrounding landscape presented the same aspect, with no special object upon which the eye could rest for guidance—no tree, no upheaval of rock, no peculiarity of summit, no snake-like trail—all around extended the same dull, dead monotony of brown, sun-baked hills, with slightly greener depressions lying between, interspersed by patches of sand or the white gleam of alkali. It was a dreary, deserted land, parched under the hot summer sun, brightened by no vegetation, excepting sparse bunches of buffalo grass or an occasional stunted sage bush, and disclosing nowhere slightest sign of human habitation.

The rising sun reduced the crest of the hills, and the rider, halting his willing horse, sat motionless, gazing steadily into the south-west. Apparently he perceived nothing there unusual, for he slowly turned his body about in the saddle, sweeping his eyes, inch by inch, along the line of the horizon, until the entire circuit had been completed. Then his compressed lips smiled slightly, his hand unconsciously patting the horse's neck.

"I reckon we're still alone, old girl," he said quietly, a bit of Southern drawl in the voice. "We'll try for the trail, and take it easy."

He swung stiffly out of the saddle, and with reins dangling over his shoulder, began the slower advance on foot, the exhausted horse trailing behind. His was not a situation in which one could feel certain of safety, for any ridge might conceal the wary foemen he sought to avoid, yet he proceeded now with renewed confidence. It was the summer of 1868, and the place the very heart of the Indian country, with every separate tribe ranging between the Yellowstone and the Brazos, either restless or openly on the warpath. Rumours of atrocities were being retold the length and breadth of the border, and every report drifting in to either fort or settlement only added to the alarm. For once at least the Plains Indians had discovered a common cause, tribal differences had been adjusted in war against the white invader, and Kiowas, Comanches, Arapahoes, Cheyennes, and Sioux had become welded together in savage brotherhood. To oppose them were the scattered and unorganized settlers lining the more eastern streams, guarded by small detachments of regular troops posted here and there amid that broad wilderness, scarcely within touch of each other.

Everywhere beyond these lines of patrol wandered roaming war parties, attacking travellers on the trails, raiding exposed settlements, and occasionally venturing to try open battle with the small squads of armed men. In this stress of sudden emergency—every available soldier on active duty—civilians had been pressed into the service, and hastily despatched to warn exposed settlers, guide wagon trains, or carry despatches between outposts. And thus our rider, Jack Keith, who knew every foot of plains between the Republican and the Canadian Rivers, was one of these thus suddenly requisitioned, merely because he chanced to be discovered unemployed by the harassed commander of a cantonment just without the environs of Carson City. Twenty minutes later he was riding swiftly into the north-west, bearing important news to General Sheridan, commander of the Department, who happened at that moment to be at Fort Cairnes. To Keith this had been merely another page in a career of adventure; for him to take his life in his hands had long ago become an old story. He had quietly performed the special duty allotted him, watched a squadron of troopers trot forth down the valley of the Republican, received the hasty thanks of the peppery little general, and then, having nothing better to do, traded his horse in at the Government corral for a fresh mount and started back again for Carson City. For the greater portion of two nights and a day he had been in the saddle, but he was accustomed to this, for he had driven more than one bunch of longhorns up the Texas trail; and as he had slept three hours at Cairnes, and as his nerves were like steel, the thought of danger gave him slight concern. He was thoroughly tired, and it rested him to get out of the saddle, while the freshness of the morning air was a tonic, the very breath of which made him forgetful of fatigue.

After all, this was indeed the very sort of experience which appealed to him, and always had—this life of peril in the open, under the stars and the sky. He had constantly experienced it for so long now, eight years, as to make it seem merely natural. While he ploughed steadily forward through the shifting sand of the coulee, his thought drifted idly back over those years, and sometimes he smiled, and occasionally frowned, as various incidents returned to memory. It had been a rough life, yet one not unusual to those of his generation. Born of excellent family in tidewater Virginia, his father a successful planter, his mother had died while he was still in early boyhood, and he had grown up cut off from all womanly influence. He had barely attained his majority, a senior at William and Mary's College, when the Civil War came; and one month after Virginia cast in her lot with the South, he became a sergeant in a cavalry regiment commanded by his father. He had enjoyed that life and won his spurs, yet it had cost. There was much not over pleasant to remember, and those strenuous years of almost ceaseless fighting, of long night marches, of swift, merciless raiding, of lonely scouting within the enemy's lines, of severe wounds, hardship, and suffering, had left their marks on both body and soul. His father had fallen on the field at Antietam, and left him utterly alone in the world, but he had fought on grimly to the end, until the last flag of the Confederacy had been furled. By that time, upon the collar of his tattered grey jacket appeared the tarnished insignia of a captain. The quick tears dimmed his eyes even now as he recalled anew that final parting following Appomattox, the battle-worn faces of his men, and his own painful journey homeward, defeated, wounded, and penniless. It was no home when he got there, only a heap of ashes and a few weed-grown acres. No familiar face greeted him; not even a slave was left.

He had honestly endeavoured to remain there, to face the future and work it out alone; he persuaded himself to feel that this was his paramount duty to the State, to the memory of the dead. But those very years of army life made such a task impossible; the dull, dead monotony of routine, the loneliness, the slowness of results, became intolerable. As it came to thousands of his comrades, the call of the West came to him, and at last he yielded, and drifted toward the frontier. The life there fascinated him, drawing him deeper and deeper into its swirling vortex. He became freighter, mail carrier, hunter, Government scout, cowboy, foreman. Once he had drifted into the mountains and took a chance in the mines, but the wide plains called him back once more to their desert loneliness. What an utter waste it all seemed, now that he looked back upon it. Eight years of fighting, hardship, and rough living, and what had they brought him? The reputation of a hard rider, a daring card player at cards, a quick shot, a scorner of danger, and a bad man to fool with—that was the whole of a record hardly won. The man's eyes hardened, his lips set firmly, as this truth came crushing home. A pretty life story surely, one to be proud of, and with probably no better ending than an Indian bullet, or the flash of a revolver in some bar-room fight.

The narrow valley along which he was travelling suddenly changed its direction, compelling him to climb the rise of the ridge. Slightly below the summit he halted. In front extended the wide expanse of the Arkansas valley, a scene of splendour under the golden rays of the sun, with vivid contrast of colours, the grey of rocks, the yellow of sand, the brown of distant hills, the green of vegetation, and the silver sheen of the stream half hidden behind the fringe of cottonwoods lining its banks. This was a sight Keith had often looked upon, but always with appreciation, and for the moment his eyes swept across from bluff to bluff without thought except for its wild beauty. Then he perceived something which instantly startled him into attention—yonder, close beside the river, just beyond that ragged bunch of cottonwoods, slender spirals of blue smoke were visible. That would hardly be a camp of freighters at this hour of the day, and besides, the Santa Fe trail along here ran close in against the bluff, coming down to the river at the ford two miles further west. No party of plainsmen would ever venture to build a fire in so exposed a spot, and no small company would take the chances of the trail. But surely that appeared to be the flap of a canvas wagon top a little to the right of the smoke, yet all was so far away he could not be certain. He stared in that direction a long while, shading his eyes with both hands, unable to decide. There were three or four moving black dots higher up the river, but so far away he could not distinguish whether men or animals. Only as outlined against the yellow sand dunes could he tell they were advancing westward toward the ford.

Decidedly puzzled by all this, yet determined to solve the mystery and unwilling to remain hidden there until night, Keith led his horse along the slant of the ridge, until he attained a sharp break through the bluff leading down into the valley. It was a rugged gash, nearly impassible, but a half hour of toil won them the lower prairie, the winding path preventing the slightest view of what might be meanwhile transpiring below. Once safely out in the valley the river could no longer be seen, while barely a hundred yards away, winding along like a great serpent, ran the deeply rutted trail to Santa Fe. In neither direction appeared any sign of human life. As near as he could determine from those distant cottonwoods outlined against the sky (for the smoke spirals were too thin by then to be observed), the ford sought must be considerably to the right of where he had emerged. With this idea in mind he advanced cautiously, his every sense alert, searching anxiously for fresh signs of passage or evidence of a wagon train having deserted the beaten track and turned south. The trail itself, lustless and packed hard, revealed nothing, but some five hundred yards beyond the ravine he discovered what he sought—here two wagons had turned sharply to the left, their wheels cutting deeply enough into the prairie sod to show them heavily laden. With the experience of the border he was able to determine that these wagons were drawn by mules, two span to each, their small hoofs clearly defined on the turf, and that they were being driven rapidly, on a sharp trot as they turned, and then, a hundred feet further, at a slashing gallop. Just outside their trail appeared the marks of a galloping horse. A few rods farther along Keith came to a confused blur of pony tracks sweeping in from the east, and the whole story of the chase was revealed as though he had witnessed it with his own eyes. They must have been crazy, or else impelled by some grave necessity, to venture along this trail in so small a party. And they were travelling west—west! Keith drew a deep breath, and swore to himself, "Of all the blame fools!"

He perceived the picture in all its gruesome details—the two mule-drawn wagons moving slowly along the trail in the early morning; the band of hostile Indians suddenly swooping out from some obscure hiding place in the bluffs; the discovery of their presence; the desperate effort at escape; the swerving from the open trail in vain hope of reaching the river and finding protection underneath its banks; the frightened mules galloping wildly, lashed into frenzy by the man on horseback; the pounding of the ponies' hoofs, punctuated by the exultant yells of the pursuers. Again he swore:

"Of all the blame fools!"

CHAPTER II.
THE SCENE OF THE TRAGEDY

Whatever might be the nature of the tragedy it would be over with long before this, and those moving black spots away yonder to the west, that he had discerned from the bluff, were undoubtedly the departing raiders. There was nothing left for Keith to do except determine the fate of the unfortunates, and give their bodies decent burial. That any had escaped, or yet lived, was altogether unlikely, unless, perchance, women had been in the party, in which case they would have been borne away prisoners.

Confident that no hostiles would be left behind to observe his movements, Keith pressed steadily forward, leading his horse. He had thus traversed fully half a mile before coming upon any evidence of a fight—here the pursuers had apparently come up with the wagons, and circled out upon either side. From their ponies' tracks there must have been a dozen in the band. Perhaps a hundred yards further along lay two dead ponies. Keith examined them closely—both had been ridden with saddles, the marks of the cinches plainly visible. Evidently one of the wagon mules had also dropped in the traces here, and had been dragged along by his mates. Just beyond came a sudden depression in the prairie down which the wagons had plunged so heavily as to break one of the axles; the wheel lay a few yards away, and, somewhat to the right, there lay the wreck of the wagon itself, two dead mules still in the traces, the vehicle stripped of contents and charred by fire. A hundred feet farther along was the other wagon, its tongue broken, the canvas top ripped open, while between the two were scattered odds and ends of wearing apparel and provisions, with a pile of boxes smoking grimly. The remaining mules were gone, and no semblance of life remained anywhere. Keith dropped his reins over his horse's head, and, with Winchester cocked and ready, advanced cautiously.

Death from violence had long since become almost a commonplace occurrence to Keith, yet now he shrank for an instant as his eyes perceived the figure of a man lying motionless across the broken wagon tongue. The grizzled hair and beard were streaked with blood, the face almost unrecognizable, while the hands yet grasped a bent and shattered rifle. Evidently the man had died fighting, beaten down by overwhelming numbers after expending his last shot. Then those fiends had scalped and left him where he fell. Fifty feet beyond, shot in the back, lay a younger man, doubled up in a heap, also scalped and dead. That was all; Keith scouted over a wide circle, even scanning the stretch of gravel under the river bank, before he could fully satisfy himself there were no others in the party. It seemed impossible that these two travelling alone would have ventured upon such a trip in the face of known Indian hostility. Yet they must have done so, and once again his lips muttered:

"Of all the blame fools!"

Suddenly he halted, staring about over the prairie, obsessed by a new thought, an aroused suspicion. There had appeared merely the footprints of the one horse alongside of the fleeing wagons when they first turned out from the trail, and that horse had been newly shod. But there were two dead ponies lying back yonder; neither shod, yet both had borne saddles. More than this, they had been spurred, the blood marks still plainly visible, and one of them was branded; he remembered it now, a star and arrow. What could all this portend? Was it possible this attack was no Indian affair at all? Was the disfiguring of bodies, the scalping, merely done to make it appear the act of savages? Driven to investigation by this suspicion, he pased again over the trampled ground, marking this time every separate indentation, every faintest imprint of hoof or foot. There was no impression of a moccasin anywhere; every mark remaining was of booted feet. The inference was sufficiently plain—this had been the deed of white men, not of red; foul murder, and not savage war.

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

So. Wellington, B.C.—"For a year during the Change of Life I was all run down. I was really too weak to walk and was very despondent and thought I was going to die, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier my health and strength returned. I am very thankful to you and praise your medicine. I have advised several women who suffered as I did to try your remedies. You may publish this if you wish."—Mrs. DAVID R. MORRIS, South Wellington, Vancouver Island, B. C.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and we believe it is unequalled for women during the period of change of life.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Redistribution Bill Before Provincial House

Proposed New Constituency to be Formed With Biggar as Seat

The Provincial Parliament now have the new Distribution Bill framed up into working shape, and this will erect 15 new seats and make 64 seats for the whole province.

One of these new seats is allotted to our own town of Biggar, with a district extending thirty miles from east to west and from sixty to ninety miles from north to south, the deflection being caused by the North Saskatchewan River.

As laid out, the new constituency of Biggar consists of all that land shown on the map as follows:

Starting from a point on the line between ranges 11 and 12 on the top of township 30, and proceeding straight north along this line to the North Saskatchewan river in township 40; then along the line of the river till reaching the line between ranges 17 and 18 in township 44, and proceeding south along this line to the N. E. corner of township 30 in range 18, and from there straight east to the starting point.

This gives the Biggar constituency an area of somewhere about 2,600 square miles, and includes the towns of Biggar, South Battleford, Naseby, Traynor, Harris, Zealandia, Herschel, Palo, Oban, Mead, Vance, Neola, and a lot of other smaller places inside the area mentioned above.

Cured of Shingles and Eczema

Mr. J. H. Jarvis, Kingston

By Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Chest Raw, Bleeding and Itchy.

"I just want to say a good word for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In November, 1909, I had what the doctors call shingles and eczema. My chest was raw and bleeding and itchy. I was that way all winter. It was not so bad in the summer. In September it got worse. I had the best doctors treating me, but did me no good, and I was all run down in health. In November, 1910, it got worse again. I sent to you for a sample cake of Cuticura Soap. You sent it to me and I got a box of Cuticura Ointment. I have used two boxes and on the third one it has cured me of shingles and eczema. I am delighted with them and do feel pleased to think I have something I have confidence in. Should anyone be suffering as I did, I hope that they will do as I did, and I am sure of the results. I am recommending them from experience." (Signed) J. H. Jarvis, 7 Ann St., Kingston, Ont., May 30, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for itching, burning, scaly and bleeding skin and scalp humors, of young and old. A single set is often sufficient. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, but to those who have suffered much, lost hope and are without faith in any treatment, a liberal sample of each with 32-p. booklet on the skin will be mailed free, on application. THE FOE OF EFFICIENCY.

Any officer holding a command which carries with it any measure of responsibility for the defence of the Empire must recognise, as I do, the value of temperance in promoting fighting efficiency. In the Navy there are three qualities upon which efficiency mainly depends. They are discipline, straight shooting, and endurance, and temperance unquestionably tends greatly to the promotion of these qualities. In regard to discipline, one has only to look at the punishment returns to realise how many of the disciplinary offences are due at the outset to intemperance. As for endurance, medical research has amply proved the fact that temperance is a great asset in improving the physical qualities, and, therefore, the endurance of the human race. But of our own personal experience we know that we do not drink alcohol just before a football match or a boat race. If we do we shall fail, and the same is true of any other pursuit involving endurance. As regards straight shooting, which is so largely a question of eye, it is everyone's experience tha tabstinence is necessary for the highest efficiency. If I am going to a rifle meeting in the afternoon, I don't drink a whisky and soda at lunch. If I did I know I should have no chance of making a "possible." What aplies to a rifle applies equally to a heavy gun, and all admirals recognize thsi by taking care that the fleet is called away from a harbour on urgent business at least twenty-four hours before battle practice or a gun-layers' test is commenced.

The Grog Curve.

Most captains also, if their ships are to fire at these practices in the afternoon, continued Admiral Jellicoe, hold over the grog issue until the evening. In this connection I should like to refer to the experience of Capt. Ogilvy, who, I regret to say, died some eighteen months ago. He is the officer who did such good service with naval guns at the relief of Ladysmith, and he had very great experience in training officers and men in shooting. Commencing under Sir Percy Scott in the Terrible, he later commanded the Grafton, a gunnery school tender, and then the Revenge, the instructional battle practice ship, and died when in command of the Natal, which ship he placed at the top of the fleet in gun-layers' test. He went carefully into statistics, and found that the shooting efficiency of men was 30 per cent. better before than after the grog issue. He put his figures in the form of a curve, and it behoves an admiral when chasing an enemy's fleet and manoeuvring for position to consider the grog curve as well as the position of the sun and the direction of the wind. These facts will show, I think, that naval officers are fully alive to the advantage of temperance in promoting fighting efficiency.—Sir J. R. Jellicoe, Commander-in-Chief of the British Atlantic Fleet.

—Rev. M. L. Savage.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, the great friend of boys, in explaining why he was so in earnest to save the youth of the land from reaching the hardened life of the criminal, says: "Some of those 'grown-ups' whom my activities annoyed began to say I was crazy. Our famil physician came on that report to remonstrate with me. A relative, very much alarmed, asked me to be careful of myself, not to 'overdo.' And I felt as if I were standing before a burning building with the children crying for help in the flames at the upper windows, while my friends remonstrated. 'Be calm.' 'Don't excite yourself so.' 'People will think you are not sane.'"

Not sane?

Well, it depends on what you consider "sane." One very sane thing to do, I suppose, would be to turn my back on the fire and the children perishing in it, blame the inefficiency of the fire department, shrug a shoulder as if to say, "Well, it's none of my business," and calmly go home to my dinner.

But in the transport of my so-called insanity I found a section of the school law by means of which I could get a ladder up to those doomed children.

Judge Lindsey has been doing a remarkable work, which has become national in its scope. In fact, so profoundly has the subject impressed itself on workers in the social uplift, that the "boy problem" has become the foremost question at all religious gatherings of any magnitude. The Men and Religion Forward Movement campaign has emphasized the fact that this is the day of the "Discovery of the Boy."

Formerly all boy who were not saints were put down as "bad." Those who have given the matter even the most superficial study have come to the conclusion that there are no real bad boys. Today the case is not being made out against the boy, but to the boy.

It is the most natural thing in the world for him to get into mischief; he is simpl obeying an impulse—control the impulse and you control the boy. Training should start early. Too often he is allowed to grow up wild. Instead of being pruned and cultivated he has his "head taken off" to keep him under control. The first four or five cars he spends in finding his bearings, possibly ordering father and mother around, finally reaching that stage wheer he wants to know the how, why, whic hand what of everything. He many times ties his father up in knots with some of his profound questions, much to his annoyance, until, as a last resort, he is sent to school, to the great delight of the boy and the despair of the anxious mother. He finds out there is lots of fun at school, but that work at home interferes with it, so he cuts out the work. Chastisement swift and terrible, follows, and he and his father have their first compromise. It is just as natural for him to heave a stone at a cat as it is for him to sympathize with a lame dog, or, seeing a low stone fence, he can no more resist walking thereon than whacking everything with his stick as he playfully passes on his way. He loves the freedom of God's great Outdoors, and has an aversion to authority or discipline.

If a father wishes to retain that authority, that respect due from a dutiful son, he must make a chum of his boy; he must take part in his amusements as far as possible; he should know, instead of hearing a wrong version from other boys. Parents' neglect in these particulars has caused the wreck of many a boy's life.

Failing to get the necessary training at home we look to the forces exerted during the days of his education. Our school system, admirable as it is, does not profess to give any religious instruction, and in most cases gives no definite moral instruction, therefore, the Church, through its Sunday schools, must arise to meet this great deficiency.

Men, leaders of Sunday school work, must take a greater interest in boys. Their moral and religious training is one of the greatest problems in Canada. What we want are ordinary men to do ordinary work among ordinary boys.

Men of ability, who sleep in their easy chairs on Sunday while some good woman, brokenhearted, perhaps, through apparent failure, attempts the impossible in teaching his fifteen-year-old son the lessons he should have learned at home, are awakening to realize that the more influential a man is the less right he has to withdraw from the work of the Sunday school.

A strong committee should be formed in each school to specialize in boys' work, each man to assume the leadership in such departments as physical, social, scout, Bible teaching, and outings, including a summer camp, all to co-operate with the United Sunday Schools' Association.

The Church of to-day has power to mould the Great To-morrow. It must decide, and that right away, what part it shall have in the formation of a new and improved generation.

It is to be hoped the citizens of Peterborough will help the workers who will take the census of boys between the ages of ten and eighteen, Tuesday evening, the 23rd inst., by furnishing them with all the information desired, so that afterwards an aggressive campaign may be carried on in the interests of boys.

THE CASE-BOOK OF A PRIVATE DETECTIVE

Inside History of the Methods Employed in Criminal Investigation Embracing True Narratives of Interesting Cases by a Former Operative of the William J. Burns Detective Agency.

BY DAVID CORNELL

2—A Matter of Intuition

HOW THE BRUNDAGE NOVELTY COMPANY ROBBERY WAS UNCOVERED

(Copyright, 1912, by International Press Bureau.)

At one time in the history of detective work, possibly, the sole function of the detective was to detect crime and criminals. This still is the function for which official detectives, those employed by city, state or nation, exist. But in this day of hectic business competition there has grown to startling proportions another use for the private detective agency; and the ways and means in which the public is learning to use and misuse the service which any detective agency places at their beck and call for $8 a day, often have little or nothing in common with the original purposes of the detective's profession.

Probably one half the business that comes to the private detective agency is "business," instead of crime. Firms hire private detectives to spy on a competitor; employers hire them to look up the conduct of employes after business hours. There are private detective agencies so unscrupulous that you can engage their operatives for almost any service, no matter how low. Then, again, there is the Burns Agency, of which I was an operative, which will not touch a piece of business that is not obviously and absolutely square. But even pursuing this policy, without wavering, they are at times led into wierd and wonderful paths of business mazes; and the work often is no less thrilling than the pursuit of vicious criminals.

The Brundage Novelty Company case was one of the most interesting jobs of any kind that I ever tackled.

On the first of September, 1910, our agency received a telephone call from the Knickerbocker Hotel. The call was: "Please pick out a man whom you know you can trust in every way and send him up here to room L 98."

The caller refused to give his name or to mention the purpose for which he wanted a detective.

"I'll explain all that satisfactorily to you after I have seen whether you have a man whom I consider capable of handling my business," was his answer to the office manager's request for more information.

"That's a queer one," muttered the manager, and he took the call in to the chief.

"Better send Cornell up there to see what it is," said the chief. "We won't touch it if it doesn't look good."

I at once took the subway to Times Square, and a few minutes later I knocked at room L 98. The door was opened by an old man of patriarchal appearance, one in whom the dreamer and the man of efficiency seemed strangely combined. He peered at me for possibly 30 seconds through the six inches of opening he had made.

"Come in," he said. After he had shut and locked the door he added: "You're from the Burn's Agency, of course. Sit down."

I sat. The old man stood before me with his hands on his hips. Usually it is the detective who stands and scrutinizes and analyzes his client, but in this case the usual order was reversed.

"How old are you?" said the old man presently.

"Thirty-six," I replied.

"Married?"

"Yes."

"Children?"

"Three."

"Got a picture of your wife or any of the children with you?"

I looked at him and began to smile. "Now look here, sir," I said; "so far as I understand it, you sent for a detective—"

"Young man," said he, holding up his hand in great dignity, "do not be impatient, please. Please answer my questions. Call it humoring an old man, if you will. There is a reason. Now, again; have you a picture of your wife or children with you? Do you carry one?"

More out of curiosity to see what he was driving at than anything else, I replied that I did carry such a picture, and opening my watch showed him the tiny picture of my little family that was pasted on the inside of the case.

"Good," said he. "Do you carry any life insurance?"

"You old shark!" I said, laughing. "So that's what you got me up here for? Well, that's certainly a new dodge for an insurance agent."

"Young man, young man—don't, please," said he. "Answer my question, if you please."

"Yes," I said. "I do."

"Good!" Then he drew a chair up before me, and sat down, rubbing his hands.

"I must have a decent man, a fairly good man, a man I can believe in to handle this business," said he. "That is why I asked those apparently aimless questions. A married man is more dependable than a single one; a man who thinks a lot of his family is most dependable of all—for my purpose. And a man who thinks a lot of his family will often carry a picture around with him, and carry life insurance for their benefit. Now do you understand me? That is my way of finding out if I want to trust a man."

"Well?" said I.

"Well," said he, "I believe I have been fortunate enough to find such a man at my first try. I believe I can trust you. My name is Ezra Brundage."

At first the name conveyed nothing to me.

"Inventor of the Brundage novelties," he continued, "and president of the Brundage Novelty Company, of Hoboken."

I placed him, then; I had seen his photograph in the advertisements of the Brundage novelties.

"What is it that you want me to do, Mr. Brundage?" I asked.

"I want you," said he, "to satisfy me that the Brundage Novelty Company is not being robbed."

Then he went on to explain. It seems that he had no definite reason for being suspicious. He said it was only his intuition that told him all was not right in the company. He said that a sense of wrong-doing on the part of someone in the office had impressed him several weeks before; that the impression had grown until he had begun to investigate, and though he could find no signs, he now was fully convinced that the company—and therefore himself—was being robbed.

"Intuition entirely, Mr. Cornell," he said. "But all my life I have listened to my intuition, even in my business dealings, and I find that it guards me better than anything else I know."

"Whom do you suspect?" I said bluntly.

"Mr. Cornell, I am in partnership with a young man named Gerber."

"And he's the man, is he?"

He bowed. "I am afraid so, though I dislike to say it. Mr. Gerber is a young man, and hitherto I have thought him the soul of honor—one whom it was a privilege and pleasure to associate with."

"And how do you think he's getting away with the loot?"

He thought it over for a few seconds and said slowly: "I do not know. That is what I want you to find out. He is our treasurer, and so has charge of all the finances of the firm."

"Well," said I, "are there any details you can give me? Any pointers?"

"None," he said. "But I have this suggestion to make; that you go to work in our office as a clerk where you will have opportunities for close observation."

"To watch you partner, Gerber?"

"To watch Mr. Gerber. I place the case in your hands; watch Mr. Gerber."

Back to the office I went to report to the chief.

"I thought you would find sort of a queer bird from the way he phoned," said the chief. "But business is business; he's retained us for the job, and your job is to watch Gerber. However, don't be so slow as to merely follow his suggestion about going to work in the office. Beat the old man to it; look up Gerber—after hours. You'll get more there, probably, than you would in the office."

Under these instructions I went over to Hoboken at once with another man to get a "spot" on Gerber, who was unknown to me. "Getting a spot" on a man in detective parlance signifies this process: one detective enters an office or place of business and asks for the man that is wanted. Meeting him, he makes some excuse and gets away. At the door of the place he waits for the man to come out. Across the street is another detective. When the man who is to be shadowed comes out the first detective signals to the man across the street in some unobtrusive way, and drops out. In this case Cluffer, the man who went with me, entered the offices of the Brundage Novelty Company and asked for Mr. Gerber. Having met him Cluffer merely applied for a position—and was turned down. When Gerber came out at 5 in the afternoon Cluffer, standing near the office entrance, took a paper from his pocket and began to read it—the signal we had agreed upon. Then Cluffer went back to New York, and I, whom Gerber had never seen, took up the trail. In this way all chance for suspicion on the part of the subject is eliminated. ●

For the next three days we "took him up in the morning and put him to bed at night." That is, from the moment when he left his house in the morning to when he retired for the night, Gerber never was out of sight of a detective.

By day, in the office, I had him under my eye, having gone to work there as a clerk. Outside of the office another man from the agency watched him, no matter where he went. Gerber didn't have a chance to make a move that wasn't reported on.

But nothing developed in this time, and I went to the chief and reported my belief that old Brundage was half cracked and that his suspicion was nothing more or less than a hallucination, a brainstorm, to put in bluntly.

"Well, don't let that worry you," said the good natured chief. "Brundage is paying the bill. He's good for it, and there's nothing more important on hand for you just at present. And, say, Cornell, don't you fool yourself too much about that old fellow having a brainstorm. He's a pretty wise old bird. Any man who can invent the scores of little things that he's put on the market, and run a successful business at the same time, is no fool, let me tell you. The thing may develop into a freak case, but believe me, old Brundage has some real reason for incurring our bill."

The fifth day of the case a roughly dressed young man came in to see Gerber. Gerber took him into his private office and closed the door, so it was impossible for me to see or hear what went on between them. But the fact that such secrecy had been observed put me on my guard, and when the young fellow came out I managed to have something to do that brought me near to him. It seems ridiculous, possibly to the layman, to mention as the starting point in an exciting case a whiff of an odor, but such was the real starting point of the Brundage Novelty Company case from my standpoint.

I caught the odor of gasoline from this young man as he swept out of Gerber's private office.

Of course the thing meant nothing at the time. It suggested nothing. The only situation opened by it was this: Gerber had some dealings of a private nature with a young man who smelled of gasolene.

At the same time, it opened up another possible clue for us to work on, for in our previous investigation we had not found Gerber in any dealings with anybody who smelled of gasolene or who might have occasion to use that fluid. As our task was to investigate all angles of Gerber's career, with a view to finding something to substantiate old Brundage's indefinite suspicions, the young man with the gasolene odor promptly became an interesting factor.

Across the street was one of our men, waiting. When the gasolene man left the building I gave Dawson the signal to follow him. My man picked up the trail like a hound, and well satisfied that the mysterious young man would be followed to his destination, I turned back to my pretended occupation.

Mind, all this work was being done without any sane or definite reason for doing it. We didn't know whether Gerber was guilty of anything, or if he was guilty, of what it might be. We were working for Brundage, who had a suspicion, and so long as he paid the bill, and we had nothing more important to do, we would continue on the job.

I suggested to Mr. Brundage that he examine the books of the company for indications of anything wrong.

"I had thought of that long ago," said he. "But Mr. Gerber has all the books in his personal charge. He locks them up every evening. To secure them for an investigation it would be necessary to make a demand upon Mr. Gerber, and this naturally would arouse his suspicion. No. We will go on as we have begun. I am satisfied. If anything is wrong it will be shown, for Mr. Gerber is not permitted to remove the books from this office."

That evening I got Dawson's report on the young man who had been in to see Gerber.

"He's the engineer of a fifty foot gasolene launch, the Nadine, that is lying in the Hudson opposite Forty-second street," Dawson reported. "The boat's owner is said to be a Mr. Russel."

"Said to be?"

"Yes; because I hung around and wormed out a description of this 'Russel' from a lot of fellows hanging around the docks, and he comes pretty close to looking like Mr. Gerber, if these fellows were right."

Still, this meant nothing so far as any case was concerned. But when I made enquiries about the office to find out if Gerber went in for motorboating, and found he had expressed himself as having an aversion to the water, the thing began to look as if there might be something in it. If the boat, The Nadine, belonged to Gerber, he was keeping it a secret; and if he had secrets they might be connected with Brundage's suspicions of something wrong in the firm.

Strange to say, as I continued to watch Gerber, I too, began to acquire a suspicious feeling toward him, just as the senior partner had done. There was no tangible reason why this should be so. His actions apparently were what they should be. But there was something wrong with the man. That is as well as I am able to explain it. He wasn't "right." I have felt this intuition—or "hunch," in detective parlance—several times in my career; and the experiences have convinced me that the detection of crime could be made an exact psychological science, that each and every guilty person carries about him certain signs—or possibly an aura—which distinguishes him from the normal being. For guilt of a crime of any sort, after all, is an abnormality.

Gerber, in his office, and in his life after business hours, apparently went along as an honest man in his position should. But the more I studied him the more I began to agree with Brundage that it was time he was investigated.

I put Dawson to work on the young engineer. Dawson rented a little motor boat, got permission to tie it up beside the fifty-footer in the young man's charge, and began to overhaul his engine, as if preparing for a cruise. This gave him an opportunity to borrow wrenches and oils from the larger boat, to buy drinks and cigars to pay for the favors, and so to strike up a close acquaintance with the man he was after.

Had that young man been strictly temperate it is doubtful if the Brundage Novelty Company case ever would have become a credit to the Burns Agency. Dawson plied him steadily with liquid refreshment in the saloons along the water front, and the young man began to talk about his employer.

"He's a queer crab," said the engineer. "He makes me keep this boat in running order day and night—makes me stay by it ready to repaint it at a minute's notice. Now what in the devil would a man want to have his boat repainted so suddenly for?"

"I couldn't guess," said Dawson.

"Then again," went on the intemperate engineer, "his name is Gerber and he makes me tell everybody that the boat is owned by a chap named Russel. Now, what would he be doing that for? I—"

He shut up suddenly then, realizing in drunken fashion that he had gone too far.

After Dawson had made this report he went off the case, being called in to the New York office. For the next week, or until September 25th, I worked on Gerber in every way I knew how, without finding a thing. On the 25th he failed to show up at the office. A telephone call to his house elicited the fact that he had left at about midnight and had not returned.

I had a hunch on the instant, and calling a taxi drove to the place where the Nadine had been docked. The slip was empty, the boat was gone. From men around the docks I found that the boat had disappeared in the night without being seen, that nobody had known it was going, and that nobody knew where it had gone.

I went back to the office and told Brundage all I knew.

"Hm!" said he, and together we went to the safe. Brundage tried to open it, he and Gerber having had the combination together. He failed. For half an hour he tried, and then he gave up and telephoned for an expert from the safe company.

When the safe finally was opened the books were placed at once in the hands of an expert accountant. He found the discrepancy within half an hour.

"It is one of the clumsiest cases of juggling I ever saw," he said. "As near as I can tell on this short examination, the cash is $15,000 short. Apparently it has been short for a long time, because I see that the juggling of figures has been going on for months."

"Hm," said Brundage. "For months, eh? I was slow. Mr. Cornell, your task is simplified now; you have only to find Mr Gerber."

Yes, that was all, but that was plenty. Here is how we laid down our theory of the situation: Gerber had gone away in the Nadine. He had probably had the boat repainted, renamed, and otherwise altered before leaving. He had left no sign of his route or destination. Our task was to comb the Hudson river up and down and pick out Gerber in his probably altered boat.

Dawson came over on the jump from the office.

"I sized the Nadine up carefully," said he. "I think I will know her even under a different name and different paint."

"Get the fastest boat for hire on the river," said Brundage. "Follow him and bring him back."

We got the Puritan, a semi-racer with a small cabin. Two hours after the discrepancy in Gerber's books had been found, Dawson and I were chugchugging up the Jersey side of the Hudson 20 miles an hour, with our eyes on the lookout for a launch that might be the Nadine. At the same time we notified all police chiefs of the towns along the river to be on the lookout for such a boat and for Gerber and his engineer. Four days of this sort of work, coupled with the efforts of the various police departments, showed us that no boat of this description was on the Hudson. The Nadine had disappeared.

I went back to the slip in Hoboken and began to work among the hangers-on along the docks. The Nadine had been under their eyes constantly, and finally one of them let drop the remark that put me on the scent.

"Wherever she went, she didn't go far," said this man. "They didn't have gasolene in her enough to run five miles, and there was no chance to get any when they slippd out at night."

If this was true the Nadine must have put in at some nearby dock to purchase gasolene if she intended to make a long trip. So far as we could find, she had not done this. There was a chance that the boat still was in the vicinity.

Working on this chance we began to search the nearby boatyards. On the second day we found her. She was up high and dry, having her keel repaired, under the name of the Gull.

But for the waterman who had observed the depletion of her fuel supply the boat might have lain there till it rotted before we noticed it, for the work of disguising her had been well done, and a boat on the blocks in dry-dock is of different appearance than a boat in the water.

I was forced to smile in admiration of Gerber when I found the Nadine. He had fooled us, and fooled us artistically. We had thought it a certain thing that he had flown away up or down the river. He had worked artistically to this end. But he had done nothing of the sort. All he had done—as I discovered when I located the engineer—was to telephone the latter to take the Nadine out at night and lay her up for repairs in the boatyard. Then he, Gerber, had flitted otherwhere, leaving us to chase away on his false, watery tracks. It was well done. It was better done than most crooked pieces of work. But like all crooks he had not stopped to consider the absolute certainty of being caught when there is plenty of money willing to be spent to effect a capture.

"Get him," directed Brundage. "I don't care how high the bills run; get that man."

After that it was only a question of time.

How is the net woven with such certainty around the hiding criminal? In Gerber's case, ten days after his defalcation was discovered, 10,000 circulars, containing his description and history and two cuts of him, were in the hands of as many trained men in all parts of the country. A thousand men, in all the large ports of the world, had these circulars three weeks later.

Gerber was not caught, however, until after three months had elapsed. Then one of his intimate friends—whom I was watching as the first person Gerber would be likely to communicate with—received a letter postmarked New Orleans, and addressed in a disguised hand. I had possession of the letter before the friend ever saw it—through a secret arrangement with the postal authorities. I opened it—and it was from Gerber. Copying the letter, word by word, I sealed it again, and sent it along to its destination. But before he ever received the letter I was on my way to New Orleans. I went straight to the general delivery window at the post office and waited. Gerber had directed his mail to be sent there. I got him that night. He came in with his hat over his eyes, and asked for a letter. When he turned away from the window I was standing before him.

"Hello, Gerber," I said, "I came down to bring you back to Hoboken."

He stood dumb for ten seconds. Then he blurted: "How in——did you ever do it? Haven't been out of my room in daylight since I came here."

"Oh, well," I said, "you come back like a nice boy and I'll tell you all about it on the train."

Brundage didn't prosecute Gerber. He said, "Fifteen thousand dollars is a big sum to lose. But it would be harder for me had I lost faith in my sense of intuition." ●

"When he turned away from the window I was standing before him."

Graceful East Indians.

Describing the women of India, a writer says: "Even the most withered toil-worn hag has a dignity of carriage and a grace of motion that the western woman might envy. The 'sari' is draped in an easy flowing style and adjusted as it slips back with a graceful turn of the silver bangled arm, the skinny legs move rythmically, and the small feet fall with a silent and pantherlike tread. It is the beauty of natural and unrammeled motion, and says much in favor of the abolition of the corset, for the Indian women retain their uprightness and suppleness of figure till bowed with age.

"The commonest type is the coolie woman, who undertakes all sorts of rough work, carrying heavy burdens on her head, and she is, perhaps, the least attractive, for her workaday garments are usually faded and dirty; yet, even among this poor class of burden bearers, we see many with handsome straight features and supple well proportioned figures.

"No matter how poor their garments, jewelry of some sort is worn; necklaces of gold or beads, colored glass or silver bangles and heavy silver anklets."

Haste to Reimburse.

While carrying a ladder through the crowded streets of Philadelphia the other day a big Irishman was so unfortunate as to break a plate glass window in a shop. Immediately dropping his ladder, the Celt broke into a run. But he had been seen by the shopkeeper, who dashed after him and caught him by the collar.

"See here!" angrily exclaimed the shopkeeper when he had regained his breath, "you have broke my window!"

"Sure I have," assented the Celt, "and didn't you see me running home to get the money to pay for it?"

Consent Always Obtained.

A court of common council of London, England, found after informal investigation of charges made that "no officer of the corporation ever played golf in business hours without the consent of the head of the department."

Gray Leaved Plants.

Next to green, gray is the restfulest and most satisfactory color to be had in foliage. We now have so many hardy plants with gray foliage that we can choose one for each month of bloom and color of flower.

Among them are the silvery millfoil, golddust, the white and purple rock cress, the woolly leaved chickweed, many hardy pinks, Siebold's day lily, Fischer's horned poppy, lavender cotton, woundwort and woolly thyme.

Some of these are decidedly silvery. Others incline to a blue cast which is most pronounced in the globe thistles and sea hollies. Such colors are so unusual in nature that it is easy to overdo them in gardens.—Country Life in America.

Birds.

Mamma—Wasn't it nice of the ravens to work for Elijah, Willie?

Willie—Huh! Elijah's got nothing on pa. I heard him tell a fellow this morning about the bird he's got working down in the office.—Puck.

The One Perfect Food

The whole wheat grain is the one perfect, complete food given to man. This is affirmed by dietetic experience. It contains all the chemical elements that are found in the human body and in about the same proportion. If it is a complete, perfect food, why mix it with other grains?

Nothing could be purer, more wholesome or more nutritious than

SHREDDED WHEAT

It is the whole wheat, nothing added, nothing taken away— no yeast, no baking powder, no grease and no chemicals of any kind—just pure whole wheat made digestible by steam cooking, shredding, and baking.

For breakfast, heat the Biscuit in the oven a few moments to restore crispness; then pour hot milk over it and salt or sweeten to suit the taste. It is delicious for any meal with stewed prunes, baked apples, sliced pineapple, berries or other fruits. At your grocer's.

PIONEER DAYS IN THE TOWNSHIP OF SMITH

(Written for The Examiner by Roy Gilroy)

The survey of the township of Smith, named after Sir David William Smith, Surveyor General of Upper Canada, was just completed in 1818, when a number of colonists from Cumberland, England, found their way to the township to form a settlement. No roads penetrated the forest from Port Hope, and they accordingly chose the route by way of Rice Lake and Otonabee River.

Arriving at Smith the first thing done was to erect a temporary log house on the first lot west of the present communication road, on a triangular piece of ground just outside the present limits. Here they lived in common until, by mutual assistance, small houses, or shanties, were erected on their several lots, to which they then removed.

The first settlers who comprised this group were William Dixon and his family of five sons, Joseph Lee and his sons John and George, Robert Milburn, Robert Walton, Walter Wilson, Thomas W. Milburn, John Smith and son Joseph Smith. These were commonly known as "the colony" settlers. Others who arrived a short time afterwards were John Harvey, Alexander Morrison, Jacob Bromwell, Robert Nicholson, James Mann and his son James and Thomas Lockhart. The following arrived two or three years later: Walter McKibben, Samuel McKibben, William Tully, Thomas Robinson, Isaac Nicholson, Silas Pearson, Joseph Walton, Matthew and Richard Bell, John Edmison, Ephraiam Jackson, and Thomas Milburn.

These names constitute what might be called the roll of honour among the early settlers of Smith—men who, by their courage in penetrating the forest, and their example in enduring and finally overcoming its difficulties and hardships, laid the foundation of a fine settlement, the fruit of whose earnestness and industry their children will long enjoy.

During the first few years great difficulties were often felt in procuring the necessary provisions with which to keep body and soul together. These had to be brought all the way from Port Hope or Cobourg, in the most laborious manner, in the total absence of even the most ordinary roads: the only guide being the "blaze" upon the trees through the endless forest. Under these circumstances it is not to be wondered at that whole families were often for weeks without bread, and that herbs and edible roots were many times called into requisition to supplement their scanty fare. With scant provisions, and separated by long wastes of wood and water from their fellow-kind, their situation with their wives and little ones must have been at times appalling. Looking back at it now, in the light of their present prosperity, what have they not achieved! Not even after their first small clearings were made, and they began to sow and reap their tiny harvests, was their condition greatly improved. How they watched the wheat as it grew, and tasted the pulpy grain as it hardened and matured in the kernel! But there was no mill, and their utmost ingenuity could not convert it into the bread for which they craved. In their dilemma stumps of trees were hollowed out into pot shaped cavities, in which a huge mallet was made to fall to crush the grain. Wheat was boiled, roasted, and as a food for the children was even chewed by their parents, besides being pounded, to convert it into food.

Some of the more robust not infrequently shouldered a bag of wheat, and carried it through the woods of Monaghan, Cavan, and Hope to Smith's Creek, as Port Hope was then called, returning with it ground, to the great joy of the household. A little later an apology for a mill was erected on Galloway's Creek in Cavan, which served until about 1821, when a little mill was erected by Adam Scott on the bank of the Otonabee (corner of King and Water Streets). It was a frame structure about 18 by 24, and shook under the vibration of the machinery. The little mill, always inadequate to the work imposed upon it, continued to do gristing and sawing as well as it could up till the year 1835, when it was burned. Another small mill was put into commission by Jacob Bromwell, who erected it at the mouth of a small creek which entered the Otonabee just below where the Snyder Miles were afterward located.

So great were the hardships of the early settlers from the want of a proper mill that some formed themselves into a deputation to wait on the Governor, Sir Peregrine Maitland, who happened to be visiting Peterborough at the time.

Mr. Walter Wilson, one of the early settlers, undertook to present a verbal address. He had proceeded but a little way when his utterance became confused and he broke down.

Turning round to Jacob Bromwell, another of the deputation, he said:

"Speak it you, sir."

Mr. Bromwell continued the address to His Excellency, in which the difficulties and distress of the settlers were plainly portrayed, and the absence of milling facilities were deplored. Wilson had told the Governor: "We hae a mill, and we hae nae mill," but Bromwell, as a practical illustration of the necessity for better accommodation in this respect, added: "Save in your presence, Sir, I have to get up at night to chew corn for the children." His Excellency returned a gracious reply, in which he promised them assistance, a pledge which ere long he fully redeemed, to the great joy of the settlement.

The mill was built by the Government in 1826-7 (the contractor being Horace Perry), at about the present site of the Quaker Oats Power House, the dam having been placed in the autumn of 1826, and the grist and saw mill in the following spring. The settlers within an area of twenty miles were called upon to lend their aid, and several gave a week's hard work, to assist in furthering so desirable a work. The saw mill was first put in operation to supply the lumber for the two buildings. The grist mill, which contained two runs of stones, was completed in 1827, and was immediately offered for sale by the Government, and purchased by John Hall (later of Buckhorn), who, with Mr. Lee, ran it in partnership for several years. Thus a new era dawned upon the settlers in this as well as the adjacent townships, and thenceforward their success was fully assured.

In 1831 a writer in the Cobourg "Star" described the communication road as scarcely passable for ox teams and filled with boulders, stumps and other obstructions.

The settlers of Smith being surrounded on three sides by water were not slow to take advantage of water navigation, which afforded communication with the back townships bordering on the great chain of inland waters in the heart of the County of Victoria. At the principal landing in Smith, now Bridgenorth, wharves were built. Hotels and stores soon followed, while S. S. Kelly, Walter Scott, and M. S. Dean erected mills. The following steamers served their day in forwarding the prosperity of the colony: The "Sturgeon," the "Peterborough," the "Ogemah," the "Novelty," the "Fly," and the "Woodman."

The Baptist Church on Communication Road was built about 1840, of which the Rev. John Gilmour was the first pastor. Two other churches, one in Bridgenorth, a Methodist, and another in the northern part of Smith, a Presbyterian, were erected, the latter having been dedicated in 1866. Besides these the churches in Peterborough and Lakefield have supplied the religious wants of a large portion of the residents of Smith.

The establishment of a cheese factory by John Walton in 1866 is an interesting fact, and he deserved credit for being the first to introduce the manufacture of cheese on an extensive scale in this county. During the first season 1,600 pounds were made by Mr. Walton, chiefly from his own cows.

This township has the merit of being not only the earliest settled, but also one of the most thriving and prosperous in the county.

During the century that has well nigh elapsed since the township was first settled, all the older settlers have passed away to their well earned rest: but they lived to see the forest subdued, and broad acres of cleared and fertile land stretching away on every side. Their first rude habitations have given way to large and comfortable mansions of brick and stone. The first years of toil and privation brought in their train, first plenty, then luxury. The descendants of these first settlers have now at their thresholds all the blessings and advantages of the present high order of civilization.

THOUGHT COLD WOULD TURN INTO CONSUMPTION

LEFT LUNG GOT VERY SORE, HEART DID NOT FEEL ANY TOO GOOD.

Mr. Robert McLarnon, Shawville, Que., writes:—"I am writing to tell you an experience I had with a bad cold and a bottle of your valuable medicine. I was up in the lumber camps teaming horses, and I caught a very bad cold. I thought it was going to turn into consumption, for my left lung got very sore and my heart did not feel any too good. I came home and tried some different remedies but they did me no good. A friend told me about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I tried it, and when I had taken two bottles my cold was gone. I think it is a great remedy, and will advise any one with a cold to use it. I can't praise it enough."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, which combined with Wild Cherry bark and other pectoral remedies, makes it one of the greatest known preparations for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

Girls, listen to your mothers; you will never regret it. No matter what your advantages are above what hers were, you are no better. You can rest assured that it is no book learning or knowledge of fashion that will keep your feet away from the many pitfalls that she can warn you from, in a tender, loving fashion, that you would do well to heed. No matter how mothers may speak, you may rest assured their hearts are in the right place; and that they want their daughters to be innocent and good, rather than fashionable.

After all that has been said about rare treasures of art and nature that may lend attraction to a home and its surroundings, it remains that the fairest home ornaments are bright joyous faces; and where these are wanting, all else goes for litle.

A Few Changes.

"Well, well," said the man who had wandered back to the old village. "So the Eagle House is still the Eagle House. No change after twenty years."

"There have been a few changes," responded the oldest inhabitant. "Since you've been gone the hotel has been respectively the Grand Central, the Grand Union, the Grand Junction, the Great Northern, the Great Southern, the Imperial, the Regal, the Empire, the Regent and the Mansion House. She's just starting around the circuit for the second time."—Pittsburg Post.

Country Breakfasts.

I hate to see
The summer go
An' think uv frost
An' hail an' snow,
I hate to eat
By candlelight
An' see the day
Turn into night.

But there's no loss
Without some gain,
An' there are things
To ease one's pain.
Though summer's gone
An' fall is here,
Good buckwheat cakes
Fill me with cheer.
—Judge.

To Spoil the Ad.

Advertising Clerk (to customer who is advertising for a husband)—This will take twenty lines and not eighteen, as you estimate!

Customer—What shall we do? I have no more money with me.

Clerk—We might leave out a few words, "attractive personal appearance," for instance.—Fliegende Blatter.

The Way of Woman.

The girl with a hole in her stocking will try
To hide it in vain from your gaze,
But perchance if the stocking is nothing but holes
'Tis the thing that she proudly displays.
—New York Times.

In Demand.

"It's positively disgusting."

"What is?"

"The way people crowd to a theater to see an improper play. Just think! They've sold out the house for three weeks in advance!"

"How do you know?"

"I tried to purchase tickets and couldn't."—London Opinion.

The Sluggard's Mistake.

Came Opportunity one day.
He heard her timid knock.
But went on with his dosing,
Contentedly supposing
That she would pick the lock.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

Most Annoying.

"It's fearfully annoying to lose all your money on a get-rich-quick scheme," said Mr. Silliwad.

"Yes," replied Mr. Lambkin. "Such a disappointment to find the most enticing propositions coming along after you have wasted all your available coin on a back number prospectus."—Washington Star.

Fashion Note.

Yes, hips must all come back again
Some time—'tis fashion's law—
And ladies who have found it hard
Such things completely to discard
Will shout, "Hip, hip, hurrah!"
—Woman's Home Companion.

Selfishness That Pays.

Aunt Sophia—And is Tommy a good little boy at school?

Tommy—Yes, auntie.

Aunt Sophia—And why is Tommy a good little boy?

Tommy—'Cause it's better fun to see the other boys get a tannin' than to get one yourself.—Tit-Bits.

Fate.

The trembling hunter shook with fear.
His hurried shots were scattered wide.
Yet he could miss a thousand deer
And never fail to bag a guide.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Her Traveling Dress.

It was just after the apple episode in Eden.

"How fortunate it occurred at this season of the year," remarked Eve, "when the leaves are of such stunning shades."

Thereupon she picked herself a new gown.—Boston Transcript.

Getting On.

The airship trembles in the sky.
The motorcar goes dashing by.
But he who moves in peace complete
Gets on with plain old fashioned feet.

OXO CUBES

OXO Cubes are entirely different from ordinary Beef Extracts and fluid Beef. They are better, handier, cheaper, and more convenient for all times—all seasons—all classes of people—in town and country—in the sick-room—office—farm—home—prairie—in mansion—cottage—and settler's hut. Easier to prepare than tea or coffee, and always the same. A tin of Cubes will go into a man's vest pocket—a woman's purse—a child's satchel—to be used at any time—anywhere—when food is required.

WAS TERRIBLY NERVOUS.

WOULD START AT THE LEAST NOISE.

Wherever there are people who are troubled with deranged nerves they will find that Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will restore the equilibrium of these deranged centres, and bring back the shattered nervous system to a perfect condition.

Miss Emma Read, Ladoga, Ont., writes:—"I have great pleasure in writing to tell you about the great benefit I have received by using your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. About a year ago I was very badly run down and could hardly do my work. I tried different medicines but none of them did me any good. I was terribly nervous, and would start at the least noise, and even start in my sleep, which made me very weak. I used two boxes of your pills and I am now well and strong again."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25. For sale at all dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

His Enthusiasm Explained.

The little man stood up on the platform at the London suffragette meeting and made an impassioned plea for equal suffrage rights.

"Who is th' little bloke?" inquired the first coster of the second. "He's a blessin' fine talker, ain't 'e?"

"He's well enough," replied the other coster. "I know 'im."

"Wot's 'is line?"

"He's a glazier."

And just then the stones began to fly and the glass to crash.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Up to Date Farming.

The auto on the farm arose
Before the dawn at four.
It milked the cows and washed the clothes
And finished every chore.

Then forth it went into the field
Just at the break of day.
It reaped and threshed the golden yield
And hauled it all away.

It plowed the field that afternoon,
And when the job was through
It hummed a pleasant little tune
And churned the butter too.

For while the farmer, peaceful eyed,
Read by the tungsten's glow
The patient auto stood outside
And ran the dynamo.
—Peoria Transcript.

Out.

Years had passed, the political equality of the sexes was fait accompli, and a certain candidate for the presidency had but now been knocked in a dignified manner into a cocked hat.

Her humiliation was complete. But, although she declined to talk for publication her friends were less reticent.

"Hats of that shape," these protested, with much feeling, "went out ages ago."—Puck.

Peace.

He stood upon the platform, and he made a plea for peace.
In saddened tones he wondered when the foolish wars would cease.
He called the nations cruel that resorted still to force,
Putting burdens on their people, blocking arbitration's course.

He pointed out the beauty of worldwide disarmament.
Not a war, he said, but reason and fair dealing might prevent.
He called all fighting foolish and a criminal expense—
Then he quarreled with his neighbor o'er a little old line fence.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

An Observant Youth.

"If you are a good boy, Willie," said the clergyman, patting the youth on the head, "who knows but that some day you will be president of the United States."

"A-ah, go wan!" retorted the boy. "What'd I want to be president of the United States fer? I want a steady job when I grow up."—Harper's Weekly.

England.

The stately homes of England—
How beautifully they stand
Or stood before the suffragette
Upraised her mailed hand!
But now the homes in peril are,
Uprooted is the grass,
And hark the sound, or near or far,
Of crashing window glass!

The merry homes of England!
Around their hearths at night
The coals within the pleasant grate
Glowed with a friendly light.
But Britain's hearth is cold and gray
And drab and dull and such.
If one were jesting one might say
That England is in Dutch.
—New York Mail.

Among the Explosions.

"You have tried to fashion a government on the lines of the American republic?"

"Yes," replied the Chinese philosopher, "but up to the present time we haven't been able to get much beyond the Fourth of July accidents."—Washington Star.

A Woman's Woe.

It's tough to be a woman
When she has a dress that fastens down the back,
When the beauty doctor has her on the rack,
When hub comes home alcoholic
Or the baby has the colic
Or the servants leave the household in a pack.
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Certainly.

He—I see there's a chance for the imposition of an income tax. Good thing too.

She—Yes, George. And you must pay as big a tax as you can, dear, just to keep up appearances.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Table d'Hote Dinner.

Now, one fine day young Tommy A.
Took Mamie R. to dine.
Each appetite was keen—oh, quite!—
And everything was fine.
Tom still ate steak when May had reached
Her demi-tasse cup.
Now, say, how long d'you think it took
For Tomatoketchup?
—Judge.

Reconciled to It.

"Old Skads lost every cent he had in the world yesterday."

"Gee! His heirs will be furious."

"Oh, I don't think so."

"How'd he lose it?"

"He died."—Houston Post.

It may be that who's kneeling there
Just dreaming of her Easter hat.

GENERAL BARRY Versus GENERAL ORDERS

A Contest In Which Cupid Played a Part.

By M. J. PHILLIPS.

The colonel's daughter was paying her first visit to a national guard encampment and had voted it the jolliest affair imaginable.

"Everything's so knowing and swagger," communed the girl with herself as she lay in her cot the morning after her arrival. "The officers all talk so fiercely to the others when they're marching! They say 'Port arms!' in a regular 'Tremble, villain,' tone. And some of those common soldiers are nice looking too."

Fearing to miss something of the picturesque camp routine, she arose and dressed noiselessly. Her parents were still sleeping.

The sun was just rising over the hills to the right as she stepped to the tent opening. In front of her, his back turned, a sentry stood at right about, looking down at the canvas city. Some distance to the left, at brigade headquarters, a group of men in khaki clustered about the fieldpiece and the tall flagstaff. A trumpeter stepped out from among them. The sun glinted on his instrument as he raised it to his lips. Then sharp and true, a little mellowed by the distance, came the rollicking notes of the reveille. "I can't get 'em up, I can't get 'em up!" called the bugle merrily.

The group about the gun fell into orderly lines. A huge puff of smoke gleamed like silver as it swept across the grass. Boom! While the echoes were still resounding over the lake the regimental band struck up a quickstep. The gun crew uncovered reverently, the stars and stripes slowly mounted the staff and another day of camp life had begun.

This little tableau over, the girl's eyes turned to the sentry in front of her with a good deal of approval in their depths. His shoulders were broad as his campaign hat had the angle of a true soldier, and the back flung cape of his overcoat reminded the colonel's daughter of a picture of Paul Revere stealing through the dewy grass until she was scarcely a yard away, she said softly, "Good morning, Mr. Soldier."

The sentry turned so quickly that he nearly dropped his gun. "Grace!" he cried ecstatically. The tone of his voice and the light in his eyes caused the girl to recoil a step while she blushed adorably.

"Just one more kiss, sweetheart," went on the young man. He had not forgotten his drill regulations in the presence of this most distracting bit of femininity. His rifle was at "port," as the book says it shall be when the sentry is holding conversation with another person.

"Why, Tom, the very idea!" came the saucy answer. "Right here on this hill top, in plain sight? I don't believe I would even under the tent fly." Still, there was no suggestion of panic in her leisurely retreat.

But the sentry did not, as expected, pursue her to the friendly fly. "I can't leave this path," he gloomed.

"Oh, indeed! And why?"

"According to general orders I am to quit my post only when properly relieved," he quoted.

The girl tossed her head and pursed her tempting red lips. "All right, Tom Kennedy; if any old general is more to you than I"—

There was a thud of horse's hoofs up the parade ground, and General Barry rode up. He was commander of the Second brigade, and as he swung gracefully from his horse he looked the part thoroughly. The general was young, handsome and unmarried. It could be seen that officer and enlisted man had one point in common. Both loved the colonel's daughter.

"Good morning, Miss Grace. You're up with the birds." Then to the sentry, who, having presented arms, started to resume his beat, "Hold my horse, orderly."

The sentry was an astute young man. He knew that the general had divined something from the manner of the interrupted conversation. The request was merely to humiliate him before the girl. Yet his manner was respectful, even meek, as he came to port arms again and replied, "I'm not the orderly, sir; I'm sentinel on this post."

"Well, hold the horse, anyway."

"The regulations don't require me to," was the composed reply.

General Barry's anger arose as a gleam of merriment kindled in the girl's eyes. "Nevertheless I command you to do it."

The sentry apparently was deeply regretful. "General orders say that I shall receive, transmit and obey all orders from and allow myself to be relieved by the commanding officer, the officer of the day, officers and noncommissioned officers of the guard only. You're not any of those, sir."

"Indeed!" was the sarcastic response. "And if you know your general orders so well how about the one which says to hold conversation with no one except in the proper discharge of my duty? Hold this horse or I'll put you in the guardhouse!"

The sentry's reply was to resume his beat. Almost bursting with rage, the general took a step or two toward Kennedy, but as the relief came plodding up the hill he decided, a smile of triumph on his face, to await its arrival.

"Corporal," he said sharply to the noncommissioned officer in charge, "place that man under arrest."

The corporal saluted. "Why, sir?"

"He was impudent, and he refused to hold my horse when asked."

"If he was disrespectful you can prefer charges, sir. You're not of our brigade, are you, general?"

"No, but what of it?"

"Then you had no right to ask him to act as orderly. General orders say, 'To receive' "—

"Hang general orders!" was the officer's explosive interruption. "You refuse to obey too? I'll have you reduced to ranks!"

"All right, sir," came the cheerful reply. "I'm Corporal Kelly of B company, Second Infantry, if you don't happen to know me. Fall in, Kennedy. Relief, forward, march!" And the grinning files straggled down the hill.

"Pardon me, but 'General Orders' seems to have defeated General Barry this morning," smiled the girl.

"And General Barry will do his best to turn defeat into victory," was the grim response as the man climbed into the saddle.

The general cursed himself for a fool as he galloped back to his tent. A desire to punish the sentry for his presumption in speaking to an officer's daughter had not caused his outbreak as much as a desire to appear well before the girl.

He had met her the winter before while she was visiting in his home town. The general in private life was a successful young attorney who had believed himself too busy to fall in love, but at sight of Grace he had capitulated. During the fortnight of her stay he had made ardent love and did not doubt that in time his suit would be favorably received. The girl liked him, for he was frank and handsome and not quite spoiled by success. Yet there was a barrier to her heart which he could not pass. She would not allow him to visit her at the little city where she lived, and he was forced to be content with the half promise that they might meet at camp, and straight way Randolph Barry began to count the days which must elapse before the encampment.

Yet their meeting on the evening of the first day had not been encouraging. The colonel's daughter had greeted him as she did her other friends. And this second interview! He ground his teeth as he thought of his folly. An hour later he told his version of the encounter with the sentry before Major General Goodwin, commander of the two brigades in camp.

"Have a drink, Barry," urged his superior when he had finished, "and you'll probably feel better. I can't order those boys under arrest for that."

"This confounded young Kennedy was impudent, I tell you," snarled Barry. "He's a pretty soldier, quoth general orders to me when he was disobeying one when I rode up. I was him in the guardhouse just to square myself with Grace Van Tuyl." He clicked his spurs viciously.

"Can't make regulars out of those fellows in ten days," was the conciliating reply. "Discipline is all right in moderation. We can't shut down on 'em real hard. Why, this man Kennedy owns a factory down in Trenton. He's got dead loads of money. I'm surprised he was as decent as you admit he was," and the general's eyes twinkled.

"Jim," returned Barry very earnestly, "I've got to see him court martialed. I know Miss Van Tuyl well, and, and—he hesitated a moment—"it makes a difference what she thinks of me. You understand?"

General Goodwin was silent a moment. When he spoke he had dropped the half bantering manner which had marked the interview on his part. His tone was kindly and sincere: "I understand, and I'm sorry—sorry I can't accommodate you, and for another reason. Tom Kennedy's my nephew, my sister's kid, and I've got to see him through. I told him he could have a place on my staff, but he wanted to be a real soldier, he said. So he enlisted in B company, and in view of what you're said I hate to tell the rest of it, but he's engaged to Miss Van Tuyl. They're to be married in September."

The younger man rose and walked to the front of the tent before he replied. "I believe I'll take that drink, general," he said, with an assumption of his old gay manner. "I seem to have been routed with loss by 'General Orders' and his aid, General Cupid. I drink"—he removed his hat gallantly and clinked glasses with his superior—"to the future Mrs. Kennedy, God bless her!"

HOW BANGS WON A BET.

Was It Any Wonder Davis Wouldn't Pay It?

John Kendrick Bangs tells this story of an attempt he made to get the better of Richard Harding Davis:

"Davis and I were talking one day of his Van Bibber stories, and incidentally I asked him how long it had taken him to write them.

"'Oh, about ten days each,' he replied.

"I ventured to express the opinion that such a story could well be written in a couple of hours, and the result was that we made a bet of a dinner based on my ability to write a story similar in style to the Van Bibbers and to have it accepted by a New York editor.

"When I reached my home in Yonkers that night I wrote the story, the work occupying the time from 8 until 10 o'clock. At 10 the next morning I reached my office in Franklin square. At 10:30 I submitted my story to myself. By 10:45 I had read it, my warm regard for the author leading me to expedite the matter as much as possible. At 11 o'clock I accepted the manuscript, and at 11:15 I drew an order on the cashier for $100 in payment, which I at once cashed. Then I went out to find Davis. Meeting him, I told him of what I had done, detailing the various steps, and at the end held out in my hand the cash to prove that the transaction really had been consummated.

"Davis looked at me, then at the bills.

"'Well,' I said, 'what of that dinner, Davis?'

"'Huh,' grunted Davis, 'if you have all that money you can afford to buy your own dinner.'"—New York Post.

Wise Little Willie.

Little Willie was playing one day with the girl next door when the latter exclaimed: "Don't you hear your mother calling you? That's three times she's done it. Aren't you going in? Won't she whip you?"

"Naw!" exclaimed Willie in disgust. "She ain't goin' to whip nobody. She's got company. So when I go in she'll just say, 'The poor little man has been so deaf since he's had the measles.'"—Stray Stories.

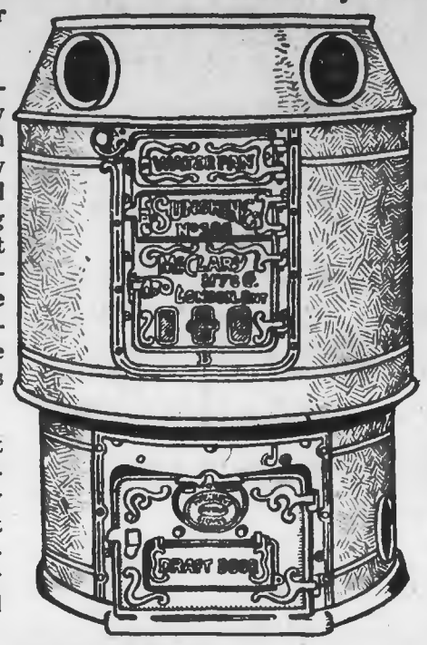
The Understudy of the Sun
McClary's Sunshine Furnace

WHEN Old Sol swings low and far away he appoints an understudy for the purpose of keeping Jack Frost where he belongs—Outside.

Years ago McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace, by reason of its marvelous heating capacity and the balmy June air it suffused the house with, was specially appointed Understudy to the Sun. That appointment has been confirmed year after year, and—your "Sunshine" Furnace—Jack Frost's Master awaits your orders for the coming winter.



Remember the past winter—the Frost King was very active — He battered us with a three months' siege of snow and ice — Almost conquered the thermometer by chasing the mercury out of sight. But he failed to penetrate thousands of homes, because the Understudy of the Sun — McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace —was on the job in the cellars of these homes.

It's easy to keep Jack Frost at a safe distance with the "Sunshine" Furnace. He may storm and rave outside, but there is no place for him within—because, the Understudy of the Sun has demonstrated its mastery in the home.

The average furnace is a glutton for coal—it literally burns up money. The "Sunshine" Furnace saves money—earns its cost in a very few years because it burns coal sparingly. Call on the McClary agent of your locality and ask him to prove that statement true. If he cannot convince you—show you that the "Sunshine" Furnace will cut your coal bills by a very pleasing margin we don't want your order. That's the fairest way we know of doing business—does it appeal to you?

There are a multitude of reasons why the "Sunshine" Furnace does save fuel—reduce coal bills—reasons that will be printed in the following advertisements. Here is one that should make you call on the McClary agent at once—the "Sunshine" Furnace has four radiating surfaces—surfaces that gather up the heat greedily and diffuse it liberally all over the house.

But—you just call on the McClary agent and ask to be shown. If you do not know him write us at our nearest address and we'll tell you.

You certainly owe it to yourself to find out why McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace is called the "Understudy of the Sun."

UNKNOWN IS KILLED.

Man Found Dead on G.T.R. Tracks at Toronto.

Toronto, April 20.—With his right arm and right leg almost severed from his body, an unknown man was found dead yesterday morning about 6.30 on the G.T.R. tracks opposite Indian road by Albert Gilman and W. McLean of Humber Bay.

The man had apparently been run over by a train and his body dragged a considerable distance, as blood tracks were seen for several yards on the railway tracks.

The police of No. 6 were notified and had the body removed to the city morgue, where it awaits identification.

The dead man was about 50 years of age, had brown hair and moustache turning grey, was dressed in a blue coat with white stripes and without lining, brown tweed pants black boots with rubber heels, green tie, bought at Charles Symons' store in Belleville, and had a button of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen in his coat.

He had no teeth in his upper jaw and a gold-filled hunting case watch was found in his pockets. There were no papers whatever to identify him by and apparently he had been killed Thursday night.

Deceased had the first finger of his right hand taken right off, the second finger of the same hand taken off at the first joint and the second finger of the left hand taken off completely. These are old injuries and may lead to his identification.

Union May Come Soon.

Toronto, April 20.—Reporting on the progress of the church union movement at the meeting of the Congregational Church Association yesterday afternoon, Rev. J. W. Pedley observed "It is almost inconceivable that the Church Union movement which started in the Presbyterian Church, should now be blocked by that church." Mr. Pedley regretted that he could not give a brighter report, but expressed the opinion that union would come within a few years. A hopeful sign was that the older men were almost all strongly for union, also the church officers and the leaders generally in the Presbyterian Church, and the education and literature departments of the churches were to join their forces as far as possible, and the colleges of the three denominations in Montreal would probably federate.

TO REMODEL CHAMBER.

Acoustic Properties of Legislature Will Be Improved.

Toronto, April 20.—A complete remodeling of the Legislative Assembly room at the Parliament Buildings is under consideration. For a long time it has been recognized that the acoustics of the chamber are none too good, the members of the House and Press Gallery alike, testifying to the difficulty in hearing remarks of speakers whose oratorical powers are not extremely well developed. Sir James Whitney, Hon. W. J. Hanna and Hon. A. G. MacKay and a few others in the House are clearly audible, no matter whether they pitch their voices in high or two tones, but the majority of the members are not very easy to hear on many occasions. The Prime Minister is of the opinion that the legislative chamber, as it is at present, is too large and roomy. There is a lot of wasted space on the floor of the House and the visitors' galleries on each side are also constructed in such a way that while enhancing the appearance of the chamber, they do not improve the capacity for the proper distribution of sound. It is believed that the seats on the floor of the House will also be rearranged, the three rows on each side being brought closer together. The main aisle in front of the Speaker's dais is also regarded as too wide for practical purposes. The dimensions of the chamber itself may also be considerably reduced.

In view of the fact that the entire buildings are to be made fireproof, now that the burnt west wing has been reconstructed, and the new north wing almost completed, the Government is considering the advisability of immediately commencing the remodeling of the legislative chamber, as soon as the building operations at present underway are finished.

The delegation represented that manufacturers, farmers and even housekeepers were suffering from inability to get labor to develop the country.

They asked that a regular immigration station be established at Sherbrooke where immigrants could be properly cared for on arrival.

Senator Rufus Pope presented the delegation. Hon. Robt. Rogers promised aid, and his Department will give the matter its serious consideration.

New York, April 20.—Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers, notified the Association of Railway General Managers yesterday, that the engineers would wait here until eight o'clock for a reply from the railroads to their demand for increased pay. Mr. Stuart sent a letter yesterday afternoon to Mr. Stone saying that if further action by the brotherhood were suspended for a few days the conference committee of the general managers association would be reconvened.

Another Montreal Man Lost.

Montreal, April 20.—To the list of Montrealers who lost their lives in the Titanic disaster must be added Albert Mallet, a commercial traveler in the employ of Laporte, Martin & Compagnie. Chilean Steamer Sinks.

San Francisco, April 20.—Eighty lives were lost on the night of March 21 when the Chilean steamer Cachapoal sank with all on board. The British steamer Queen Helena brought the news.

The Cachapoal carried thirty passengers, and was manned by British officers and a crew of Chileans. Officers of the Queen Helena said the generally accepted theory was that the Cachapoal sank after her boilers exploded, as the boilers had given trouble frequently.

Relief ships were unable to find a trace of the missing steamer after she failed to appear at Payta, Peru, on her regular run, March 22.

He Was a Soldier.

Ottawa, April 20.—His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught received yesterday the following reply to his message of condolence, addressed to the President of the United tSates.

"I thank you sincerely for your message of sympathy with our country in the great loss it has sustained through the terrible disaster. I also appreciate very deeply the tribute you pay to Major Butt. When I read that only part of the ship's company was rescued I knew he went down with the ship. He was a soldier. (Signed) W. H. Taft."

Wyoming's Devil's Tower.

Devil's tower, in northern Wyoming, rises mysteriously from the vast and silent level of the prairie to a height of 1,250 feet. In the early days of overland travel it served to tell many an emigrant of his whereabouts. It is now a national monument, having been set aside as a natural curiosity. The Devil's tower monument consists of about 1,000 acres and preserves for all time this landmark. Probably it will be many years before the Devil's tower is generally visited. At present it is many miles from a railroad, and few persons see it in the course of a year. Those who make the trip, which is usually done from the little northern Wyoming town of Sundance, feel amply repaid for their visit.

South African Tobacco.

That South Africa can and does raise tobacco of splendid quality, which threatens to compete in time with the product of the noted producting countries of the world, is manifest by the fact that the manufacture of tobacco there has outstripped any other manufacturing industry, and tobacco factories can be seen which would do credit to any country in the world. Already a considerable export trade has been built up.

POSTUM

When such persons find relief from tea and coffee troubles, and the way back to old-time health and comfort, they have something to say worth while—

Read letter to the right.

TALES THAT ARE TOLD.

"I was one of the kind who wouldn't believe that coffee was hurting me," says a N. Y. woman. "You just couldn't convince me its use was connected with the heart and stomach trouble I suffered from most all of the time." (Tea contains caffeine — the same drug found in coffee, and is just as harmful.) "My trouble finally got so bad I had to live on milk and toast almost entirely for three or four years. Still I loved the coffee and wouldn't believe it could do such damage.

"What I needed was to quit coffee and take nourishment in such form my stomach could digest. I had read much about Postum, but never thought it would fit my case until one day I decided to quit coffee and give it a trial and make sure about it. So I got a package and carefully followed the directions.

"Soon I began to get better and was able to eat carefully selected foods without the aid of pepsin or other digests and it was not long before I was really a new woman physically.

"Now I am healthy, hearty and sound, can eat anything and everything that comes along, and I know this wonderful change is all due to my having quit coffee and got nourishment I needed through this delicious Postum in place of the dangerous coffee and tea.

"My wonder is why everyone don't give up coffee and the troubles that go with it and build themselves up as I have done, with Postum." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Easy to prove by 10 days' trial of Postum in place of tea or coffee. The reward is big and worth the test.

SKIPPED TO VANCOUVER

Frank Andrews, of Asphodel, Took This Means of Evading a Charge of Obtaining Money Under False Pretences

CASHED MONEY ORDERS

When High County Constable Cochrane went to Norwood, this week, to serve a summons upon one Frank Andrews, who is wanted on a charge of receiving money under false pretences, he discovered that the bird had flown. It is alleged that Andrews who purported to have some fancy chickens to dispose of, advertised his stock in a poultry journal, and upon the strength of this, he received several post omce orders, varying, in sums, from $5 to $14. In no one case was he known to have shipped the goods, as per order, but he invariably cashed the money orders. A warrant was issued for his apprehension, but before County Constable Cochrane could execute it, Andrews had skipped to Vancouver. The accused lived in Asphodel, about three miles from Norwood. It is understood that proceedings against Andrews have been dropped, as the gravity of the case is not of sufficient strength to warrant the authorities following up the matter.

SPRING BLOOD IS WATERY BLOOD

How to Get New Health and New Strength at This Season

Spring ailments are not imaginary. Even the most robust find the winter months most trying to their health. Confinement indoors, often in overheated and nearly always badly ventilated rooms—in the home, the office, the shop and the school, taxes the vitality of even the strongest. The blood becomes thin and watery, and is clogged with impurities. Some people have headaches and a feeling of langour. Others are low-spirited and nervous. Still others are troubled with disfiguring pimples and skin eruptions, while some get up in the morning feeling just as tired as when they went to bed. These are all spring symtoms that the blood is out of order and that a medicine is needed. Many people take purgative medicines in the Spring. This is a serious mistake. You cannot cure yourself with a medicine that gallops through your system and leaves you weaker still. This is all that a purgative does. What you need to give you health and strength in the spring is a tonic medicine that will enrich the blood and soothe the jangled nerves. And the one always reliable tonic and blood builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills not only banish spring weakness but guard you against the more serious ailments that follow, such as anaemia, nervous debility, indigestion, rheumatism, and other diseases due to ban blood. In proof of this Mrs. Emma Duck, Carleton Place, Ont., says: "I was greatly troubled with weak spells, dizziness and extreme nervousness, and did not find anything to help me until acting on the anvice of an aunt I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After using fixe boxes I found my health fully restored, and cheerfully recommended the pills to others."

If you are ailing this spring you cannot afford, in your own interests to overlook so valuable a medicine as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

Ringling Bro's Circus Will Not Visit This City as Originally Intended.

Word was received in the city today announcing that Ringling Bros. would not show here this summer. The management had some time ago decided to visit this city on Saturday, June 15th, with their mammoth circus, but owing to a change in their plans, they have decided to leave Peterborough off their schedule

ORILLIA'S EXPERIENCE WITH HER POWER DEVELOPMENT

Municipal Operation Has Not Prevented Considerable Advance of Rates

Municipal ownership of a public utility is a simple affair, easily successful; it is simply a matter of money—a matter of taxation and tax payment. Provided that plenty of, or, at least, sufficient, money is provided, success as far ownership is concerned is as easy as kissing. But municipal operation of a public utility is not always smooth sailing; not always the success that is expected by the experimenters or predicted by the extereme champions of popular interests.

There has come into the hands of The Examiner a copy of the revised and increased schedule of the light and power rates adopted by the town council of Orillia at a recent special meeting, which is to come into force, with the exception of the cut in the residential rate, on Monday next.

Orillia has been held up as an example of the success of municipal ownership and operation of its electric energy development plant, and it was quoted as an example of how the people benefitted, by doing their own development of electric energy for power and light purposes. It looked like success when the placards in the vicinity of the town stared the traveller by train and vehicle in the face, announcing "Power at $16."

After trying, faithfully it is assumed, the experiment of providing electricity at lower rates than commercial corporations could do, the municipal corporation has found it necessary to draft and apply a new schedule of rates providing for an all-round increase of price, with the exception of one item. Without detailed comparison, one cannot demonstrate, item for item, the difference between Peterborough and Orillia rates; but if there is as much difference in all the rates for the several services as there is in one or two items, of which the local figure is well known, the advantage to the public in the way of low cost, is in favour of the city served by privately developed power.

It is well known that the prevailing price in Peterborough for power supplied by the Light and Power Company, is for "over 10 horse power, per annum," $20 net. The increased rate of Orillia is for "over 10 horse power, per annum," $24 net. A difference of $4 per horse power per annum to an establishment using 300 to 500 horse power, is no trifling matter.

In the matter of lighting, the people of Peterborough, served by a private corporation, the rate for commercial lighting is 2 cents per killowatt hour cheaper in Orillia than in Peterborough, but Peterborough's rate for residential lighting is 1 cent per killowatt hour lower than that of Orillia, and Orillia's new rate is a reduction, which is the exception noted above to the all round increase of rates by that town. As far as the people at large, the general body of users of light are concerned, residential lighting cost is more important than commercial lighting, used by comparatively few customers; so that Peterborough rates, one cent per kilowatt hour lower, represent a considerable advantage to the Peterborough residential user over the Orillian user. Orillia's residential rate is, besides a reducduced rate, to come into effect next June; so that in the matter of residential lighting, Orillia has been paying, and will have to do so till June 22nd, an appreciably hgher rate than Peterborough.

Municipal operation cannot be the vaunted success if a municipality cannot produce electricity, and sell it at cost—plus the usual allowance for deprecation, interest, etc., at a lower rate than a corporation, which has to make similar allowances and in addition pay a dividend, representing the extortionate profits some of the advocates for municipal ownership and operation, charge it with making at the expense of the people.

With Orillia's experience in mind, it cannot be regarded as unfair bias to assume that municipal ownership and operation of a public utility is still on trial, and that having Orillia's experience in mind, it has not demonstarted its superiority, as far as popular advantage from lower or even equal rates is concerned, over the public utility service provided by private organizations.

There seems to be something inherent in municipal operation, or even administration, that prevents the practical and successful application of the business principles that are applied with success to enterprises conducted by private corporations or individuals. Toronto is having trouble in operating the municipal end of the Hydro-Electric plan—one of the aldermen said that Hydro-Electric matters in Toronto were "honey-combed with malpractices."

CONSTRUCTION OF NEW WATER MAINS AUTHORIZED BY THE COMMISSIONERS

A meeting of the water commissioners was held on Friday night with Mr. T. F. Matthews presiding, and Messrs. W. H. Moore and W. H. Hill present.

Moved by Mr. Hill, seconded by Mr. Moore that the City Solicitor be authorized to engage counsel in the case of the Bishop Construction Co. against the City.—Carried.

The Secretary reported that he had been served with a writ of the suit of the Bishop Con-truction Co. against the city for $23,000, and on instructions from the Chairman, had given it to the City Solicitor.

Build Another Culvert.

A letter was read from J H Garbutt, Reeve of Smith, saying that if the Commissioners would put in a 36 in. culvert across the road, below the pumping station, the Township would pay half the cost.

Moved by Mr. Moore, seconded by Mr. Hill, that the Acting-Superintendent have a 36 in. pipe culvert put in across the road as asked.

Moved by Mr. Moore, seconded by Mr. Hill, that the Secretary write the Fire, Water and Light Committee for their decision re the placing of two hydrants on Bonaccord street.

Mains to be Laid.

The acting superintendent reported on the petition for a main on Cross St from Cedar to McDonell street; that the cost would be $508.25, and revenue $63.15. He was authorized to lay the main.

He was also authorized to lay a main on King Edward street, where the cost would be $481.60, and revenue $84.46. Another main will be proceeded with on Carlisle avenue, 132 feet east of the end of the present main; cost will be $161.20, and revenue will be $16.25.

Moved by Mr. Hill, seconded by Mr. Moore, that the Fire, Water and Light Committee be asked to authorize the location of a hydrant on Dufferin street, and if it is authorized that the main asked for be laid.

A petition for a main on Rogers St. from Clifton street, to a point 160 feet north of Stanley avenue, was granted. The cost would be $207.40, and revenue $17.79.

The laying of a main on Princess street, as asked for, was authorized.

TO CHECK A COLD

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

BACK TO THE GAOL

Homeless Vagrant Committed For a Term of Six Months in the County Gaol

A SEMI-ANNUAL EVENT

For nearly two hours, this morning, Francis McGuer expected the freedom that was offered him, but at the expiration of that period, he succumbed, and at his own personal request, he was committed to the county gaol by Magistrate Dumble, for a period of six months. Semi-annually for the past five years, has McGuer gone through this procedure. Whether it is the aroma of the soup, which finds a prominent place upon the bill of fare, or whether he looks upon it as a sense of duty, which he owes to the institution, is not known. McGuer was non-committal to the Examiner, on this point; in fact he impressed his questioner as being a little sensitive on the subject. McGuer is a man who is well over Dr. Osler's chlorodorm period, short in stature, and possesses an expressionless countenance, which smothers itself in a bunch of whiskers. At the gaol he is looked upon as a harmless old trusty. He works around the gardens and exercises a fatherly care over anything that happens to come under his jurisdiction.

Refused to be Interviewed.

It is altogether likely that the remaining years of his life will be spent behind the prison walls of his adopted home, or at least until such time as some other provision is made for the housing of the unfortunates. McGuer's term of imprisonment expired this morning at nine o'clock, and by 10.30 he had made the raid of a plug of tobacco, a six months' term of imprisonment on a charge of vagrancy, and when seen by an Examiner man, shortly after 10 o'clock, was making the ascent of the hill leading to the gaol at a record clip. The reporter gave chase, and close, hauled his man, near the summit, where he demanded an interview, and was met by a blank refusal. Whether the twang of the soup was in his nostrils is not known but he disappeared into the precincts of the stone pile with rapidity and was lost to view. Several minutes later he had donned the regulation prison garb, and was proceeding to make up for the time that he had lost.

REO MILL THEATRE STILL HUSTLING

The management has booked, for Monday and Tuesday only, another great feature fire picture, "Through the Flames," a thrilling and exciting story of railroad life. Every man, woman and child should see this good moral picture. Special songs and special singers, all stars, and Mrs. Foster's orchestra make up the best five cents you can spend. If you are out for the best be sure and get the Reo Mill habit; it's a good one. 5c. to all, 5c. Don't forget the big afternoon shows.

COMPLAIN OF MAIL SERVICE

"TITANIC'S" HEROIC ENGINEERS REMAINED AT THEIR POSTS UNTIL VESSEL WENT DOWN

Story of Their Bravery Revealed at the Investigation This Morning—204 Third-class Passengers Are Being Taken Care Of in New York—Crew Are Returning to England on Steamer "Lapland."

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK CITY, APRIL 20.—Tomorrow, one week after the greatest mercantile marine disaster in the history of the world, will be a day of universal memorial services throughout the Christian world.

The great Cathedrals of St. Paul's and Canterbury, in England, and the big edifices of Broadway and Fifth Avenue in this city, will be scenes of continuous solemn requiem for the dead from early morning till late at night. Even the Cathedral of Notre Dame, Paris, which is seldom used but for a show place, will close its doors to perambulating tourists, and open them for mourning worshippers to-morrow. The Vatican of Rome will fast and say solemn masses for the dead.

In the United States and Canada, memorial services will also be the order of the day in many churches.

In the meantime, the "Senate Investigating Committee" is engaged in trying to get a reasonable and comprehensive story of the disaster with a view to fixing the responsibility. It has already been established that the officers and crew, and passengers too, placed unquestionable, even reckless faith in the fact that the Titanic was thought unsinkable. Third Officer Pittman and fifteen other members of the crew will be examined to-day. At a later session, it is expected that Major Peuchen and other passengers will be called upon to give evidence.

The Brave Engineers.

Much has been written and said about the navigation officers and men passengers, but little thought has been given to the engineers. It came out in the evidence to-day that twenty of these brave fellows went down to their doom in the engine rooms trying to work the steam pumps. They sent their subordinates, the firemen and stokers, to the decks with orders to save themselves if they could, but the engineers stayed at their posts away below and were overwhelmed by inrushing waters. There was absolutely no chance of escape. They went to a glorious death with none of the survivors to see them and talk about their courage. So far as the present needs of the surviving steerage passengers and crew are concerned, they have been pretty well looked after by local Womens committees and various funds. But nothing can describe the terrible grief suffered by the women with families of children being dropped alone in a country where they are absolutely strangers. The surviving members of the crew have been paid off for the present and given free passage to England, where most of them belong, on the Steamer Lapland. The Investigating committee will take their evidence later. General Manager Ismay is extremely bitter at the criticism being poured on him. He says he has done nothing that merited censure.

Steward's Evidence.

Albert Mayor, one of the Titanic's stewards, declared the crew of the vessel were unorganized. Although every man did his best, they were hindered in getting the best results because they could not pull together. There had not been a single boat drill on the Titanic, in which all of the men, of course, were sailing for the first time. The steward confirms the report that the doors were closed on the steerage passengers after about a quarter of them had got out. He says: "Those remaining forward in the steerage, must have been the first to drown." He explains the much commented upon fact of the ship's lights burning so long by declaring that all the engineers stayed at their posts.

SOME SAD CASES.

NEW YORK, APRIL 20.—Charities are caring for 204 of the Titanic steerage passengers. A sad case was that of Carla Anderson, a flaxen-haired girl of nineteen, who set out for Portland, Oregon, with her uncle, her brother and her father but all were lost. A distracted woman is Mrs. Selma Ashland, who sailed with her husband and three small boys. The father was lost, but the mother and sons were saved, to rach America friendless and destitute.

SOUVENIR HUNTERS BUSY.

The word "Titanic" has been effaced from that ship's thirteen lucky life boats. Souvenir hunters robbed them of their head pieces, drinking cups, water kegs and everything detachable. One the water front longshoremen secured from $5 to $25 a piece for these. Pieces of the gilded scroll taken from the figure-head and bearing the name "Titanic" brought top prices.

SAVE YOURSELVES, LET ME DROWN.

A number of witnesses have set at rest the rumour that Capt. Smith killed himself. It was First Officer Murdock, who thus ended his own life. Smith undoubtedly died a hero's death, swimming about with a baby, which he thrust into a lifeboat. When told of Murdock's death he threw away his lifebelt and sank. Jack Williams, seaman, declared the Captain's last words were: "Save yourselves; let me drown".

REVIEW OF THE LOCAL REAL ESTATE SITUATION SHOWS GOOD CONDITIONS

Real estate, during the past week, has not shown any outstanding feature, but there has been a considerable stir and a general reawakening of interest. Real estate dealers announce that they have been turning over quite a few parcels of property and several prominent lawyers have stated that they have never been so busy as at present in land transactions. All of which would indicate an activity that speaks well for the coming summer.

Lots South of City.

There is quite a movement in lots south of the city, and practically all the land between Lansdowne street and the river extending west to the river road, is creating considerable interest. There has already been a big turnover in this district and new property is being opened up from time to time.

Westmount Property.

The Westmount Land Association's operations is just another indication of the interest that is being shown in the land on the west side of the city. The opening of sixty-eight lots and putting them on the market at a moderate price, is bound to direct attention to this locality. With the houses that have already been built on the hill overlooking the city, and those that are to be erected, this summer, there will soon be quite a settlement in that section.

In the city there is a moderate movement and quite a large number of deals are pending.

Summer Resort Lots.

During the past week, also, there has been the announcement of the opening up of the property along the river, at Crawford's Grove, for summer resort purposes. When these lots are put on the market they should attract those who are looking for just a summer home location. Altogether the review of the past week is decidedly favourable to the city, and there is every reason to believe that the near future will bring even brighter reports.

MUST RECRUIT IN THEIR COUNTIES

Units Must Draw Their Men From Within the Boundaries of the Counties

TORONTO, APRIL 20.—In view of the fact that last summer some of the rural infantry battalions which trained at Niagara filled their ranks to a large extent mith men secured by means of employment agencies in Toronto, the order has gone forth from headquarters of Second Division, to the effect that in the camps to be held this year, all units must draw their men from within the boundaries of the counties or districts which they are supposed to represent.

The intention of the order is to encourage the rural units to put their organization on a more permanent basis, and to avoid a considerable amount of trouble which was experienced last year in the case of some rural corps mhich took to camp whole companies recruited from the unemployed class in Toronto.

The period of training for the cavalry has been increased this year to sixteen days. The Governor-General's Body Guard and the 9th Mississauga Horse will train at Niagara, commencing June 16. The 2nd Dragoons go to Petawawa on June 13, while the 1st Hussars and 36th Grey's Horse will camp with the 1st Division.

BRIDGE IS IN DANGER

County Bridge Over River at Nassau Has Been Closed to Traffic

PIER HAS BEEN MOVING

The County bridge over the Otonabee at Nassau was closed indefinitely last night by order of Mr. J. H Garbutt, chairman of the committee on Roads and Bridges.

The central or main pier has moved to such an extent recently that the bridge was considered dangerous to traffic. This main pier was noticed to have moved considerably some days ago as the result, it is thought, of the action of the frost and ice of the winter and the rush of water with the spring freshets.

It has been stated that the pier, which is of stone, was built on a cribwork of wood. While the Otonabee is at the flood it will be impossible to accomplish much in the way of repairs. Arrangements are said to have been made to have the bridge examined and in the meantime it is closed to the traffic which has usually gone that way.

St. Hippolyte de Kilkenny, Lake L'Achigan, Terrebonne Co., Que., April 1.—(Special.)—Again the people of this neighbourhood are talking of a complete cure of kidney disease. Mr. Hugh Martin, Jr., a well-known young farmer, is the person cured, and he gives all the credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

I was often dizzy my memory was failing and I found it difficult to collect my thoughts. I was also nervous while heart flutterings added to my anxiety.

"I was a sick man indeed when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, but by the time I had taken two boxes I was a changed man. Are you surprised that I think Dodd's Kidney Pills a wonderful remedy.

TWO LIBERAL LEADERS.

There was some very good talking at the banquet of the Hamilton Young Liberal Club last night. As the two principal talkers were Mr. Rowell and and Hon. George P. Graham, there was bound to be good talk In his first session as leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, Mr. Rowell has abundantly proved that he has the ability, the tact and self confidence necessary for party leadership, and last night the young Liberals found it easy to understand how the new Liberal leader had caused the Whitney Government many an uncomfortable hour by his searching criticism and vigorous rhetoric. Mr. Rowell is a very fine speaker, and he has the advantage of impressing his hearers with the conviction that he is thoroughly in earnest in all that he says and is not merely talking for effect. His hearty tribute to Allan Studholme and the high quality of the public service done in the Legislature by the member for East Hamilton was not less creditable to the Liberal leader than it was deserved by the Labour member.

Mr. Graham was, as is his wont, witty and humorous, genial and fair. Of all the Liberal politicians, next after Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he is probably the most generally liked. But while he is good-natured he can also hit hard in his allusions to the sayings and doings of the enemy, and some of his criticism in last night's speech was pretty keen.

The Young Liberals heard last night two men who are probably destined to be Prime Ministers—one of them Prime Minister of Ontario, and the other Prime Minister of the Dominion. — Hamilton Herald, Independent Conservative.

SOMEBODY RESPONSIBLE.

Somebody is responsible for the terrible loss of life resulting from the foundering of the Titanic. It is recognised that the roll of rescued passengers was cruelly cut down because of the lack of life-boats. The law is perhaps to blame because it does not require a larger complement of life-saving boats, and the ship company is responsible that more are not provided for. The reason there is such a lack is a matter of policy. It is stated that there was not room enough on the Titanic to stow efficient boats to save all on board in case of necessity. Yet—and here is the explanation of the criminal negligence—there was room for roof gardens, swimming pools, tennis courts—room for luxuries, but not for life boats. We sacrifice life to luxury.,

Even a ship like the Titanic, a floating city as to population, liable at any moment to strike an iceberg with a speed and momentum that meant rapid sinking and appalling loss of life, was without adequate aids to rescue. The plea of lack of room is worthless. Sacrifice speed, sacrifice luxury, do anything to provide for the safety of the most precious human possession, worth more to the owner than all the gold of the world, mined or unmined.

Even on lake crafts in our northern waters, where there is almost no danger of collision with serious results or serious menace to life, the life-saving conveniences are ample. A Stony Lake steamer, carries its own boats, and in addition to that, it has room for a dozen or fifteen boats and canoes belonging to its passengers. One of these comparatively tiny steamers has room for boats, to save all that could be crowded on board—where there is almost no danger. Yet, a monster floating city, steaming at railway speed, with death's head signals gleaming from menacing icebergs, all about its way, is cruelly deficient in life-saving appliances; not enough to more than save one-third of the souls on board. It comes to this, that the Titanic thus equipped, steamed at 21 knots an hour — railway speed—into an ice field, where any moment, there was danger of fatal collision, with two-thirds of her human freightage practically doomed to death in case of momentarily imminent, accident;and all or mainly because luxuries took the place that should have been assigned to life boats. What infinitely intensifies the Titanic tragedy—titanic in a double sense—is the consideration that it might, as far as life loss goes, have easily been prevented by the most commonplace foresight and care, by a little deference to the value of life as against catering to luxury for the few that can afford it, at the expense of the many.

WHY MR. HAWKES WAS SILENCED.

It has been claimed that it was a public advantage—"the general advantage of Canada"—to have the federal and provincial governments in political sympathy, to have the same party in power in Ottawa, that was in power at Toronto and other provincial capitals. So far the "general advantage," or even local advantage, of such conditions, has not been obtrusive. The only striking example of advantage is that to the Ontario government. The Ottawa government, appointed Mr. Arthur Hawkes, the champion of the "British Born" in the September elections, as an immigration commissioner at a good salary. Mr. Hawkes entered upon his duties, but has apparently been "knocked out" in the first round. He made his first report to his masters at Ottawa, but that report has never seen the light; it has been suppressed. And its suppression affords the first tangible evidence of advantage coming from having governments digging with the same political foot at Ottawa and Toronto, and the advantage of the Ottawa suppressio veri, accrues to the Whitney government. It was suppressed, apparently, because it told the truth about the neglect and failure of the Whitney government to do its duty in respect of colonizing and settling the fertile belt in New Ontario. That evidently was the motive of withholding the report, so that the Whitney government gets the direct advantage of having the record of its shortcomings pigeon-holed at Ottawa by a politically friendly government.

A correspondent of the Globe in Northern Ontario, throws some light on the matter. He says that there is a rumour in circulation there that the report of Mr. Hawke's was strangled, because Mr. Hawkes felt it his duty to severely criticise the colonization methods of the Ontario Government in the Temiskaming country. It is recalled that he attended a meeting of settlers at Englehart which was anything but a love feast. The Provincial Homestead Inspector, in the course of his remarks, said there was room for thousands of settlers in the district, and indicated on a map where they could be located. To a question by Mr. Hawkes, who asked if he was in favour of bringing out thousands of old country people and dumping them on the land indicated, the inspector replied that he was.

"It would be a case of root hog or die," was the Immigration Commissioner's retort. Under his questioning several settlers got up and told how they had to go through miles of unbroken bush to get to their farms. The land they had to pass was owned by absentees and not cleared as the law required, or if in process of clearing the work was proceeding very slowly.

It is known that Mr. Hawkes left Northern Ontario in the firm belief that the methods of colonisation of the Whitney Government would have to be entirely changed before the Dominion Government could consent to the diversion of any considerable part of the stream of immigration into Northern Ontario. If these views were put into the suppressed report its suppression is no longer a mystery. Mr. Hawkes was appointed to supply weapons for the Government and its allies, not ammunition for its foes.

WASTE CHURCHES.

The Calgary Weekly Standard complains bitterly that there are millions of dollars tied up in Calgary in buildings which are used only one day in the week—the churches. The plaint of the Standard is justified. One of the great sources of strength of the Roman Catholic Church is the fact that its sacred buildings are utilised every day of the year. The Protestant habit of keeping churches for Sunday has a good deal to go with the habit of keeping religion for Sunday. We do not feel certain that the hustling residents of Calgary would at the present time make any great use of their churches even if they were thrown open as places for rest, meditation and withdrawal from the rush of worldly business during week-days, but we do think that it might be a very good thing for them if they did.—Montreal Herald.

The Titanic disaster represents one of the reasons, why our churches are so tenantless during the week, and not overcrowded even on Sundays. The mania of doing things with a rush obtains all through the arena of human activity; the haste to get rich; the haste to reach port; the mad rush for pleasure convert human society of these days into a whirlpool that takes thousands down the hollow axis of its vortex. We have such engrossing care for the body, and the things of the body that the poor, starved soul hardly gets a thought, except, perhaps, a perfunctory attention, one day in the week, and the poor body is so tired with the struggles of the week that we go to sleep under the process of soul feeding. The churches are "all right," to use the vernacular of the day—the worshippers are all that is lacking. We haven't any churches too many, but there is a tremendous scarcity of tenants.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Castell Hopkins of Toronto, has spent $225 to cable his opinion of Home Rule to Great Britain. The notoriety may be worth the money, but the same cannot be said of the opinion.

It would have been well for the late George Berryman, of Kingston, if he had been as staunch a teetotaller as his wife. He went home drunk; his wife hit him in the forehead with a teapot, and he died from blood-poisoning. "The cup that cheers, but not inebriates, may, on occasion, be as fatal as the wine cup.

One would think that Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden, after being in hot water a whole season, would seek change at any other place than the Hot Springs of Virginia; and one would think that the Premier, who was placed in office on the strength of the cry, "no truck nor trade with the Yankees," would have gone to Banff, under the British Flag, rather than otiumize under the stars and stripes. But in this matter the Premier has shown no greater inconsistency than he has with the highly composite and complicated spirit of his commission from teh sovereign people of Canada. Any way, we hope the Premier will return with fully restored physical health.

Blood Poisoning Results From Digging Out Corns

To really make a corn go away, to remove it for all time, there is just one way. Paint on Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor, a soothing helpful remedy that separates the corn from the good flesh, lifts it out root and branch—does it quickly and without pain. The name tells the story, Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor, price 25c. Look out for dangerous substitutes for "Putnam's," which is sold by druggists.

THE ICEBERG FIELDS OF THE WESTERN ATLANTIC

It is proved by the fate of the Titanic that no passenger vessel proceeding at even half speed, and meeting the mass of ice fairly, can be built strong enough to survive a collision with an iceberg. When the Titanic struck the berg in the North Atlantic it was as if she had struck a huge floating island with a rock-bound coast. The more powerful the vessel, the more terrific the result of the collision. It is estimated that she struck with the force of 12 million tons. A much lighter vessel would have had a better chance of emerging from the contact in a floating condition. The mightiest vessel ever built must have crumpled up like an eggshell with the force of the blow. It is probable that not only the fore part of the vessel was stove in, but perhaps the whole side or bottom was ripped out of her. Every pound of steam hurling the great vessel forward was a pound of steam forcing the plates asunder, and making more swift the inevitable disaster.

To Guard Against Icebergs.

The iceberg, the derelict, and fog are the greatest terrors of the sea. Derelicts are few, and are the least destructive agent of the three. When there is a fog, the ship can stop her engines, if necessary, and wait until it clears. No certain way of guarding against the iceberg is known, though every large ship has appliances that it is hoped will protect her, and none was ever more better equipped in this respect than the Titanic. Sometimes a fog will indicate the presence of great masses of ice. When they are suspected, the temperature of the water is taken at short intervals, and if it continues to drop it is certain that a berg is not far off. It has been found, however, that the thermometer is not an invariable test, for there may be a current of warm water between a ship and an iceberg. Again it is said that the blowing of the siren frequently reveals the presence of an iceberg because of the reverberation. If the berg happens to rise to a great height out of the water it provides no wall from which the sound will re-echo and this precaution, too, may be in vain.

The Thugs of the Sea.

The dangerous bergs are not those that rise perpendicularly out of the water like a cliff. The real thugs of the sea are the bergs that show only faintly against the sky line, and that thrust out their base thousands of yards under water. By the time a searchlight revealed the presence of such a berg the ship might be so close to the concealed base that a collision could not be avoided. The regular, picturesque iceberg is the rarity. Captains do not fear them, and passengers on the ship delight to view them from afar, with the light shining like diamonds from their lofty pinnacles. As a rule, the North Atlantic icebergs do not attain such a height as those that break away from the Antarctic. The latter are sometimes 800 feet high, while those from the north do not often attain a height of more than 200 feet.

A Giant Berg.

Sir John Ross on one of his voyages, took careful measurements of a giant berg, and found it to be two and a half miles long by two and one-fifth miles broad, and rising 168 feet above the water. It is estimated that this mass of ice weighed not less than 1,500 million tons. The bergs in the North Atlantic are distributed in a remarkable manner, and indicate the general set of the currets. They move in these currents and are only slightly affected by the wind. It is no uncommon sight to see a great berg moving in the teeth of the wind, a pheomenon that is understood whe it is remembered that only one-ninth of the berg's bulk is above water. The berg upon which the Titanic struck was undoubtedly moving in the Labrador current, which flows in a generally southerly direction round the coasts of Newfoundland and Nova Scotia. In this tract bergs abound in early summer. To the east is the Gulf Stream, as it flows to the Scandinavian coast. The bergs go south until they meet the warm waters, and there they melt. Icebergs are rarely seen south of 40 degrees north latitude.

The Danger Zone.

The iceberg belt is about 200 miles broad, and is known to every man who sails the North Atlantic. Tidings of the movement of the bergs is communicated to all ships by the Hydrographic Department of the United States, and as these fields move very slowly, it is possible to chart them with some approach to accuracy. This spring, however, there has been an unusually large number of the bergs and it has been found impossible to keep track of them all. One result of the Titaic disaster is likely to be the establishment of an iceberg patrol through the 200-mile danger zone, which can warn approaching vessels by wireless of the exact location of these terrors of the deep.—Mail and Empire.

SPEAKING CONTEST A FEATURE OF OPEN MEETING OF LITERARY SOCIETY

Interesting Event Held Last Evening in the Collegiate Institute With a Large Attendance Present—A Good Programme.

The Philomathean Society in connection with the Peterborough Collegiate Institute held an open meeting last evening. There was a large attendance, denoting that considerable interest is being taken in the work.

Mr. Roy Dixon, the president of the society, who occupied the chair, opened the meeting with a brief address. "In 1904," he said, "a Literary and Public-speaking Society was formed, and during the life of the society its work has been most encouraging, while those who have participated in the meetings have reaped considerable benefit. This year a new plan has been introduced, namely, a public-speaking contest, one for the upper grade and one for the lower. The latter has already taken place and the winner is Mr. James Milloy, and the former will take place this evening.

"We have to thank Messrs Kennard and Stubbs," he concluded, "for presenting medals for the successful speakers."

The first speaker of the evening was Mr. Meredith Huycke, who dealt with "The Conservation of Natural Resources." In a well-worded speech he explained that if Canada did not pay attention to her valuable assets it would be difficult to tell what would become of the nation in a few years. He dealt individually upon minerals, fishing, water power, forestation, etc.

Mr. Harold Hill came next and spoke on "The Peace Movement." He contended that no material advantage was gained by warfare, and gave for example the Boer War, explaining that England lost financially, and that the Boers are now in a better position than they were before. The third speaker was Mr. Ernest Langford, who chose "Home Rule" for his subject. He said he thought there was no reason for Home Rule, and, amongst other points, he pointed out that Mr. John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, said that Ireland was the most poverty-stricken country in Europe. "That being the case," said the speaker, "why place an extra burden on the country by imposing self-government upon it."

Mr. Chisholm, in selecting the winner, complimented the speakers on their ability, and said that it was difficult to decide upon any individual. He eventually named the second speaker, namely, Mr. Harold Hill, as the successful one, and said that the only advantage he had over the others was in the "bond" between himself and the audience.

Mr. Hill was then presented with a medal.

A good musical programme was rendered in which the Boys' and Girls' Glee Club figured prominently. They sang choruses in a very charming manner, which signified careful and assiduous training. Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Kathleen Loucke and Mr. Ferguson. Miss K. Nichol rendered a delightful recitation, while Misses Bernice Giroux and Kathleen O'Brien contributed a magnificent pianoforte duet.

Splendid Concert At Conservatory Of Music

Few concerts given in Peterborough have proved so enjoyable or aroused as much genuine enthusiasm among an audience as the splendid entertainment in the Conservatory of Music Hall last night by Mr. Rodferne Hollinshead, the well-known tenor; Mr. Leo. Smith, 'cello soloist and the Conservatory Orchestra. The event was a triumph for all concerned, a storm of applause from the big audience greeting every number, and encores being insistently demanded. It was a programme of rare merit indeed, and Mr. Cliddon is deserving of the thanks of local music-lovers for affording an opportunity of enjoying such a treat.

Mr. Hollinshead, who has not been heard in Peterborough since he sang at Miss Halliban's benefit concert two years ago, was a revelation even to those who heard him at that time, and it seemed that last night's audience could not get enough of his singing. The possessor of a wonderfully sweet and powerful tenor, perfectly controlled, he sang with an expression and feeling that deeply stirred his hearers. The claims that have been made for Mr. Hollinshead that he is Canada's greatest tenor would seem to be well-founded—certainly he is a magnificent vocalist, endowed not only with a superb voice, but also with the facility to so throw himself into the spirit of his song that his audience is entranced. His offerings last night were varied enough to show that he is indeed an artist. His first number, the beautiful aria, "On Away, Awake Beloved," from Hiawatha's Wedding Feast, captured the audience, and the concert from that stage was a series of triumphs for him. As an encore he sang "God's Garden" with a sympathy and feeling that were irresistible. The double number (a) "Macushla" and (b) "For You Alone," was magnificently presented, and Mr. Hollinshead was compelled to respond to the enthusiastic applause, choosing as his recall number a little Ethopian song, "Mighty Like a Rose," which was a veritable gem. The favourite aria di Manrico, from "Il Trovatore," was given with a true appreciation of its beauty and dramatic possibilities, and was perhaps one of the best of Mr. Hollinshead's offerings, and once more an encore had to be given.

Mr. Leo Smith proved himself a magnificent 'celloist, his playing earning him most hearty applause, and the audience refused to be satisfied until he had played encores in each case. Mr. Smith is a thorough master of his difficult instrument, and his work deserved the warm reception it received. His numbers included a minuet by Becker, a Spanish dance by Popper, Schumann's "Adagio" and "Romance" and "By the Fountain" by Davidoff, a list of selections that simply demonstrated the versatility of the artist.

The Conservatory orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Gliddon, added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. This splendid organization has a membership of thirty musicians and their work is clean-cut and masterly. Although the string section is especially good, the orchestra capable and a well balanced and capable and forms a noteworthy addition to Peterborough's musical bodies. The able directorship of Mr. Gliddon and earnest and faithful practise on the part of the members, are responsible for the splendid form shown by the orchestra last night. Their opening number, an overture on Irish airs arranged by Bendix was played with a dash and vim and merited the hearty applause the rendition received. Two comic-opera selections, The Chocolate Soldier" and DeKoven's "Rob Roy" were superbly played and the final number, the finale from "William Tell," an ambitious effort, was most capably handled. Mr. Gliddon and the members of his orchestra are to be congratulated upon the proficiency they have attained.

Miss McKee, of the Conservatory, was the accompanist for the evening and performed her difficult task in a manner that was a great credit to herself and an equally great assistance to the artists. Her work was especially praiseworthy in view of the fact that some of Mr. Hollinshead's music had gone astray and she had no time to prepare it.

The programme was as follows:

Overture on Irish Airs (Bendix). Orchestra.

(a) Minnet (Becker), (b) Spanish Dance (Popper), Mr. Leo. Smith.

Aria, "On Away, Awake Beloved" (from Hiawatha's Wedding Feast) (Coleridge Taylor), Mr. Hollinshead.

Selection from "The Chocolate Soldier" (Strauss), Orchestra.

Adagio (Schumann), Mr. Leo. Smith.

(a) "Macushla" (McMurrough), (b) "For You Alone" (Geehl), Mr. Hollinshead.

Selections from "Rob Roy" (DeKoven), Orchestra.

(a) "Romance" (Davidoff), (b) "By the Fountain" (Davidoff), Mr. Smith.

Aria di Manrico from "Il Trovatore" (Verdi), Finale from "William Tell" (Rossinni), Orchestra.

FROM MY POINT OF VIEW

She was a plucky girl who could direct a crowd what to do while she was pinned beneath a motor 'bus "Lift the wheel! Lift the wheel!" The speaker, whose cries were growing fainter and fainter every minute was only a London (Eng.) flower girl rejoicing in the name of Harriett Begg. She had been knocked down in Fleet Street by a motor omnibus and pinned down by the front wheels, and as a gaping crowd stood by helplessly watching her terrible plight, she told them what to do. "Don't be such fools!" she cried, her voice now very faint. "Lift the wheel up!" Meanwhile the driver and conductor had cleared all the passengers off the vehicle in order to lessen its weight. Then at length the gaping crowd followed her instructions, and dozens of them grasped all parts of the engine and the front of the omnibus. With one herculean lift, they raised the wheels and pushed the omnibus back from off her body. Then the girl fainted and was taken off by a sympathizing "crabby" to St. Bartholomew's Hospital. There it was discovered that one of the poor girl's legs was fractured. She was suffering untold agonies; but she told the crowd what to do.

Who dare say that the gentler sex have no nerve and courage in times of emergency? Why, oftentimes they beat us sterner men hollow!

* * *

Suppose I said "the comeliest lass
To my mind in this town,
Just looks her best when she is dress'd
In navy blue serge gown."

Suppose I said "in beaver hat
Of black or dark shade brown,
With nat'ral curling ostrich plums
Nestling around the crown."

Suppose I said "beneath that hat
The sweetest face outshine,
With eyes so bright, the face too sweet
To ever wear a frown."

Suppose I said "her pretty hat
Just fit her charming face,"
You'd say so if you saw her walk,
Her movements full of grace.

Suppose I said "dear Canuck girl,
Oh! give me just one smile!"

For one kind look from those bright eyes
I'd gladly walk a mile!

What would you say?

* * *

That was a happy thought which prompted Conductor Thompson to put on, by his choir, the well-known hymn, "Eternal Father, strong to save," on the occasion of the highly successful concert given by the St. George's Choral Society last Tuesday night. It was a delicate touch of sympathetic feeling towards those of our fellow citizens who are in the agonizing throes of anxiety and doubt as to the possible fate of some of their loved ones. Well done, Mr. Thompson!

THE FIRST GREY HAIR SIGN OF AGE

Easy Way to Preserve Natural Colour of the Hair and Make it Grow.

A harmless aromatic, made from common garden sage, quickly restores grey hair to natural colour. The care of the hair, to prevent it from losing its colour and lustre, is just as important as to care for teeth to keep them from discolouring. Why spend money for cosmetics and creams to improve the complexion, and yet neglect your hair, when gray hair is even more conspicuous and suggestive of age than wrinkles or a poor complexion? Of the two, it is easier to preserve the natural colour and beauty of the hair than it is to have a good complexion.

All that is necessary is the occasional use of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of common garden Sage and Sulphur, combined with other valuable remedies for dry, harsh hair, dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. After a few applications of this simple, harmless remedy, your hair will gradually be restored to its natural colour, in a short time the dandruff will be removed, and your hair will no longer come out but will start to grow as Nature intended it should.

Don't neglect your hair, for it goes further than anything else to make or mar your good looks. You can buy this remedy at any drug store for fifty cents a bottle, and your druggist will give your money back if you are not satisfied after using. Purchase a bottle today. You will never regret it when you realize the difference it will make in your appearance.

MEMORIAL SERVICE AT S. A. TEMPLE

On Sunday evening a memorial service will be held in the S. A. Temple, in memory of the victims of the ill-fated "Titanic". The subject of the discourse will be "Lessons from the Loss of the "Titanic". Appropriate music will be rendered. Prior to this service, the usual open-air meeting will be held on the market-square, at 6.30, and the Temple Silver Band will play the "Dead March in Saul," as well as on the march to the Temple. All are invited to this service.

SOME THINGS AND OTHERS

The cold water wave, in a temperance sense, shows a good deal of the suffragette spirit, when it seeks to "banish the bar" by undermining the foundations of a hotel building.

Yesterday a safe was left standing on the sidewalk in front of the Peterborough Club building, possibly to keep the police upto the mark in the way of vigilance.

The caretaker of the bowling green doesn't seem to care a fig for the weather. He shows his enterprise by being his lawn mower a week ahead of others, when in sheltered spots there is ice and snow. He should make a good bowler — he is sure to "take enough grass."

Last night a driver of a team, in the helpless stage of drink, was being towed up street by his horses, which wandered at will. Derelicts, submerged in the sea, are the dread of sailors; a derelict submerged by drink in nominal charge of a team is a danger to himself and others. If a "bar" furnished him with liquor to the helpless stage and turned him adrift, careless of whether he lost his life or injured others, it has forfeited its right to existence.

Chimney fires have a fondness for calling out the firemen. That's the penalty of a long winter—the chimneys become clogged with soot — a cold snap means hotter fires; there's a blaze and a run by the brigade. Chimneys are not the only things that are clogged with the winter's accumulation of dirt, as the hustling house wife and house cleaning bear witness.

If the city furnishes a load or two of street scrapings to build up a citizen's boulevard, is it doing the citizen a personal favour or contributing to the beautifying of a public place for the benefit of all the citizens?

One Mr. John McGuire has the virtue of sticking to his business. This morning his six months' term in the jail for vagrancy ended at nine o'clock; he came down town and by ten o'clock he had bought a plug of tobacco, had called on His Worship and was returning to jail with his warrant of commitment for another six months in his pocket. He has been doing this for four or five years.

"Mars" Will Be Discussed

The general public is cordially invited to the astronomical meeting in the Collegiate Institute next Monday evening. Mars is the most favourably situated planet in the system for observation. And by its condition we can make a good guess as to what our own earth will some day become.

This interesting subject will be considered next Monday evening. Come and bring all your friends. No collection. Admission free.

Big Spring Market To-day Of Butter, Eggs And Maple Syrup

A New Feature Was a Big Supply of Pigs—Butter and Eggs at Favourable Prices—Chickens Were High.

SOME OF THE DOINGS

The joys pervaded the market this morning. The joys are those happy little elves that promote smiles and happiness and wrest with the glooms for the possession of the minds of humanity. This morning they filtered through with the sunbeams after a week of rather gloomy weather and a general wave of depression following the accident of last Monday morning.

On the market this might be called the lean season. Last year's fruit and vegetables have reached the fag end, and there is a scarcity both in quantity and quality of the products of the field and farm.

Maple Syrup Supply.

The supply of maple syrup might be regarded as plentiful. There were eight or ten farmers with the usual milk can and quart measure and forty cents a quart was the quotation.

One Otonabee farmer was subjected to a little jollying" on the part of a business man.

"There are no maple trees in Otonabee," the latter said.

"Why I could have tapped 1500 of the best maples in the country," the farmer replied. "If it's maples you want, you have to go to Otonabee. Right down on the corner of the sixth line is where this came from. I tapped only 150 trees this year."

"Why they're all elms and basswood down in that locality. You can't make maple syrup from those trees. No one ever heard of a maple tree in Otonabee."

The farmer joined in the laugh and just then made another sale.

"We're all through for the season," he stated. "Sap might have run last night, but it is getting near the end of the season and is pretty strong now."

Contractors Bought It.

Another farmer had the dark, near-molasses thickness to his syrup and those who thought they knew, and perhaps they did, remarked that its appearance was right. A prominent contractor departed for a hardware store, bought a gallon can, returned and had it filled. Adjacent hardware stores, in fact, sold quite a few cans this morning to men who decided to take advantage of the quantity offered. Their wives will likely chide them for extravagance.

Butter and eggs were plentiful, the former selling around 30 cents and eggs at 20 cents.

Chickens at $1.00 Each.

Chickens were a little more plentiful but brought good prices. They ranged from 50 cents each to $1.00.

"I never bring my dollar chickens on the market," one salesman said. "They are for special customers and they are specially fed and prepared. I bring them into town and deliver them to my customers and receive $1.00 each. That is a fair price just now, but they are well worth it. The people know that they are getting the best in chickens and are willing to pay for them. A number of bank managers and others buy them regularly.

Potatoes sold at $2.00 a bag. Somehow or another, that price has been heard before. It seems familiar.

Pigs Were Plentiful.

The biggest showing on the outside market to-day was in piglets, little pigs, black, white and red, according to the artistic taste of the purchaser. You could buy a red and black, or a white and black, or even two whites if you preferred it. Of course it all depended upon the purchaser and his ideas of pigs. Seven dollars a pair was the common price. These pigs are being introduced into the city in opposition to the garbage collecting system. They are guaranteed to eat any refuse except tomato cans, and they might make a few dents in these to sharpen their teeth for the more digestible stuff.

To-day's Prices.

Prices to-day were as follows:
Butter per lb.—29c. to 31c.
Eggs per doz.—19c. to 20c.
Chickens each—60c. to $1.00.
Potatoes pe rbag—$2.00.
Pork, per lb.—Fronts 11 1-2c.; hinds 12 1-2c.
Live hogs—$8.25.
Dressed hogs—$10.50.
Maple syrup, per quart—40c.

In Dread Of Croup

The inexperienced mother is always in dread of croup. There is seldom any warning until the child awakens at midnight with the hard, metallic cough and gasps frantically for breath.

There is no time to send for a doctor, no time to go to the drug store, even; relief must be obtained at once. If you are not so fortunate as to have Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, cause the child to vomit with a spoonful of warm lard or by tickling the throat with the finegr.

Then get Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine so as to prevent the more serious attack which usually comes the second night. This treatment is wonderfully effective for croup, bronchitis and colds in the throat or chest. Mothers who make a practice of always keeping it in the house find that they can depend on it in case of emergency.

THE HERPICIDE GIRL

Says Everyone Can Have Beautiful Hair.

I am really ashamed of some of my girl friends when I look at their hair. There is no sense in having such looking heads. It simply shows that while they may be scrupulously neat in every other way, they are careless about their hair.

Thin, scraggy wispy hair generally indicates dandruff and dandruff is caused by a germ. Newbro's Herpicide will kill that germ and keep the scalp as clean and healthy as can be. This permits the hair to grow naturally and luxuriantly. The terrible itching which goes with dandruff stops with almost the first application.

Substitutes or remedies said to be "just as good" are sometimes offered, but it is better to buy the genuine original germ killer, Newbro's Herpicide. There is no guesswork about that preparation. A trial isn't necessary, just buy a bottle and use it. The results are sure to be better than you expect.

For sale at drug stores. One dollar size bottles are guaranteed. Applications obtained at the better barber shops. Send 10c. in postage for sample and book to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit Mich.

PURE MAPLE SYRUP

You Could Buy a Small Quantity on the Market To-day

Pure maple syrup, if there ever was such a thing, was offered on the market to-day by a farmer, and the wonder is that the first person who saw it did not buy the entire quantity.

"I only brought in a few," the young farmer said. "The folks at home told me I wouldn't sell this much and that I need attend only to the syrup. I thought I would try a few and I am sorry I brought so little now. My sister said the people were used to buying the store candy and wouldn't look at the sugar."

It was just about the best maple sugar sold around the market in many a moon and the cakes were only three for ten cents. They were worth ten cents apiece to those who like pure maple syrup, at least it was pure in the opinions of those who tasted it, and they said they should know. They claimed that in its way that sugar was one of the best bargains that went over the market. Next spring the young man may be around with another lot, and by that time his sister may have changed her mind about city people and their tastes.

INSURANCE MEN MEET

The regular meeting of the Life Underwriters of Central Ontario was held last evening in Hooper's Grill Room, where an excellent spread was placed before a large assembly.

Mr. John Rothwell gave an interesting address on Industrial Insurance. Dealing with the matter, in detail he traced its history ad growth. the insurance having been started in England, and later introduced into Canada, and the United States. He spoke also of its working operations, and the class of people who avail themselves of this kind of insurance. Mr. G. I. Allen also briefly reviewed Industrial Insurance. Mr. Thomas Marks, President of the Life Underwriters, presided. The only out-of-town visitor was Mr. P. A. Ferguson of Lindsay.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM UDY.

There passed away, last evening, a well-known resident of this district, in the person of Mr. William Udy, of Bridgenorth.

The deceased gentleman, who was eighty-six years of age, resided in the vicinity for a space of fifty years and for the last few years he had lived a retired life in the Village. He was a member of the Bridgenorth Methodist church and was, throughout the locality, highly respected and esteemed. His illness extended over a period of only one week.

The late Mr. Udy is survived by a sorrowing wife, four sons and three daughters, namely, William and Norton of London, Ont., Dean of French River; Percy of Bridgenorth, Mrs. Robinson, living in the West; Pauline ad Lily of Bridgeorth.

The funeral will be held at the family residence, Bridgenorth, at 2 p.m., Monday, April 22nd. Interment at Little Lake cemetery.

A WONDER WORKER

"It heals like magic," is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barbers' itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic, it prevents blood poisoning.

S.O.E. TO ATTEND REQUIEM SERVIC

All members of the Sons of England are requested to attend a requiem service to be held in St. John's church on Sunday evening next, April 21, at 7 o'clock, in connection with the heavy loss of life involved in the Titanic disaster. The members will meet at 6.30 p.m., in the S. O. E. hall on Hunter street, and will proceed in a body with the members of St. George's Society to St. John's church. Members of the fraternal societies in the city are cordially invited to join with the Sons of England in this service.

Members of the S. O. E. are requested to wear their badges. Memorial services are being arranged for throughout the entire country, an indication of the widespread sorrow that Monday's calamity has cast over the land.

DANGERS OF FAT

How Fat Affects the Kidneys

The Kidneys often become affected by fatty deposits before any other organs. Probably there is no more important function of the entire body than that performed by the kidneys. Any interruption or impairment of this function, must necessarily soon result in serious trouble. And not the least of these dangers is the gradual change in substance of the organs themselves. You will hardly care to risk Bright's Disease, or the torture of Rheumatism, to say nothing of the unwelcome burden of fat which attacks the whole body, making it a sight far from attractive. There is one sure, harmless means by which fat may be checked; that is the famous Marmola Prescription of a Detroit Physician, fendered more convenient and effective in Marmola Prescription Tablets. All druggists sell Marmola Prescription Tablets, and their price is 75c for a large case, or they will be sent post paid on receipt of price by the Marmola Co., 853 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich. By their use, exercise and dieting may be discarded; a smooth, clear complexion and even satisfactory reduction accomplished at the rate of 10 to 16 ounces a day.

MUTT AND JEFF

Gus Hill's production of "Bud" Fisher's peculiar character creation, "Mutt and Jeff" is undoubtedly entitled to the well worn, and often used expression, "The most talked of play of the year." This is one instance when a play, or at least the inspiration for a play of the same title, was immensely popular before it was ever written. The "Mutt and Jeff" cartoons now running in the "New York American" and hundreds of other daily newspapers throughout the United States, have reached a point of popularity never before achieved by any series of cartoons in the history of journalism. You may call them "silly," "insipid," or by any other name you please, but the fact of their unprecedented popularity remains the same. A few off-hand dashes of a piece of chalk in the hands of a clever artist, has made two continents indulge in a daily "laugh feast." All glory to the brain that conceived the idea. Gus Hill is sending to the Grand on Thursday, April 25, for an engagement of one performance, a company of fifty people especially fitted to present "Mutt and Jeff" in a musical comedy form. It is openly acknowledged by all that this is the real novelty production of the current year. Much is expected by admirers of Fisher's peculiar character studies and the play scheduled to appear in your city will fully realize your most ardent expectations. By all means, wait for "Mutt and Jeff," it is one great big laugh.

Bad Boys In The South ?

April 12, 1912.

Sir,—At certain corners, Lake and Aylmer for one, you are greeted with "got a match," and if you do not enter into the gossipy conversation intended and pass on as a respectable people do on the streets, you hear a volume of rude remarks and oaths and are generally insulted.

Yours, etc.,

I am now never without the Tablets in the house and recommend the to other others." Sustained A Scalp Wound

Mr. Robert Anderson of Apsley, figured in a spectacular runaway at 2.30 this afternoon. The horse which he was driving, shied at a passing automobile on the market square, and turning sharply, threw the driver out. Dragging the overturned buggy, the animal disappeared amid a cloud of dust, but was finally rounded up near the Canoe Works. Mr. Anderson sustained a severe scalp wound in addition to several minor bruises. He was able to proceed to his home without assistance. The top of the buggy was all but demolished, but beyond this the outfit was intact.

"THE MAN ON THE BOX."

It was rather a slim audience that witnessed the performance of the "Man on the Box," at the Grand, last evening, but this fact did not depreciate the excellence of the play, as presented by Monte Thompson, and his well-balanced company. The play proved to be a three-act realistic stage presentation of Harold McGrath's famous novel, and was provocative of many humorous and striking situations. Miss Marion Johnquest, in the intricate role of Elizabeth Annesley, won her way into the hearts of the audience with the excellence of her work, while Mr. Walter Scott Weeks, as Robert Woburton surpassed himself in the character which he represented. The work of the company, as a whole, was clean cut and finished, and the audience testified, by liberal applause, its appreciation of the excellent work of the cast, and the admirable stage settings.

His Memories.

"Does the past hold for you any pleasant memories?" asked the sentimental person.

"Ah, yes," sighed the practical married man. "We once had a good cook, who stayed two weeks."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

It Must Be.

Nelle—I have the nicest new spring hat. It's a perfect dream.

Belle—Is it stylish?

Nelle—Stylish? I should say so. It is the most uncomfortable thing I ever wore.—Philadelphia Record.

The Great Remedy.

Beefsteak scorched, potatoes burned,
Coffee weak and biscuits hard,
Sugar sandy and the milk has turned,
Fat meat grease instead of lard—
What'll we do? Look in the book!
Here's the answer: Recall the cook.
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Why He Laughed.

"It was a frightfully sad piece; every one was in tears. I wonder what that man finds to laugh at?"

"He finds it easy to laugh. The piece is a success and he is the author."—Fliegende Blatter.

Our Loss.

"This muckraking has made the big corporations dead sore and hurt the country."

"That's right. Hardly anybody is giving blotters this year." — Seattle Post Intelligencer.

Conceit.

As we wander along through this vale of tears
It is plain, among other things,
That no song is as sweet to a donkey's ears
As the song that the donkey sings.
—Judge.

Same Object.

"The object of the average explorer seems to be to acquire enough material for a lecture."

"Yes; that is my wife's aim when she explores my pockets."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Disappointed.

Hostess (pairing off the guests)—Mr Parvenu, you will please take Miss Gumwell out to dinner. Parvenu—Eh Why I thought you were havin' the dinner here in the house.—Boston Transcript.

Dollars and Sense.

I'm blessed with brains, but I am broke.
My woe it is intense.
If I could get the dollars I
Could do without the sense.
—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Liberal Contributer.

Councilman—I've come to see, sir, if you will subscribe anything to the town cemetery.

Old Resident—Good gracious! I've already subscribed three wives.—Tit-Bits.

A Lament.

"Gimme your watch and chain," said the train robber.

"Great Scott," sobbed the Pullman porter, "ain't there no ethics in our profession?"—Washington Star.

SIRES AND SONS.

Major Harley B. Ferguson, who devised the plan for raising the Maine, is a native of North Carolina.

Lewis J. Spence, who has been appointed to succeed J. C. Stubbs, one of the chief heads of the Harriman lines, began his work with the Southern Pacific as a stenographer when seventeen years old.

Lord Kitchener, who has never been noted for his suavity, is said to have developed a fine tact in dealing with the Egyptians and to have earned their good will by his directness of purpose and great common sense.

Dr. Jean Charcot, to whom the Culom gold medal was presented recently in Paris on behalf of the American Geographical Society of New York, is an antarctic explorer whose work has been of inestimable value to the scientific world.

Myron T. Herrick, former governor of Ohio, who has accepted the ambassadorship to France, is by profession a lawyer, highly educated, of broad ideas and is possessed of a fortune amply sufficient to enable him to maintain the embassy in Paris in its accustomed fashion.

Postprandial.

The dust begrimed tramp saw the good lady of the house puttering about in the garden, so he approached her on the subject of alms. "And where have you been, and how do you live?" she asked.

"Well, ma'am, I've been all over the world—Europe, Asia, Africa, America—and have had a most varied experience in the chase of the elusive meal."

"Then, my man, you should have an interesting story to tell."

"Quite right, ma'am, but I am essentially an after dinner speaker."—Sporting Times.

In the Future.

"Dear father, what is that queer thing
I see so far below?"
"That is the earth, my little child,
Where I was born, you know."

"And is the earth inhabited
By any mortals now?"
"A few remain, my child, I think,
Who still pursue the plow.

"We'll fly down there some day to see
That planet out of date.
But get your books together, dear.
'Tis nearly half past eight.

"I think I hear the school bell ring.
So now flit off to Mars
And do be sure you linger not
To play among the stars."
—Judge's Library.

As She Read It.

"It appears strange to me that politics and the drama should be so closely allied," remarked Mrs. Winks, who was c. interested in the latter subject

"How inquired her husband, forgetting momentarily his determination to avoid all chance for argument.

"Why, I notice in a London article in this newspaper a reference to the chanticleer of the exchequer," she explained.—Buffalo Express.

Optimism.

The wind is wild upon the barren moor,
The janitor is stingy with the steam,
The fun one gets upon the links is poor,
But not a fly is dropping in the cream.

The morning dip has ceased to be a thing
That one approaches with a look of cheer,
The robin's gone, the lark has ceased to sing;
But, gee, the buckwheat cakes are good this year!
—S. E. Kiser in Chicago Record-Herald.

He Got It.

Suddenly the little boy who was entertaining the caller while his mother was dressing to come down began to weep bitterly.

"What is the matter, dearie?" soothingly asked the lady.

"I need just a d-dime," he sobbed, "to f-fill my bank so's I c-can open it, and mamma w-won't give it to me!"—Chicago Tribune.

The Chrysanthemum.

Once more it comes in glad array!
Each blossom into vision gay
Which into fancy's mind recalls
A splendid garnished parlor.
It flaunts above the autumn scene
With perfume that's a cross between
A drug store and a motorcar
When oil and gas commingled are,
And yet we love the sturdy grace
They seem to bring into each place.
They make a jovial, happy crowd,
Where botany laughs out aloud.
—Washington Star.

Too Much Grief.

"Then the wedding wasn't altogether a success?"

"No; the groom's mother cried louder than the bride's mother. It was considered very bad taste."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Doubt.

She gave me a smile.
'Twas too cordial by half.
Still I treasured it while
She gave me a smile.
Though it seemed to beguile,
I fear 'twas a laugh.
She gave me a smile.
'Twas too cordial by half.
—Puck.

Train and Track.

Lapland's only railroad is being electrified.

To save having another cut a German railroad has built a wrecking crane on top of a locomotive, which also provides power for operating it.

In proportion to population the United States has over five times the miles of line and three and one-third times the miles of track of the United Kingdom.

The record for fast railway track laying is said to have been gained for a railway in British Nigeria—six and a half miles in 12 hours and 50 minutes. Over 2,000 men were employed in this feat, all but seventeen of them being natives.

Sporting Notes.

Fred Clarke says the only condition under which he will play ball this season is to save the pennant.

The English style of rowing will again be investigated by the Yale men. William Averill Harriman, son of the late E. H. Harriman, is in England to study the methods of the British cracks and report to Coach Rodgers.

Chicago will see the Carlisle Indian football team in action against a western team next fall, according to announcements from the University of Notre Dame, as it is said arrangements have been made to bring the Indians to Chicago Nov. 2 to play against the Hoosier eleven.

ARE YOU AILING
WEAK AND NERVOUS

To-day the common complaint with weak men and women is lack of kidney vitality. Here you have the cause of your ill-health.

Wouldn't it be wise to use a time-tested remedy like Dr Hamilton's Pills—they cure that "tired" feeling in one night. Next morning you feel like new—bright, fresh and happy. Appetite improves, dull, sallow color grows ruddy and clear, proving that great good is being done by this scientific medicine.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills
A Sure Cure

No Appetite—Bad Color—General Debility.

"I was run down," writes Mr Albert E Dixon, of Fairhaven P. O. "My color was dull, and appetite was poor, and I constantly suffered from rheumatism.

"I found it hard to sleep and felt worn out and tired all the time. Dr Hamilton's Pills made an instant change. I grew strong, my blood was restored, rheumatism vanished. To-day I am vigorous, cheery, and healthy in every respect."

Take Dr. Hamilton's Pills when you're well, when you're sick, whenever you think a purifying tonic will do you good. Sold everywhere in yellow boxes, 25c each, or five for $1.00. Insist on having only Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

THE GREY NUNS USE ZAM-BUK

Many of the leading institutions throughout Canada have now adopted Zam-Buk as a standard preparation without equal for skin diseases and injuries. From the St. Patrick Asylum, Ottawa, comes the following:

"Gentlemen:—In the orphanage department of the Asylum, we have found Zam-Buk very good for healing cuts, sores, and skin injuries, and shall continue to use it for such.

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) GREY NUNS."

The Universal Franchise.

A small number of men sympathizers took part in the suffragist parade in New York city, among them several members of the faculty of the Teachers' college. One of these professors had the honor of leading the male contingent and of carrying a banner.

"Did you notice," he asked a friend afterward, "what the inscription was on that banner they gave me to carry?"

"No," replied his friend. "You carried it as if you were afraid some one would decipher it."

"It read," chuckled the professor, "The men vote—why not we?"—Success.

The Storm.

I started out serenely clad
With suit and coat, the best I had.
It was a night of perfect bliss;
The stars were shining down like this:
* * * * * *
But after awhile a fearful cloud
The shining stars did soon enshroud;
The thunderbolts began to hiss,
And lightning flashed above like this:
Z Z Z Z Z Z
I feared my brand new clothes were doomed
As brackish clouds above me loomed.
No shelter near, I had to cuss
When rain began to pour down thus:
" " " " " "
—Fort Worth Record.

Hissing.

In Japan hissing means delight and usually signalizes a greeting; in West Africa it denotes astonishment; in the New Hebrides it is evoked by anything beautiful; with the Basutos it is a sign of cordial agreement, and among the Kabyles of northern Africa it is an expression of satisfaction.

Eyeing Wild Animals.

Wild animals are trained by the gaze of man. If you are without arms, it has been found a good plan to pretend not to see the beast at all. He takes the gaze as a challenge.

The Fish Globe.

To clean lime and other dirt from a fish globe remove the fish, shells, etc., empty the water and rub the sides with a cloth wet with hydrochloric or muriatic acid. All stains will disappear. Rinse well and fill with fresh water.

The Goat.

A goat lives on an average ten years and gives a quart of milk a day.

A Shark Superstition.

There is an old superstition among sailors, which is still believed in, that when a shark persistently follows a vessel it is a sign that some person on board is going to die. The alleged reason is that the great fish can scent death.

Surprised the Postman.

It was the day after Christmas, and the hard working postman plowed his way through snow and a cold wind, a sack of unusual size on his back.

He ascended the spacious steps of a west end residence, and in answer to his ring a manservant in rich livery appeared. "Wait a moment, please," said the servant as he took the letters. "The mistress wishes to speak to you."

The postman's eyes brightened. It was the holiday season. Now, no doubt in recognition of his regular and faithful— "I shall be glad," he said politely, "to await your mistress' pleasure."

In a few minutes the lady appeared.

"Are you," she asked, "our regular postman?"

"Yes, madam," he answered, bowing.

"Do you come in the morning?"

"Yes, madam."

"And in the afternoon and evening?"

Again he assented, smiling eagerly. Then the lady said:

"Well, was it you who broke our bell?"—London Ideas.

As We Also Know.

The schoolteacher was giving her small pupils an instructive talk.

"Now, children, all the clothes you have on were made out of wool, and that wool was once on the backs of the little lambs." Then she passed on to other subjects. To finish her lesson she returned to her first talk and asked questions of her small charges.

"Now, Mildred," she said, "what is your coat made of?"

"It's made out of Sister Alice's coat that she wore last year," replied the little girl earnestly.—Indianapolis News.

Clarified Sugar.

To clarify sugar put sugar and water on to boil. Mix the white of an egg with a little cold water, add to the boiling sirup, bring to the boiling point, skim, strain and let cool.

Peter the Great.

Peter the Great could scarcely be persuaded to cross a bridge, and whenever he placed his foot on one he would cry out with fear. Like the great man that he was, he tried to overcome his weakness, but he was never able to do so.

Bees and Pigeons.

Twelve bees released at a distance of three miles from the hives were found to travel home faster than twelve pigeons released at the same time.

Oysters of Japan.

Japanese oysters grow on the rocks between high and low tide levels and adhere so fast that they cannot be taken off. When the tide is low the Japanese gather the oysters by opening the shells and taking them out without trying to break them loose from the rocks.

Shakespeare's Plays.

Shakespeare's plays contain 100,007 lines and 814,780 words.

The Orange Tree.

The orange tree is regarded as a prince among trees and the emblem of genius. A peculiarity of this tree is that it bears fruit and flowers at the same time. Its leaves are ever green, and as it grows older it grows in beauty and fruitfulness, its blossoms filling the air with their fragrance.

A GREAT CHANGE

Ottawa Journal: Just take a look at the commotion that the entry of the Ottawa and Peterborough clubs caused in the Canadian League. Last season there was talk of the league drifting on the rocks and everyone seemed to be in the dumps. Now just look at it. Berlin has the city council building a big, new ball park and generally making themselves useful. St. Thomas has the citizens coming out and handing over their coin to get Siever, the former Detroit pitcher, at the helm. London has Frank Bowerman as manager, and the inhabitants of the town on the muddy Thames are going wild about the game. The Brantford people are building a new grand stand to accommodate the crowd when Louie Cook's braves play there. Guelph is out with a dark lantern looking for new players and the Petes sign up a new pitcher every day in the week. Even in Hamilton they appear half awake. Would they be doing all this if Ottawa hadn't come in? We wot not.

ENGLISH CUP TIE TO-DAY

Examiner Special:

The greatest sporting event in England to-day—the greatest sporting event of all the year, indeed, with the possible exception of the Derby—is of course, the final tie for the English cup, at the Crystal palace, London, the principals being West Bromwich Albion, a first division club, and Barnsley, a second division team. Both elevens have fought their way, round by round, into the final by sheer merit, with little or none of the element of luck about their victories, and in a manner becoming champions. Who will wi the cup? has been the all-absorbing topic locally since the finalists were declared a few weeks ago, and to-day the answer will be forthcoming, providing, of course, a drawn game does not result—a contingency that is as likely to happen as not. West Bromwich have twice previously won the cup, the first time being as far back as 1878, and the last time in 1892, and the team has appeared in the final on three occasions, 1886, 1887, 1888, only to be beaten by their opponents each time. Barnsley have never yet won the cup, but two years ago they were the finalists along with Newcastle United, who snatched the cup (after a tie game) by 3-0 from the Barnsley men. Both West Bromwich and Barnsley have many loyal followers in this city, and it is said some small sized bets are being made on the game. There are hundreds of others who have no particular favourite, but who, nevertheless, are taking a keen interest in to-day's struggle for the blue ribband of British football.

Fez Recaptured.

Paris, April 22.—The City of Fez, the capital of Morocco, which had practically fallen into the hands of the riotous citizens and mutinous Moorish soldiers, has been recaptured by the French troops, numbering 2,000, stationed there after a desperate battle, in which a large number were killed and wounded. According to a wireless despatch received from Fez, at the Foreign Office yesterday morning, order has now been completely re-established.

WHY WAS ASSISTANCE OF FRANKFORT NOT ASKED?

Young Wireless Operator Tells of The Calls For Aid That Were Sent Out--Enquiry Has Been Adjourned to Meet at Washington.

New York, April 22.—With dramatic suddenness the Senate investigation of the Titanic came to an end Saturday, so far as the New York hearing was concerned. It will be resumed, however, in Washington today, when J. Bruce Ismay and P. A. S. Franklin, the chief officers of the White Star Line, and more than a score of the officers and crew of the sunken vessel will appear before the committee. Incident to the sudden close of the hearing here was the story of Harold S. Bride, the second and only surviving wireless operator of the Titanic. His tale was one of suffering and of death. He told of the final plunge of the vessel to its ocean burial. Its captain's end was also revealed. He leaned from the bridge when the waters were closing over his ship.

The hearing was abandoned without any explanation from the committee as to why it was transferred to Washington. It was intimated, however, that the power of the Senate on Federal territory would be undisputed in getting at the real facts, and no question of state rights would arise to interfere. Throughout the hearing, also, officials of the White Star Line had portrayed the dangers of sailors' boarding-houses in New York as a reason why these detained by the committee should be allowed to sail on the Lapland which left Saturday.

Throughout the hearing Saturday morning Wireless Operator Bride, crippled as a result of his experience, and seated in an invalid's chair, told his story of the last moments of the Titanic. His narrative, drawn from him piecemeal by the shrewd questioning of Senator Smith of Michigan, chairman of the committee, held enthralled the committee and the audience. When his ordeal ended he was almost on the verge of collapse.

After the hearing was resumed in the afternoon, announcement of the change of base in the committee's plans was made. Herbert J. Pittman, the third officer of the Tianic, had been called to the witness chair and sworn. Senator Smith directed one question to him, relating to the whereabouts of the ship's log. The witness said he did not know.

Promptly Mr. Smith announced the committee's decision to resume the investigation in Washington to-day.

The committee devoted its entire day to an investigation of the connection of the wireless with the disaster. H. T. Cottam, the operator on the Carpathia, was the first witness. Senator Smith sought to establish certain testimony he had given on the stand Friday, and this was soon ended. Then came the "star" witness of the day.

Seated in an invalid's chair, Bride was wheeled to the end of a long table at which the committee sat. He was hollow-cheeked and wane and had just come from a physician's care. His hands were never quiet and he locked and interlocked his fingers incessantly. Like Cottam, who is 23 years old, Bride is merely a boy, a year younger than Cottam. Neither had any telegraphic experience previous to taking up wireless telegraphy, and both told tales of long hours at low wages and days and nights spent without sleep.

This inexperience and the mental condition of the young operators were the two points on which Senator Smith bore persistently. He had put Cottam through a gruelling examination, in which the youth testified that he had not slept more than eight or ten hours between Sunday night when the Titanic called for help and Thursday night when the vessel docked here with its load of unnerved men and hysterical women. Bride's story was one that bore out virtually all that Cottam's had established, except that his was one of nervous strain and worry and high-keyed suspense.

Bride was closely questioned as to the first call for aid sent out by the Titanic. He said the first vessel to answer was the Frankfurt of the North German Lloyd Line. The operator on the Frankfurt, according to the witness, apparently considered the call more or less trivial, for half an hour after the imperative appeal of the sea, he called the Titanic to inquire specifically what was wrong.

"Mr. Phillips said he was a fool," Bride testified, referring to the chief operator on the Titanic, who lost his life, "and told him to keep out."

By "keeping out," Bride declared, "Phillips meant that the Frankfurt should not keep its wireless going, but should leave the trackless realm of the air free for the Titanic's call. No effort was made to re-establish communication with the Frankfurt, although Phillips felt certain that the vessel was much nearer than the Carpathia, with which communication had been established. "This," Bride said, "Phillips judged by reason of the greater power of the 'Hertzian waves'."

Senator Smith expressed astonishment at the statement. He repeatedly pressed the witness to answer why the aid of a vessel many miles nearer a sinking ship was not invoked. Bride evaded a direct answer by saying he did not know; that probably the Frankfurt's operator could not understand, and that Phillips, his superior, had used his own judgment.

Two Killed In a Wreck

Near Georgetown Ont. on Sunday Morning—Collision on a Grade

DRIVER BURNED TO DEATH

Georgetown, April 22.—Speeding beyond control on a down-grade, a light engine in charge of Fred. Corley of Stratford and James Lawson, fireman, crashed into the rear car of a cattle train early yesterday morning. Brakeman Corey was killed instantly, and Thomas Currah was burned to death in the flames which made the rear-end cattle car a roaring furnace in a few moments. Fellow-drovers who escaped made desperate efforts to tear away the wreckage and rescue Currah, whose shouts for help were plainly heard, but the men were driven back by the smoke and fire.

Currah and the brakeman appear to have been the only men in the rear-end car of the cattle train in which there were 45 cars. Those who escaped with no injuries beyond a severe shaking up were: S. C. Delt, Palmerston, conductor of the cattle train, and A. McKinley, Forest; W. J. Taylor, Varna; Benjamin Hodgins, Luna; George Wynn, Wingham; J. Barr, Brussels, and James Heffron, Blyth, all drovers.

The accident occurred about 4.15 a.m., when the cattle train was pulling into the yards at the junction of the Grand Trunk and the old Northern line. The train was drawn by a large "double-header" engine, but to aid it in climbing an up-grade, the light engine had been used to shove behind.

This engine was uncoupled and when the descent on the other side began, it apparently got beyond control of the engineer and crashed into the rear end of the train at a high rate of speed.

Currah, who was a middle-aged married man, was taking his car of cattle from Bright to Corbett & Hall, Toronto. Three of the cattle were killed by the collision but the others, about fifteen in number, were taken out unharmed.

The wreck blocked the main line for several hours, delaying the Grand Trunk Chicago train. The damage to the engine was not great.

Currah's son and two brothers arrived yesterday afternoon and took charge of the remains. Both bodies were badly charred.

Coroner McCall of Milton, who, with Crown Attorney Dick, visited the scene yesterday, will open an inquest to-day.

Slow Speed Saved Corsican.

Chicago, April 22.—Stories of how the Atlantic liner Corsican, which docked at St. John's, N.B., last Monday morning, after crashing into an iceberg, escaped disaster similar to that which overwhelmed the steamship Titanic, were told here Saturday by a party of British immigrants who passed through Chicago bound for Idaho.

The Corsican encountered a field of ice Thursday, April 11. The captain immediately gave orders for the vessel to slow down and for three days steamed less than five knots an hour. The Corsican picked its way through the perilous ice, finally reaching port with all on board safe.

Early on Friday morning, April 12, the steamship crashed into a monster berg, but the slow rate at which the vessel was proceeding saved the boat from serious damage. The crash caused excitement among the passengers who remained on deck for two days, until the steamship had safely passed through the field of ice.

Two Hundred Drowned.

Jackson, Miss., April 22.—Reports reached here Saturday that 200 persons have been drowned in Bolivar County, Miss., by the flood that swept through that section when the river dykes broke near Beulah, Bolivar County. Bolivar County is covered with water and efforts to verify the report are meeting with many obstacles.

Reports declare most of the persons swept away by the deluge were negroes, who failed to reach high ground in time to get out of the flood's path. Governor Brewer was advised yesterday there are 6,000 refugees in camp at Cleveland and that the food supply will last less than 24 hours.

Would Help Americans.

Ottawa, April 22.—Declaring that he is ready to go ahead and build the Georgian Bay Canal at any time, Sir Robert Perks, the millionaire British contractor, is in Ottawa to-day.

The cost of the great waterway would now figure up to about $15,000,000, instead of the $110,000,000 first estimated.

Canada, if it thought it should have two canals, could afford to build the Welland one, said Sir Robert, but he considered the latter would be mainly for the advantage of Americans. As for the Georgian Bay scheme, the Conservative Government had, of course, been only a short time in power and needed time to consider it.

Mourning at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 22.—In the churches on both sides of the river yesterday, memorial services was held for Titanic victims, eleven people bound for the twin cities having perished.

Bodies Have Been Found?

Report is Not Substantiated But Says Captain Smith's is One of 64 Bodies.

MAY BE IDENTIFIED

St. John's, Nfld., April 22.—Sixty-four bodies have been recovered by the cable steamer Mackay-Bennett, which has been searching the vicinity of the Titanic disaster, according to a report that reached this city last night. It is said a number of bodies which were recovered were sunk again, as they were without identification marks. The names of those identified could not be obtained through the Cape Race wireless station.

The sixty-four bodies recovered are regarded as identifiable, according to the report. Those that were sunk were presumably in a condition making their preservation impossible.

Rumors In Halifax.

Halifax, April 22.—The cable ship Mackay-Bennett must have been cruising at the scene of the Titanic foundering for twenty-four hours now in search of bodies, but no word has been received from her, except that it was learned that a steamer proceeding westward had seen bodies floating at sea and notified the Mackay-Bennett, which immediately proceeded to the locality indicated. There had been rumors that bodies were found, one of these being that of Captain Smith. The Mackay-Bennett sailed with orders to report, her period of search being left indefinite.

The cable ship's instructions were to report first to New York and then to Halifax. The White Star agents said last night that nothing had come.

The Empress of Ireland sailed Saturday night at seven o'clock for Liverpool and by 6 o'clock this morning would be in the waters where the Titanic went down. It is likely the Ireland will speak with the Mackay-Bennett.

TO SEIZE MEXICO?

Is U. S. Planning an Invasion of the Republic.

Washington, April 22.—As a result of conferences between President and leading members of both It is understood that the President will shortly send a special message to Congress on the relations between the United States and Mexico, and the conditions existing in the latter country may require immediate action by the United States.

To this message Congress will reply by placing a large amount of money, probably $50,000,000, at the disposal of the President. A large part of this sum will be used at once in the purchase of transports and colliers, the conversion of cruisers, the acquiring and caring for of commissary supplies fodder, horses, mules, wagons etc. All these have been contracted for and the War Department believes that they can be delivered within a few weeks' time.

It was stated at the Department on Saturday afternoon that satisfactory arrangements have been made with railway and steamship companies for emergency service at any time and that many vessels engaged in coasting trade would be used as transports.

This appropriation of money may be followed almost immediately by a joint resolution of Congress authorizing the President to take all necessary steps for the protection of American citizens and their property in Mexico and for that purpose to employ the land and naval forces of the United States. No formal declaration of war will be made unless there is resistance to the invasion.

The present intention of the War Department is to send two armies toward the City of Mexico, one starting at the Rio Grande, and the other from the seaboard. Thirty thousand regulars will be available at once and fifty thousand volunteers will be called for. The latter will come from the militia, transferred from state to federal control. Two armies aggregating eighty thousand men appear to be a small order for the successful invasion of a country numbering 15,000,000 people, and some army officers believe that 500,000 men will be required. But in this connection it is recalled that in the former war with Mexico Gen. Taylor crossed the Rio Grande with only five thousand men, and that Gen. Scott made his way without serious opposition along the historic path of Cortes from Vera Cruz to the capital.

At the present juncture the United States seems to be, for the first time in her history, in a happy position of having made some preparation for trouble before it came. During the past year Mexico has been thoroughly mapped, the transportation thoroughly studied and every important mountain pass located and charted.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA

Price, large bottle, 100 full doses 85c and well worth it too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon those concoctions that are recommended to sell at a low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year.

There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 85c.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from the lukewarm life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's remedies.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

(Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1911.)

The knowledge seemed to sear Keith's brain with fire, and he sprang to his feet, hands clenched and eyes blazing. He could have believed this of Indians, it was according to their nature, their method of warfare; but the cowardliness of it, the atrocity of the act, as perpetrated by men of his own race, instantly aroused within him a desire for vengeance. He wanted to run the fellows down, to discover their identity. Without thinking of personal danger, he ran forward on their trail, which led directly westward, along the line of cottonwoods. These served to conceal his own movements, yet for the moment, burning with passion, he was utterly without caution, without slightest sense of peril. He must know who was guilty of such a crime; he felt capable of killing them even as he would venomous snakes. It was a perfectly plain trail to follow, for the fugitives, apparently convinced of safety, and confident their cowardly deed would be charged to Indian raiders, had made no particular effort at concealment, but had ridden away at a gallop, their horses' hoofs digging deeply into the soft turf. On this retreat they had followed closely along the river bank, aiming for the ford, and almost before he realized it Keith was himself at the water's edge where the trail abruptly ended, staring vaguely across toward the opposite shore. Even as he stood there, realizing the futility of further pursuit amid the maze of sand dunes opposite ,the sharp reports of two rifles reached him, spurts of smoke rose from the farther bank, and a bullet chugged into the ground at his feet, while another sang shrilly overhead.

These shots, although neither came sufficiently near to be alarming, served to send Keith to cover. Cool-headed and alert now his first mad rage dissipated, he scanned the opposite bank cautiously, but could nowhere discover any evidence of life. Little by little he comprehended the situation, and decided upon his own action. The fugitives were aware of his presence, and would prevent his crossing the stream, yet they were not at all liable to return to this side and thus reveal their identity. To attempt any further advance would be madness, but he felt perfectly securee from molestation so long as he remained quietly on the north shore. These shots were merely a warning to keep back; the very fact that the men firing kept concealed was proof positiv that they simply wished to be left alone. They were not afraid of what he knew now, only desirous of not being seen. Confident as to this, he retreated openly, without making the slightest effort to conceal his movements, until he had regained the scene of murder. In evidence of the truth of his theory no further shots were fired, and although he watched that opposite sand bank carefully, not the slightest movement revealed the presence of others. That every motion he made was being observed by keen eyes he had no doubt, but this knowledge did not disconcert him, now that he felt convinced fear of revealment would keep his watchers at a safe distance. Whoever they might be they ewre evidently more anxious to escape discovery than he was fearful of attack, and possessed no desire to take his life, unless it became necessary to prevent recognition. They still had every reason to believe their attack on the wagons would be credited to hostile Indians, and would consider it far safer to remain concealed, and thus harbour this supposition. They could not suspect that Keith had already stumbled upon the truth, and was determined to verify it.

Secure in this conception of the situation, yet still keeping a wary eye about to guard against any treachery, the plainsman, discovering a spade in the nearest wagon, hastily dug a hole in the sand ,wrapped the dead bodies in blankets, and deposited them therein, piling above the mound the charred remains of boxes as some slight protection against prowling wolves. He searched the clothing of the men, but found little to reward the effort—a few letters which were slipped into his pockets to be read later, some ordinary trinkets hardly worth preserving except that they might assist in identifying the victims, and, about the neck of the elder man, a rather peculiar locket, containing a portrait painted on ivory. Keith was a long time opening this, the spring being very ingeniously concealed, but upon finally succeeding, he looked upon the features of a woman of middle age, a strong mature face of marked refinement, exceedingly attractive still, with smiling dark eyes, and a perfect wealth of reddish-brown hair. He held the locket open in his hands for several minutes, wondering who she could be, and what possible connection she could have held with the dead. Something about that face smiling up into his own held peculiar fascination for him, gripping him with a strange feeling of familiarity, touching some dim memory which failed to respond. Surely he had never seen the original, for she was not one to be easily forgotten; and yet eyes, hair, expression, combined to remind him of some one whom he had seen but could not bring definitely to mind. There were no names on the locket, no marks of identification of any kind, yet realizing the sacredness of it, Keith slipped the fragile gold chain about his neck, and securely hid the trinket beneath his shirt.

It was noon by this time, the sun high overhead, and his horse, with dangling rein, still nibbling daintily the short grass. There was no reason for his lingering longer. He swept his gaze the length and breadth of the desolate valley, and across the river over the sand hills. All alike appeared deserted, not a moving thing being visible between the bluffs and the stream. Still he had the unpleasant feeling of being watched, and it made him restless and eager to be away. The earlier gust of anger, the spirit of revenge, had left him, but it had merely changed into a dogged resolution to discover the perpetrators of this outrage and bring them to justice for the crime. The face in the locket seemed to ask it of him, and his nature urged response. But he could hope to accomplish nothing more here, and the plainsman swung himself into the saddle. He turned his horse's head eastward, and rode away. From the deeply rutted trail he looked back to where the fire still smoked in the midst of that desolate silence.

CHAPTER III.
AN ARREST.

The Santa Fe trail was far too exposed to be safely travelled alone and in broad daylight, but Keith considered it better to put sufficient space between himself and those whom he felt confident were still watching his movements from across the river. How much they might already suspect his discoveries he possessed no means of knowing, yet, conscious of their own guilt, they might easily feel safer if he were also put out of the way He had no anticipation of open attack, but must guard against treachery, As he rode, his eyes never left those far-away sand dunes, although he perceived no movement, no black dot even which he could conceive to be a possible enemy. Now that he possessed ample time for thought, the situation became more puzzling. This tragedy which he had accidentally stumbled upon must have had a cause other than blind chance. It was the culmination of a plot, with some reason behind more important than ordinary robbery. Apparently the wagons contained nothing of value, merely the clothing, provisions, and ordinary utensils of an emigrant party. Nor had the victims' pockets been carefully searched. Only the mules had been taken by the raiders, and they would be small booty for such a crime.

The trail, continually skirting the high bluff and bearing farther away from the river, turned sharply into a narrow ravine. There was a considerable break in the rocky barrier here, leading back for perhaps a hundred yards, and the plainsman turned his horse that way, dismounting when out of sight among the boulders. He could rest there until night with little danger of discovery. He lay down on the rocks, pillowing his head on the saddle, but his brain was too active to permit sleeping. Finally he drew the letters from out his pocket, and began examining them. They yielded very little information, those taken from the older man having no envelopes to show to whom they had been addressed. The single document found in the pocket of the other was a memorandum of account at the Pioneer Store at Topeka, charged to John Sibley, and marked paid. This then must have been the younger man's name, as the letters to the other began occasionally "Dear Will." They were missives such as a wife might write to a husband long absent, yet upon a mission of deep interest to both. Keith could not fully determine what this mission might be, as the persons evidently understood each other so thoroughly that mere allusion took the place of detail. Twice the name Phyllis was mentioned, and once "Fred" was also referred to, but in neither instance clearly enough to reveal the relationship, although the latter appeared to be pleaded for. Certain references caused the belief that these letters had been mailed from some small Missouri town, but no name was mentioned. They were invariably signed "Mary." The only other paper Keith discovered was a brief itinerary of the Santa Fe trail extending as far west as the Raton Mountains, giving the usual camping spots and places where water was accessible. He slipped the papers back into his pocket with a distinct feeling of disappointment, and lay back staring up at the little strip of blue sky. The silence was profound, even his horse standing motionless, and finally he fell asleep.

The sun had disappeared, and even the grey of twilight was fading out of the sky, when Keith returned again to consciousness, aroused by his horse rolling on the soft turf. He awoke thoroughly refreshed, and eager to get away on his long night's ride. A cold lunch, hastily eaten, for a fire would have been dangerous, and he saddled up and was off, trotting out of the narrow ravine and into the broad trail, which could be followed without difficulty under the dull gleam of the stars. Horse and rider were soon at their best, the animal swinging unurged into the long, easy lope of prairie travel, the fresh air fanning the man's face as he leaned forward. Once they halted to drink from a narrow stream, and then pushed on, hour after hour, hrough the deserted night. Keith had little fear of Indian raiders in that darkness, and every stride of his horse brought him closer to the settlements and further from danger. Yet eyes and ears were alert to very shadow and sound. Once, it must have been after midnight, he drew his pony sharply back into a rock shadow at he noise of something approaching from the east. The stage to Santa Fe rattled past, the four mules trotting swiftly, a squad of troopers riding hard behind. It was merely a lumping shadow sweeping swiftly past; he could perceive the dim outlines of driver and guard, the soldiers swaying in their saddles, heard the pounding of hoofs, the creak of the axles, and then the apparition disappeared into the black void. He had not called out—what was the use? Those people would never pause to hunt down prairie outlaws, and their guard was sufficient to prevent attack. They ackowledged but one duty—to get the mail through on time.

The dust of their passing still in the air, Keith rode on, the noise dying away in his rear. As the hours passed, his horse wearied and had to be spurred into the swifter stride, but the man seemed tireless. The sun was an hour high when they climbed the long hill, and loped into Carson City. The cantonment was to the right, but Keith, having no report to make, rode directly ahead down the one long street to a livery corral, leaving his horse there, and sought the nearest restaurant.

Exhausted by a night of high play and deep drinking the border town was sleeping off its debauch, saloons and gambling dens silent, the streets almost deserted. To Keith, whose former acquaintance with the place had been entirely after nightfall, the view of it now was almost a shock—the miserable shacks, the gaudy saloon fronts, the littered streets, the dingy, unpainted hotel, the dirty flap of canvas, the unoccupied road, the dull prairie sweeping away to the horizon all composed a hideous picture beneath the sun glare. He could scarcely find a man to attend his horse, and at the restaurant a drowsy Chinaman had to be shaken awake, and frightened into serving him. He sat down to the miserable meal oppressed with disgust—never before had his life seemed so mean, useless, utterly without excuse.

He possessed the appetite of the open, of the normal man in perfect physical health, and he ate heartily, his eyes wandering out of the open window down the long, dismal street. A drunken man lay in front of the "Red Light" Saloon sleeping undisturbed; two cur dogs were snarling at each other just beyond over a bone; a movers' wagon was slowly coming in across the open through a cloud of yellow dust. That was all within the radius of vision. For the first time in years the East called him—the old life of cleanliness and respectability. He swore to himself as he tossed the Chinaman pay for his breakfast, and strode out onto the steps. Two men were coming up the street together from the opposite direction—one lean, dark-skinned, with black goatee, the other heavily set with closely trimmed grey beard. Keith knew the latter, and waited, leaning against the door, one hand on his hip.

"Hullo, Bob," he said genially; "they must have routed you out pretty early to-day."

"They shore did, Jack," was the response. He came up the steps somewhat heavily, his companion stopping below. "The boys raise h—— all night, an' then come ter me ter straighten it out in the mawnin'. When did ye git in?"

"An hour ago; had to wake the 'chink' up to get any chuck. Town looks dead."

"'Tain't over lively at this time o' day," permitting his blue eyes to wander up the silent street, but instantly bringing them back to Keith's face, "but I reckon it'll wake up later on."

He stood squarely on both feet, and one hand rested on the butt of a revolver. Keith noticed this wondering vaguely.

"I reckon yer know, Jack, as how I ginerally git what I goes after," said the slow, drawling voice, "an' that I draw 'bout as quick as any o' the boys. They tell me yo're a gunfighter, but it won't do ye no good ter make a play yere, fer one o' us is sure to git yer—do yer sabe?"

"Get me" Keith's voice and face expressed astonishment, but not a muscle of his body moved. "What do you mean, Bob—are you fellows after me?"

"Sure thing; got the warrant here," and he tapped the breast of his shirt with his left hand.

The colour mounted into the cheeks of the other, his lips grew set and white, and his grey eyes darkened.

"Let it all out, Marshal-" he said sternly, "you've got me roped and tied. Now, what's the charge?"

Neither man moved, but the one below swung about so as to face them, one hand thrust out of sight beneath the tail of his long coat.

"Make him throw up his hands, Bob," he said sharply.

"Oh, I reckon thar ain't goin' ter be no trouble," returned the marshal genially, yet with no relaxation of attention. "Keith knows me, an' expects a fair deal. Still, maybe I better ask yer to unhitch yer belt, Jack."

A moment Keith seemed to hesitate, plainly puzzled b ythe situation and endeavouring to see some way of escape; then his lips smiled, and he silently unhooked the belt, handing it over.

"Sure, I know you're square, Hicks," he said, coolly. "And now I've unlimbered, kindly inform me wha this is all about."

"I reckon yer don't know."

"No more than an unborn babe. I have been here but an hour."

"That's it; if yer had been longer thar wouldn't be no trouble. Yo're wanted for killin' a couple o' men out at Cimmaron Crossin' early yesterday mornin'."

Keith stared at him so completely astounded for the instant to even speak. Then he gasped.

"For God's sake, Hicks, do you believe that?"

"I'm d——d if I know," returned the marshal, doubtfully. "Don't seem like ye'd do it, but the evidence is straight 'nough, an' thar ain't nothin' fer me ter do but take ye in. I ain't no jedge an' jury."

"No,but you ought to have ordinary sense, an' you've known me for three years."

"Sure I have, Jack, but if yer've gone wrong, you won't be the first good man I've seen do it. Anyhow, the evidence is dead agin you, an' I'd arrest my own grand-dad if they give me a warrant agin him."

"What evidence is there?"

"Five men swear they saw ye haulin' the bodies about, and lootin' the pockets."

Then Keith understood, his heart beatin grapidly, his teeth clenched to keep back an outburst of passion. So that was their game, was it?—some act of his had awakened the cowardly suspicions of those watching him across the river. They were afraid that he knew them as white men. And they had found a way to safely muzzle him. They must have ridden hard over those sand dunes to have reached Carson City and sworn out this warrant. It was a good trick, likely enough to hang him, if the fellows only stuck to their story. All this flashed through his brain, yet somehow he could not clearly comprehend the full meaning, his mind confused and dazed by this sudden realization of danger. His eyes wandered from the steady gaze of the marshal, who had half drawn his gun, fearing resistance, to the man at the bottom of the steps. Suddenly it dawned upon him where he had seen that dark-skinned face, with the black goatee, before—at the faro table of the "Red Light." He gripped his hands together, instantly connecting that sneering, sinister face with the plot.

"Who swore out that warrant?"

"I did, if you need to know," a sarcastic smile revealing a gleam of white teeth, "on the affidavit of others, friends of mine."

"Who are you?"

"I'm mostly called 'Black Bart.'"

That was it; he had the name now—"Black Bart." He straightened up so quickly, his eyes blazing, that the marshal jerked his gun clear.

"SOME HAE MEAT, AND CANNA EAT"

So Bobby Burns tersely describes the rich, but still poor, dyspeptics. But their case is not now so desperate as when Burns wrote. For the man who has the food now can eat without suffering for it, if he just follows the meal with a Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablet.

These remarkable tablets banish the troubles of the chronic dyspeptic—the man who is bilious—the sufferer from heartburn, gas on the stomach or occasional indigestion. You can eat hearty meals of wholesome food—and digest them, too—if you take Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets.

Compounded by expert chemists, after probably the best formula known to medical science, they are quick and certain in their action, giving prompt relief from all forms of stomach trouble, toning up and strengthening the digestive organs and bringing about permanent cures.

A man is no stronger than his stomach. Fit yourself for your best work by taking Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets. 50c. at your druggist's. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 144

WAS A GREAT SUFFERER FOR FIVE YEARS FROM DYSPEPSIA.

Dyspepsia is one of the most prevalent troubles of civilized life, and thousands of people suffer untold agony after every meal, for nearly everything that enters a weak dyspeptic stomach acts as an irritant.

The long train of distressing symptoms, which render life a burden to the victim of dyspepsia, may be promptly cured by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. Mrs. Wm. J. Boyne, Lepreau, N.B., writes:—"I thought I would write and tell you of the good Burdock Blood Bitters has done me and also tell you how thankful I am.

"For five years I had been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, and tried different doctors and proprietary medicines, but could get no relief. One day a friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I did not have much faith in it, but I thought I would give it a trial. To-day I am completely cured, and I will always recommend it."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for about thirty-five years and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

SAUL OF TARSUS AND WHAT HE SAW

"As One Born Prematurely" He Beheld the Glorified Jesus.

New Orleans, La., April 21.—Pastor Russell gave two addresses here today. We report one of them, which was from the text: "Last of all, He was seen of me also, as one born before the time." (I. Corinthians xv, 8.) He said:

Saint Paul was discussing the resurrection of the dead. He realized that on that great fact rested the weight of the Gospel Message. It was easy enough to prove that Jesus had died, but to an incredulous world it was difficult to prove that He had risen from the dead; and whoever could not believe that great fact could not believe the other great facts which stand or fall with it.

For instance, the Apostle presented that Jesus had left the heavenly glory and had become a Man for the purpose of meeting the demands of the Divine Law against Adam and his race, involved by him. He could show the reasonableness of this logic. He has proven that as the whole world was condemned to death through Father Adam's disobedience it was absolutely necessary for an untainted life to be sacrificed in order to meet the penalty and to secure the release of the condemned race.

The Apostle had declared that Jesus had been faithful in His ministry in fully laying down His life and that the entire matter was pleasing and acceptable to the Heavenly Father. If so, surely God would not leave His Son in death, but would raise Him from the dead. This fact the Apostle had repeatedly enunciated, showing that our Lord entered into His glory and reward and ascended up where He was before—to perfection on the spirit plane.

But all these claims fell lightly upon some of his hearers, who claimed that it was much more easy to believe that Jesus never died at all, but merely transmuted, than to believe that He died for our sins and rose again for our justification; hence the Apostle's frequent reference to Christ's resurrection and his insistence upon it as absolutely necessary to Christian faith, for not only would the Heavenly Father's favor toward the Lord Jesus thus be shown, but the bulk of all the holy prophecies would remain unfulfilled unless Jesus arose from the dead.

In other words, a dead Redeemer would be of no advantage; matters would be just as unfavorable for the sinners as though Jesus had never come at all. Additionally, if the resurrection of Jesus was a questionable matter, how could those who disputed that great fact acknowledge the resurrection of the Church and of the world? Saint Paul emphasies this, also declaring that "there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and of the unjust," as a result of the redemptive work of Jesus—His dying for man's sins, and His resurrection to glory to carry out the blessings secured by His death.

Prosecuting his argument, the Apostle marshalled the whole chain of witnesses except the women, who first saw the Lord on the morning of His resurrection. He says, "He was seen of Cephas (Peter); then by the remainder of the twelve; then of above five hundred brethren at once; later He was seen of James; then of all the Apostles," when He ascended. Then comes the text: "Last of all He was seen of me also."

There is something pathetic in this reference to His own glimpse of Jesus. It called up the period of his own bigoted persecution of the Church. It reminded him of his own responsibility in connection with the death of Saint Stephen; and of the blind hatred which led him to persecute inoffensive fellow-creatures, simply because they believed that Jesus died and rose again, the very thing which He was now trying to testify to all having the hearing ear.

His memory went back to the madness which he had manifested in pursuing Christians even to Damascus, haling them to prison. Again he saw the great, blinding light from heaven, above the brightness of the noonday sun, his fall to the earth, and heard the voice speaking to him, saying, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" (Acts ix, 4-5.) Again we remembered his astonishment at learning that those whom he had persecuted were not renegade and deceived Jews, but highly esteemed and acknowledged by this Great One, a glimpse of whom felled him to the earth. Ah, that was a wonderful sight! If Messiah was so great, so glorious, so powerful, he could believe in Him, he could reverence Him.

The objection which all Jews had to Jesus, and what they considered absolute proof that He was not the Messiah, was His apparent weakness, His apparent inability to accomplish the things foretold by the Prophets. They said, It is foolish to think of a man without an army and without wealth claiming to be a king. It is still more foolish for Him to claim that He is the Messianic King, who is to be above all kings, and before whom every knee shall bow and every tongue confess. They said, therefore, that Jesus must either be beside Himself, crazy, or else He was seeking to deceive the people and temporarily create a little commotion of popularity.

To them it seemed that when He was crucified a demonstration had been given that He was not the Messiah. Was not the Messiah to live forever, and was He not to reign successfully as King of kings and Lord of lords? Was it not, therefore, proven that any man whom the Jews or the Romans could crucify, could put to death, must have been an impostor? They considered the matter proven to a demonstration. The persecution of the followers of Jesus was merely with a view to stamping out a new religion, which, it was feared, would do harm to Israel in that it would call in question the hopes of Israel respecting a coming King and His Kingdom. Thus Saul of Tarsus had felt himself fully justified in persecuting all of that way of thinking—for "the good of the cause," as so many persecuters have said.

The honesty of Saul of Tarsus led him to be just as honest after he got his eyes of understanding open as he had previously been with them closed. It took him a little while to get the proper focus, then he saw and could explain to others the necessity for the death of Jesus and how it was typified in the sacrifices of the Law and how the Divinely arranged Plan had made this great sacrifice in order thereby to more fully show forth the Divine Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power.

Now he saw, not only the need for Jesus to come in the flesh and to give Himself a ransom price for all, but he saw equally the necessity for His resurrection, not in the flesh, but in the spirit, that He might be a fully qualified Ruler and Saviour—not only to save His people from the Romans, the Assyrians, and from all other human enemies, but also to save them from Satan, from sin, from sickness, from sorrow, from death. Ah, now he saw how great Messiah must be in order to meet the necessities of the case!

The matter changed immediately in his mind; instead of a human Saviour and Messiah and an earthly King, God had prepared a Heavenly One, partaker of the divine nature, glorious, "far above angels, principalities and powers and every name that is named." Now he saw that the sufferings of Jesus had a two-fold value. First, they were necessary for man's release from the death sentence and, secondly, they were necessary as a demonstration of the loyalty of Jesus. Now he saw that God, in preparing to bring many sons to glory, determined first to prove the loyalty of Him whom He had invited to become the Captain of our Salvation, and that this was done by the arrangement which necessitated Jesus' death.

The climax of the argument was reached when he found that God not only had raised up Jesus from the dead, but that additionally He had bestowed upon Him the glory, honor and immortality of the divine nature, of which Saul had a demonstration or proof in the blinding flash of light which felled him to the earth, and in the voice which said to him alone, "I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest."

I like to think that, as I was once blinded to many of the precious truths of God's Word, so it is with many others whose eyes of understanding have not yet opened. I like to think of Saint Paul's experiences, his sincerity, even to hatred and persecution, and then his loyalty, even to stripes and imprisonment and death. I like to think of him as exemplifying possibly a large class of the opposers of the truth.

I like to hope that all they will need to bring them into line with God's arrangements and to make them loyal servants of righteousness will be the great light which will shine forth resplendently very soon, when the due time shall come for Messiah to take to Himself His great power and reign—when His elect Bride shall have been completed and glorified with Him. I like to remember the words of the Lord through the Prophet respecting that glorious Epoch: "Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened and the ears of the deaf be unstopped; then shall the lame man leap as an hart and the tongue of the dumb sing"—in that day.

Where would Saul of Tarsus have ended his career if the great Redeemer had not interposed for his help? And how poorly you and I would have fared and how little of the Light Divine would we have seen if Divine providence had not helped us in various ways? And so with the world. It is beyond our power to give the hearing ear or the seeing eye. This is the work of the Great Physician, and His day for healing and blessing and uplifting the world we perceive to be nigh, even at the doors.

Ah, yes! Now we can see that the little openings of the eyes and ears [illegible] stopping of the ears and hearing of the lame accomplished at our Lord's first advent merely foreshadowed His coming glory and much greater work. Now we can see a reason why so many of His mighty works were done on the Sabbath days—because they were all prophetic, as the Sabbath days themselves were prophecies of the great Thousand Year Sabbath of Messiah's glorious reign, during which all of humanity who will may enter into His rest—rest from sin and from Satan and from everything that would hinder them from a full return to the Heavenly Father's love and favor.

Now we see that the great work of that thousand-year Sabbath will be the healing of the morally lame and the giving of sight and hearing to the minds now blinded and deaf under the evil influences of the great Adversary—"the god of this world who hath blinded the minds of them that believe not."—II. Corinthians iv, 4

Many have remarked at the peculiarity of Saint Paul's statement that he saw the Lord as one prematurely born. But, if at first the statement was dark and puzzling, now it is luminous and enlightening. His thought is this: the time for giving ocular demonstrations of the Lord's resurrection had gone by; the next manifestation of Him is to be to His saints, and after that to the world. Thus we read: "We shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is"—made like Him by our resurrection change from the human condition to the spirit conditions.

Strictly speaking, then, the experiences of Saul of Tarsus were out of the ordinary. No one else than he alone, not even the saintly, were to see the Lord before their resurrection change, in the end of this Age. When therefore he saw Jesus, he saw Him before the time—more than eighteen centuries before the time. Moreover, he saw Him as one born before the time—as one resurrected before the time. We are to have in mind the Scriptural use of this word born—that the Church must all be begotten of the Holy Spirit in order to experience the resurrection birth.

Thus, concerning our Redeemer's resurrection, we read: "He was the First-born from the dead"; and again, "He was the First-born of many brethren." So the hope of all of God's people is that the begetting of the Holy Spirit in the present time will be followed by the resurrection birth, which Saint Paul describes in this same chapter, saying, "It is sown in weakness, it is raised in power; it is sown an animal body, it is raised a spirit body."

With these things before our mental eye we see the meaning of the Apostle in the words, "He was seen of me, also, as of one born before the time." He was not thus seen by the other Apostles. They saw Him merely as He appeared—sometimes in one form of body and with appropriate clothing, at other times in another form and with diverse clothing. He appeared and disappeared, but they did not see Him, the New Creature, they saw merely the various forms in which He appeared. But Saint Paul saw the Lord more nearly as all the saints shall see Him when they shall be born from the dead by the glorious resurrection changes.

One great difference between the effect of what Saul saw and what the entire glorious Church will see in the resurrection is, that Saul's eyesight was injured by the sight; besides, he saw nothing very distinctly—merely a blinding light, which the voice explained to be the appearance or manifestation of Jesus. Far more precious will be the experiences of the Church. Before beholding Him who is declared to be "the express image of the Father's person," "whom no man hath seen nor can see, dwelling in light which no man can approach unto"—before this, we shall have been changed, glorified. This will enable us to see Him as He is, for the glory of the Church will be like to the glory of her Lord, and superior to the glory of the angels.

While heavenly glory does not consist exclusively of brightness, nevertheless the Scriptures everywhere seem to associate bright-shining with the heavenly ones, and would imply that the higher the station and rank the brighter will be the sheen, the glory. Thus the glory of the Heavenly Father is represented as being so great that few could endure it; and angels and seraphim are represented as veiling their faces before the Divine glory, which so greatly transcends their own.

It should not, therefore, surprise us that the Scriptures everywhere represent that our Lord Jesus and the Church, "made partakers of the divine nature" (II. Peter i, 4), will have a great honor and brightness, far above that of angels and all others except that of the Heavenly Father. As the Lord Jesus was able to veil the glories of His person and to appear as a man after His resurrection, so undoubtedly He could do as respects the world, during the thousand years of His Messianic Reign.

And, similarly, it would be possible for the Church to appear as men with the glory veiled. It might appear at first as though this was what was signified through the Mosaic type when Moses, representing Messiah in glory, came down from the mountain, his face radiant, but veiled for the sake of the people. Our thought, however, is that Jesus and the Church will never thus appear in the flesh as angels have done in the past, but that on the contrary the Ancient Worthies, perfected on the human plane, will be their agents and representatives in all communications with mankind. Thus, "the Law shall go forth from Mount Zion (the Spiritual Kingdom) and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem" (the earthly Kingdom), to every nation, people, kindred and tongue, that all may be blest if they will, and attain everlasting life.

Redistribution Bill Before Provincial House

Proposed New Constituency to be Formed With Biggar as Seat

The Provincial Parliament now have the new Distribution Bill framed up into working shape, and this will erect 15 new seats and make 54 seats for the whole province.

One of these new seats is allotted to our own town of Biggar, with a district extending thirty miles from east to west and from sixty to ninety miles from north to south, the deflection being caused by the North Saskatchewan River.

As laid out, the new constituency of Biggar consists of all that land shown on the map as follows:

Starting from a point on the line between ranges 11 and 12 on the top of township 30, and proceeding straight north along this line to the North Saskatchewan river in township 40; then along the line of the river till reaching the line between ranges 17 and 18 in township 44, and proceeding south along this line to the N. E. corner of township 30 in range 18, and from there straight east to the starting point.

This gives the Biggar constituency an area of somewhere about 2,400 square miles, and includes the towns of Biggar, South Battleford, Naseby, Traynor, Harris, Zealandia, Herschel, Palo, Oban, Mead, Vance, Neola, and a lot of other smaller places inside the area mentioned above.

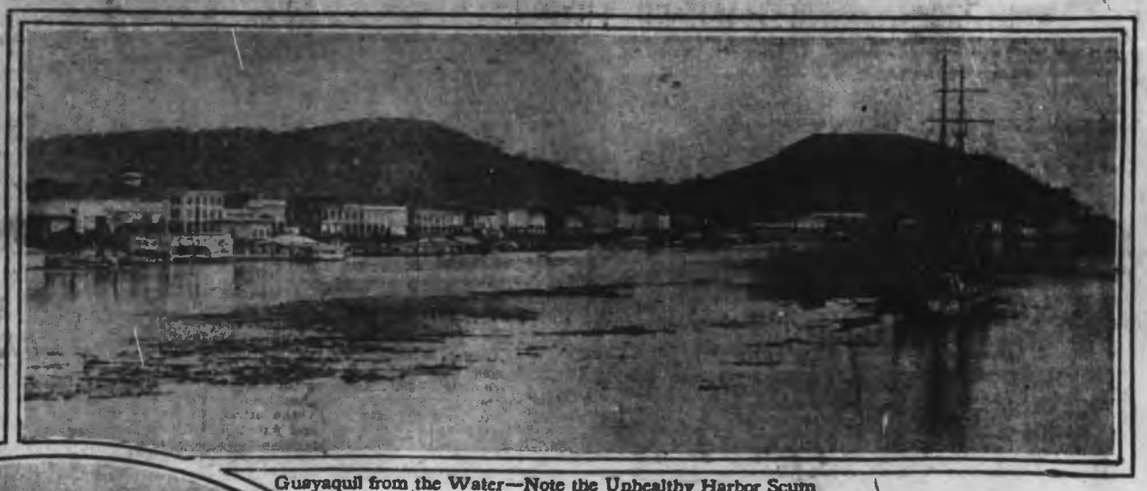
Yellow Fever, Smallpox, Leprosy and Bubonic Plague Stalk Unhampered Through the Streets of Guayaquil, Ecuador, and Now That Its Unsanitary Condition May Affect the Panama Canal Zone, the United States Has Determined It Must Be Cleaned Up



Guayaquil from the Water—Note the Unhealthy Harbor Scum

RUN your finger down the eightieth parallel of longitude, west. Pause at the equator and note a small dot about two degrees south of the intersection of the two lines. The name attached to the dot, if the map be large enough, will be Guayaquil, Ecuador.

The Lower Harbor of Guayaquil Where the U S S Yorktown Was Anchored

Only those who have visited Guayaquil or who have noted recent Ecuadorian news despatches have any idea of the sanitary conditions existing there. Ecuador, according to magazine writers and travellers who have touched merely on the higher portions of the country, has a climate "second to none in the world."

But it is not because of its climate that the attention of the United States has been called to Guayaquil, nor is it because of the death of the tuberculous patients that the hand of the State Department is upraised to fall on Ecuador.

It is because, according to health authorities who have visited the city, Guayaquil is the most unhealthy, the most unclean and the least sanitary port in the world.

It is because of the danger that yellow fever, bubonic plague and leprosy—all of which live and thrive in unwashed Guayaquil—may spread to Panama and through the canal to the Gulf ports and Eastern cities of the United States.

It is because a United States naval officer, Commander Levi C. Bertolette, of the gunboat Yorktown, was stricken with yellow fever while in the performance of his duty in Guayaquil a few weeks ago and died within two days, while eleven of his men fell ill from the same cause.

And, finally, it is because Guayaquil is in the hands of one of the best organized, most rapacious and utterly unscrupulous "Tweed rings" which ever dominated and all but throttled an entire country while menacin the commerce of the world for their private gain.

The parental eye of the United States government has long been on Guayaquil. Twenty years ago reports from this port indicated a disregard for sanitation and health regulations which threatened seriously to disrupt commerce, and the United States then intimated that something must be done to clear up the port or a more rigid order would be issued. The Ecuadorian authorities, after promising to comply with the International Health Code, allowed the matter to lapse and the American government, for some unexplained reason, took no further action.

Another outcry against Guayaquilian filth was made in 1902, when yellow fever claimed Thomas Nast, the American cartoonist, then Consul General to Ecuador, who, despite elaborate precautions against the yellow scourge, contracted the disease and died within a few days. Again the municipal and federal authorities promised to clean up "the pesthole of the Pacific"—and again they failed to do so.

An indication of the Ecuadorian lack of appreciation for the dangers of yellow fever may be obtained from the message sent Secretary of State Root upon the occasion of his visit to South America a few years after Nast's death. Guayaquil was at first included in the Root itinerary, but the Secretary, being informed of the lack of sanitary precautions there, cancelled his engagement. The Guayaquillian authorities, upon learning the reason for the Secretary's action, wrote him "congratulating that a few cases of yellow fever, sporadic, should prevent Secretary Root from visiting the premier port of Ecuador."

The death from yellow fever of Dr. William M. Wightman, U. S. P. H. and M. H. S., stationed at Guayaquil, again caused an outcry against sanitary conditions there, particularly since Dr. Wightman was supposed to have been immune to the disease.

Ever since the Panama Canal project has become an established fact health officers in the Canal Zone have made repeated demands for the sanitation of Guayaquil, but the recent death of Commander Bertolette goaded the United States to decisive action, and the State Department has determined that Guayaquil must be cleaned before the opening of the Panama Canal, otherwise drastic action sufficient to cut off Ecuadorian commerce from the outside world will be taken and Guayaquil will be practically starved into submission.

Guayaquil is one of the most important ports on the western coast of South America. It has the only first class harbor in Ecuador, and because of this lack of competition the city refuses to worry about its sanitary condition.

According to the report of Chief Quarantine Officer J. C. Perry, U. S. P. H. and M. H. S., Guayaquil is always afflicted with yellow fever. Even in the dry season, when the stegomyia (yellow fever) mosquitoes are fewest, the disease is to be found in some parts of the city. This is due to a great extent to the fact that only three streets are satisfactorily paved, and many depressions exist for the formation of pools, providing breeding places for the mosquitoes. One-half of the city is forced to depend upon accumulated rain water for its water supply, while the other half, housing some forty thousand persons, is fed by an eleven inch main from Bucay, totally inadequate to carry enough water for the needs of the inhabitants. In addition to this the barrels and tanks used for the collection of rain water are unscreened and form excellent breeding places for the death dealing stegomyia.

Smallpox is also prevalent in Guayaquil, and, as little is done to prevent its spread, it marches on practically unhindered. Patients are not isolated, little disinfection is attempted and general vaccination has never been tried.

"Leprosy," according to Dr. Parker's 1911 report, "is frequently seen about the streets of the city. Five cases of this disease are always reported on the bills of health for the information of health officers, but the actual number of cases is unknown and no attempt at segregation is made."

But it is not because of her yellow fever, smallpox or leprosy that the United States fears Guayaquil and is considering taking steps to close the port—it is because of the bubonic plague, which stalks unhampered through her streets.

Brought into Ecuador by Asiatic ships in 1907, the dreaded scourge of the Orient spread rapidly through the crowded, dirty city until people died by the hundreds. Dr. B. J. Lloyd, the American health officer then stationed at the Ecuadorian port, had obtained favor with the then President of Ecuador—General Eloy Alfaro, recently lynched by a drink crazed mob—by curing him of an apparently fatal attack of diabetes, and when the plague appeared in Guayaquil Dr. Lloyd immediately commenced an active campaign against it. He had long preached the doctrine of sanitation and hygiene to the Guayaquillians, but they had not heeded him. Now, with hundreds of deaths from plague occurring every month, they turned to the American physician in their extremity. General Alfaro himself contributed about $10,000 a month from the government treasury to fight the plague, and after a five months' struggle Dr. Lloyd stamped out smallpox, reduced the deaths from yellow fever to a minimum and had begun to make inroads upon the plague.

View of Guayaquil from San Alejo

But the epidemic, which had begun with the wet season, declined with the advent of the dry spell and conditions in Guayaquil appeared better than ever before. The people, never afraid of yellow fever and smallpox, considered themselves free from the plague and laughed at Dr. Lloyd's continued admonitions regarding cleanliness and statements that the plague had not been stamped out but was merely slumbering while it awaited the arrival of the next rainy season.

Upon Dr. Lloyd's threat to resign unless the Ecuadorian government backed him up in his efforts to clean Guayaquil the municipal authorities appealed to the central government, while the newspapers raised the cry of "sanitary intervention." Finally, with governmental support withdrawn and no funds at his command, Dr. Lloyd was forced to give up the fight and an Ecuadorean was appointed Supervisor of Public Health at Guayaquil.

It is interesting to note that during the next wet season the plague reached almost the same proportions attained during its initial visitation.

A few weeks after Dr. Lloyd's repudiation by the Ecuadorean government he was recalled by the United States, and Dr. W. M. Wightman sent in his place. Dr. Wightman, supposedly an immune to yellow fever, died from it May 10, 1909.

Before this, however, plague made its appearance outside of Ecuador—at Colon, Panama. A number of rats were seen to leave a ship which had cleared at Guayaquil and almost immediately a Panaman died from what was diagnosed by Colonel William C. Gorgas, Health Commissioner of the Canal Zone, as bubonic plague.

Realizing the consequences should the plague gain a foothold upon the Isthmus, Colonel Gorgas ordered that every house in the section of Colon where the rats were seen to enter should be burned to the ground. More than $500,000 worth of property was thus destroyed, but Colonel Gorgas characterized the conflagration as "very cheap indeed," as no more plague was reported in the zone.

The bubonic scourge having made its appearance outside of Guayaquil, however, Colonel Gorgas—whose word is law in the Canal Zone—issued strict orders that all ships from the Ecuadorean port be quarantined for twice the usual time and that the strongest disinfectants be used, particularly if rats were on board.

The principal danger from the Ecuadorean plague is in its transmission to the United States through the Panama Canal. Immediately the canal is opened ships from the west coast of South America will flock into what has always been to them the promised land—the Gulf ports and Atlantic seaboard of the United States. Should the plague once gain a foothold in New Orleans, Galveston, Mobile or any of the seaports at which Ecuadorean ships are likely to touch, its ravages would be fearful.

"Once allow the plague to enter the South and there is no telling how many deaths would result—particularly among the negro population," said Surgeon General Rupert Blue, U. S. P. H. and M. H. S., recently, while speaking of the need for sanitating Guayaquil. "The conditions for its propagation in the South are ideal and it would be a most difficult matter to eradicate or control it. The opening of the canal, for this reason, will be a great menace to the Gulf and Atlantic ports unless this government takes some drastic action for the sanitation of Guayaquil."

In addition to the danger from plague in the United States there is also the fear that yellow fever, which twice in three years—from 1892 to 1894—threatened to sweep over the South, from Atlanta to New Orleans, may again gain a foothold there. Thanks to the efficiency of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, however, this danger is minimized in the United States, but should the disease once spread to the Orient or even the Philippines there is great likelihood that an epidemic would ensue, because of the natives' ignorance concerning the disease or the methods to be employed in avoiding and curing it.

The natives of Guayaquil, and South America in general, are more or less immune to the fever, but, notwithstanding this, the annual mortality is large, Dr. Parker reporting 117 deaths from yellow fever from January 1 to December 15, 1911, in Guayaquil alone.

Add to this the danger from the spread of leprosy and other skin disease prevalent among the native Ecuadoreans and there will be little doubt as to the necessity of closing the port of Guayaquil before the Panama Canal affords easy entrance into the seaboards of the United States; before pest laden ships sail through the Gulf and up the inland waterway to New Orleans, Vicksburg, Memphis and even St. Louis.

To us who live in an atmosphere of comparative cleanliness, despite the constant preaching of "germ experts" regarding the easy spread of disease, the filth and corruption of Guayaquil is almost past understanding. There is one thing, however, which may be regarded as a "first cause" for its present condition.

The perfectly organized and apparently impenetrable "Tweed ring" which rules the city.

Every foreigner who has tried to "buck" this ring has failed. Lloyd attempted it and, for a time, succeeded. The approach of the dry season and the consequent abatement of the plague, however, defeated his purpose. Drs. Wightman, Perry and Parker in turn tried to make some headway against the wall of graft—petty and great—which prevents the onward march of progress, but none succeeded.

There existed, and still exists, according to Dr. Parker's reports, a triple government in Guayaquil; the municipal authorities, the supreme Board of Health and the federal chief of police. Each of these organizations succeeds in proving, whenever necessary, that it is the other's business to enforce the sanitary regulations, unless there is prospect of a "rake-off," when all are foremost in claiming their share.

This is the obstacle which has deterred a number of American and British concerns from attempting to clean up Guayaquil.

The State Department, while admitting that Guayaquil ought to be cleaned up, did not then see its way clear to forcing Ecuador to do so herself. Dr. Wightman's death, practically coinciding with those of a number of young American engineers employed in the construction of the Guayaquil and Quito Railroad, gave signs of stirring this government to some action, but beyond warning Ecuador that it was "necessary for the good of foreign commerce that the port of Guayaquil be sanitated" the United States did nothing.

That was before the Panama Canal project was well under way and also before the principle of the propagation of the plague was well understood.

Now matters are different.

Opinions of Conditions in Guayaquil.

SECRETARY OF NAVY MEYERS:—The recent death of Commander Bertolette while in the discharge of his duties in Ecuadorian waters is evidence of the unhealthy condition of this port, and it is necessary for the safety of the navy as well as for American commerce soon to pass through the canal that Guayaquil should be sanitated.

Secretary of War Stimson:—Guayaquil's condition, I am informed, seriously menaces the Canal Zone at present, and as soon as the canal is opened will threaten the seaports of the United States with immediate contagion.

Former Secretary of War Dickinsons—Unless a system of sanitation as thorough as that existing on the Canal Zone and at Havana is adopted at Guayaquil the health of residents of the zone, and, indeed, of the inhabitants of America, will constantly be menaced by this centre of infection.

Surgeon General Rupert Blue, U. S. P. H. and M. H. S.:—Guayaquil is notoriously unhealthy and its present condition is a source of alarm to world commerce.

Former Governor of the Canal Zone Charles E. Magoon:—The city of Panama is menaced by health conditions at Guayaquil. I deem it of the utmost importance that we accomplish the sanitation of this city, and I hope that you (the Secretary of War) will take this matter up with the State Department.

D. Huntington Wilson, the Assistant Secretary of State:—The present sanitary condition of Guayaquil is such as to render the cleansing of the port before the opening of the canal absolutely imperative if Ecuador is to enjoy the benefits which would naturally come to her upon the opening of this great waterway. The State Department hopes that Ecuador will soon be able to carry out a systematic project for the complete and permanent removal of the unhealthy conditions that have so long existed in her chief port.

The recent death of Commander Bertolette promises to be the spark which will fire the accumulated indignation of three decades.

Acting under the Monroe Doctrine, the State Department has determined that Guayaquil must be sanitated or Ecuadorean commerce will be throttled by the simple expedient of closing the port of Guayaquil and forbidding ships to enter or leave, thus practically starving the country into submission. Assurances have been received from Peru and Brazil that they will co-operate with the United States in forcing sanitation upon Ecuador, and it is thought that Colombia will also close her boundary to Ecuadorean commerce should the United States desire it. Thus Ecuador could be entirely cut off from the world and not allowed again to participate in commerce until it complied with the International Health Regulations, both as regards sanitation and quarantine.

It is not easy to say just what steps will be taken for the actual cleaning of the city, but the United States, as guardian of the Panama Canal, insists upon approval of any schemes presented. Complete supervision of the proposals for cleaning Guayaquil have been delegated to Colonel Gorgas, who is now engaged in an investigation of the plan of a Frenchman, Edmund Coignet, proposing a loan and contract for the construction of water works which would form the foundation for the sanitation of the port.

Should Colonel Gorgas approve of Coignet's plans the Ecuadorian government will be given word to go ahead, but it is not considered likely that Gorgas will pass favorably upon them, as they are thought to demand too much money for too little work. Coignet proposes to erect museums, libraries and municipal buildings rather than clean up the city. In the words of the Health Commissioner of the Isthmus, he "wants $8,000,000 for doing $3,000,000 worth of work."

The Colonel adds, however:—"I do not care how many public buildings he erects so long as he cleans up the city. That's all we want."

Colonel Gorgas himself, in a letter to the Secretary of War, has outlined a plan for the sanitation of Guayaquil entailing the expenditure of a minimum of money and effecting excellent results. Its cost, Colonel Gorgas asserts, would not be over half a million dollars—$25,000 a month for a year and a half.

By this plan the city would be divided into twelve districts, with an inspector and two assistants to each district. The duties of each of these officials would be to inspect thirty houses a day, thus covering the entire district in a month. Laborers would also be told off to accompany each official to carry oil to cover the stagnant pools, barrel cisterns and other breeding places of the stegomyia and to disinfect wherever necessary.

Supervising the entire force of inspectors and assistants there would be a health officer to keep a close watch, through the reports of the district officials, of the sanitary conditions throughout the city. In addition there would also be required four brigades of twenty men each to attend to pools and puddles outside of private yards, draining them or filling up those which could not be drained and applying oil wherever needed. Once this work has been thoroughly attended to, Colonel Gorgas asserts, the passage of a law prescribing a fine for violations of the ordinances, together with the erection of a modern hospital where patients might be properly segregated (such a place not existing at the present time), would be all that is necessary to keep the city clean and sanitary.

"All this," concludes Colonel Gorgas' letter, "could be done in eighteen months at comparatively little cost, but it must be accompanied by the establishment of an adequate water supply."

It is this lack of proper cleansing facilities which renders the streets so dirty, which accounts for the rapid and continued accumulation of garbage and filth in Guayaquil's residence section and which makes the efforts of sanitation experts well night abortive.

A 24-inch water main from Naranjapata to Guayaquil, supplying water sufficient for the 60,000 inhabitants, would cost but $500,000, and, according to Drs. Lloyd, Perry and Parker, would effectually prevent yellow fever and smallpox and would go a long way toward purging the city of plague, provided, of course, that the citizens could be educated in the proper external use of the fluid.

Thus, by expending only $1,000,000 Ecuador could rid herself of being "one of the few places in the world where yellow fever, smallpox, leprosy and bubonic plague still exist" (Secretary of War Dickinson, April 6, 1910.) But, from present indications, it will be necessary for a foreign Power to intervene and force the country to accept an outside contract for sanitating Guayaquil.

But Guayaquil, says Uncle Sam, must be cleaned up speedily.

REVITALIZING EGYPT

LORD KITCHENER HAS ALREADY WORKED WONDERS.

The New Administrator Has Renewed the Youth of the Country by Developing Agriculture and Repressing Strife With a Strong Hand—Archaeologists Put In Their Proper Place—Is Building Good Roads.

The world knows Lord Kitchener as a great soldier, remarkable for foresight and patience. In the negotiations at the end of the Boer War he showed himself a tactful, broad-minded diplomatist. In Egypt, in four months, he is universally and gratefully recognized as an administrator of genius. He is strong but sympathetic, always completely accessible, finding no responsibility too great, no detail too unimportant. His interests cover the whole life of the country. His ability to speak Arabic fluently brings him into direct touch with the people.

Since Lord Kitchener has been in Cairo an almost startling stimulus has been given to national prosperity, and political unrest has given way to a welcome and obvious tranquility.

Personality counts for even more in the east than it does in the west, and Lord Kitchener's personality has fascinated Egypt. He is revered by the Soudanese as the savior of their country from anarchy and misrule, and the Egyptians have come to regard him as the one man essential if security and prosperity are to be attained.

For the moment at least, the stirrer up of sedition finds his occupation gone, and the so-called Nationalism is out of favor. The people are realizing the possibility of security and all that follows security, and they themselves are giving the cold shoulder to the agitators, one of the most prominent of whom has, within the last few days, shaken the dust of Cairo from his shoes and departed for the more promising atmosphere of Constantinople. Lord Kitchener has avoided, wherever possible, overt and abrupt action against the sedition-mongers, though more than one of their organs has been quietly and unostentatiously suppressed.

Cultivation of the land is in an eminently healthy condition, and the growing understanding of the power of the land and the good-will of the administration in checking the habit of the "countrymen" of burying their gold as a precaution instead of employing it in the development of their holdings.

The cotton question looms very largely in Egypt. The crops have in the past suffered severely from the baleful activity of an infesting worm, and a commission has been appointed to probe the whole question and decide how the evil can be most efficaciously treated. It is characteristic of Lord Kitchener's desire to develop the Egyptian's sense of responsibility that he asked Prince Hussein to be chairman of this commission. By doing this he gained the sympathy of the Khedive, pleased the people, and secured the co-operation of an energetic and capable prince.

A determined effort is also being made to prevent the use of bad seed by establishing Government depots for the sale of seed. This will destroy the frequent custom of paying part of the price of the cotton in seed, and will strike an indirect blow at the middleman. There is also a proposal to issue seed free for employment in Government-controlled fields.

Agriculture is also likely to be stimulated by another timely reform. Hitherto large areas have been marked off for prospective excavation by the enthusiastic Egyptologists, and these areas have often lain idle for years waiting for this excavation. Now it is being released for cultivation unless good and solid reason can be adduced for believing it to be a worthy subject for the archaeologist, who after all, is of less importance than the peasant. While every facility will still be given to him, and while any territory exhibiting any promise for his labor will still be reserved for him, the excavator will no longer be a source of agricultural wastage.

As regards treasure trove, steps will be taken to prevent the rule which divides the spoil between the Government and the discoverer from being interpreted in such a way as to cause a constant outflow from Egypt of her most valuable antiquities.

The physical improvement in the Egyptian is remarkable. The stature and stamina of the natives, both military and civilian, are the commonest theme of admiration to the foreigner. Ophthalmia, which used to infest the land as a veritable plague, is steadily decreasing. The traveling hospital inaugurated by Sir Ernest Cassel has done splendid work, and steps are being taken to combat the injury done by ingrowing eyelash in children, which is now recognized as the great cause of mischief, and to remove which deformity operations of considerable difficulty and delicacy are often necessary.

The Budget is the great measure of a nation's prosperity, and it is therefore noteworthy that the financial advisor's note on the budget has been greeted with great satisfaction.

Trade is good, and tradesmen in Cairo who have suffered ever since the "slump" of five years ago, and who have been adversely affected by the war, express themselves as full of hope and confidence for the future, the hotelkeepers reserving the suggestion that their business has been in some degree curtailed by the attractions offered by Luxor and Assouan.

One small but important instance of Lord Kitchener's proverbial "driving power" may be noted in the road which is being made to Helouan. Lord Kitchener is still an engineer with a Roman eye for roads. It is difficult for the stranger to realize that access to this delightful resort, with its marvellously powerful sulphur baths and other curative privileges, is still impossible by motor—and the order that the road should be ready for inspection by May 1 has been received with gratification.

Lace was known in Venice at an early period. It was not unknown to the Greeks and Romans. To protect the native article its importation into England was prohibited in 1482.

Muscles Useless Without Nerve Force

Perhaps you are not quite clear on the relation of the nerves to the rest of the body. Through the nerve fibres which extend through countless branches to every nook and corner of the human system is conveyed the motive power which operates the various organs.

There could be no breathing, no beating of the heart, no flow of the digestive fluids, no action of any muscle or organ of the body without nerve force. Consequently, when the nervous system becomes exhausted there is complete collapse of the body, the different stages of which are described as nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis.

The time to use such restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is when the headaches, sleeplessness, indigestion and other warning symptoms first appear. A few weeks' persistent treatment is then sufficient to revitalize the wasted nerve cells and restore health and vigour.

Tales of Cities.

The city of Kansas City, Kan., was once the town of Wyandotte. The natives had a clever way of saving time by writing it "Y&."

Official statistics show that more people take their own lives in San Francisco in proportion to population than in any other city on the continent.

Yarmouth, England, has a public skating rink among its municipal interests, which include municipal street cars, electric light and power, piers, pavilions and a prospective golf course.

Mary Jane's Paradise.

New Zealand is a paradise for domestic servants; so much so, that the demand is greater than the supply.

During one month, for example, 175 employers made application at the local Government bureau at Auckland for domestic servants, but there were only 63 women on the books desiring employment, and only 53 engagements were made. Strangely enough, the number of new arrivals seeking employment as domestics is not very large, for during a month only 15 immigrants sought situations.

These were placed in suitable positions, at wages ranging from 15s. to £1 10s. a week. The demand for domestic servants is ever increasing, and the supply decreasing. Indeed, in a year, at the Auckland branch of the Labor Department there were 2,343 applications from employers and only 803 from women desiring employment. Of these applications, 777 were for "generals," and only 141 responded to the call, which seems to show there is a great field for Mary Jane in New Zealand.

One Touch of Nature.

Look, love! The rusty pine tree grieves
To wave its frowsy plumes
Beside the fresh green chestnut leaves
And snowy cherry blooms.

The pine tree, love, though frayed and sear,
Will soon spruce up anew,
But my poor hat— Thanks, hubby, dear!

Doan's Kidney Pills

Are the Best Remedy In The World FOR BACKACHE.

Many people fail to understand the significance of a lame, weak, sore or aching back.

You overtax the kidneys—give them more work than they can possibly do—then they cry out in protest through the pain in the back.

Backache is simply kidneyache and the best remedy in the world for backache and all kidney troubles is Doan's Kidney Pills.

We have thousands of testimonials from all quarters of the globe to prove this. Here is one from a party who used them in England, but who is now a resident of Canada.

Mr. P. R. Glanville, Wycliffe, B.C., writes:—"When living in the 'Old Country,' three years ago, I suffered severely from pains in the back, and had to give up work. The pain was so bad that when I stooped down to pick anything up, I felt my back must break. I tried all sorts of remedies and several doctors, but all to no purpose. One day I read of Doan's Kidney Pills, and thought I might as well try them, and to my surprise, before I was half through one box the backache had entirely disappeared, and it has not caused me any trouble since. I always keep "Doan's" in the house and shall always recommend them to all sufferers."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's".

ISMAY MAKES REPLY.

White Star Manager Denies Striving For a Record.

New York, April 22.—In a statement given out last night, J. Bruce Ismay replies to various published statements regarding the Titanic disaster, particularly those in which his name has prominently figured.

"When I appeared before the Senate committee," the statement reads, "I understood the purport of the enquiry was to ascertain the cause of the sinking of the Titanic, with a view to determining whether additional legislation was required to prevent the recurrence of so horrible a disaster.

"I welcomed such an enquiry and appeared voluntarily without subpoena and answered all questions to the best of my ability with complete frankness and without reserve. I did not suppose the question of my personal conduct was the subject of the enquiry, although I was ready to tell everything I did on the night of the collision.

"As I have been subpoenaed to attend before the committee in Washington to-morrow, I should prefer to make no statement out of respect for the committee, but I do not think that courtesy requires me to be silent in the face of the untrue statements made in some of the newspapers.

"When I went on board the Titanic at Southampton it was my intention to return by her. I had no intention of remainining in the U. S. at that time. I came merely to observe the new vessel, as I have done in other cases of this character. On the voyage I was a passenger and exercised no greater rights nor privileges than any other passenger. I was not consulted by the commander about the ship, her course, speed, navigation or her conduct at sea. I saw Captain Smith only casually, as other passengers did; I was never in his room; I was never on the bridge until after the accident; I did not sit at his table in the saloon; I had not visited the engine-room nor gone through the ship, and did not go, or attempt to go to any part of the ship to which any other first cabin passenger did not have access.

"It is absolutely and unqualifiedly false that I ever said that I wished the Titanic should make a speed record or should increase her daily runs. I deny absolutely having said to any person that we would increase our speed in order to get out of the ice zone.

"The story that the White Star Line would receive an additional sum by way of bounty, or otherwise, for attaining a certain speed, is untrue. The White Star Line receives from the British Government a fixed compensation of $350,000 per annum for carrying the mails, without regard to the speed of any of its vessels, and no additional sum is paid."

Mr. Ismay goes on to tell how he got away from the ship.

"I worked at the starboard boats helping women and children into the boats and lowering them over the side. I did nothing with regard to the boats on the port side. By that time every wooden lifeboat on the starboard side had been lowered away, and I found that they were engaged in getting out the forward collapsible boat on the starboard side. I assisted in this work, and all the women that were on this deck were helped into the boat. They were all, I think, third-class passengers.

"As the boat was going over the side, Mr. Carter, a passenger, and myself got in. At that time there was not a woman on the boat deck, nor any passenger of any class, so far as we could see or hear. There had been 35 and 40 in it, I should think, most of them women."

A Hidden Town.

Daifrush, Persia, is built in a forest of lofty trees, by which the houses are so completely hidden that it has not the appearance of a large town, although its population is 50,000.

The Crystal Palace.

When London's palace was first opened strongly diverse opinions were expressed as to its artistic beauty. Charles Dickens, voicing the popular view, wrote that there was nothing like it in fairyland. To which Ruskin retorted, with biting irony, "Mr. Dickens is quite right, there isn't!"

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Dr. J. W. Clemesha, a leading physician of Port Hope, is dead.

Alex. McKay, ex-M.P. for Hamilton, and latterly inspector of customs, is dead.

The man killed near Sunnyside, Toronto, on Friday has been identified as Joseph Gibson, Belleville.

The situation in the Porcupine gold camp is generally encouraging, although four properties have closed within a month.

Major A. G. Peuchen of Toronto left for Washington to give evidence before the Senate Committee investigating the Titanic disaster.

Toronto Railway employes, at a mass meeting, decided to make many demands upon the company, and failing the granting of their requests will strike.

The Middlesex election trials will not be held until September. The North Essex petition against Hon. Dr. Reaume and the cross-petition will be tried in June.

Several villages in Beauce County, Que., have been flooded by a rise in the Chaudiere River. Traffic on part of the Quebec Central Railway has been abandoned.

Little John Magee, whose death is reported, makes the eighth of the family in Prince Edward Island who have died of poison. The Provincial Government is investigating the affair.

James Crawford of Brock street, Perth, was trimming a tree on Saturday, using a pruning knife attached to a pole and worked by a lever, when he got a shock from overhead wires which proved fatal.

Driver Is Killed.

Toronto, April 22.—Roland Carter, a driver for the Borthwick Baking Co., Limited, was almost instantly killed when the horse which he was driving ran away on Severn avenue shortly after noon on Saturday.

When at the corner of Severn avenue and Yonge street the horse took fright at a newspaper blown along the roadway by the wind and suddenly bolted down Severn avenue. The unexpected jolt threw Carter from the wagon to the pavement and he fell between the wheels, one of the rear wheels passing over his head.

He was picked up unconscious and died before the arrival of the police ambulance.

Mother Is Shot.

Brockville, April 22.—Mrs. Samuel Hollingsworth, jr., of Athens, was ironing clothes in the kitchen of her home when one of her young sons picked up a 22 calibre rifle leaning against the wall behind the door.

As Mrs. Hollingsworth leaned over to get an article out of the clothes basket the rifle was accidentally discharged, young Hollingsworth snapping the trigger, not knowing it was loaded. The bullet entered the woman's neck and became embedded in the shoulder. At latest accounts the bullet had not been extracted. Mrs. Hollingsworth is expected to recover unless complications set in.

To Govern Ocean Liners.

Washington, April 22.—The United States Senate Saturday adopted the amended maritime resolution looking to a more complete international regulation of ocean traffic.

The resolution advises the President that the Senate would favor treaties with the great maritime powers to clear and broadly govern the courses, speed, life-saving aparatus, wireless and other equipment of ocean liners, so as to avert if possible, a repetition of the Titanic catastrophe.

Mrs. Roblin's Father Ill.

Belleville, April 22.—Hon. P. R. Roblin of Winnipeg, with Mrs. Roblin, are in the city, having been called here owing to the illness of Mr. N. S. Demill, who is Mrs. Roblin's father. He was stricken with paralysis a few days ago. Despite his advanced age he showed slight improvement.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

Falls Thirty Feet.

Toronto, April 22.—As the result of a thirty-foot fall from a scaffold on Saturday morning John Pearson of 60 Garden avenue lies in St. Michael's Hospital suffering from a broken leg and a fractured rib.

Pearson, who for the past ten years has been employed as a carpenter by J. J. Walsh, a building contractor, was working on a building being erected at 94 Tyndal avenue. He was standing on a scaffold thirty feet from the ground, which he, together with another carpenter, had erected, when shortly after 11 o'clock the board on which he was standing gave way, and let him fall. The injured man is 54 years of age and married.

Crazed With Pain.

Barrie, April 22.—Grasping a large clasp knife Jutina Salminen, a Finlander, aged 21 years, who had both legs cut off by a freight train on Friday evening, attempted to commit suicide in the hospital here, exclaiming in broken English that he could stand the pain no longer. A companion took the knife from him.

Salminen, in company with five other countrymen, had attempted to board a train of flat cars, and he fell under the wheels. He lost a large quantity of blood before a doctor was summoned, and was in such a weakened state that little could be done for him. He died during the night.

A widow but no family survive.

Mary Maddern, Actress, Dead.

New York, April 22.—Mary Maddern, an old-time actress, is dead at her home here after a long illness. She was an English woman, and an aunt of Mrs. Fiske, of whose company she had been a member for many years.

Roosevelt Leads In Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., April 22.—With indications that Col. Roosevelt has a big margin over President Taft; that Lafollette is running ahead of the President as the choice of the Republicans, and that Speaker Clark is the Democratic choice, the count of the votes at Friday's meeting proceeded slowly Saturday. The Roosevelt management say the colonel has a majority of at least 20,000.

Omaha and the eastern counties where the Democratic revolt against Bryan was strongest, gave Harmon a big vote, but Clark is running so far ahead in the rural districts and in the interior that the Speaker's victory is assured by an apparent margin of 5,000 to 6,000. The contest between Wilson and Harmon is close.

Every Congressional district in the state has gone for Roosevelt, giving him a solid delegation from Nebraska of sixteen votes. The complete count in the second district, "Omaha," may give Harmon two votes, but the fourteen others will be for Clark.

The swiftest bird is either the vulture or the English kestrel. They both can fly at the rate of about 150 miles an hour.

Thrashed the Stage Villain.

Some peasants who for the first time in their lives had attended a theatrical performance at Tirnovo, Austria, were so impressed with the unfortunate position of the heroine that they waited outside for the "villain" and soundly thrashed him.

A Youthful Hero.

The youngest winner of the Victoria cross was Drummer Magner of the thirty-third foot at the assault on Magdala. He was then fourteen years old.

A Bed of Roses.

The beds of the shahs of Persia in ancient times were filled with rose petals, which had to be often scattered lest they become uncomfortable. This must surely have been the origin of the familiar saying, "He would complain of a bed of roses."

How Sound Carries.

A cannon report has been heard as far as 140 miles.

Ruskin.

Ruskin's favorite adverb was "entirely." Over the grave of his father he put a memorial stone describing the elder Ruskin as "an entirely honest merchant."

Honey In History.

Hindus for centuries have used new honey as a laxative and old honey as an astringent. Aborigines of Persia offered honey to the sun. Greeks still mix it with milk or water and use it as a libation to the dead. In one section of India milk and honey are handed to all bridegrooms as they arrive at the door of the bride's father, and in ancient Egypt honey was long a chief ingredient of embalming fluid.

Clay Pipes.

Virginia has the world's largest clay pipe factory, the clay of Appomattox county being especially adapted for the purpose.

Queer Name For a Hotel.

There is only one hotel bearing the curious sign of "The World Turned Upside Down," and that is to be found in Old Kent road, London. The reason of the inn receiving this quaint title was the wish to perpetuate the memory of Captain Cook, whose exploits in the antipodes at one time thrilled the sea going and sea loving residents of that part of the metropolis.

Trifles That Count.

The Bank of England has made $900,000 merely by retaining the fractions of pennies from interest payments on the national debt in the past 120 years.

Animals and Toes.

A horse has one toe only. A deer or a goat has two, really, however, a split hoof. The camel has a genuine pair of toes, quite unlike those of a goat. The rhinoceros has three toes, the hippopotamus four and the elephant five. That is the limit in toes.

Numbered Baby Carriages.

A Berlin city ordinance compels the numbering of all baby carriages, so that nurses cannot exchange them by mistake.

The Russian Empire.

Few persons realize how vast is the area of the Russian empire. Into that enormous country you could put all of non-Russian Europe and yet take up only a little more than one-eighth of the czar's domains. Then you could add the United States, including Alaska, and still have almost enough territory left to place Canada in. In fact, the Russian empire comprises one-seventh of the land surface of the globe.

In Alsace-Lorraine there are over 90,000 people employed in grape culture and about 76,600 acres planted in grapes, which is the largest acreage of any state in the German empire.

"Khamsin" is the hot wind from the desert which blows out of the Sahara upon Egypt. The word means fifty, from the idea that it lasts for fifty days. The khamsin is terribly hot and dry and sometimes brings pestilence with it.

Japan's Army Rations.

The rations for a day provided by Japan for each of her soldiers in the field are three little bags of rice and a bunch of dried vegetables.

Dietary Fads.

The late Samuel Wilks, Queen Victoria's physician, was opposed to dietary fads. He once said, "If a faddist tells you to take an ounce of albumen, an ounce of starch and so much water, and all that sort of thing, just you go and get a nice chop."

Perception of Sounds.

The limit of perception of sounds of high pitch varies considerably with the person. In general, persons lose their hearing for very high notes as they get older, and it appears that slight loss of hearing in the region of these upper frequences begins to occur during an early age.

Muzzled Dogs.

Owing to the long enforced laws in Great Britain compelling the muzzling of dogs, rabies is practically unknown in England. The same is the case in Germany and Denmark.

Lima Beans.

About half the lima bean crop in the world is produced by a coastwise strip of California, including Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, Orange and San Diego counties. Peculiar climatic conditions are required, and the only other section where the bean has been grown successfully is the island of Madagascar, off the east coast of Africa. England takes the entire island output.

A full sized cigar contains as much as two grains of nicotine; a pipeful of tobacco not more, as a rule, than two-thirds of a grain.

This is a strong statement to make, but it is exactly what Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Blum, Texas, said in expressing her opinion of this remedy.

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine raised me from the grave and I have much confidence in it. I can never say enough for your grand medicines. If anyone had offered me $100.00 for the second bottle of Nervine that I used I would have said 'no indeed.'"

PETERBOROUGH CITIZENS MOURNED DEATH OF SIXTEEN HUNDRED VICTIMS OF TITANIC DISASTER

Memorial Service Held in Nearly Every Church in The City---Bands Played The Dead March And "Nearer My God To Thee" Was Sung Everywhere.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES

Peterborough yesterday expressed her deep grief at the frightful disaster which sent sixteen hundred of those on board the Titanic to a grave 2,000 fathoms deep. In nearly every church in the City memorial services were held, some, perhaps, more pretentious than others, but in every case the horror of the catastrophe was brought home with deeper significance. Every clergyman in Peterborough referred to the accident in feeling terms and congregations were stirred, as rarely they have been before, as they realized how terrible was the loss of life and how great the grief caused.

Lansdowne Lodge, Sons of England, and the St. George's Society marched from their lodge rooms on Hunter street, headed by the 57th Band, last evening, to St. John's church, where a most solemn and impressive memorial service of over two hours' duration was conducted.

There was special music of a nature appropriate to the occasion, by the choir, while the band played the Dead March in Saul and the Processional. Before the procession to the church commenced the band softly played "Nearer My God to Thee," the grand old hymn that was played by the heroic band of the Titanic as the gigantic liner plunged down into the depths of the ocean. The same hymn was also rendered on the People's chimes before the service commenced.

The Salvation Army, with muffled drums, played the Dead March, on George street, last night, and many were moved to tears when they recalled what the music meant—that just a week before sixteen hundred people had gone to their death.

AT SACRED HEART CHURCH.

Before beginning the early mass at the Church of the Sacred Heart yesterday, Rev. Dr. O'Brien announced to the congregation that he would offer the mass for those who had lost their lives in the Titanic disaster, and for the comfort and consolation of friends and relations. He also asked the congregation to remember them in their prayers. At Vespers, Rev. Dr. O'Brien preached an eloquent sermon on the necessity of being prepared at all times to go before God. He spoke on the epistle of the day from I. St. Peter, 2, 21-25, and emphasized the desirability and the necessity of leading lives of goodness in our everyday walks, and of performing good deeds. During his sermon he referred in very feeling terms to the marine disaster and drew lessons therefrom. Our greatest danger, he explained, is in our security, for although we consider ourselves safe, yet we never know the time and place of our death. He drew a lesson from the uncertainty of life and exhorted the congregation to be always prepared.

AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

The intense public interest in the Titanic disaster was strikingly evidenced at the services last night in Peterborough St. Johns church where the Sons of England and St. George's societies attended in a body, presented the appearance of a besieged city, surrounded by people desirous of gaining admission, which could only be given to a portion of those applying. When the church was taxed to its capacity the vestry of the church was filled and the church so much so that the door could not be closed, although the officers of the church had but little difficulty to prevent over-crowding.

The two societies arrived over 150 strong, together with the 57th Band, in uniform, which took up a position in the front of the church, near the font. The procession of the choir was in silence, after which the Band played the Dead March in Saul, the congregation standing.

Rev. Canon Davidson then explained that their brethren, having been denied the privilege of having the burial service said over them, that the congregation would assist in the solemn office, which was then proceeded with, the climax being reached with the solemn words of committal "to the deep," as used at sea, which had probably never been heard by this congregation before. The requiem hymn "Sleep Thy Last Sleep" was sung by the choir, and after the lesson "Hush! Blessed are the Dead," and Nunc Dimittis.

The hymn "Nearer My God to Thee," with its pathetic associations, and "Eternal Father, Strong to Save" were sung with intense fervour by the entire congregation. Prayers was offered for the King, the bereaved sufferers and thanksgiving.

The Sermon.

The sermon was founded on the words: "Ye shall die like men and fall like one of the princes"—Psalm 82-7.

Rev. Canon Davidson said their united object was to bring before God this great matter and to give thanks for mercies given and unseen; to honour brave men and women and to be stimulated towards nobler and

INVESTIGATION TO BE HEARD AT WASHINGTON

Everything is in Readiness For Hearing---Members of Crew of Titanic Will Give Evidence---Ismay And Surviving Navigating Officers Are Very Indignant at The Newspapers.

Examiner Special:

(By staff correspondents.)

WASHINGTON, D.C., APRIL 22.—Everything is in readiness for the investigation into the Titanic disaster, which was adjourned here from New York on Saturday. The New York hearings were merely preliminary, and Chairman Smith, of the Investigating committee of the Senate, says he expects to get some very interesting information in the course of two or three days. Those members of the crew of the Titanic whose stories are expected to throw light on the disaster, were brought here last night and all quartered together at a hotel. Strict silence has been enjoined on them until they come into the witness box.

J. Bruce Ismay, and the surviving officers of the Titanic, are very bitter over the hostile attitude of some of the newspapers. They resent the assertion that they are cowards, and demand that full evidence be taken before they are condemned. Mrs. J. J. Astor has volunteered to tell her story as well as several other women survivors and the investigation promises to be most sensational. Major Peuchen, the Canadian, is expected hourly. He can scarcely be called today.

Virginian's Story.

LONDON, ENG., APRIL 22. — The Canadian Allan Liner Virginian, which docked at Liverpool yesterday, two days late, reports receiving no message direct from the Titanic and can give no light on how the message was spread broadcast that she was taking the wrecked vessel in tow last Monday. The first she heard of the wreck was on Monday morning from Cape Race, stating that the Titanic was in need of assistance. The Virginian's captain altered his course and steamed a hundred and sixty miles out of his way, but was met with a message from the Carpathia that she had picked up all the survivors and that the vessel had sunk. The Virginian had all her lifeboats swung for action, and a party of British navy seamen, returning home from the Pacific, happened to be aboard to man them. The Virginian had to steer some miles out of her course to avoid icebergs. Her captain and first officer were on the bridge for three days and three nights without a break.

WASHINGTON, APRIL 22.—P. A. S. Franklin, Vice-President of the White Star, was the only witness examined this morning, and the main points in his evidence went to show that the White Star was not responsible for the "fake" telegrams which, by declaring that the Titanic was in tow of the Virginian with all her passengers safe, raised false hopes, which were doomed to such cruel disappointment.

Ismay Misjudged.

TORONTO, APRIL 22.—Since Saturday there has been a growing feeling here and throughout Canada that the New York papers have been unjustifiably harsh in their criticism of Managing Director J. Bruce Ismay in story and caricature. It turns out now that Ismay stuck to the ship, helping the steerage women into the boats until there were no more left to help. Then, with another man, he jumped in where there was room and rowed the boat away. Ismay is a British subject, with his permanent residence in England. He called upon himself the bitter denunciation of the Gotham yellow journals by withholding information, when he was on the Carpathia.

"Gigantic" to be Altered.

LONDON, APRIL 22.—It is understood that the plans of the White Star "Gigantic," which is now being built at Belfast, and which was to have been 1000 feet in length, will be modified. It is probable that new plans will provide for a double cellular bottom and sides, such as the Mauretania and Lusitania have, as the stipulated condition of receiving a government subsidy. The Olympic has been provided with forty collapsible boats and will carry sixteen additional life boats.

58 Bodies Recovered.

NEW ORK, APRIL 22.—The White Star Line this morning received official word that the Mackay Bennett steamer had recovered fifty bodies of the Titanic disaster, some of which will be embalmed and brought to port. Others impossible to bring were buried at sea to-night with divine service.

Board of Trade Questioned.

LONDON, ENG., APRIL 22.— Dozens of questions relative to the responsibility of the British Board of Trade in the Titanic disaster were fired at Hon. Sidney Buxton, President of the Board of Trade in the Commons to-night. Buxton said that enquiry was progressing to see if the regulations regarding life boats, life belts and so on were lived up to. Also, there would be a conference of ship owners to see what improvements should be made.

LITTLE CHANCE OF AVERTING BIG STRIKE ON RAILWAYS

TORONTO, ONT., APRIL 22. — Things are looking very serious in the dispute between the fifty eastern railroads out of New York, and their locomotive engineers, whose leaders have given the companies till eight o'clock to-night to comply with the demands. While the Canadian railroads are not affected directly, except those portions which run into the New England states, there will be severe delays to transportation to Eastern States points from Canada via Buffalo and other points on the border if the strike goes into effect. The latest news from headquarters is that there is little chance of settlement.

FORMAL OPENING OF THE MUSEUM TO-MORROW NIGHT

The museum at the Public Library, which has, as stated in the Examiner some time ago, been removed there from Inverlea Park, will be thrown open to the public for the first time to-morrow night. Mr. W. G. Morrow, chairman of the Library Board, will preside. It is hoped that as many as possible will avail themselves of the opportunity to be present and examine the collections of curios and articles of unusual interest that have been presented to the city of Peterborough by the members of the Historical Society. The chairman and members of the Library Board desire to draw especial attention to the fact that it is mainly owing to the indefatigable efforts of Mr. T. A. S. Hay, the curator of the museum, that the city is indebted for the splendid exhibition, and they confidently look forward to a hearty recognition of his services by the public to-morrow night. An orchestra will be in attendance from 8 to 10 p.m.

BRIDGE CLOSED TO TRAFFIC

Chemong Bridge Threatened With Destruction by Floating Ice—Emily Bridge Closed

The floating bridge on Chemong Lake is showing its effects of the spring rush of water and ice. For several days past, the water has been sweeping over the roadway and the approaches, especially on the Ennismore side, are badly flooded. It was learned this morning that the bridge had moved several feet, and the telephone cable, crossing the bridge was broken as a result. People are now crossing by way of Lancaster's.

Bridge Closed for Traffic.

Cowan's bridge, in Emily, has been closed, indefinitely, to traffic, as the undue pressure of the ice against the underworks has rendered the structure unsafe for traffic.

MANY ARE KILLED

Forty Lives in Frightful Tornado Which Swept Over Illinois and Indiana Yesterday.

IMMENSE DAMAGE

Special to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, ILL., APRIL 2.—From thirty to forty persons were killed and two hundred injured in a tornado which swept over Illinois and Indiana yesterday, destroying whole villages, and caused damage estimated up in the millions. Telegraph and telephone wires were demolished throughout whole counties and it has been extremely difficult to get information of any kind relative to the disaster. Trains arriving to-day, however, bring news that whole districts for miles square were left without a single building standing. Nurses and doctors have been despatched, with hospital trains. It has been many years since this state has been visited with such devastating tornadoes.

QUAKER OATS PLANT IN WEST

The Lethbridge Daily Herald says that Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Shumway of the Quaker Oats Company, Chicago, are making a tour in Alberta and Saskatchewan, looking over Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatchewan, and other places, with a view to obtaining a site for a new plant in the West. As soon as a report has been made to the President, Mr. Robert Stewart, the final decision will be arrived at.

Which ever city is fortunate enough to secure the mill will receive a very important industry, as the plant will be sufficiently large to consume hundreds of thousands of bushels of oats and wheat, yearly.

The Quaker Oats Company are also establishing a large mill in the State of Montana.

ADDRESS ON MARS TO-NIGHT

In the Collegiate Institute to-night there will be a meeting of the Astronomical Society.

Although this meeting is held under the auspices of this society, without expense of any kind to the audience, yet it is held for the general public just as much as for the members. The public is most cordially invited to come and bring all their friends.

The subject for to-night will be "Mars, and are There Any Inhabitants Up There?"

Mars is so favourably situated that a great deal has been learned about our next neighbour in the skies.

Mars is on the road ahead of us, in the point of development, and as we trace its history, its story will be but a prophecy of our own. Come along and bring all your friends.

CASE AGAINST PROPRIETOR OF POOL ROOM DISMISSED

W. K. PATTISON, the lawyer, formerly a resident of St. Catharines, who is advising Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, regarding his fight for freedom. Mr. Pattison is now a resident of Chicago.

Large Number of Witnesses Were Examined---Evidence Against Defendant Was Not Conclusive Enough to Convict Him.

WAS GIVEN A WARNING

The head liner in the Police Court this morning was the case of Joseph Levasseur, proprietor of a George st. pool-room, who was charged with having allowed intoxicating liquor to be consumed upon his premises contrary to the Licence Act, the said premises not being duly licensed.

The accused entered a plea of not guilty of the offence, which is alleged to have occurred on Thursday, April 11th. A large quota of witnesses were on hand to give evidence.

Chief of Police Thompson conducted the prosecution. License Inspector Stewart was present, but he took no part in the proceedings. He left the court-room before the case was completed.

Elmer Liddell, the first witness called, testified that on the day in question, he was at Levasseur's pool-room. A pail of beer was brought into the cellar and there consumed by a number of young men who were present. He recalled a former occasion when liquor was consumed on the premises. He had been in the basement when men were under the influence of liquor, but could not swear that the proprietor was present on these occasions.

OCCASIONALLY FELT GOOD.

Joseph O'Toole next took the stand. He gave evidence to the effect that he was in the pool-room on the 11th of April. He was not a witness to any drinking which might have taken place in the basement on that occasion. He denied having carried intoxicating liquor into the cellar on the day in question, or ever having taken a drink on the defendant's premises.

"Were you ever in the pool-room while under the influence of liquor?" interrogated the Chief.

"No! but I have been there when I had been feeling pretty good," replied witness.

WAS A FREQUENTER.

William Lavery, on taking the stand, stated that he was a frequenter of defendant's pool-room. He recalled the night of April 12 as the occasion when he secured a part of a flask of whisky. There were about twenty-five others in the basement at the time. Witness was arrested the same evening for being drunk in a public place. He could not recall the name of the party who furnished him with the liquor.

"How long do you have to frequent a pool-room before the memory gets as bad as yours?" queried the Magistrate.

WHO PAID FOR LIQUOR?

The next witness called answered to the name of John Miller. He would not swear to having been in the defendant's pool-room on April 11th, but admitted having taken a drink in the basement on the Tuesday previous. A pail of beer was brought into the cellar on this date, and was consumed by a number of men who were present. He did not know who supplied the liquor.

"Who's the master of ceremonies?" asked His Worship.

"I don't know," replied witness.

"Perhaps the pail fills up of itself when empty," suggested the Magistrate.

Chief—"Who paid for the liquor?"

Witness—"Don't know."

Chief—"It didn't walk in there of its own accord."

DRANK OUT OF A PAIL.

Herbert Landry, on being called, testified that he was present in the basement of the poolroom on the night of April 9th. He took a drink out of a pail on this occasion. He would not admit that it was a common occurrence for men to frequent the cellar of the pool-room for drinking purposes.

MEMORY WAS BAD.

Vance Wilson did not recollect frequenting the pool-room on the day in question. Neither had he any knowledge of having been drinking on the premises during the past three weeks.

"Probably a week up in gaol would refresh your memory," suggested the Chief.

Chief—"Haven't you been on picket duty at the place?"

Witness—"No, never."

Witness would not swear that he was present on Thursday, April 11th, and that he was a party to the drinking which was going on in the basement of the premises.

Chief—"Whom were you served?"

Witness—"On Saturday night last."

Chief—"Do you remember saying to the officer who served you: 'I got an invitation, but you wont get much out of me?'"

Witness—"I don't remember."

William Fallen gave indications of being possessor of a better memory than the previous witness. He emphatically denied having consumed liquor in the defendant's cellar.

EVIDENCE FOR DEFENCE.

Joseph Levasseur, defendant in the case, gave evidence to the effect that he was not aware of the drinking which was reported to be going on in

Canadian Pacific's New Scheme

The Canadian Pacific Railway has adopted a great scheme for colonization of the Company's land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, which will doubtless prove a further attraction to farmers in the United States, who are now living on rented farms. In many of the middle states of the United States, particularly Iowa, Illinois and Michigan, there are a large number of farmers living on rented farms, and paying rents of from $8.00 to $12.00 per acre per annum, and the scheme of the C.P.R. will prove one of interest to this class of farmer.

As a class these farmers have not much capital, but large families, good equipment and large, valuable agricultural experience. It has been found hard to move these people to Western Canada, because after they are required to pay their first instalment on the purchased land, they have not sufficient capital to provide necessary buildings to house their families and stock. Farmers of this class the C.P.R. believe, will prove most successful in the west and to enable the Land Department of the Company the following scheme has been adopted:

In order to carry out to a successful issue in selecting applicants, only married men with families actually engaged in farming, a rented farm will be taken. These of their own free will, will be required to own, free of encumbrance, sufficient furniture, horses, cows, other live stock and farm implements to enable them to go into immediate occupation of and improve their farms. They will be required to have sufficient cash capital to make their first payment (one tenth) on land purchased and to cover cost of upkeep of their families for one year. Further, the aplicant will be required to make a personal visit to the west and make their own selection of a farm. To applicants having these qualifications, and complying with the above requirements, it is proposed to make a loan of $2,000 for a period of ten years at 6 per cent. interest per annum on the following conditions: The full amount of the loan will be added to the list price of the land and repaid annually with instalments of principal and interest on land contract. The amount of the loan will be expended in completing the following improvements: The erection of a house from one of the standard plans of the houses erected by the Company on "ready made" farms; the erecting of a barn from one of the standard barns erected by the company on "ready-made" farms; the fencing of the farm; providing a well and pump; the cultivation and cropping of, at least, fifty acres of the farm.

It is proposed that the buildings on the farms shal lbe erected by the Company through the organization now employed in erecting buildings on "ready-made" farms, but that in connection with other work, the farmer and his family shall be as fully employed as possible and paid current rate for the work done. On this work the C.P.R. propose to spend half a million of dollars which will enable the company to move two hundred and fifty farmers on this basis as an experiment, and this will result in getting the class of colonists wanted for Canada.

THE MEMORIAL SERVICE

The solemn memorial service in St. John's last night to the memory of the victims of the Titanic, was unique from several points of aspect. It was unique for the occasion that called it forth, the greatest marine disaster in history; it was unique as an evidence of the reality of human sympathy and the reality of the bond of human brotherhood; it was unique, in that it confounded for the moment in one great sea of sympathy, all conventional distinctions; brought together, with a common object and common feeling, all sorts and conditions of men, levelled all denominational diversities, and the whole great congregation were simply Christians, doing together a Christian duty and enjoying together a glorious Christian privilege; it was unique in the great lessons it taught or brought to bear with solemn emphasis and directness. The funereal music ;the appealing solemnity of the supremely solemn liturgy of the dead, the aura of sadness from the nearness of great disaster, and widespread bereavement that filled the sacred building, all combined to make the occasion a memorable one, and memorial in a twofold sense. The sermon of the preacher was an eloquent and effective application of the lessons brought home by the great disaster; it was God moving in his mysterious way to rebuke the sinful pride of man, and the sinful ambition of man to achieve his ends and break divine laws with impunity. The Titanic disaster was a human holocaust offering on the altar of human haste. The heroism developed by the tragedy, the chivalric spirit awakened and revived were worthy of, the highest traditions of the British race and in literal obedience to the noble, talismanic, and steadying injunction at the time—"Be British." The service was not a display it was a solemn religious act of worship, and its influence and its teachings will take a deep and abiding place in the hearts of all who were privileged to take a share in it. As the preacher remarked at the beginning of the sermon, looking over the immense congregation which crowded every inch of space, they were close together physically, as they were in spirit, and doubtless the service will tend to keep our citizenship closer together in heart and mind and sympathy and in deepened sense of the universal kinship in human brotherhood.

SECRET MARRIAGES.

The Kingston Standard, does not think much of the idea that public notice should be given of an intended marriages. It says:

> "It should rest with the parties most interested to decide just how much publicity should be given a marriage."

Our contemporary takes a wrong view when it implies that marriage is a private matter, personal, and the concern only of the parties to the marriage. It is much more than that; it is a matter of concern to the state and to society. The quality of the citizenship of the state depends upon the marriage of privatse individuals and the living fruits of such marriages. Whether the quality of the latre be good or bad, makes all the difference possible in the composition of society and the citizenship of the state. Our forefathers, who were wiser in many things, than we of this generation, though not perhaps so "progressive" and swift, required the publication of banns as an indispensable preliminary and pre-requisite of marriage. St. Paul, though a persistent celibate, declared that "marriage is honourable" and the rider he adds has much greater chance of realization if undue secrecy, which in the abstract argues something wrong, is not had. The law and custom provide for proper deference to publicity—or at least absence of secrecy, in the matter of death and birth, trivial matters compared with marriage and its influence upon society. Secret marriages have a potentiality of harm in that they conduce to the marriage of persons physically and morally unfit to undertake the responsible and supremely important matter of reproducing the race. In the interests of society and the state, there are marriages that should not be permitted, and it is not a good way to reach the stage of larger state supervision over marriage by maintaining too great secrecy.

THE UNRULY MEMBER.

The Ottawa Journal (Conservative), has this remark to make:

> "If Sir James Whitney were running a newspaper and wrote as he talks, either the lawyers or the police would be busy—or both."

This is the straight truth from a candid follower. It is well known that the utterances of a member of parliament in his place in the house are privileged; that he can utter slanders, impute motives, outrage the conventions that obtain in civilised intercourse, and the utterer cannot be brought before the bar of legal justice; he is amenable only to the judgment of society. The slandered and maligned, is defenceless. This is illustrated often in parliament when, in the heat of vituperation, some member makes and uses language that he would not dare use outside the House unprotected by the privilege of parliament. In fact, he if often challenged to do so, but he does not, because he would have to submit to the arbitriment of fisticuffs, or answer to the law of slander or libel. Newspapers are restrained from sinning likewise, by the requirements of decency, if not by law. Sir James Whitney is a notorious sinner in the way of outraging the decencies of debate and respect for the feelings of others. It is no excuse that he can do it with impunity under the protection which the law or custom throws round a member of parliament. It is a question whether it is wise to give members of parliament so much liberty. They should not be allowed to make, in parliament, statements, and give utterances to languge that it would be unsafe, either to their person or purse to make in public, outside of a privileged arena. Being representative, members of parliament, especially the heads of governments, should be models of good deportment, good form. We should be able to point our children to them as models for initiation instead, as is too often the case, being compelled to hold them up as examples to avoid.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Titanic, out of a crew of 860, had only 63 expert sailors.

It is fortunate for Sir Wilfrid Laurier that he not in office, for if he were some of his political critics would have put upon him the blame for the Titanic disaster; as it is he may be subjected to some censure on this score.

We like, says the Ottawa Free Press, Rudyard Kipling, when he writes of Gunga Dhin or when he gets away with something after the style of "The Recessional," or when he gallantly comes to the recue of Medicine Hat, but when he dips into politics Rudyard does more harm to himself than to the cause he tries to fight.

FLOATING PALACES.

The enormous increase in recent years in the size and cost of Atlantic liners is indicated in an article in the New York Journal of Commerce. In 1874 a 15-knot steamer cost $1,000,000, in 1889 a 20-knot steamer cost $1,775,000, in 1903, a 22-knot steamer cost about $2,750,000, and in 1909 the Oceanic of 20.75 knots, a good cargo carrier, cost $3,500,000, and four years later one about the same size $4,000,000. The Lusitania and Mauretania are believed to have cost $6,750,000 apiece. The Olympic's cost was put at $7,500,000, and the construction expense of the Imperator and the Aquitania will probably be not much below $8,750,000. The profitable life of these ships is about twelve years.

The Journal of Commerce, which points out that the shipyards of Great Britain, Germany, and France are fully employed turning out vessels of far greater size and luxury than any that have gone before. Each new one is an improvement on its predecessor.

The steamers of to-day are veritable palaces, and would put to shame the most elaborate hotels. Swimming baths are the rule now, and the new Imperator, which is to be launched at the end of this month, is to have a Turkish and a Roman bath, in which the architecture and luxury of the ancients are to be reproduced. In addition there will be a ball-room with a fully equipped theatre stage, and beds will be substituted for berths.

And yet, no matter what the size or the cost or the luxury or the safety appliances, these mammoth vessels are mere cockle shells when tested against the forces of Nature, such as the icebergs. — Ottawa Free Press.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE STORY IN ONTARIO CRUSADE

The London Advertiser has for some time, with the expenditure of considerable energy and cash, been seeking to set before the people of Western Ontario the manifold agricultural opportunities of the district, believing that these were not fully realised.

During the several months of the "Stay in Ontario" campaign many commendatory notices have been written by those who believed a good work was being done. Scarcely a newspaper in the district has failed to take up the cry, and give The Advertiser full credit for its enterprise. Nothing but praise has been spoken, save in one instance. The London Free Press has characteristically expressed its disapproval of the movement. The inference is obvious.

The Advertiser puts more confidence in the opinion of Prof. Creelman, Mr. C. C. James, the Farmers' Advocate and a number of other authorities than the narrow view of its local contemporary. There is no higher name in Canadian husbandry than that of Mr. James, former deputy minister of agriculture for Ontario, now a special commissioner of agriculture to the Dominion. He expresses his interest in The Advertiser's campaign and states that "there has been an overlooking of the wonderful opportunities for agriculture in Ontario." "It looks, however," he continues "as though we are beginning to discover Ontario. Some day we will awaken to the possibilities of this Province, and there will be great things doing."

Our contemporary reveals its acreness in an editorial, headed, "A Misdirected Campaign." It objects to a heading reading "Abandoned Farms of Middlesex Cry Out for the Plow." There are no abandoned farms in Middlesex, it contends. The meaning of "abandoned" as given in Webster's standard Dictionary is "forsaken, deserted." The Free Press cannot send a man eight miles from London in any direction, without coming upon "deserted or forsaken" farmers and farmhouses. True, the colts of some neighbouring farmer may be cropping grass on the front lawn, and cows may be sunning themselves on the verandah. In a legal sense, perhaps, the farms have not been abandoned. The taxes are still being paid, but the only use a great many 100 acres are being put to is pasturage. But since the house is vacant, the children don't wend their way to the little red schoolhouse, the chickens don't scratch in the barnyard, that farm is to all intens and purposes "abandoned." Any man in London with an automobile will tell the Free Press that there are scores and scores of such forsaken farmhouses, and it is no secret among dealers in farms. For instance, a Strathroy real estate dealer said no later than Tuesday to The Advertiser, in referring to the idle lands in this county:

> "As an example, I owned 500 acres of land near here for a good many years. During that time I often felt that I had no right to it. I could not get it worked. At the present time it is partially cultivated, but while in the days before the rush to the west five families gained a good living from this ,there is now but one tenant for the whole 500 acres."

If this dealer weer asked for a literal definition of "abondoned," he would not hesitate to point to the unworked acres.

It is this state of things that The Advertiser is trying to remedy. In that work it would be glad to have the co-operation of the Free Press and all its contemporaries in Ontario. This journal has had a commissioner visiting every county in Western Ontario to describe the advantages of the fairest and most fertile section of Canada, and point the way to the most profitable use of the soil. The Advertiser is labouring for a renascence of Ontario agriculture. Of this awakening there are already many signs. Local patriotism ought to impel our contemporary to lend a hand and not a hammer.

RAILWAY NOTES

THE LURE OF THE SEASHORE.

From time immemorial the sea has been calling the children of men. Seafaring men are lost ashore. The dwellers of inland cities and towns hearing the call come down to enjoy the cool breezes that are found by the sea. There is always life and action, even the coming and going of the tide, the eternal restlessness have a lure. People are looking for a change of scene and new places to visit each year, and Canadians cannot do better than ot spend their summer this year at Long Island Sound in the vicinity of New London, Conn. The Grand Trunk Railway System will make it easy for their patrons as a new train service will be inaugurated. A handsome booklet, entitled "The Seashore" has just been issued and can be secured for the asking, from A. E. Duff, District Passenger Agent, Room 308, Union Depot, Toronto.

ALGONQUIN NATIONAL PARK.

The Grand Trunk Railway, in view of the very large increased number of winter tourists this season, at Highland Inn, in the National Algonquin Park, are making extensive improvements to their Inn. These improvements will be completed about the 1st of May, and consist of a 165 ft. extension to the west wing, which will include some 50 rooms for guests; a music room, 30 x 30; tea room 30 x 30; billiard room 30 x 30; and a store outfitting department, 30 x 32. This Store Dept. is unique, as it contains everything from a needle to camp equipment. Tourists desiring to make trips through the park, can be supplied with tents, boats, canoes, fishing equipment, supplies and guide, the price not exorbitant. The rotunda is largely increased, also the dining room; necessitating new kitchens, serving rooms, etc. An additional room for the use of children and nurses, will be built, and the guides are to have a separate establishment. With a new icehouse, cold storage, enlarged dancing hall, and other alterations referred to, will make this Inn one of the most complete and perfect in the lake and mountain parts of Ontario. A large toboggan slide will also be constructed during the summer. During the winter, tourists from all over Canada have made use of the hotel, and the daily average guests from 18 to 25, and it is pleasing to note that most of these guests are from our own and other Canadian Cities.

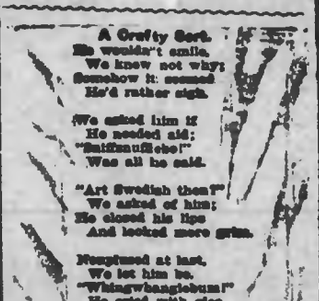
ATTEND MASS IN A BODY.

The members of the T. A. S., marshalled by Messrs. J. J. Hickey and P. O'Donnell attended Mass and Holy Communion, at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, in a body. The turnout was one of the largest in the history of the society, and a special feature of the event was the number of boys who attended. The singing was led by a choir made up of a number of the men. Mr. Albert New was soloist. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor officiated at Mass, and in addressing the congregation, he urged upon it the advisability of adhering to the pledge. Prayers were said for, and reference made to, the victims of the recent marine disaster. As is customary, the men renewed their pledge.



A Crafty Sort.

He wouldn't smile.
We knew not why;
Somehow it seemed
He'd rather sigh.

We asked him if
He needed aid;
"Saltmanufiche!"
Was all he said.

"Art Swedish then?"
We asked of him;
He closed his lips
And looked more grim.

Nonplussed at last,
We let him be.
"Whingwhangleburn!"
He cried with glee.

Yiddish or Dutch,
Cheotaw or Greek,
He'd found a tongue
We couldn't speak.

But later learned
He called it, "spoofing."
A ruse to fend
All bores a-hoofing.

MANAGER TEMPLIN HERE DELIGHTED WITH HIS SQUAD

Says the Other Canadian League Teams Will Have to Hustle all the way---Men Will Report Here for Spring Training a Week From Wednesday

Manager Curtis Templin, of the Peterborough Ball Club, arrived in the city this morning, and will remain here until the opening of the season. The Peterborough leader is fit and well and announces himself as ready to jump into the game to-morrow if necessary. He has been working out regularly and is in the best of condition. The same is true of the other members of his squad, who have been systematically getting into shape ever since the weather allowed them an opportunity of doing so.

Manager Templin is enthusiastic over the bunch he has signed up to represent Peterborough. "I am not given to much prophesying," he remarked to the Examiner, "but I will have a fine little team, and the other Canadian League clubs will have to hustle. That is all I have to say in that regard."

Catcher Frank Mooney, of Pittsburg, is the latest addition to the Peterborough roster, and his acquisition will mean that one of the other catchers will be let go without being brought to Peterborough.

Speaking of his team, Manager Templin stated that he has seven pitchers signed, and has practically landed another pair. The four best will be kept; at present they all look good to the manager, and he says he will have his hands full weeding them out. All will be brought to Peterborough for a trial except Pitcher Bryan Nork, of Dickenson College, who cannot report until the end of May.

The first base candidates have narrowed down to Frank Dolan and R. A. Connolly, both of whom will report here next week. First Baseman Rotherberger will be let go because he has not taken pains to keep in shape. Templin is bound to have men who do not drink of dissipate, and those who do not come up to the standard will be chased.

Infielders Tully, Hartman and Ulmer, Outfielders Schwartz and Beard, the three catchers, Trout, Brodo and Mooney, and Pitchers Baker, Scull, Davis Bartlett, Schaeffer and Green will be the other members of the squad. Outfielder Johnston, of the Beaches League, Toronto, and Third Baseman Bennie, of Hamilton, will also report to Manager Templin here for a try out, and any local players who wish to get into the game will be welcomed.

The executive of the club had a meeting Saturday night, and decided to call the team the "White Caps." The schedule was investigated, and the local management are satisfied with the draft which they think is as satisfactory as could be made under the circumstances. The appointment of a secretary was left over for the present.

The Peterborough players will report here a week from Wednesday. Manager Templin is already arranging the details of their transportation.

REV. ROLLINS ON BASEBALL

Refers to The Peterboro Canadian League Team

Rev. Mr. Rollins of St. Andrew's church, referred to the Peterborough baseball team, in his sermon last night, in connection with the memorial service for the Titanic victims.

Mr. Rollins quoted Henry Newbolt's poem "Play up Play up! and play the Game!" and continued: We in Peterborough are going to have a brand new set of heroes this summer. Most of them we have not seen. Most of them have never been within a hundred miles of our city. As yet they know nothing about us; but they are to be our heroes. We are to stand upon our tip-toes and "root" for them. We are to carry them off the field, shoulders high, when they win. They are to take our name up and down the land. Now, I am not a "knocker," I believe in sport. Base ball is good sport. All that I ask is that they "play up! and play the game!" Clean living and clean sport, and if they don't give us that let us keep to the heroes who are heroes indeed. The heroes of the "Titanic" and of the Birkenhead, and all the other heroes who are the product of the best traditions of our race.

BAYLEY AND ALLEN TO FIGHT

CALGARY, APRIL 22. — The championship battle between Joe Bayley and Billy Allen is coming closer every day.

Bassano has been selected as the site for the fight on account of its central position and the hearty support promised the promoter by the citizens of this enterprising town. The officials of Bassano have decided to make this the most interesting event that has ever taken place in the West, and it will be absolutely on the level and handled by honest and square upright officials. The town is a live sport centre and is not backward in giving the Province of Alberta something that is above the ordinary and at the same time beyond reproach. One particular thing about this bout will be the fact that three Canadian boxers will appear in the ring and each one a champio. Tommy Burns, champion of Great Britain and ex-chapion of the world, will referee the bout. Tommy is now a live feautre in the ring himself and has challenged Johnson to meet him for the championship of the world. Billy Allen is the lightweight chapion of Canada, and Joe Bayley is the champion of Western Canada. Burns was born at Hanover, Ontario; Billy Allen was born at Ottawa, and Joe Bayley was born at Victoria, B. C. It is perhaps the first time in the history of the ring, in Canada, that such noted boxers have been in the ropes, all at the same time.

Bayley is having his hand attended to at the coast, and he will be in shape to train in about two weeks. He writes to the promoter to the effect that he will box with all that is in him on June 28th, and he is confident he will wi the belt. The people of Victoria are backing him strong, and several will accompany him to Bassano to see the bout. The stake accepted by Billy Allen to meet Joe Bayley is the largest that has ever been offered for a lightweight contest in Canada. The reason that such a large sum had of be guaranteed is on account of the difficulty to get Allen to come out West. He took the trip on a previous occasion to Winnipeg and got nothing for his trouble, and when it was decided he must meet Bayley, or give up the championship belt he asked for a big figure, and got it. Bayley has also been guaranteed a good round sum.

WITH THE GOLFERS

While no one will maintain for a moment that it is possible to learn golf by reading books on the subject, every enthusiast should supplement his practical work by reading authorities like Braid, Travis, Vardon and others. None of them is a theorist, for all have won championships innumerable and all write intelligently and clearly. All emphasize the necessity of careful putting, which seems so simple and which is so difficult at times.

Here is a pointer which may prove of inestimable value to the putter. The shorter the club or the shot the nearer the right foot is advanced toward the straight line leading from the hole through the centre of the ball to a point to the right of you. Another important essential, as has been pointed out in this column is the absence of any movement of the body. All motion is from the wrists or, at most, the forearm. Look at the back of the ball and keep the head down till after the ball is well on toward the hole. There are various ways of hitting the ball, including the straight shot, the dragged, the blocked, the follow through and all the varieties of sliced, puffed and cut shots. Once you learn to hit the ball right and truly, these things are merely a question of practice, just like the English in billiards, or the throwing of a curved baseball.

Jack White is one of the famous British professional golfers who won a national championship largely because he took only one or two putts on every green. Here is a point from him: "My method of taking a putter back is to do so entirely with the wrists. My wrists do not move backward or away from the ball. The club is taken back by the wrists as a centre. But after the ball has been struck, the wrists go forward, slightly moving in the direction of the line of the hole".

Horace Hutchinson, a well known writer on golf has this to say: "Take your putter home and try putting on the floor. Imagine the ball to be on a certain spot on one line of the carpet or boards, and try to see how you can most easily put the putter head working along the line both to the right and left of the line. If the putter head is moving straight when it meets the ball, the ball will not go crooked. On the green select a daisy or blade of grass and make up your mind that if you can get the ball over it that you will be in. If you have an index of this kind near your ball you will find it less disturbing to glance at it in adjusting your aim than to be constantly looking up at a comparatively far-off hole."

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

It begins to look as if the Canadian league schedule as drawn up by Secretary Robinson and sent to each club this week for approval, will have the necessary O. K. stamp marked on it. Berlin is the first club to be heard from, and Secretary Rhodes has pronounced the draft as an excellent piece of work. He takes but one objection, and that is a minor one, Berlin being scheduled at home for ten games in a row from June 12 to June 20. This is practically necessary, as the Dutchmen are on the road continually from May 24 to June 6, owing to the fact that their grounds will not be ready until that date. The Hamilton club is well pleased with the dates allotted to them, as are the London directors, and, barring the complaint from Guelph to the effect that Guelph is scheduled to open in London instead of Hamilton, as they desired, no kick has as yet been made. The Guelph complaint is groundless. The opening game in London should prove just as good as the opening in Hamilton. And in addition the schedule calls for Peterborough to open in Hamilton, for the simple reason that it would hardly do to have the Petes jump direct from their home town to London for the opening games. This would be necessary if Guelph was given the Hamilton opening.

Fully twenty of the Hamilton players are expected to report to Manager Lee on Wednesday or Thursday of next week. This squad will include Killilea, Hess, Schilling, Teed, Rose, Keenan, Garlow, Farrell, Corns and Martin, who are expected to prove regulars this season, and with morning and afternoon practices scheduled for Thursday and Friday and a morning workout on Saturday, there is no doubt but that a fairly strong team will be put on the field for the first exhibition game, which is scheduled for Saturday afternoon with the Royal Canadians of Toronto as the attraction. This team will have four Hamilton boys now living in Toronto, on the line-up and the local fans, in addition to the opportunity to size up some of the local squad will get their chance to see what improvement has taken place in Hughie Brennan, Dick Beattie, Charley Gage and Kid Graham, the latter being hailed as one of the most promising young twirlers in the province; in fact Graham looks so good that it would not be at all surprising to see him land a Canadian league berth this spring. He has an offer from an O. and P. league club, but would prefer to remain near home, and if his work next Saturday is as good as his friends claim, he will likely get his chance.

Hamilton Spectator:

With Knotty Lee already on the job in Hamilton, Manager Louis Cook reporting in Ottawa a couple of days ago, Rube Deneau getting things ready at his home in Windsor where the Dutchmen will train, Old Folks Templin expected in Peterborough any day, Frank Bowerman joining London at once, Geo. Needham reporting in Guelph, Monday, and Amby Kane due in Bradford next week, it but remains for St. Thomas to announce who has received the managerial appointment in that city, for all the Canadian league leaders will be down to business before another week has passed. With the exception, perhaps, of St. Thomas, all the teams are now in shape for the players to report, and May 1st will see each town represented by a large squad of ball chasers, with two weeks ahead of them in which to get ready, and at the same time affording the fans in each center their first opportunity to size up the calibre of a team which will represent them when the Canuck circles swings open on May 14.

If Manager Templin is coming to Peterborough with the expectation of having his merry crew do their spring training stunts at Riverside Park, the Peterborough leader is doomed to a big disappointment. They might play water polo or have swimming races, or hold a regatta, but baseball; for a while at least, is out of the question. Old Father Otonabee has turned the ball yard into a beautiful expanse of rippling water. The only land left in sight in the enclosure is a small patch in left field, back of third base. Diamond and outfield are completely submerged and around second base a flock of gulls were swimming yesterday afternoon when an Examiner reporter took a survey of the park. You could have paddled a canoe over most of the grounds. So rapidly has the river risen in the past few days, that the park has been flooded from the west side as well as from the south. If, as some people claim, the flood has not reached its height yet, nor will not for some time, it begins to look as if the grounds across the river will not be available for opening the season here at the time called for. Of course, that is a month away yet, and everything may be serene before that time. Here's hoping; anyway.

Ottawa Journal:

Louie Cook, like Frank Shaughnessy, prefers college men on his team. "Other things being equal, or even if the college man is a little bit inferior to the other player, I prefer him," says Louie. "A college man is easier to handle, he has the college spirit of trying to win all the time, and takes an interest in the team's success. You can count on a college man trying all the time to win, while I have seen some ball players who didn't care whether the team won or lost, so long as they got a couple of hits. That's not the kind of spirit that wins a pennant, and that's why I like the college man, even if he isn't as good."

The local manager thinks that the Berlin team are the ones to beat for the pennant. He knows Deneau, the Green Six manager, personally, and says that he can be depended upon to have a fighting team who will be in the running. Berlin won the championship last season, and are out to repeat. Down in Germantown they look upon Louie Cook's braves as the danger spot for the pennant aspirations, so that the opening game here on the 16th of May should be a warm one.

Cook will take a look over the diamond out at Lansdowne Park today, and will make arrangements to have the grounds put in first-class shape. Illinois University, from which college Cook graduated, has the finest diamond in the world, and Louie will have some experience in laying out a first-class ball park. He coached the St. Louis College team for a couple of years, so that he knows something about every end of the baseball game.

NO RESULT FROM THE FAIREN INVESTIGATION

Charges That he was Partizian in his Position---Investigated Without Any Accusation Being Substantiated---Mr. Burnham's Evidence in Full.

The investigation into the charges against Mr. Frank Fairen, storekeeper of the Trent Canal, that he was guilty of partisanship in connection with his position, was heard before Commissioner W. H. Moore last week. The charge seems to have fallen flat as it could not be substantiated by the testimony that was given before the commissioner. Among those who gave evidence were Messrs. Hugh Gillespie, Geo. Pogue, Lundy, Benjamin McGill, Cleophas Brisbois, Geo. R. Record, Geo. Moncrief, Ezekial Keller, Geo. N. Gordon and J. H. Burnham.

Following is the latter's evidence and the statement made in connection with it by Mr. Fairen:

What can you tell me regarding Mr. Fairen's action in reference to the registration of voters?

A.—I understand from his evidence in that particular which I have just listened to, that he denies that he drove more than one person at any time during any of the days of registration. Whereas, while I cannot name the particular day, I can positively swear that I saw him drive two men at a time over to Ashburnham. The horse he had was a little dapple roan animal, which I have often seen him with since, and a red-wheeled buggy. There can be no mistake about this, for I remember it well. I just wish to say that I think Mr. Fairen has made a mistake in this particular. I also saw him drive not one but more than one, but the fact that I took particular notice of was that the men looked to be moulders or from a foundry. It was about the hour of noon. Of course, it is to be understood that I stated this was during the days of registration, which I took a very careful interest in.

Q.—Did you see these men return?

A.—I saw him drive across to Ashburnham and I saw the men return. I think they were the same men.

Q.—Were they walking or driving?

A.—Walking. He was doing a land office business that day of some kind. There is no getting over that. I saw him.

To Mr. Hatton.

Q.—Taking all the hieroglypics out of this evidence of yours, we will get down to the fact that on some days you saw Fairen drive two men who looked like moulders to the Lift Lock?

A.—I didn't say to the Lift Lock. I said to Ashburnham.

Q.—You saw them coming back.

A.—I saw them coming back. I took them to be the same men. The only difference as I understand in giving evidence in this case, your oath would not be as strict as in a murder case for instance.

Q.—Was there no other driving that day?

A.—Oh, yes.

To the Commissioner.

Q.—I understand you to say you saw him driving all day long?

A.—I did and I looked him in the eye, and he looked me in the eye, and there was no mistake about it.

Mr. Hatton—"That is not evidence, surely."

To Commissioner.

Q.—Did you see him driving anyone towards the polls?

A.—I saw him going in that direction, but I did not see him at the polls. That is only a supposition.

Q.—You say you saw him drive through the whole day?

A.—I saw him in the morning and into the afternoon when the horse was left standing over here

Q.—You say you saw him driving towards Ashburnham?

A.—That seemed to be his objective point.

Q.—Was there more than one registration booth in Ashburnham?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—There was one there?

A.—I understand there was one there ,the Town Hall.

Mr. Fairen's Evidence.

To Mr. Hatton—

Q.—Do you remember taking two men to Ashburnham?

A.—Several times.

Q.—Do you remember taking two men over to Ashburnham during the days of the registration?

A—I wouldnt' exactly say the time. I think it was about that time I took two men to the Lift Lock from Hamilton's foundry under the direction of Mr. Garrow. We had a break over there.

Q.—Mr. Garrow?

A.—Yes, Mr. Garrow.

Q.—These men that you took over there, did they look like moulders?

A.—They were foundry men.

Q.—They might have been the same men Mr. Burnham refers to?

A.—They might have been.

Q.—Where were you working?

A.—Around the Lift Lock and at different parts of the otwn.

Q.— Did you drive from the Lift Lock and back?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Frequently or otherwise?

A.—Frequently.

Q.—How many times a day would you drive from the Lift Lock to the town and back?

A.—Sometimes once a day; sometimes three or four times a day.

Q.—Do you remember Mr. Burnham's evidence with regard to your doing a landoffice business?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Referring, I suppose, to the number of trips you made?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—That might have been one of the days you made four or five trips?

A.—It might have been. I would not say.

Q.—Did you or did you not take one or two men to register?

A.—I did not.

Q.—During the last election?

A.—During the last election.

Q.—At any time?

A.—At any time.

MILLIONAIRES AND PEASANTS WENT DOWN TOGETHER

New York, April 19.—Nardji Narsani, Armenian peasant, died with the Titanic, and John Jacob Astor, multi-millionaire, died as heroically.

Nahuini's widow is about to become a mother. An heir is expected to the dead millionaire.

No greater in death was John Jacob Astor than Nardji Narsani, who kissed his wife, placed her in the small boat and said:

"Maria, perhaps we never meet again, but some day, you tell our child how I died."

And John Jacob Astor, "I'll meet you in New York, dear—" but his heart told him, differently, as the band was playing "Nearer My God to Thee."

Millionaire and Peasant.

Perhaps the master of millions and the peasant Nardji stood together at the rail as the sea carried off their hope and love, but that chapter in the Titanic' tragedy will never be written; the story of just what happened when the small boats floated off and left millionaire and peasant, savant and deck hand, to wait for death.

When Maria Natsani stepped on the steerage gangway of the Carpathia she was at once the ward of charity.

The jewels—a king's ransom—of Madeline Force Astor went down with the ship. But Maria Narsani lost everything she had in the world; the linens she had made against the day of her marriage, the feather bed lining—they were her marriage dot—and Nardji had saved up $100 in addition to the price of the steamship tickets, and this too were lost.

Hays and Hawkins.

And C. M. Hays, President of the Grand Trunk line, and Jim Hawkins, perished.

Six months ago old man Hawkins died in Ireland and left his son and widow a little farm and home. They sold these and mother and son had started for America. They were going to the Northwest. Jim was to work as a farm hand.

"And we were going to have a farm ourselves some day," said the mother. "Jim was a strapping boy, was Jim. He could have been saved, but he gave his place to a lady."

Not for a day will the operations of the Grand Trunk line pause because of the death of Hays, but Jim Hawkins' death makes his mother the ward of charity.

The Priest's Philosophy.

Father McGrath, the seaman's chaplain, stood at the dock and saw the mother of Jim Hawkins and the widow of Nardji Narsani and the widow of John Jacob Astor embark from the Carpathia.

The priest exclaimed, "the great man dies, and after all, his death causes but a ripple. Those we leave behind need not suffer. A poor man dies, and the course of his death reaches out like the circles made by a pebble that you throw into the water."

There are four orphaned babies among the Titanic survivors of the steerage. How they came to be saved alone is one of the mysteries of the dark night of tragedies that will never be disclosed.

And then there is little "Master Allison," as he is registered on the official list of survivors, child of the first cabin who lost his father and mother.

The last steerage passenger had left the boat. A man with a megaphone announced that all were out.

"My Elsa! My Elsa," cried one of those waiting. Haven't you seen her?"

"The last passenger is out," repeated the man with the megaphone.

Five hundred and fifty passengers of the steerage perished as against 120 of the first-class passengers, and 196 of the second-class.

PETERBORO MOURNED THE VICTIMS OF THE WRECKED TITANIC

braver lives ourselves. Showing the first application of the words he spoke of the demonstration given of God's power and the working of His law. It was no case of blind force, or an angry God. God worked by laws, which, while causing incidental hardships, were really beneficient. In this case the public had refused to accept Divine wisdom which prescribed simple lives and no undue haste. The public demanded extremes of luxury and speed and the companies simply supplied the demand. People themselves placed themselves in the way of the operation of divine laws, and the Titanic disaster was the result. But the laws allowed to operate in this case would mercifully save many more than were lost.

New Confidence in Man.

In speaking of the honour due to heroes, Canon Davidson singled out the instance of the band and the wireless operator, Phillips, showing how magnificently and devotedly these men had held fast to their posts of duty even when they might have reasonably left it. The real religion in their natures indeed then came out, and it gave one, for all time, a new confidence in humanity. They might well not only admire but reverence these and other men who were capable of such things.

The Captain had well chosen his words to steady passengers and crew in their awful predicament. His words "Be British" would re-echo all around the world, like Nelson's. And Rev. Canon Davidson's last appeal was that men should sustain the high traditions of their race.

Self Sacrifice.

It had been asked should the women and children have been saved to the almost entire exclusion of the strong and valuable men. The answer differed with men's position, and the faculties by which it was given. According to pure reason, the most capable and powerful should have been sorted out and the weaker ad inefficient left to die in a huddled mass. Such would have been done had they been Greeks or Romans of old, but it could not possibly have been done in this case because passengers and crew alike were British, who had British hearts and British Christianity. St. George, England's patron saint, was chosen as the knightly Christian protector of women, and of the weak and suffering, and the British character and British discipline were moulded by these ideals, and we all rejoice to have it so.

With confidence, having obeyed the divine instinct, we could leave God Almighty to take care of the world, even though men of wide power and financial influence were lost. Let them continue with fresh inspiration to live up to the ideals of duty, self sacrifice and heroism.

After the sermon "Fight the Good Fight" was sung with almost thrilling effect, followed by "Crossing the Bar" by the choir and the National Anthem, and "O Paradise". The whole congregation then stood in awed silence at the 57th band played Chopin's Funeral March and quietly left the church where few more inspiring and heart-reaching services have probably been held.

The effective playing of the full 57th Band, under Mr. Gliddon's direction, was a subject of general comment. It is understood that their services were freely and gladly offered for the occasion. Some of the instruments supplemented the organ during the hymns. The work of the choir, under Mr. Devey, was also of a very high order. In fact every one assisting seemed to be at a high level of efficiency, and the effect of the service was the net resultant of general effort, and intense interest and feeling. One of the officers afterwards remarked on the novelty of the experience of trying to keep people out of a church, who were bound to get in. He had had success and had done his best, stationing men in different parts of the church, ready for assistance.

AT ST. ANDREW'S.

The memorial service at St. Andrew's Church was largely attended. Mr. Rollins took for his subject "The Sinking of the Titanic." He began by picturing the night, the sea, the ship, the scenes on board; and, continuing, said:

The night wears on. Friends begin to separate. Those who love the midnight hour drew their chairs closer still. Up above the officers pace the bridge, and the men appointed to watch peer out into the night more searchingly than ever for the wingless, wireless wizard of the air has whispered that there is ice afloat, but it must be yet a good 20 miles ahead if it be not entirely to the north, and so the great ship slackens not her speed. Twenty miles! Nay. Right in the path of man's "Titanic" a quarter of a mile ahead floats God's mighty pilgrim from the north. A Titan indeed, and man's Titanic caring not to break a lance with God's Titan shears to the left and rendress but not soon enough! The armour of the south is no match for the armour of the north, and in those few moments of grinding contact the great greyhound, the mighty Titanic, is smitten unto death.

HEARTS REVEALED.

And now the thoughts of many hearts shall be revealed and we shall know whether our civilization is breaking down or not. For, mark you, our civilisation made not merely that stricken ship. Our civilisation formed and fashioned the two thousand and three hundred souls aboard; and all ranks and grades of our civilization are to be found among those two thousand three hundred souls, male and female, rich and poor of both sexes, cultured and ignorant of both sexes.

THE GREAT TEST.

Now we shall see whether the two great English-speaking nations are building anything but material things. That they have produced the biggest ships in the world we have known for some weeks. Is mankind being produced on the same scale with the ship? We shall now see. The scene is all laid! The background is the berg! The foreground is the sea! The stage is the sinking ship. Overhead, like a canopy, are the stars! What is the result?

THE MEN OF TO-DAY.

God forbid that we should boast, but there is much to give us hope and faith in the men of to-day. No panic, no mad rush, no trampling down of women and children, no distinction except the distinction of sex, no attempt on the part of the rich to get "a corner" on the life-boats, no offer of a million for a seat, no attempt to rush or bully of browbeat the officers in charge. "Women first!" And the millionaire hands his wife into the life-boat and, unclasping her clinging arms, steps back, leaving the seat beside her to be taken by a woman from the steerage. He has never denied her anything before; to-night he denies her himself. There stands a man who has been accustomed to issue orders to ten thousand men. His life counts for much on both sides of the Atlantic; if he goes down stocks will depreciate and great enterprises may be stayed. But he is to-night under orders himself. "Women first," and he steps aside, and when the last life-boat has left he is still on the sinking ship. Most of the men who saved their lives out of the wreck are able to give satisfactory accounts of how it happened to them. One man has a document signed by an officer, explaining it all, but the men who stood back and went down with the ship need no documents.

At the close of the sermon the organist played Chopin's Funeral March. Other musical numbers were: "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" (Ambrose), by the choir.

"Safe in the Arms of Jesus" (Crosby), which was sung very sweetly by Miss Howell and Mrs. Dormer.

KNOX CHURCH.

A quiet memorial service was conducted by Rev. H. J. Keith, in Knox church, and a large congregation in attendance. Appropriate hymns were sung, among them being "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Eternal Father, Strong to Save." Mr. Keith spoke from the text, Gal. III. 4: Have ye suffered so many things in vain." All that we possess that is worth while, has been obtained at a great cost, and entailed much suffering, and sacrifice on the part of others. Neither they nor we would say it had been in vain. Our civil and religious liberty have been achieved by suffering. Jesus would not say He suffered in vain; neither would the millions who have been blessed by His sacrifice.

Through the price of suffering we have learned the richest and best life has to give. It is impossible to receive the blessings in any other way. Through the suffering and sacrifice of others we have learned some thing of the eternal laws of God, the sweetness and strength of affection, the value of sacrifice, the bond of love.

Suffering is in itself a bond, whether applied to the body, the Church or the state, or the world. The recent tragedy is our own. The sinking of the Titanic, entailing, as it did, such sacrifice of life and such suffering, has, perhaps, not been in vain. The people who died did not suffer and die because they were sinners above all others, an old belief that existed in Christ's own day, nor do we hear it stated that God is to blame. We have learned something since the time when people used to say that. That God permitted it we do not question, but we have a lurking fear that man had a good deal to do with it. We are not, however, in the spirit of censure, but of sympathy with, the sorrowing and in contemplation of the sacrifice.

The tragedy reveals to us the secret of that bond that will one day cement all antagonistic classes of society into one. In the face of the sacrifice, when stoker and millionaire stand shoulder to shoulder there is a vivid illustration that suffering and sacrifice will yet break down the barriers that separate rich and poor, capitalist and labourer.

Another great fact is brought home by the tragedy ad that is the tenacious grip of the highest ideals we hold dear. These were revealed in the discipline of the officers, the consideration of the women and children, the devotion of wives, the bravery and grace of the band that played "Nearer My God to Thee" in these last awful moments. Even though the Captain gave the word "Be British," there was something bigger and greater than Britain in such conduct Analize it as we will, it cannot be explained by education, militarism, or false national pride. Nothing less than the influence of the Gospel, directly or indirectly, can explain it. Other ations possess the same, only to the extent that the Gospel ideals have found recognition among them. The suffering and sacrifice will not be in vain if this is clearly emphasized.

Again, the tragedy has brought us face to face with the great Unseen. A magnificent vessel, the latest and best production of man's ingenuity, is anet to the scrapheap when driven against a cake of ice. That is the manifestation, but behind it is the unseen—the eternal and eternity. It brings us face to face with God.

Jesus was made perfect through suffering. So shall we be and so must the world be perfected. The suffering and sacrifice are not in vain.

With a youth who called her "Baby Mine,"
Said, "My! you look nice;"
He replied in a trice:
"Ah! you've noticed my swell POLO shine."

A POLO shine is hard and snappy black—you can put it on in a minute and, with an occasional rub up, it will last for a week.

the basement of his premises. If there was any, it was done without his knowledge. Those who were a party to the drinking brought in their own liquor. The contour of the premises being so situated that liquor could be carried into the cellar without his knowledge.

"Why do you have such a gang of fellows around?" asked His Worship.

Witness—"It is next to an hotel."

Chief—"Do you swear that you never saw beer carried into your cellar or that liquor was drunk on the premises?"

Witness—"I will swear that I never saw liquor carried into the premises, but I believe that liquor is frequently carried into the cellar and consumed, but that is done without my knowledge. I have not time to watch and chase after them."

Chief—"That doesn't occur in other pool-rooms."

Chief—"Have you ever been in the police court before?"

Witness—"Yes."

Chief—"And convicted on a charge of selling liquor without a licence?"

Witness—"Yes."

Chief—"It is nothing but a renovase for drunks and loafers. We've been watching the place for the past month, and believe that there are more drunks come out of your cellar than the Grand Hotel.

"While I believe that the defendant know indirectly that liquor was being consumed on the premises, the evidcene offered is not conclusive enough to show that the defendant was a party to the matter," said the Magistrate in summing up the case.

His Worship then dismissed the case, warning the defendant that if he persisted in allowing men to consume liquor on his premises, steps would be taken to have his licence cancelled.

The Frolic of the Frogs

The frolic of the frogs has been resumed. And such queer looking fellows they are. They should be green and they shouldn't be found on the surface of the little pools in the country fields. But there they are, most of them a murky brown and not a few of them almost black. And instead of their naturally graceful strokes in the water, their movements are cramped and stiff as if their tiny joints were rusty as their strange coat. They swim along for a short distance and then lie apparently helpless on the water. One would fancy that they were out of breath, if from the pond there were not an incessant chorus croaks and trills that denotes the reverse to breathlessness. Yes, even their song is different. True, some of them are in mid-season voice, but others seem to be using their vocal chords, if such you could call them, as if they did not know what to do with them, or as if they were not in voice and were practising to overcome the harshness. These latter fellows make sounds closely resembling the call of the mother hen to her newly-hatched flock. One might fancy they were what the small boy calls "murums," but if they are the great majority are off colour just at present. To the uninitiated, the whole frog tribe seems to have been resurrected, possibly Saturday's sun did it, and the heat of the last few days has been bringing back life. Their murky appearance, as if their outer skin had faded during their winter term somewhere in the ground, their hampered movements and the harsh sounds of many of them, all seem to indicate the one point that they are just returning to life.

Looking over the pond you soon notice ripples in all directions. The frogs are on their spring training trip, limbering up their muscles and tuning up that peculiar trill note of theirs that adds a touch of weirdness to a summer night in the country.

The frogs will soon pass through their present condition, and those who are interested in these little transformations of nature will find something to claim their attention in a visit to some wayside pool where natural life is reawakening.

Husband's Hair

How About It Madam, Is It Falling Out or Growing Thin?

Don't Lose It

Most husbands are careless regarding their hair—many are skeptical regarding hair tonics, restorers and the like.

It is only when their hair comes out in combs full that they really sit up and take notice.

If your husband's hair is falling; if he has dandruff or scalp itch, don't let it make a baldhead of him, get a 50-cent bottle of PARISIAN SAGE today, rub it on his hair every night until dandruff goes, hair stops falling and the new growth appears. Then use it every other night until the hair is thick and abundant. PARISIAN SAGE is a delightful, refreshing hair dressing for men, women and children. It will do as advertised, or your money back. WHY TRAVEL FOR THIS?

Many people travel to far distant points for a "change of climate" to build their strength.

Now does this change of climate do for them? Usually if it does any good at all, its effect is to make them eat more.

But if you need more strength and can't acord the time and expense of travel you need not be discouraged.

A. M. Sturs of Brox Borough, N. Y., suffered from weak, tender lungs and almost continual headaches for over two months. In a letter she says: "Since I have been taking Vinol, the symptoms of lung trouble have disappeared and I have no more headaches. Vinol has built me up and made me feel even much better than I did before this trouble came on."

Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy without oil, builds you up by making you eat more and digest better. It enriches the blood with tonic iron at the same time. Try Vinol. If it does not benefit you we will give back your money. McDermid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

SPAWN MAY BE LOST

High Water Threatens to Release the Maskinonge in Sturgeon Lake.

ROBCAYGEON, APRIL 22.—There is about a foot of water over a great part of the "plains" on the south shore of Sturgeon Lake, and there is no doubt but the maskinonge will run out over these plains to spawn as soon as the first fine weather comes, as they always make for the shallow water along the land to deposit their spawn. If the water remains as high as at present and then drops after the spawning is over, a great part of the maskinonge spawn will be lost, as it would be left on the dry land to perish.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

"MENTAL suffering is just as bad as physical suffering."

How few of us there are who have never uttered that bromidiom; and how very few who have never denied our realization of its meaning by our actions.

A young man of our neighbourhood, the only son of a devoted mother, was called to a distant city a few months ago by his business. Now this young fellow is apparently rather near the measure of a man than the average, and there is no doubt that he loves his little mother. But he does not like to write letters, and again and again he fails to send the weekly letter which he has promised his mother. Sometimes it comes several days late, sometimes not at all. Now, I appeal to anyone who has ever waited for the letter that didn't come, is there any keener mental torture than such waiting? The alternations of hope and despair, the futile efforts not to expect it by this mail, and the sick disappointment when the postman passes by, proving that after all you did expect it, the innumerable misgivings as to what is the cause of the delay—all together, these things wear a person out as much as hard work or physical illness, and yet all this has the young man made his mother go through, again and again, in the few months which he has been absent from her. If he saw his mother in physical pain, I know he would be very much grieved, and as for himself causing her to suffer physical pain—well, he would be as much horrified at that thought as any other man who has a good mother and loves her. And yet, doubtless, he has sometimes said—even as you and I—"mental suffering is just as bad as physical suffering."

"Why didn't you telephone me when you found you would have to be so late?" inquires the anxious wife who has spent her evening conjuring up all sorts of terrible things which could have happened to keep her husband from coming home or telephoning.

"Why, I meant to," he explains, "and I put a call in, but the operator didn't get you, and we were so busy that I entirely forgot."

Would he consider "I forgot" a sufficient excuse for causing his wife some terrible physical pain, I wonder?

Nobody likes to see suffering. Doubtless, part of the reason that we are so indifferent and hard hearted in regard to the mental suffering that we inflict, is that we do not often actually witness it.

But that is an explanation, not an excuse. Anyone who really loves those whom he professes to love will try to live by, as well as believe, that bromidiom—"Mental suffering is just as bad as physical suffering."

MADE IN PETERBORO EXHIBITION CHANGES ITS NAME TO PETERBORO SUMMER FAIR

Women's Auxiliary to Health Association Holds Business Meeting in Council Chambers. Change of Name Necessary Owing to Lack of Local Exhibits.

Written for the Examiner (By Roy Gilray)

If the manufacturers of Peterborough were as aggressive in advertising their goods as the ladies are in providing a nurse to look after the health of the city there would be no necessity for them to hoist the distress signal so soon in the tuberculosis campaign, by changing the name of the Made-in-Peterborough Exhibition to the less pretentious title: "Peterborough Summer Fair," simply because there is not enough public spirit in the 'burg to make the undertaking a success without resorting to the humiliating act of calling outsiders to their assistance.

Just to think that Peterborough does not possess enough products to occupy the small space allotted to the booths! How we have been blowing our horns, bragging abour our power, our resources, our prosperity, but when it comes to producing the goods (to exhibit) they are conspicuous by their absence.

What is the matter with Peterborough, anyway?

In the first place, if the city authorities were as interested as they should be in the welfare of the citizens, in the matter of improving health conditions, there should be no necessity for the ladies undertaking such a herculean task as providing a urse to look after patients afflicted with the dread white plague. Instead of standing by watching these faithful women plod from one end of the city to the other, two or three times, interviewing manufacturers, some to no purpose, they should devote a sufficient sum from the revenue of the city to provide a district nurse; for is it not as much the city's duty as providing coal or wood, or other necessaries to those in need?

It is wonderful the force of habit. Peterborough has been brought up with a silver spoon in her mouth, and a pair of crutches under her arms; for, has she not been supplied with parks, (one of which she wrongly gave away to the Government to save buying a proper site); has she not been provided with hospitals, (to the maintenance of which she does not contribute one cent); has she not been presented with a Lift Lock, one of the seven wonders of the world, and splendid new Armouries, (to the creators of which she turned the cold shoulder); and has she not received a Public Library, from the hands of a Yankee at that, (in which the poor man is barred from reading the latest fiction, for if he dare suggest taking an up-to-date "best seller" he is fined five cents per volume for the privilege of being "next".)

These, by the way, were not the sentiments expressed by the ladies of the Auxiliary. Instead, they were full of enthusiasm for the great work that is before them. It is now only five weeks ere the doors of the "Peterborough Summer Fair" will open to an appreciative public. There is a lot to be done yet, but they have everything well in hand. It is remarkable how the mind of woman goes out for details. In their business meeting last Saturday afternoon in the council chambers, it was a pleasure to listen to the business-like manner in which they grappled with problems involving a tremendous amount of work.

There are a lot of minor points to be attended to yet, but these are matters for which others are mainly responsible. For example, there are the outside attractions to act as drawing cards, which the ladies have asked the City Fathers to look after. And, judging from the kind and encouraging words, which heard the Councillors give the deputation of ladies that waited on them a few weeks ago, there will be nothing lacking in this respect. Then there are volunteer workers required to help in constructing booths and other fixtures, which, in London, were attended to by the firemen, and soldiers from the Barracks, assisted by other interested citizens. Another matter which the City Council were asked to look after was the obtaining of cheap rates on the railroads.

While the ladies of the Auxiliary have received splendid assistance from some sources, there are a great many who have not yet responded. Only five weeks remain, and it is to be hoped every citizen will rise to help these women who are working so hard to accomplish such a noble purpose.

The last week in May promises to be a gala week in Peterborough. Besides the general line of exhibits there will be numerous side-attractions, such as an Egyptian encampment, where lovers may have their fortunes told; a rummage sale, where the heart of every bargain-hunter will be made happy; a theatre, where a continuous performance will be given during exhibition hours; a shooting gallery and bowling alley, where the crack shots may exhibit their skill; an art exhibit by the Women's Art Association, where the lovers of the beautiful may feast their eyes; a dolls' palace, where the little girls can be happy for hours at a stretch; an orange tree laden with oranges, made in Peterborough, each one containing a prize package for all who wish to try their luck; a fish pond, where the small boy, and some that are not quite so small, can spin fish yarns by the yard; grand march every night to delight the heart of every one; and, last but not least, a high tea, which will be the envy of every connoisseur in the gentle art of cooking.

With such a splendid list of attractions is it any wonder the ladies are optimistic over the ultimate success of their "Fair". Their only regret is that they were not able to confine it to articles made in Peterborough, but as there are a number of outside concerns very anxious to exhibit they will have no difficulty in disposing of all their booths.

In all the gaity and feasting let no one forget the object for which the Fair is being held, and if we are tempted to part with a few of our shekels may we realize that it is being done for the benefit of some poor soul who loves to live a little longer.

Are After The Lawbreakers

Parties Who Persist in Violating The Fisheries Act Will be Severely Dealt With.

In view of the many violations of the Game and Fisheries Act, which have occurred of late, Fishing Inspector Watt announces his intention of adopting strict measures in the case of those who are caught fishing with nets and contrivances, other than hook and line. Heavy penalties will be meted out to those who persist in violating the regulations, in spite of the repeated warnings, and it behoves all interested to study up the following extract which is taken from the Ontario Gazette, respecting Game and Fisheries:

Upon recommendation of the Hon. the Minister of Public Works, the Committee of the Council advise that pursuant to the provision of Section 26 (a and c) of the Ontario Game and Fisheries Act, the residents of the Province be prohibited from fishing in any provincial waters except by hook and line, without having first obtained a lease or license, granting them permission to do so.

DEATH FOLLOWS THE SURGEON'S KNIFE

Surgery is the fad in medical treatment, and many doctors still recommend a surgical operation for piles. Too often the results are fatal to the patient and even when the operation is a success there is not always a cure.

There is a safer way to cure piles, a less risky and less expensive way. You are certain of obtaining relief by using Dr. Chase's Ointment, and if you persist in this treatment you can also be fully cured.

It is worth while to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, even if you have been told that an operation is necessary. Many have escaped the knife by using this ointment, others have been cured by its use after operations had failed.

Relief from the itching, stinging sensations which make the suffering from piles so hard to bear is obtained almost as soon as Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied.

Time Told by Shadows.

Among curious clock novelties is the shadow boudoir clock. With it there is no need of getting up to strike a light or turn on the bulb. All that is necessary is to touch a button and the time is flashed on the wall, after the same fashion that signs are flashed on the sidewalk. When the owner of the clock retires he turns a night dial to the ceiling, and when he presses a bulb the electric light reflects from the dial through the lens and appears, giving the correct time in shadow on the ceiling.

PROBING THE PLANETS.

An English Scientist Says Only the Earth Can Sustain Life.

Lecturing at the Victoria Institute, London, the other day, Walter H. Maunder, superintendent of the solar department at Greenwich, declared that there could be no life on Mars. The earth, he said, is the only planet where man or any other part of animal or plant creation can live.

He took the planets one by one and condemned each in turn. He even considered some of the moons, but each had some disability which could only spell death. He hesitated for awhile in discussing Venus. There was just a possibility that the sheath of clouds that covered her from the fierce heat of the sun might have beneath it some kind of life. If the Italian astronomers are right Venus always turns one face to the sun and one-half of the planet is too hot for any life, and the half that turns its face eternally from the sun is chilled to the realms of death. Mercury is in much the same predicament.

As to Mars, we can watch it very closely, and we can see or imagine all sorts of strange things, but its deadly cold makes life impossible. When such conditions as the water and air coverings of the earth are considered the difference between the temperature of the earth and that of Mars must be at least 100 degrees. Mr. Maunder believes that in some parts of Mars the temperature at times creeps down close to the absolute zero.

Mr. Maunder has no belief in the gigantic canals seen by Professor Lowell. He believes them to be an outcome of the desire to see them, not exactly optical illusions, but something very much of the sort. Mr. Maunder concluded:

"So in our own system we have found that there is one planet—our earth—that is inhabited and one other that may perchance be habitable. The others all may with certainty be ruled out of court. The earth has a claim to a higher distinction than size or brightness can possibly give it. It is almost certain that it is unique among the heavenly bodies that are visible to us, and among those that are unseen and unknown there can only be a small proportion at best so well favored. It is the home of life, carefully fitted and prepared for that purpose by its position and its size."—New York Sun.

AGA KHAN HAS NO THRONE.

But He Is One of the Most Powerful Rulers in the World.

Did you ever hear of the Aga Khan? If you don't know who he is you don't know about one of the most powerful men in the world. The Aga Khan rules no country, not even a little state in his native India, but hundreds of thousands of Moslems would cut off their right hands at his bidding. For he is a lineal descendant of Ali, the nephew of Mohammed and is the spiritual head of a large and important section of the Mohammedans of Asia. He is young, handsome, olive skinned, enormously wealthy and has contributed munificently to charities of every kind in India.

Probably there is no leader of British India whose good will is of greater value to England. Immensely rich and counting his followers by the hundred thousand, the Aga Khan stands in very high official estimation in India. His position is unparalleled, inasmuch as there is no more powerful potentate in the Moslem world in spite of the fact that he rules no territory of his own. Most of the very numerous body of men who are ready to obey his slightest wish are wealthy, educated and influential.—New York World.

Chinese in Cuba.

There are close to 12,000 Chinese in Cuba, and the census of 1907 recorded the fact that forty Chinese women were inhabitants of Cuba. Before Cuba became a republic it cost every Chinaman who entered $2 to get his entrance ticket. Now Cuba bids him welcome with little expense. He has to furnish a photograph of himself and stand inspection much as a man entering a penal institution. The system employed by Chief Menocal is similar to the one used at all United States ports. The Chinese legation is always represented at the immigration office when Chinese come and go, so that a double check is placed on the travelers from the far east.—Havana Post.

Automatic Water Finder.

An automatic water finder is made by an English firm which, according to the Agricultural Journal of India, has been used with some success in Bombay. Instead of the water witch's hazel or peach rod, this instrument works by measuring the strength of the electric currents which flow between earth and atmosphere. These currents are most powerful in the vicinity of subterranean streams.

Rabbit Fur Hats.

Rabbit fur has supplanted wool in felt hat making in Sydney, Australia, where thirty-two factories are in operation. The fur is considerably superior to the finest merino for this purpose, and millions of rabbit skins are used annually. It takes the fur of about six average skins to make a fur felt hat. In one factory the consumption of skins ranges from 25,000 to 30,000 per week.

Unrest at Canton.

Hong Kong, April 23.—Fears are entertained of further serious disorders in Canton. Thousands of soldiers have returned from the north in a state of discontent.

The governor and general in command have been impeached for the execution of a Chinese editor.

Election In N. B. Soon.

New District Named.

Toronto, April 23.—"Patricia" is the official name of the new territory or district—comprising in all about 148,000 square miles—that has been added to the Province of Ontario as the result of the Manitoba boundary settlement. The territory extends north from the Albany River to Hudson Bay.

Sir James Whitney made the announcement yesterday afternoon.

"Before this new district is divided up," said Sir James, "it must be given a name, and the name has been decided on. I have here the written consent of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and his daughter to the name being given."

Princess Patricia herself stated that she is very glad that her name should be associated with the increased dimensions and prosperity of the Province of Ontario.

SHIP SAILED PAST AND IGNORED THE SIGNALS

Unknown Vessel Might Have Saved "Titanic's" People —Fourth Officer Boxhall Discerned Lights of Steamer Five Miles Away

THE LIFEBOAT EQUIPMENT INADEQUATE

Washington, April 23.—With succor only five miles away, the Titanic slid into its watery grave, carrying with it more than 1,600 of its passengers and crew, while an unidentified steamer that might have saved all, failed or refused to see the frantic signals flashed to it for aid.

This phase of the tragic disaster was brought out last night before the Senate investigation committee, when J. E. Boxhall, fourth officer of the Titanic, told of his unsuccessful attempts to attract the stranger's attention. This ship, according to Boxhall, could not have been more than five miles away and was steaming toward the Titanic. So close was it that from the bridge Boxhall plainly saw its masthead lights, and then its red side light. Both with rockets and with the Morse electric signal did the young officer hail the stranger.

Captain Smith and several others in the vicinity of the bridge declared at the time their belief that the vessel had seen them and was signaling in reply. Boxhall failed to see the replies, however, and in any case the steamer kept on its course obliquely past the Titanic without extending aid.

This and the declaration of P. A. S. Franklin, vice-president of the White Star Line that there was not sufficient lifeboats aboard the Titanic to care for the ship's company at one time, were easily the features of the hearing.

The official was quizzed throughout the morning session on the messages exchanged between the Carpathia and himself after the ship had started for New York with the Titanic's survivors on board. Among the survivors was J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the line.

Among the wireless telegrams read into the record was one from Mr. Ismay urging that the steamship Cedric be held until the Carpathia arrived with its sorry burden. He declared he believed it "most desirable" that the survivors of the Titanics crew be rushed out of the country as quickly as possible. He also, the message said, would sail on the Cedric and asked that clothing be ready at the pier for him when the Carpathia docked. The Senate's subpoena blocked the plan.

The committee resumed its hearing at 10 o'clock this morning.

Fourth Officer Boxhall is expected to continue on the stand to tell more fully of the events immediately preceding the collision.

J. B. Boxhall, the fourth officer of the Titanic, after giving his account of the events of the fateful night, told of seeing another steamship a few miles away. By the captain's orders he had gone to the wireless room to give the operators the ship's position. Then he went back to the lifeboats, where he found many men and women with lifebelts on. He continued:

"After that I was on the bridge most of the time sending out distress signals, trying to attract the attention of boats ahead," he said. "I sent up distress rockets until I left the ship, to try to attract the attention of a ship directly ahead. I had seen her lights. She seemed to be meeting us and not far away.

"She got close enough, so she seemed to me, to read our electric Morse signals. I told the captain. He stood with me much of the time, trying to signal her. He told me to tell her in Morse rocket signals, 'Come at once—we are sinking'."

"Did any answer come?" asked Senator Smith.

"I did not see them, but two men say they saw signals from that ship."

"How far away do you think the ship was from you?"

"Approximately five miles."

Boxhall said he did not know what ship it was.

"Have you learned anything about that ship since?"

'No. Some people say she replied to our rockets and our signals, but I did not see it."

"By 'some people' whom do you mean?"

"Not passengers, but stewards and the captain all declared they saw them."

"Suppose you had had a powerful searchlight on the Titanic could you have thrown a beam on the vessel and have compelled her attention?"

"We might."

Boxhall gave testimony which will probably allow the committee to test the accuracy of a story by a steward to the effect that the men in the crow's nest had reported ice ahead and First Officer Murdock had disregarded the warning. Boxhall said the two men in the crow's nest were Fleet and Leigh. The usual quota of officers were on the lookout.

To Alter "Gigantic" Plans.

London, April 23.—It is understood that the plans of the White Star Gigantic, which is now being built at Belfast, and which was to have been 1,000 feet in length, will be modified. It is probable that the new plans will provide for double cellular bottom and sides, such as the Mauretania and Lusitania have as a stipulated condition of receiving the Government subsidy.

The Olympic has been provided with 4 collapsible boats and will carry 16 additional lifeboats.

"Thunderer" Counsel Caution.

London, April 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Times deprecates strongly the growing tendency on both sides of the Atlantic to prejudice the circumstances of the Titanic disaster. "We owe it to ourselves as a nation," it says, "to await the proper verdict with something of the calm which dignified our fellow-countrymen in the actual terrors of the wreck. We shall pass no verdict, till a full enquiry has been held by a qualified British court."

Recognition of Heroes.

New York, April 23.—The attention of the Carnegie hero commission will be directed to the gallantry displayed by certain of the men passengers on the Titanic, as well as some of the officers and crew, who went down with the ship, by some of the survivors. Special attention is to be given the heroism of Major Archibald Butt, aide to President Taft.

It was reported yesterday that the Carnegie commission was already considering detailing investigators to get all the facts for its use.

British Commons to Probe.

London, April 23.—Last night's session of the House of Commons was devoted to a debate of the Titanic catastrophe, and the Board of Trade's antiquated regulations were brought into discussion.

A regular fusillade of questions was fired at Sydney Buxton, president of the Board of Trade, prior to the introduction of Mr. Crook's motion.

Mr. Buxton in reply announced that he already had summoned a meeting of the leading British shipowners for an immediate exchange of views. He had also taken steps to confer with the Lord Chancellor in regard to the appointment of a high legal authority as wreck commissioner to preside over the Titanic enquiry. All questions as to route, speed, lifeboats, search lights, etc., would, he said, be submitted to a searching investigation by the strongest possible court of enquiry, and if the Board of Trade's present powers were inadequate to enforce the necessary regulations he would not hesitate to ask Parliament to confer further powers.

To Cease Work 5 Minutes.

Montreal, April 23.—Next Thursday morning there will be an absolute cessation of work in every department of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways and their affiliating lines for the space of five minutes, as a most impressive memorial to the late Charles M. Hays. Canada, Great Britain and the United States, all will take part; also steamboats on the Great Lakes and Pacific Coast. Early this morning telegraphic instructions were sent out conveying the orders, with the time so arranged that the cessation of work for nearly half-way around the world shall be simultaneous.

HAVE IDENTIFIED 27.

Only One of the Bodies of Prominent Victims Found.

New York, April 23.—Twenty-seven bodies have been identified on the cable steamer Mackay-Bennett, according to information received here through wireless messages to the White Star Line offices. The list of 27 names contain none of several of the prominent men who perished unless it be that "George W. Widen," as sent by wireless, refers, as it is believed probable, George D. Widener of Philadelphia.

The original passenger lists of the Titanic do not mention "Widen," which apparently establishes the identity of the body as that of Mr. Widener, son of P. A. B. Widener, a director of the White Star Line. Mr. Widener's son Harry was also among the victims.

The list, as reviewed at the White Star Line offices, is as follows: D. M. Hoffman, Mrs. Alexander Robbins, Wm. H. Harbeck, Malcolm Johnson, A. J. Halverson, R. W. Ashe, Leslie Williams, A. H. Hayter, Jerry Monroe, Frederick Sutton, J. S. Gill, Ernest B. Tomlin, George Rosenshire, N. Marriott, John H. Chapman, W. Cilbine, H. Greenberg, Simon Sother, N. Colas Rasher, — Shea, George W. Widen, Raymon Artagaveytia, Nihil Schedib, Steward No. 76, Yosite Drasencul, R. B. Att, Leslie Gilinski.

A number of the 27 names in the list do not check up with the Titanic's passenger list, which leads to the belief that a number of the bodies recovered are members of the Titanic's crew.

A wireless message after listing the names concluded "All preserved," presumably referring to the non-decomposed condition of the bodies.

Annulled the Marriage.

Montreal, April 23.—Mr. Justice Laurendeau has just annulled the marriage of a young couple which took place here last fall.

The contracting parties were S. B. Wright, a student of Cornell University, Troy, N.Y., and the 20-year-old daughter of Mrs. Lillian Tremblay, of Montreal. They met while the girl was on a visit to some friends at Troy last summer, and the young man came up to Montreal in the fall and the marriage was celebrated without the knowledge of Mrs. Tremblay.

After one day of married life the couple agreed to part, and the young man left for his own home, leaving the bride behind. Mrs. Tremblay did not hear of the marriage until a fortnight afterwards, and immediately instituted proceedings with a view to having it cancelled, both young people acquiescing.

Fatality at Kingston.

Kingston, April 23.—Garnet Ellsworth, 20 years of age, was struck by the tender of the steamer Pierrepont, when she arrived from Cape Vincent yesterday afternoon, and had his skull fractured. He ran to get the stern line, and as he did the tender fell.

EVERY TIME you wipe a pasted on bifocal lens you run the risk of wiping off the wafer or thin part of the glass.

EVERY TIME you wipe the solid invisible bifocal lens you make it brighter and better. You cannot wipe off the wafer because there is no wafer to wipe of.

EVERY TIME you see a person wearing a pasted or bifocal lens the lens say over forty if a day. The absence of lines in the invisible bifocal makes you think the wearer is under forty.

EVERY TIME someone looks at you they will think the same of you.

We are supplying many of these beautiful invisible bifocal glasses and are pleased to show and explain them to any who are interested.

Crown Adduce Piece of Rope as Clue in Murder Case

GIBSON KNOWN AS SMITH

Toronto, April 23.—That the crown will try to prove that the piece of rope found around the neck of the body of Joseph Rosenthal when he was found murdered in the rear of the Hydro-electric station in Strachen avenue, the morning following Good Friday, was part of a clothes line from the roof of the kitchen of the house where Gibson stayed, was shown by questions asked Wm. Britt, 140 Ontario street, when he was on the stand at the continued inquest at the morgue, before Coroner J. M. Cotton last night. Evidence was called to show that Gibson was the mysterious "Smith" who had been looking for Rosenthal on Tuesday and Wednesday preceding the murder. It was also shown that he had been at the Hydro station when Dunkelman said that he and Rosenthal had met the men with whom they finally went to deal on the Friday night.

Chief Coroner Johnson described the injuries to the dead man, saying that any of three would have caused death and that any one of them would have stopped him as a factor in a fight.

The greatest light was thrown upon the case by the evidence of Britt. He said that Gibson had worked for the Hydro-electric until last fall as a timekeeper. He had gone out with Gibson Tuesday evening, when Gibson said that a Jew owed him a dollar and he wanted to get it. They went to York and Richmond streets and Gibson went into a store just south on York. He came back and said that he had not found the Jew This coincided with the evidence of Mrs. Annie Caplin, 161 York street, who said that the young man had come into her store and asked for Rosenthal, saying that he wanted to sell junk to Rosenthal and leaving the name of Smith. The next afternoon, said Britt, he and Gibson had once more gone to the corner and Gibson had again entered the store. This corresponded again with the testimony of Mrs. Caplin. Then they went to Bernstein's restaurant at York and Adelaide, but Gibson did not go in, saying that he was known there.

Britt said that on Wednesday night after 8 o'clock they had gone to Simcoe and Richmond streets, when Gibson went into a house, which the witness subsequently identified as Dunkelman's, to leave a note for the man who, he said, owed him a dollar. He came out and said that he was not in. Afterward they went up Yonge street and met Langmaid, who was with Gibson when he was arrested at the Hydro station in West Market street. Gibson and Langmaid walked down the street in earnest conversation to Queen street, the witness walking behind and out of earshot.

He and Gibson made an appointment with two Parkdale girls to meet them on the Friday night, but later Gibson asked another man to take his place, as he would be unable to keep the appointment. The other man went and when they met the girls, one of them, whom the witness named, asked why Mr. Smith had not come. He asked who had told her that his friend's name was Smith, and she said he had done so himself. He told her that it was not Smith, but Gibson. They returned home about 10.30, and Gibson came along carrying a bundle. His boots and legs of his trousers were covered with mud. He said he had been "out east" and asked Britt to waken him next morning.

Saturday morning when Britt went to waken him at 6 o'clock, he found Gibson cleaning his clothes, and there was a lot of mud on the floor near where he stood. He left the house that day and was not seen again until he was arrested. Britt went with Detective Cronin when the arrest was made. They were looking for Langmaid, and Britt went along to identify him. Cronin asked when he had last seen Gibson, and Langmaid laughed and pointed with his thumb to the lavatory where Gibson was taken behind the door.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA

Price, large bottle, 100 full doses 75c and well worth it too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at a low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year.

There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 75c.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps nature throw off the dullness that comes from the indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's remedies.

"See here, Jack," shortly, "are yer goin' to raise a row, or come along quiet?"

As though the words had aroused him from a bad dream, Keith turned to front the stern, bearded face.

"There'll be no row, Bob," he said quietly. "I'll go with you."

CHAPTER IV.
AN OLD ACQUAINTANCE

The Carson City lock-up was an improvised affair, although a decidedly popular resort. It was originally a two-room cabin with gable to the street, the front apartment at one time a low groggery, the keeper sleeping in the rear room. Whether sudden death, or financial reverses, had been the cause, the community had in some manner become possessed of the property, and had at once dedicated it to the common weal. For the purpose thus selected it was rather well adapted, being strongly built, easily guarded, and on the outskirts of the town. With iron grating over the windows, the back door heavily spiked, and the front secured by iron bars, any prisoner once locked within could probably be found when wanted. On the occasion of Keith's arrival, the portion abutting upon the street was occupied by a rather miscellaneous assembly—the drunk and disorderly element conspicuous—who were awaiting their several calls to appear before a local justice and make answer for various misdeeds. Some were pacing the floor, others sat moodily on benches ranged against the wall, while a few were still peacefully slumbering upon the floor. It was a frowsy, disreputable crowd, evincing but mild curiosity at the arrival of a new prisoner. Keith had barely time to glance about, recognizing no familiarity of face amid the mass peering at him, as he was hustled briskly forward and thrust into the rear room, the heavy door closing behind him with the snap of a spring lock.

He was alone, with only the faintest murmur of voices coming to him through the thick partition. It was a room some twelve feet square, open to the roof, with bare walls, and containing no furniture except a rude bench. Still dazed by the suddenness of his arrest, he sank down upon the seat, leaned his head on his hands, and endeavoured to think. It was difficult to get the facts marshalled into any order or to comprehend clearly the situation, yet little by little his brain grasped the main details, and he awoke to a full realization of his condition, of the forces he must war against. The actual murderers of those two men on the trail had had their suspicions aroused by his actions; they believed he guessed something of their foul deed, and had determined to clear themselves by charging the crime directly against him. It was a shrewd trick, and if they only stuck to their story, ought to succeed. He had no evidence, other than his own word, and the marshal had already taken from his pockets the papers belonging to the slain man. He had not found the locket hidden under his shirt, yet a more thorough search would doubtless reveal that also.

Even should the case come to trial, how would it be possible for him to establish innocence, and—would it ever come to trial? Keith knew the character of the frontier, and of Carson City. The inclination of its citizens in such cases was to act first and reflect later. The law had but slender hold; being respected only when backed by the strong hand, and primitive instincts were always in the ascendency, requiring merely a leader to berak forth into open violence. And in this case would there be any lack of leadership? Like a flash his mind reverted to "Black Bart." There was the man capable of inciting a mob. If, for some unknown reason, he had sufficient interest to swear out the warrant and assist in the arrest, he would have equal cause to serve those fellows behind him in other ways. Naturally, they would dread a trial, with its possibility of exposure, and eagerly grasp any opportunity for wiping the slate clean. Their real security from discovery undoubtedly lay in his death and with the "Red Light" crowd behind them they would experience no trouble in getting a following desperate enough for any purpose.

The longer Keith thought the less he doubted the result. It was not then a problem of defence, but of escape, for he believed now that no opportunity to defend himself would ever be allowed. The arrest was merely part of the plot intended to leave him helpless in the hands of the mob. In this Hicks was in no way blamable—he had merely performed his sworn duty, and would still die, i fneed be, in defence of his prisoner. He was no fool, but only an instrument they had found means of using.

Keith was essentially a man of action, a fighter by instinct, and so long accustomed to danger that the excitement of it merely put new fire into his veins. Now that he understood exactly what threatened, all numbing feeling of hesitancy and doubt vanished, and he became instantly alive. He would not lie there in that hole waiting for the formation of a mob; nor would he trust in the ability of the marshal to defend him.

He had some friends without—not many, for he was but an occasional visitor at Carson—who would rally to Hicks's assistance, but there would not be enough on the side of law and order to overcome the "Red Light" outfit, if once they scented blood. If he was to be saved from their clutches he must save himself; if his innocence was ever established it, would be by his own exertions—and he could accomplish this only out yonder, free under the arch of sky.

He lifted his head, every nerve tingling with desperate determination. The low growl of voices was audible through the partition, but there was no other sound. Carson City was still resting and there would be no crowd nor excitement until much later. Not until nightfall would any attack be attempted; he had six or eight hours yet in which to perfect his plans. He ran his eyes about the room searching for some spot of weakness. It was dark back of the bench, and he turned in that direction. Leaning over, he looked down on the figure of a man curled up, sound asleep on the floor. The fellow's limbs twitched as if in a dream, otherwise he might have deemed him dead since his face was buried in his arms. A moment Keith hesitated; then he reached down and shook the sleeper, until he aroused sufficiently to look up. It was the face of a coal-black negro. An instant the fellow stared at the man towering over him, his black lips parted, his eyes full of sudden terror. Then he sat up, with hands held before him as though warding off a blow.

"Fo' de Lawd's sake," he managed to articulate finally, "am dis sho' yo, Massa Jack?,'

Keith, to whom all coloured people were much alike, laughed at the expression on the negro's face.

"I reckon yer guessed the name, all right, boy. Were you the cook of the Diamond L?"

"No, sah, I nebber cook no di'onds. I'se ol' Neb, sah."

"What"

"Yes, sah, I'se de boy dat libbed wid ol' Missus Caton durin' de wah. I ain't seen yo', Massa Jack, sence de day we buried yo' daddy, ol' Massa Keith. But I knowed yo' de berry minute I woke up. Sho', yo' 'members Neb, sah?"

It came to Keith now in sudden rush of memory—the drizzling rain in the little cemetery, the few neighbours standing about, a narrow fringe of slaves back of them, the lowering of the coffin, and the hollow sound of earth falling on the box; and Neb, his Aunt Caton's house servant, a black imp of good humour, who begged so hard to be taken back with him to the war. Why, the boy had held his stirrup the next morning when he rode away. The sudden rush of recollection seemed to bridge the years, and that black face became familiar, a memory of home.

"Of course, I remember, Neb., he exclaimed, eagerly, "but that's all years ago and I never expected to see you again. What brought you West and got you into this hole?"

The negro hitched up on to the bench, the whites of his eyes conspicuous as he stared uneasily about—he had a short, squatty figure, with excessively broad shoulders, and a face of intense good humour.

"I reck'n dat am consider'ble ob a story, Massa Jack, de circumlocution ob which would take a heap ob time tellin'," he began soberly. "But it happened 'bout dis away. When de Yankees come snoopin' long de East Sho'—I reck'n maybe it des a yeah after dat time when we done buried de ol' Co'nel—dey burned Missus Caton's house clah to de groun': de ol' Missus was in Richmond den, an' de few niggers left jest natchally took to de woods. I went to Richmond huntin' de ol' Missus, but, Lawd, Massa Jack, I neber foun' nuthin' ob her in dat crowd. Den an' officer man done got me, an' put me diggin' in de trenches. Ef dat's what wah am, I sho' don' want no mo' wah. Den after dat I jest natchally drifted. I reckon I libbed 'bout everywhar yo' ebber heard ob, fo' dar want no use ob me goin' back to de East Sho'. Somebody said dat de West am de right place fo' a nigger, an' so I done headed west."

He dropped his face in his black hands, and was silent for some minutes, but Keith said nothing, and finally the thick voice continued:

"I tell yo', Massa Jack, it was mighty lonely fo' Neb dem days. I didn't know whar any ob yo' all was, an' it wan't no fun fo' dis nigger bein' free dat away. I got out ter Independence, Missouri, an' was roustaboutin' on de ribber, when a couple ob men come along what wanted a cook to trabbel wid 'em. I took de job, an' dat's what fetched me here ter Carson City.

"But what caused your arrest?"

"A conjunction ob circumstances, Mars Jack; yes, sah, a conjunction ob circumstances. I got playin' pokah ober in dat 'Red Light,' an' I was doin' fine. I reckon I'd cleaned up mo'n a hundred dollars when I got sleepy, an' started fo' camp. I'd most got dar w'en a bunch ob low white trash jumped at me. It made me mad, it did fo' a fact, an' I reckon I carved some ob 'em up befo' I got away. Ennyhow, de marshal come down, took me out ob de tent, an' fetched me here, an' I ben here ebber sence. I wan't goin' ter let no low down white trash git all dat money."

"What became of the men you were working for?"

"I reckon dey went on, sah. Dey had 'portent business, an' wouldn't likely wait 'roun' heer jest ter help a nigger. Ain't ennybody ben here ter see me, nohow, fan' I 'spects I'se eradicated from dey mem'ry—I 'spects I is."

CHAPTER V.
THE ONE WAY.

Keith said nothing for some moments, staring up at the light stealing in through the window grating, his mind once again active. The eyes of the black man had the patient look of a dog as they watched; evidently he had cast aside all responsibility, now that this other had come. Finally Keith spoke slowly:

"We are much the same position, Neb, and the fate of one is liable to be the fate of both. This is my story"—and briefly as possible, he ran over the circumstances which had brought him there, putting the situation clear enough for the negro's understanding, without wasting any time upon detail. Neb followed his recital with bulging eyes, and an occasional exclamation. At the end he burst forth:

"Yo' say dar was two ob dem white men murdered—one an ol' man wid a grey beard, an' de odder 'bout thirty? Am dat it, Massa Jack, an' dey had fo' span ob mules, an' a runnin' boss?"

"Yes."

"An' how far out was it?"

"About sixty miles."

"Oh, de god Lawd!" and the negro threw up his hands dramatically. "Dat sutt'nly am my outfit! Dat am Massa Waite an' John Sibley."

"You mean the same men with whom you came here from Independence?"

Neb nodded, overcome by the discovery.

"But what caused them to run such a risk?" Keith inaisted. "Didn't they know the Indians were on the war path?"

"Sho'; I heard 'em talkin' 'bout dat, but Massa Waite was jest boun' foh to git movin'. He didn't 'pear to be 'fraid ob no Injuns; reck'ned dey'd nebber stop him, dat he knowed ebbery chief on de plains. I reck'n dat he did, too."

"But what was he so anxious to get away for?"

"I dunno, Massa. I done heerd 'em talk some 'bout dey plans, an' 'bout some gal dey wanted ter fin', but I didn't git no right sense to it. De Gin'ral, he was a mighty still man."

"The General? Whom do you mean? Not Waite?"

"John Sibley done called him dat."

Then Keith remembered—just a dim, misty thread at first, changing slowly into a clear recollection. He was riding with despatches from Longstreet to Stonewall Jackson, and had been shot through the side. The first of Jackson's troops he reached was a brigade of North Carolinians, commanded by General Waite—General Willis Waite. He had fallen from his horse at the outposts, was brought helpless to the General's tent, and another sent on with the papers. And Mrs. Waite had dressed and bandaged the wound. That was where he had seen that woman's face before, with its haunting familiarity. He drew the locket from beneath his shirt, and gazed at the countenance revealed, with new intelligence. There could be no doubt—it was the face of her who had cared for him so tenderly in that tent at Manasses before the fever came and he had lost consciousness. And that, then, was Willis Waite lying in that shallow grave near the Cimmaron Crossing, and for whose death he had been arrested. 'Twas a strange world, and a small one. What a miserable ending to a life like his—a division commander of the Army of Northern Virginia, a Lieutenant-Governor of his State. What strange combination of circumstances could ever have brought such a man to this place, and sent him forth across those Indian-scouted plains? Surely nothing ordinary. And why should those border desperadoes have followed, through sixty miles of desolation, to strike him down? It was not robbery, at least in the ordinary sense. What then? And how was "Black Bart" involved? Why should he be sufficiently interested to swear out a warrant, and then assist in his arrest? There must be something to all this not apparent upon the surface—some object, some purpose shrouded in mystery. No mere quarrel, no ordinary feud, no accident of meeting, no theory of commonplace robbery, would account for the deed, or for the desperate efforts now being made to conceal it.

Suffered With Nerve Trouble For Two Years.

IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE FOR HIM TO SLEEP.

Diseases of the nervous system are very common. All the organs of the body may be sound while the nervous system alone may be diseased, therefore it is necessary for anyone suffering from any nervous trouble to procure a remedy which will at once quieten the nerves and build up the system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will do this for you, providing you give them a fair trial.

Mr. Chas. W. Wood, Montreal, Que., writes:—"For two years I had suffered with nerve trouble, and it was impossible for me to sleep. It did not matter what time I went to bed, in the morning I was even worse than the night before. I consulted a doctor, and he gave me a tonic to take a half hour before going to bed. It was all right for a time, but the old trouble returned, with greater force than before. One of the boys, who works with me, gave me half a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took them and I got such satisfaction that I got another box, and before I finished it I could enjoy sleep from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m., and now feel good."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hiss, Bredhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

Taking the rush out of the rush order

THE rush order is more or less of a demoralizer. It upsets the regular routine, disarranges the schedule and requires the temporary shifting around of employes from one job to another which means lost energy and lost time. At the risk of offending buyers equally as important and desirable, other orders must perforce be held up to make way for the urgent demands of the rush order customer. To successfully cope with conditions like these requires the use of an elevator.

THE Otis Fensom Elevator saves money in the factory or warehouse by reducing the amount of unproductive labor required to handle the raw material or finished product. It makes access to stock room and finishing department more convenient. It does away with laborious, hazardous and time-consuming transfer of goods via the stairway, and thereby saves the efforts of your employes and increases their efficiency. Because of the greater facilities which the elevator affords, rush orders are despatched with the same expedition and promptness as regular orders and the busy season no longer finds it necessary to shorthand other departments or hire extra help to facilitate the work of the shipping department.

OTIS FENSOM FREIGHT ELEVATORS

SHOULD your business be of such a nature as not to require a power elevator, we make a hand power elevator equipped with our improved steel roller bearings, and constructed in a thoroughly substantial manner. It runs with the least possible friction, and can be operated by anyone. The brake is a new design of a very powerful cam, which will stop and hold the car with its heaviest load at any point. Send for your copy of our illustrated book "Freight Elevators and Their Uses." It shows in a very simple and plain way just how a freight elevator may be applied to the practical everyday needs of your business.

"Count Your Blessings"

WOULD you be willing to go back to the standards of living that prevailed in 1812?

In spite of all the praise of "the good old days," would you be content to give up the many conveniences we have gained in the past century?

Former generations knew nothing of the luxuries of modern travel with its observation cars, individual lights in Pullman berths, phonograph recitals, rich appointments, home-like comforts, and special safety devices with which the modern railway system surrounds its passengers.

The rural telephone now places the farmer in instant communication with the source of the latest market reports, and saves him many hours of precious time in the event of sickness or accident.

The introduction of the typewriter and adding machine has lightened the load and lengthened the day of the business office.

It was Advertising that first proclaimed the usefulness of these devices, that created an immediate and universal demand for them, that established a world-wide distribution which made them readily accessible to us all.

McCormick invented the reaper and thereby made himself an everlasting benefactor of the farmer. But it was Advertising that carried the wonderful news with its far-reaching significance to the "man with the hoe."

You know what housework used to be. Realize what it is now, since the advent of sanitary plumbing fixtures, hot-water heating, vacuum cleaners, and electric household appliances. Advertising has brought these things into your home. It has eliminated drudgery.

Advertising is service. Science, invention, commerce, are all indebted to its aid. It has raised the standard of living, elevated business ethics, and put us within reach of more real comforts, more real blessings, than we ever enjoyed before.

Advice regarding your advertising is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Bldg., Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write if interested.

EGYPT'S GREEN SUN.

Brilliant Emerald Hues Tint the Sky at Morn and Eve.

In Egypt, where the atmosphere is very clear, the green tints of the setting sun are peculiarly distinct. As the sun descends nearer and nearer to the horizon and is immensely enlarged its rays suddenly become for an instant of a brilliant green. Then a stupendous green rays suffuses the sky well high to the zenith.

The same phenomenon occurs at sunrise, but less conspicuously. Sometimes at sunset, just as the last portion of the sun's disk vanishes, its color changes from green to blue, and so also after it has disappeared the sky near the horizon is green, while toward the zenith it is blue.

The fact was, of course, observed by the ancient Egyptians, and references thereto are found in their sacred writings. Day was the symbol of life and night that of death. The setting sun being identified with Osiris, that god became king of the dead. The setting sun was green; therefore Osiris as the nocturnal deity of the dead was painted green.

The splendid coffins of the high priests of Ammon frequently depict the green sun, and the funeral deities are all colored green. This association of death with green was undoubtedly due to the green tints of the Egyptian sun at sunset.—Youth's Companion.

COFFEE WITH AN ARAB.

It Protects Even Murderers Where the Cup Has Been Shared.

Describing the hospitality of an Arabian home, the "Last Journal of Hishop Hannington" says:

The great event of the visit is the coffee. The host has a kind of brazen shovel brought, in which he roasts the beans; then he takes a pestle and mortar of the oak of Hashan, and with his own hands he pounds it to powder, making the hard oak ring forth a song of welcome to the guest. Many of these pestles and mortars are heirlooms and are richly ornamented and beautifully black and polished by age and use. Such was the one in question. Having drunk coffee (for the honored guest the cup is filled three times), you are quite safe in the hands of the most murderous.

So far do they carry this superstition that a man who had murdered another fled to the dead man's father and before he knew what had happened drank coffee. Presently friends came in and as they were relating the news to the bereaved father recognized the murderer crouching beside the fire. They instantly demanded vengeance. "No," said the father, "it cannot be. He has drunk coffee and has thus become to me as my son."

Had he not drunk coffee the father would never have rested until he had dyed his hands in his blood.

Drug Store Signs.

Every one has noticed the beautiful colors in the large glass jars that stand in the drug store windows, but every one does not know why drug stores use that sign. In the old days apothecaries and alchemists were the only druggists, and they made up their own nostrums, the composition of which was supposed to be a great secret. They used to leave their retorts and jars and stills and bottles in the window to impress upon the passersby the mystery and importance of their business. The modern drug store has no use for retorts and stills, all the processes being handled by the big chemical factories, but the large jars full of bright colored liquids are still left in the window, just as they were hundreds of years ago.—New York Sun.

Population by Race.

The population of the world by race is: Indo-Germanic (white), 550,000,000; Mongolian (yellow and brown), 630,000,000; Semitic (white), 65,000,000; Negro (black), 150,000,000; Malay (brown), 35,000,000; American Indian (red), 15,000,000. This latter figure includes every variety of the redman in all parts of the earth, the actual number of Indians in North America being much less than a million. The white race is increasing much faster than the others, owing probably to its superior intelligence and scientific knowledge of medicine and sanitation.—New York American.

ASKED HER DRUGGIST TO GIVE HER SOMETHING.

She Had a Bad Cold, So He Recommended

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mrs. James Warren, Edmonton, Alta., writes:—"Just a few words in favor of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A short time ago I contracted a bad cold, and tried several remedies, but had no good results. I asked my druggist to give me some good cough medicine he could recommend, so he told me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and I can safely say I have never tried anything like it. The first dose gave me relief, and I was completely cured of my cough before I had finished one bottle. It is the best cough remedy I have ever tried, and I can recommend it to everyone."

Obstinate coughs and colds yield to the grateful, soothing action of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

It is a remedy without an equal for coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all affection of the throat or lungs.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

THE BEGGAR'S LEGACY.

It Clothes a Number of Poor People in England Annually.

Gifts of clothing are made annually in many Surrey towns and villages of Surrey to the poor from a bequest left for the purpose by Henry Smith, or "Dog" Smith, as he was more generally called, having earned the sobriquet from the fact that he was never seen without a dog at his heels.

This remarkable character lived about two and a half centuries ago and was one of the best known figures in Surrey. He was originally a silversmith in the city of London and, prospering in business, acquired estates in different parts of England.

Developing eccentricities as he grew old, he adopted the life of a beggar. His wanderings were confined almost entirely to Surrey, and he is said to have begged his way through every town and village in the county. At his death in 1631 he left all his wealth to the market towns and parishes of Surrey, and the endowment enabled each town to spend $250 and each village about $20 on the purchase of clothing for its poor.

Mitcham, however, was excluded from his benefactions, Smith's explanation being that on one occasion the inhabitants of Mitcham whipped him through the village as a common vagrant.—London Chronicle.

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOUR

By Common Garden Sage, a Simple Remedy for Dandruff, Falling, Faded, Gray Hair

The old idea of using Sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers had dark, glossy hair at seventy-five, while our mothers are gray before they are fifty. Our grandmothers kept their hair soft and glossy with a "Sage Tea," which also restored the natural colour.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it. This objection has been overcome by the Wyeth Chemical Company of New York, who has placed on the market a superior preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp, and thin, weak, falling hair.

The beauty of the hair depends more on its rich, even shading than anything else. Don't have dry, harsh, faded hair, when a simple, harmless remedy will bring back the colour in a few days; and don't be tormented with dandruff, itching scalp and loose, falling hairs. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will quickly correct these troubles, and give colour, strength and beauty to your hair.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist to-day, and prove this to your own satisfaction. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Special agent, Warne Drug Co.

NORTHLAND STORIES.

Expansion in Building in Canada is as Hi' as 264 Per Cent.

Just now Canadians are learning facts regarding the extension of city buildings within their dominion during the past year. During 1910 the building operations were unprecedented, but 1911 has shown a percentage of increase over 1910 which indicates not only a sustained city growth but in many cases a complete dwarfing of the 1910 increase, says The Montreal Standard.

A full list of cities is not given, but of the 36 which are catalogued as representative, the rate of increase runs from 2 per cent. to 264 per cent. for the year. Only four cities report a decrease as compared with 1910. One of these, in the West, was affected by a strike and is the only western city which shows a decrease. Montreal, farther east, is another, but the report indicates that this decrease is a mere pause before the building expansion of 1912 begins.

At the same moment one of the Dominion's foremost financiers, Sir Edmund Walker, has been "sounding a note of warning" regarding the danger which threatens the country, if the rate of increase in city populations continues to expand as at present, out of all proportion, and hence out of proper proportion with the production of necessary food and clothing supplies.

Sir Edmund Walker's position is sustained by reports of some of the Dominion officials, and the Senate has appointed a committee to inquire into the cause of the lack of increase of the rural population as compared with the increase of the cities.

Sir Edmund Walker is president of the Bank of Commerce which has been enjoying steady increase of prosperity. Although it is anticipated that the end of the fiscal year will find a surplus of over $30,000,000 in federal affairs, and general business is decidedly prosperous, the banker has analyzed the situation "under the surface." He points out that Canadians bought from the United States during the fiscal year 1910-11, goods valued at $293,403,000 and sold only $119,203,000, leaving the cash balance of $174,200,000 to be paid them. In ten years the total trade between Canada and the United States has increased 115 per cent., but this balance against Canada has increased 271 per cent.

Again, on the other hand, the balance in favor of the dominion which the trade with Britain has always shown has not continued to increase. During 1910-11 imports from Britain reached the value of $110,390,000 while exports were $137,158,000, leaving the balance only $26,768,000—the smallest in 10 years.

It is encouraging, however, to notice that there are many evidences that Canadians are preparing to offset this tendency from agriculture and kindred productive employments.

The Dominion Minister of Agriculture has given assurance that the Government will enlarge the appropriation for the furtherance of the interests of agriculture in all its branches.

The dairy commissioner has given a most helpful report of that branch of the "supply" work of the Dominion. He points out that the annual production of milk and its products reaches $100,000,000 and the home consumption is valued at $80,000,000.

In the same way the meat supply of the country has been shown to be falling short of the demand and investment of capital and labor in this field of production is assured of profitable results; members of the Departments of Agriculture are exerting themselves steadily and even enthusiastically in the interests of agricultural expansion, and the immigration policy of the country likewise tends to stimulate this development.

Side by side with these tendencies there is also a rapid growth of sentiment in favor of increased land taxation, which the newer provinces are adopting in their efforts to check land speculation.

A Teacher of Health.

Ontario's health exhibition is traveling around the province now, with additions and elaborations. The man who put this idea into effect in Ontario is Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Provincial Health Officer, and if you call at his office in the Parliament Buildings you will find the walls of his room lined with various new object lessons in health ready to be added to the traveling exhibit.

The car containing this exhibit is visiting every city and town in the province. It is not taken to a place, run on a siding for a few hours, and then taken away again. A hall is hired, the exhibit is attractively set up, and a number of local doctors are asked to help in explaining the urgent need of sanitation, pure water and milk, and methods for preventing the spread of dangerous infection. Moving pictures are also shown to emphasize these lessons. Sometimes the health exhibit remains in one of the larger towns for four or five days, and is viewed by thousands of people.

Dr. McCullough is greatly interested in this work. It may, indeed, be said to be his hobby; for every energetic head of a branch of the public service has a hobby of some kind. He says it has been particularly useful in showing the public that tuberculosis is no longer considered a disease which cannot be combated, but that if given early treatment it can often be conquered.

A Bright Lad.

There is no age limit to patentees. Donald M. Murphy of St. John, Canada, could not even write his own name when he produced a sounding toy, for which the United States granted him a patent. But do not blame him for his lack of schooling, for Donald was only six years old when he filed the application, and, as far as is known, is the youngest applicant for a patent in this or any other country. The toy patented by him is a simple contrivance including a bar with handle knobs at its ends and two clapper disks slideable along the bar, so that they can sound against each other, and against the handle knobs.

"MOVEYS" AT OTTAWA.

Cinematograph Men Take Everything In Sight on the Hill.

Future generations will witness the Borden Cabinet at work in the Privy Council chamber. It will be a real cinematograph picture showing the leaders of the nation taking sweet counsel together.

The other morning for half an hour the cinematograph men were busy in the Privy Council chamber before a full Cabinet with their machines, and they came away pleased at the good impression, which will be shown to seventy millions of people daily throughout the world when they are ready.

The pictures are part of a scheme by the Vitograph Co. to write a cinematograph picture history of Canada from the days of Jacques Cartier up to the present Premier.

And royalty will figure in the picture. The picture men by royal permission attended a skating party at Government House and caught the duke moving about, the duchess receiving her guests and pretty Princess "Pat" gracefully figuring on the ice with a crowd of Ottawa's best and brightest.

The Premier in his sumptuous private office was caught in the act of writing letters and dictating to his private secretary, all for future Canadians to gloat over in wondering interest.

Speaker Landry in the Senate posed clad in his crimson robe, while Speaker Sproule, preceded by the sergeant-at-arms, represented the walk from his private apartments to the green chamber. And the ex-Premier was not forgotten. He smiled o'er again his famous smile and walked down Parliament hill, all for the benefit of future statesmen, who will want to know how it was done in the year of grace 1912. The press gallery "boys" are also included and room eight, with its dozens of typewriters, roll-topped desks, voluminous blue books and diligent inhabitants performed specially under the inquisitive eye of the clicking machine.

When the history is complete, a special set will be sent to His Majesty King George, who will have Canada as she is placed before him.

Weak on Holy Writ.

The truth is out. The weakness of the large majority of the members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery is not for the Holy Writ. They remind one of Chaucer's Doctour of Phisyk, whose "studie was but litel on the Bible." In the course of his eloquent speech at the Liberal banquet to the victors of South Renfrew the other evening, Dr. Michael Clark paraphrased a quotation from the song of Deborah in the Book of Judges. "Ah, sir, the stars in their courses are fighting against Sisera." Every Liberal newspaper man present who used the quotation in his report endeavored to make it a classic, representing the westerner as having chronicled a conflict between the firmament and Cicero. It is reported to have been Sir Wilfrim Laurier, himself an adept at scriptural quotation, who first spotted the blunder of the newspaper men. Thereupon there were manifold trips to the Parliamentary Library to inspect the dust-covered copy of the Scriptures which there abides. A poll of the press men was taken on the question with disastrous results to all but the Anglicans. Not a Presbyterian nor a Roman Catholic in the Gallery knew whence the quotation was taken, and only one Methodist qualified. Seven of the Anglicans, however, at once recognized and located it, these correspondents, with the one Methodist, being the only members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery who apparently had any acquaintance with the Book of Judges. Only one Anglican went wrong, and he confessed, amid laughter, that he was brought up a Presbyterian.

Knew His Man.

The members of the staff of The Montreal Star have been selling tickets for a concert by means of which that paper aided a charitable cause.

One of them sold a ticket to one of two men who are partners in business. Then the newspaperman made a bet with another member of the staff that he couldn't sell a ticket to the other partner, who was known to be close in money matters.

The man who took the bet soon reported that he had sold two tickets to the close one and had collected two dollars.

But the man who had taken the other end of the bet was still doubtful. He hunted up the alleged buyer, who told him that he had bought the tickets and, after tearing them up, had thrown them into the waste-paper basket. The doubter searched the waste-paper basket and found what looked like bits of the tickets. Somewhat sadly he went back to The Star office and asked the "boys" out for the promised refreshments.

Soon afterwards the man who had taken the two tickets met the seller and asked why the doubter was so anxious to find out about the tickets.

"He nearly had me," said the close one. "Just after you sold me the two tickets, a friend came in and I re-sold them to him. It was fortunate for me that there were some bits of cardboard in that waste-pape. basket."

A Long Train.

The tonnage of wheat drawn by the Canadian Northern Railway in 1910 was increased in the past year by 14,000,000 bushels. During the corresponding period of 1910 only 24,000,000 bushels were brought out of the country. There is an interesting side to this statement; it is hardly possible to get more than 1,000 bushels of wheat into the average freight car, for this is allowing an average capacity of 60,000 pounds. It will be seen, therefore, that if 38,750,000 bushels were handled—the precise quantity—nearly 40,000 cars were utilized. Taking the average length of a car as 40 feet, which would allow for the coupling at each end, this total would mean a continuous chain of wheat cars holding 30 tons each a little more than 300 miles long.

When The Food Ferments

Chronic dyspepsia is essentially a disease of the intestines rather than of the stomach. The trouble is caused by the food passing too slowly along the alimentary canal and fermenting instead of being digested.

It will be found that the liver is sluggish and the bowels constipated. The fermenting food gives rise to gas, which crowds the lungs and heart, gives rise to belching wind and to smothering sensations. The stomach gets sour, the food repeats and leaves sour taste in the mouth; you feel out of sorts and are unfit for work or pleasure.

By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you can get rid of this congested condition of the digestive organs in quick time. The liver is awakened at once, the bowels are regulated and the system is thoroughly rid of the poisonous waste matter which has been causing so much trouble.

SPENCER'S CHINESE CLIENT.

How the Celestial Adapted Himself to Occidental Conditions.

The "Knave" in the Oakland Tribune has published several anecdotes about the late Dennis Spencer of Napa, who was noted as a lawmaker, orator and lawyer. The following story is particularly good:

One day there entered his office in Napa a bright looking, well dressed Chinaman. He took a chair and proceeded straight to the point:

"You Mr. Spencer, the big lawyer?"

"Yes."

"How much you charge to defend a Chinaman?"

"For what crime?"

"Murder."

"Five hundred dollars."

The Chinaman said he would call again.

A few days later he returned to Spencer's office, gravely placed $500 in coin on the desk before the astonished attorney and said:

"All lite. I kill 'im."

Spencer defended and acquitted him. —Wasp.

The United States Navy.

The United States navy consists of twenty-five first class battleships, nine other battleships, sixteen first class cruisers, four second class cruisers, fifteen third class cruisers, twenty-one gunboats, forty-five destroyers, thirty-five torpedo boats and thirty-five submarines. These craft are manned by 51,290 officers and men. According to the admiralty figures of the nations, Uncle Sam's navy ranks second among those of the world, but with Great Britain leading by a long stretch. Most of the men serving on the United States war vessels are of American birth.

Nest of a Turtle.

The manner in which a turtle constructs her nest is both interesting and suggestive. It being one of the most expeditious operations ever performed by that slow moving creature. After selecting a suitable spot she begins digging out a hole with her hind legs by moving slowly in a circle and throwing the excavated sand in a rim all around it. When that is about eighteen inches in depth and twelve in circumference she drops her eggs into it, pulls the rim of sand over them and, rising on all four legs, lets her body drop heavily on the covering sand until she has made it as compact as any part of the surrounding beach. She then makes a few false demonstrations on the shore to mislead inquisitive enemies and hastens to the sea as fast as she can travel.

CARDINAL FROCK.

The Latest Style For the Summer Girl.

CHARMING MODEL IN RED AND WHITE FOULARD.

It takes but a few yards of the new wide foulard silk for a dress this year, so simple and scant are the new models. This dainty little dress is of a spotted foulard, with a red pattern on a white ground. The bib shaped panel at the front of the bodice extends down over the skirt and widens out to form a deep band at the foot. The religeuse collar, girdle and cuffs are of red satin, matching a tone of the foulard. The hat is trimmed with red roses and purple pansies.

Advice For Business Girl.

Eat the very best food your means will allow. Remember that you are working for your bread, and after you have earned it buy it. Good food comes back in firm flesh, pink cheeks and good spirits, which make you far more attractive and successful than any garment you could possibly buy.

Drink lots of water. If you are afraid of taking on too much weight do not drink with your meals, for that is the time when weight is added.

When working do not eat a heavy lunch. Have a good breakfast, because by the time you get to your work that is partly digested, but if you have a heavy lunch you are apt to feel sleepy. The big meal of the day should come at night.

In these cold days dress warmly. It is true that woolens are not beautiful, but they keep your skin a pretty color, with a smooth, even flow of blood, and they keep you from using up your energy and power in trying to keep warm.

Don't get jaded or overtired. There is no salary big enough to recompense you for that. Sacrifice a little salary for a position less trying if necessary. Ordinary work should not overtire a woman. If it does it is a sign she is not in good condition—she is not getting enough sleep nor food nor fresh air.

Gave Good Weight.

The very latest trick of the trade was taught to the young butcher by the marketman who gave him his first employment. The old dealer pointed to trays of beef, lamb and pork trimmings beneath the counter.

"When customers ask to have all the waste that has been cut from their own meat wrapped up with their order, be sure to put in a few of these trimmings besides," he said. "Most always they want the scraps sent home so they can weigh the whole business and find out whether they are getting full weight or not. Enough extra pieces to tip the scales half an ounce beyond the supposed weight won't hurt anybody, and will give us a good name."

Shortly after that the new clerk heard one frugal housewife say to another, "Oh, why don't you trade at Blank's? He gives such good measure; often almost an ounce more than you pay for."

The clerk smiled.—Boston Herald.

Gifts For the Bride.

Breakfast sets always make acceptable gifts for the bride or for any woman who entertains week end guests. Some sets include the tray, but others require the addition of a white enamelled tray or one of wood or of papier mache. An asparagus dish with a well at one side for the melted butter or sauce is exceedingly useful. Cordial glasses with oval cups of green glass that sit down into white crystal standards with silver bases make a beautiful present. Wind shields for kettles are gifts that no housekeeper fails to appreciate. Glass flower bowls with nickel plated woven wire tops to hold the flowers are always useful.

Points for Mothers

Fresh Air For the Children.

One hour of bad air will do more harm than good air for the other twenty-three will undo; therefore keep the room well ventilated every moment of the day, vs the Woman's Home Companion. If the rooms are large and open into each other one or two windows in the proper place will furnish fresh air for the whole house. In a small apartment we must select one room where the windows may be opened top and bottom and from which the fresh air may circulate without causing too much of a breeze or draft. At any cost keep the air good night and day.

The temperature of the room should be 65 to 70 degrees F. A thermometer should hang in the rooms that are most frequented by the children and at the height of their heads. Overheating is the commonest error in the city. Perhaps the most usual mistakes in the country are drafty rooms and floors and cold halls.

Babies, beginning at six weeks, should be taken out for their airing once a day and later two times—in winter when the sun is high and in summer when it is coolest. At six weeks an hour a day is sufficient; at six months three or four hours is a necessity; after that the more the better.

The sun should not shine into the unprotected eyes.

The only objection to going out is extremely cold weather (below zero), rain or snow and possibly sharp winds. When this outdoor airing is impossible the baby should be dressed for the street and put in the carriage close by the widely opened windows in the sun. In the city it is as necessary to have a carriage for the baby as it is to have a bed.

The sleeping room should have one or more windows wide open at top and bottom throughout the year. The bed should be as far away from the windows as possible, in a corner out of the direct draft. A blanket may be pinned around the crib when the winter winds blow directly upon it. The room should be cold and the night clothing warm. This does not apply to sickly infants nor to those under six weeks of age. However, the delicate child often requires fresh air even more than the well child. The appetite is improved and the strength increased by good pure air. Sleep also is often induced by the airing. Many a sick child who will not sleep in the house immediately sinks into a restful slumber as soon as he is put out in his carriage. Of course there is no objection to sleeping out of doors in sickness or in health.

Children's Habits.

Habits that are formed during the first year of a baby's life remain with the child for many years; therefore it is important for mothers and nurses to take care to establish good ones.

During the first few months a baby should live as much as possible by clockwork. Habits should be absolutely regular. Food should be given at the same hour each day, not a few minutes earlier because he cries for it or a bit later because he happens not to cry and mother is busy with other duties, but on the stroke of the hour prescribed by doctor or trained nurse.

He should be put to sleep at the same time every day, the nap hour being as regular as the hours when nourishment is given.

If medicine is ordered, this must be given according to the physician's directions.

Mothers are very apt to give medicine, especially soothing remedies that relieve colic pains or quiet a teething child, whenever fretful baby cries with pain.

This is not only wrong, but also very dangerous, and sometimes results in serious illness or death.

Teach him that when mother says "No" she means no; that when he is told to do something he must do it at once, cheerfully, without fret or worry. Very young children can be taught to be orderly, to fold their clothes neatly on a chair, to put shoes away in the closet and to pick up toys that have been scattered about the nursery. They can also be taught at a very early age to be clean about their person. When little hands and faces are soiled or sticky with sweets have them washed at once.

Teach them to use a handkerchief and that the towel is the proper article to dry wet hands on.

Of course train the children to be truthful. Little fibs of childhood, if overlooked, develop into dangerous lies as the child grows older.

In all things establish good habits in your children while they are young.

Grotesque Toys.

The penchant for toys that are worse than grotesque is ever increasing and worse things have succeeded to the Golliwog and the Teddy Bear.

In fact, it seems that the last invention must be just the limit, a sinuous monkey that hops about in a lifelike fashion that is revolting.

Another toy which is calculated to give a nervous woman fits—the extremely realistic rat which is formed by a skin slipped over the hand and deftly manipulated.

We have a wholesome fear of the rodent in this capacity, even if we do not at all mind cuddling it round our neck and calling it ermine.

Sounded All Right.

Patience—Well, he told the truth, anyway. Patrice—How so? Patience—When he was buying the solitaire he told the jeweler it was for a sister. Patrice—Well, I'm sure that wasn't true. Patience—Why, yes; when he offered it to the girl she promised to be a sister to him.—Yonkers Statesman.

Eager to Please.

"I want you to see if you can't find out that I am descended from a king," said the man who had become suddenly rich.

"Very well, sir," replied the genealogist. "We have a large stock of kings to select from. Have you any preference?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Popular Girl.

"Yes; she has promised to be mine some day."

"But when?"

"She can't exactly say as yet. Seems she will first have to break off four or five other engagements."—Washington Herald.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Edward Beaurell, remanded on a charge of housebreaking, escaped from Stratford jail.

A bill may be introduced at the next session of the Legislature to curtail the powers of the Medical Council.

The Titanic disaster will cost insurance companies of Hartford, Conn., nearly $1,000,000, chiefly on those companies which do an accident business.

The Welland Canal was opened for the season yesterday. No boats arrived to take advantage of the fact, probably on account of the ice conditions on Lake Erie.

A brass tablet in memory of the Winnipeg men who met death like men in the disaster to the Titanic will be erected at once in the main corridor of the City Hall there.

It is proposed to send out parties next summer to make a thorough investigation as to the effect which the Chicago drainage canal scheme will have upon the St. Lawrence River.

The ratepayers of Niagara Falls yesterday voted to raise $3,000 to purchase a site for the Pollard Iron Works Co., which agreed to locate there if the city would give a free site.

At a convention of the Conservatives of Quebec West, held last evening, Charles Smith, a local advocate, was chosen to oppose Hon. J. C. Kaine in the coming provincial elections.

Four persons were burned to death early Sunday morning in a fire which destroyed the residence of Robert Adamson, a farmer, near Shelbrook, Sask. The dead are: Hazel Naomi, aged 8; Cecil, aged 6; Horace, aged 3, and John Huhlban, the hired man.

Profiting by the lesson of the Titanic disaster, it was officially announced yesterday that the Canadian Marine Department will institute a thorough inspection of all Canadian steamers and ships coming to Canadian ports, with particular reference to their life-saving equipment.

Big Decision May 4.

Toronto, April 23.—The Privy Council's decision as to whether the Supreme Court of Canada has a right to hear stated cases, will not be announced before May 4. This is the date when the ne temere marriage question comes up before the Supreme Court, and Attorney-General Foy's Department sent an enquiry to London, England, to make sure whether the Privy Council would or would not give out their decision before that date.

The significance of the matter is that should the Privy Council decide that the Supreme Court of Canada has not the right to hear stated cases, the hearing of the marriage question that is pending before the Supreme Court might have been invalid. However, the case will now be heard before the Privy Council announces its decision.

Sir James Whitney stated yesterday afternoon that the counsel representing Ontario when the marriage question comes before the Supreme Court, have not yet been appointed, but they will be in a few days.

ORDERED TO STRIKE

Thirty-four Thousand U. S. Engineers Quit To-day

OFFERS FOR ARBITRATION

New York, April 23.—Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, announced at 5.30 p.m. that a strike of engineers on fifty railroads, east of Chicago and north of the Potomac River, would go into effect 24 hours hence.

"The engineers' committee has decided that its 60 men would start for their respective points to-night," Mr. Stone said last night, "and that a strike will be called in 24 hours. This will allow 24 hours for the members to get back to their respective points; ten hours in which to put the strike order into effect and two hours in which to notify the different railroads of the intention to strike."

While a call for a strike has gone forth, there is still hope of a fairly speedy settlement, provided the railroads show a disposition to accept arbitration.

After the notice had been given by Chief Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, he received an offer from Charles F. Neil, labor commissioner, and Justice Knapp of the United States Commerce Court, to arbitrate the differences, and Chief Stone recommended to the men's committee that the proposal be accepted.

The engineers' committee of fifty voted to accept the proposal of Messrs. Knapp and Neil for mediation. The formal announcement will be made to-day.

At the time Mr. Stone gave out the statement he had not received any official word from the railway managers' committee, which had been in session nearly all day considering the engineers' strike vote, but was adjourned at 5 o'clock last night without having decided to concede the engineers' demand for an increase in wages to about 18 per cent.

Commissioner of Labor Charles P. Neil, and Justice Knapp of the U. S. Commerce Court, were here last night with the hope of getting both sides in the controversy to agree to mediation or arbitration, but it is said that the engineers are determined to go ahead with the strike. Stone accused the railroad managers of bad faith. He said that during the 48 hours' armistice the companies were getting ready to fill the places of strikers.

"We were courteous while they were what I would call arrogant in their attitude," he said.

It is understood that Mr. Stone will make his headquarters in New York City and issue at once an appeal for an assessment to finance the strike.

It is declared by Mr. Stone that 34,000 men will be affected by the strike order. Of these 25,700 are members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and about 6,500 are in the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, who, the engineers declare, will join the strike. The rest are non-union men who, Chief Stone says, have joined in the strike vote passed by the brotherhood.

The fifty railroads affected have a mileage of about 50,000 miles, doing 52 per cent. of the railway traffic of the United States.

The include practically all but three of the railroads in the territory roughly described as east of Chicago and north of the Potomac River. The three exceptions are the Central Railroad of New Jersey, whose contract with the engineers does not expire until June 1, and the Central Vermont and Rutland Railroads, both of which are in Vermont, and which have a separate agreement with the men employed, so that the result will be their taking up the wage question directly with the men.

AXE IS FALLING.

Ontario's Abolition of Licenses Goes Merrily On.

Toronto, April 23.—Licensed hotels throughout the province are fast decreasing in numbers. Stratford has just had its coterie of licenseed premises reduced from 15 to 10 by the action of the North Perth License Commissioners, in bringing into effect the bylaw to make this reduction, which was voted on by the people last January.

Those on whom the axe fell were the Dominion, the G.T.R. Restaurant, the Ontario and Victoria. These four were granted an extension to May 20, to sell out. The G.T.R. Restaurant has been a long time in existence and is a well-known rendezvous for railway men especially. The Albion is practically in this class, but has not a license at present. The application for license was adjourned for three months, which keeps alive the status of application in the event of some of the others defaulting by not making the necessary improvements during the three months' period that is allowed. Shop licenses continue as before.

The City of Kingston is also about to have ten licenses cut off. At present there are 25. A special bylaw was passed here as in Stratford, to make these reductions.

North Oxford License Commissioners have discontinued licenses at the G.T.R. station, Woodstock; at the Commercial Hotel, Embro, and at the Innerkip Hotel.

Georgetown, Ky., April 23.—Just as Isaac Southworth was inserting his latchkey in the door of his home near Lytle York, Ky., after returning from a fox hunt early Sunday morning, his elder brother, George, awoke from a dream about burglars, and seized his shotgun and fired through the window blind, killing him instantly.

Replaces "Flying Post."

Ottawa, April 23.—The Postoffice Department announced yesterday that it had decided to meet the request of the Toronto Board of Trade, which sometime ago made representations that discontinuance of the train known as the "Flying Post" would seriously inconvenience merchants in the sending of mails.

The deputation pointed out that it did not ask for the continuance of the 'Flying Post" for the delivery of the newspapers, but requested that, as the business men found it very convenient, some arrangement be made to have mails collected up to 10 or 10.30 p.m. in Toronto, despatched the same night.

This is what the Department has arranged. Beginning on May 1, these mails will be placed on the 11.20 Grand Trunk train, and early in June the time of this train will be changed to leave Toronto at 11.40 p.m.

VALUATION.

Canadian Appraisal Co.'s valuation of the seven modern steel freighters: Canadian, Acadian, McKinstry, Renovyle, now in commission ..... $ 594,033

And of the Indian, Hamiltonian and Calgarian, to be completed by 1st May, June and October, 1912, respectively 456,275

$1,042,958

NET EARNINGS.

Clarkson & Cross certify: Average annual net earnings since Canadian, Acadian, McKinstry and Renvoyle have been in commission amounted to $57,485; net earnings for 1911 were ..... $ 62,797.40

Annual net earnings on the new vessels, Indian, Hamiltonian and Calgarian, should be not less than 60,000.00

$122,797.40

The bonds are secured by a first mortgage on the seven vessels, valued by Canadian Appraisal Co., Limited, at $1,042,958. The value of the vessels is twice the amount of the bonds. The mortgage is a closed one — no further bonds can be issued. Out of the proceeds of this issue the Trustee is to retain a sum sufficient to retire outstanding bonds of previous issues, and the whole of the proportion of this issue applicable to vessels under construction, until they are completed. In addition, the bonds constitute a direct obligation of the Canadian Interlake Line, Limited.

The earnings last year on the vessels in commission were twice the amount of the Bond interest. With all the vessels operating, the net annual earnings should be well over 3 1-2 times the bond interest.

The following information has been furnished by officers of the Company; further particulars are given in the letter of its Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Norcross:

INSURANCE.

Insurance policies covering every possible loss or damage to or by the vessels to the extent of at least 150 per cent. of the outstanding bonds will be made payable to and held by the Trustees, as security for Bondholders.

SINKING FUND.

Although the life of steel vessels of this type on the lakes is considered to be sixty years, the Trust Deed provides for an Annual Sinking Fund sufficient to retire the whole of the issue within the term of the bonds—fifteen years. The bonds so retired will be cancelled, but the whole of the security remains intact until the last bond is retired in 1927.

COMPANY AND FLEET.

Canadian Interlake Line, Limited, was incorporated by Dominion charter, for the purpose of acquiring and operating the steel vessels "Canadian" (built in 1907), "Acadian" (built in 1908), "A. E. McKinstry" and "Renvoyle" (built in 1910), and, further, the "Indian," "Hamiltonian" and "Calgarian," to be completed, respectively, 1st May, June and October of this year. The seven vessels, the total carrying capacity of which will be 825,000 bushels, will constitute the finest, most modern and best equipped fleet of full canal size package and bulk steel freighters on the great lakes.

The fleet will have a decided advantage over vessels operating singly, in that it will be able to contract for freight in large quantities, and will be able to give much better despatch.

OPERATIONS.

The regular route of the vessels is between Montreal and intermediate ports and Port Arthur, Fort William and Westfort, the lake ports of the three great Canadian railways. At the head of the lakes there are now 16,000,000 bushels of grain awaiting transportation by water, and vessel-owners have refused charters at rates 1½ cents per bushel in advance of rates for corresponding months last year. The continuous development of the West insures plentiful cargoes of grain, in addition to which the fleet will be important carriers of iron ore, coal, cement, wood pulp, pulpwood, etc. Package freight westbound, for which the boats have been specially constructed, is increasing annually. The Company has valuable freight contracts, one of which runs for a series of years, and all of which promise good profits. The Company works in close conjunction on rail and water freight with the Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern Railways.

MANAGEMENT.

The Company's Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Norcross, has had a wide and successful experience as master of some of the largest vessels on the great lakes, and, later, in the management of transportation companies. He is generally regarded as having a thorough knowledge of the business of water transportation, and his important traffic affiliations will be of great value to the Company in keeping the fleet actively and profitably employed. In his management he will be supported by Directors several of whom have been actively associated with lake shipping for many years, and whose business connections will be valuable in securing traffic.

Price--Par and Interest, to Yield 6%

Copies of the Trust Deed and the certificates of the Appraisers and Auditors may be examined at our office.

Interim certificates will be issued pending delivery of definitive bonds.

Circular describing the issue in detail, and embracing the letter of the Managing Director, and certificates of the Appraisers and Auditors, will be furnished upon application.

Bonds secured by a first mortgage on modern, steel-clad freighters are held in high esteem by conservative investors. Mr. Lawrence Chamberlain, in his recently published work on the principles of Bond Investment, states that, "approximately $40,000,000 of new steamship securities have been floated and as yet there has been no default."

STEAMER "MOUNT TEMPLE" ONLY 40 MILES AWAY HEARD DISTRESS SIGNALS

Captain Moore Says He Tried to Go to Assistance of Stricken Liner But His Vessel Was Blocked by Ice Field.

A STARTLING STORY

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, APRIL 23.—Dr. F. C. Quitzran, of Berlin, Germany, who has arrived here, to attend post graduate courses in Toronto University, was a passenger on the Mount Temple, the C. P. R. steamer, which arrived at St. John, N.B., on Friday. He tells the startling story that the wireless operator on the Mount Temple was the first to get the Titanic's call for help and when only forty miles from the scene of the disaster, but did not go to the assistance of the stricken liner. Captain Moore of the Mount Temple indignantly denies that they failed to make all effort to reach the steamer. Quitzran's story seemed to fit in with that told by surviving officers of the Titanic, that they saw the lights of the vessel about five miles from them when their liner was sinking.

Captain Moore admits receiving the signal of distress, when about fifty miles eastward of the place of the disaster. He made with all speed for a point where the Titanic was sinking, but found himself blocked by a big icefield. Moore had nearly 1,500 people on his own boat, and he did not take any chances among the icebergs. He accordingly proceeded very cautiously till morning, when he got a wireless from the Captain of the Carpathia that all survivors were picked up. It seems quite evident that the Mount Temple was nearest of all to the Titanic when she went down. Moore says he did all possible to help the Titanic. He had all his lifeboats ready for launching and all hands on deck, prepared for emergency.

NEW BRIDGE PROPOSED TO LINK THE SOUTH WARD WITH EAST CITY

By-law Will be Presented to the People for This Purpose ---Ald. Buller Introduces Question at Council Meeting ---C. P. R. to Build Heavier and Larger Bridge.

The first movement for the erection of a bridge across the Otonabee connecting Mark street on the east side with Dalhousie or Sherbrooke on the west was made at a special meeting on Monday night.

On the motion of Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Morgan, it was decided to have a by-law prepared for the erection of a bridge across the river at this point.

This by-law will be presented to the people at an early date, at the same time the Exhibition grounds by-law is presented.

One Long Walk.

It was Ald. Buller who once more introduced the question. He said a bridge was necessary to link together the south ward and the southern part of East City. Working men are now forced to go around by the Hunter street bridge on their way to and from work, because of the closing of the C.P.R. bridge to pedestrians. Engineer Hay has been at work on plans and preparing estimates.

Ald. Johnston—How much will it cost?

Ald. Buller—We don't know yet.

New C. P. R. Bridge.

Mayor Bradburn—As requested by the Council, I called on Mr. Arundel, the new superintendent of this division of the C.P.R., in regard to the providing for a foot walk at the C.P. R. bridge. There is nothing doing. Mr. Arundel said there was no use in doing any work of this kind as it would only be a matter of time until the company will build a new bridge. The present structure is too light for the increased traffic. The trains are heavier and the bridge must be built stronger to accommodate the heavier traffic. We must have a bridge crossing to Maria street to relieve the existing conditions.

Mr. W. H. Denham and Mr. W. S. Davidson, representing the Peterborough Baseball Club, waited upon the Council last night in regard to the building of a sidewalk from Hunter street to the entrance to the Riverside Park.

Mr. Denham said that many citizens had subscribed toward the formation of a baseball club, but it was not done with the intention of making money but to bring Peterborough more than ever before the whole Dominion of Canada. It is just another means of helping the city.

"We are not asking the city for a subscription, but we wish to ask that a sidewalk be built over a right of way, extending from Hunter street to the entrance to the grounds. We would ask that the Board of Works build a board walk six or eight feet wid the club guaranteeing permission to put a walk there.

Moved by Ald. Anderson that the matter be left with Ald. Buller with power to act.

"MUTT AND JEFF."

Grab your wife in one hand, and the price of a couple of a couple of "sits" in the other, and "hike" down to the Grand next Thursday and see "Mutt and Jeff." Its a cure for all ills; even family troubles. The grouch disappears like mist in the sunshine. It's an aid to digestion and a sure remedy for the "Pip," whatever that is! "Mutt and Jeff" has made a dent in the theatrical record that it will take years to wipe out. It's the biggest sensational musical comedy hit of a quarter century. That's why you'll want to see it.

Golfers to Meet.—There will be a meeting of the players of the Peterborough Golf Club to-night, at eight o'clock in the Bank of Montreal Chambers to elect the different committee ad to discuss matters pertaining to golf. A full attendance is expected.

Canadian Team To Go To Bisley

OTTAWA, APRIL 23.—After a long conference with delegates from the National Rifle Association, Colonel the honourable Sam Hughes, has arranged that the Canadian rifle team will go to Bisley as usual and that the Ross rifle will be used.

Colds Most Fatal At This Season

This is the time of year when colds seem to turn into pneumonia or quick consumption and to prove more generally fatal than at any other season.

With many people one cold follows another during the winter months until finally the human body becomes so run down that it can no longer resist the attack of the germs which cause lung trouble.

The best rule is to never allow a cold to get farther than the throat, and this you can do by the prompt use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Do not wait for chest colds and bronchitis to develop. Keep this well-known medicine at hand for use in case of emergency.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine loosens a cough, aids expectoration, and soothes and heals the irritated and inflamed membranes.

"MUTT AND JEFF."

Your wife will never forgive you if you don't get seats for "Mutt and Jeff" before the house is all sold out for Thursday next. That's just what happens all along the line. Hundreds are turned away in many places. Do not be selfish; get them to-day. The seats for "Mutt and Jeff" are on sale now at the box office, where it will play an engagement of one night only.

ODDFELLOWS ATTENTION!

COUNCIL ASKED TO SANCTION FUND FOR BEREAVED

Representatives of S. O. E. and St. George's Society Wait upon the Council

COMMITTEE FORMED

A deputation from the Sons of England Lodge and the St. George's Choral Society interviewed the City Council on Monday evening with the request that the Mayor and Council lend their name and sanction to a fund to be raised for the relief of the families of the crew of the Titanic that were lost in the sad accident of the foundering of the ship a few days ago.

Messrs. J. John and Wilfred Shiner, in presenting the request, stated that they believed there were a large number of citizens desirous of helping the families of the crew suffering from the accident, and hoped that the City Council would sanction a committee to be appointed for the collection of a fund for this purpose.

Alderman Gordon stated that the object was a very praiseworthy one, and it seemed to him that the City Council could lend its name for the purpose. He was sure the Council individually, would do all they could to render such assistance. He did not feel that the Council could at present vote any money to the object without some further consideration, because of the uncertainty of the White Star Company's liability. He felt each citizen would do his part and that the matter was one that would receive the consideration of each individual citizen.

He moved, seconded my Ald. Buller, that a committee composed of Messrs. Anderson, Morgan, Graham, Johnston and Brown, be appointed to give the matter further consideration, and report to the Council as to the best course to pursue.

A number of the aldermen expressed themselves as having the deepest sympathy with the movement, and assured the gentlemen representing the Societies of their hearty co-operation.

Mr. A. Read on behalf of the St. George's Choral Society, offered to the city, the services of the society in repeating their late concert as a contribution to the fund.

FAIR GROUNDS OFFERED TO CITY AT $30,000 PAYMENT TO BEGIN FIVE YEARS HENCE

Exhibition Directors Want to Erect Permanent Buildings But Their Lease is Good for Only 5 Years —Offer Grounds to City.

CITIZENS SHALL DECIDE

A special meeting of the Council was held last night with Mayor Bradburn presiding and with Aldermen Buller, Duncan, Gordon, Duffus, Brown, Johnston, Graham, Anderson and Morgan present.

Mayor Bradburn explained that he had called the meeting for the purpose of considering the selection of grounds for dumping purposes.

Ald. Duncan—This matter was left with Ald. Brown and myself and we visited a number of properties south of the city. Mr. Smith has a lot, the third below that owned by Mr. John Williams, for the rent and care of which he wants $360 a year. This is $150 less than Mr. Williams asked. Mr. Souces has a twenty acres lot and Mr. McGregor has a lot next to Mr. Soucese's.

Mr Soucee said he wanted to sell his lot of 20 acres for $3,500. He thought it was the best the city could get for the purpose and could be made self sustaining.

Ald. Duncan pointed out that a lot had to be chosen right away, and Mayor Bradburn stated it would require too much time to purchase a lot now.

Mr. McGregor said he would rent or sell his ten acre lot. For the rent and care it wanted $420 or he would sell it for $2,200.

Mayor Bradburn—We must settle this to-night.

Rent Smith Lot.

Moved by Ald. Duncan seconded by Ald. Morgan, that the city accept Mr. Smiths' offer and that in the meantime the other lots be looked over with a view to future purchase.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Johnston that Ald. Duncan and Ald Brown b. a committee to investigate prices and to advise as to the purchase of permanent grounds for dumping purposes.—Carried.

Fair Directors' Proposal.

A deputation representing the Industrial Fair Society, consisting of Messrs. J. H. Garbutt, R. Neill, R. Denne, F. Wise, J. Storey, J. Cruikshank and others waited on the Council with a proposal that the city present a by-law to the ratepayers whereby the city at the end of five years would take over the exhibition grounds and all improvements that the directors shall make during that period.

Society Has Lease.

The Society holds a lease from Mr. R. A. Morrow for a rental of the grounds for five years, paying $500 a year rental, with the option of purchasing them for $30,000 at any time during five years after giving a notice of three months.

Want City to Own Grounds.

Mr. Neill's statements in brief were to the effect that the Fair Directors want the Councils' assurance that at the end of five years the city will take over the grounds. Thus, the city would own the property, and the buildings that may be erected during the present lease. With this assurance, the directors would proceed with buildings that are needed, knowing that the whole property would become the possession of the city. At present, the directors do not feel that they can undertake permanent work if, at the end of five years the grounds and buildings are to pass into private hands.

Mr. Garbutt advanced the same opinion saying that the directors do not feel like going ahead unless the matter is to be permanent.

A Few Other Necessities.

Ald. Anderson— I sympathize with the directors, but there are things we need worse. Two new bridges are urgently required. The Board of Education demand $85,000 this year for the erection of schools. A new park for the south end has been acquired at a cost of $5,000 and it is proposed to do street paving this summer. I think the directors might manage to get along for the next two or three years and the city might be in a better condition to take up the purchase of the fair grounds. I am sorry that this property was not bought years ago when it could have been secured at a much lower price.

Valuable Property.

Mr. Neill—This property is a good buy to-day. We only want the Council to say that at the end of five years they will then take it over, so that we can feel safe in going ahead now.

Ald. Johnston—You want the by-law put before the people now, and if they approve of it, the city buy the property five years hence?

Mr. Neill replied in the affirmative and stated that the directors had expended over $5,000 last year in permanent work and wished to do more. If we are going to have a fair worthy of Peterborough we must begin now.

Ald. Duncan— Can it be used for other purposes?

Mr. Neill—Yes.

WILLIAM SHAKSPERE

Born April 23, 1564 (St. George's Day) — Died, as to the body, April 23, 1616

"Shakspere is the most modern writer in our language. It would seem that in one fruitful moment the genius of England gave birth to a poet, who interpreted his country to itself and to the world, once and for all time; his thought and language being the everlasting mind and utterance of his race at its highest."

LAST EFFORT MADE TO AMEND THE ORIGINAL OF THE GARBAGE BY-LAW

Petition Was Received But a Number Who Signed it Live Outside District From Which Collections Are to be Made---Fees Must be Paid With Taxes.

The charges for the collection of garbage, according to the city's plan, will be placed upon the tax bills, in spite of a last-ditch effort made at the Council meeting on Monday night to have the fees collected from the tenants.

In reply to the petition, Ald. Duffus suggested that the petitioners come before the Council and explain some other workable scheme for the collecting of the money. Besides, there were signatures on the petition of ratepayers who are outside the section from which garbage is to be collected. These people had been led to believe that they would have to pay a fee when, as a matter of fact, they were not to be affected at all. One ratepayer, in particular, is much incensed against the man who secured his signature under a misrepresentation.

A Motion to Change It.

Aldermen Johnston, Graham, and Morgan opposed the present plan of putting the charges on the tax bills, and proposed that a man be engaged to collect the fees from householders.

Aldermen Gordon and Duffus contended that the cost of this method of collecting 15 cents a month from each tenant would not be justified in the eyes of the people.

The debate was merely a "rehash" of what had been said frequently during the preparation of the by-law. It was travelling over well-worn ground.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that the garbage by-law be amended to provide for the fees being collected from the tenants. The motion was lost, only Ald. Morgan supporting the mover and seconder.

Will Work Out.

City Solicitor Hall thought the matter would work out satisfactorily to property owners, who can raise their rents per month in accordance with the garbage fees. In the case of leaves the tenants will simply have to pay the garbage assessment to the property owner.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S GUILD AT KNOX CHURCH DISCONTINUED

A special meeting of the Young People's Guild was called last night—a good attendance turning out. The meeting was in charge of Miss Claire J. Rose, Vice-President, and Mr. Clifford acting as chairman.

The business under review was the advisability of continuing the weekly assembly of young people—owing to the meagre attendances on the Monday evenings. It was recommended by a committee of two members of the senior classe that the meetings be discontinued for an indefinite period, and any business or schemes brought forward be attended to by this central committee. A discussion was taken part in by various speakers, both for and against—those in favour of continuing same, advocating meetings at greater intervals, monthly or three-monthly.

On the call of the Vice-President, Miss Ross, the motion and amendment were put to the meeting, when the amendment to discontinue the meetings was carried by a majority of about 20.

Previous to the above business, a good musical programme was gone through by the church orchestra and a few members of the audience, also guessing and cardmaking competitions. The "cup that cheers" also went the rounds, and a very enjoyable evening concluded—due to the untiring efforts of Miss Ross and her assistants—with "God Save the King."

ANNUAL REPORT OF ST. JOHN'S CHURCH PRESENTED

On Sunday morning the Rev. Canon Davidson gave his annual report for the year. The number of communions made had suffered a slight decrease, the first for many years, and the speaker urged the congregation to greater devotion. There had been fifty-five baptisms, thirty marriages, and thirty-seven burials during the year, which figures show a considerable increase. There had been little apparent change in the members present at the ordinary services, which continued to be characterised by reverence and earnestness. In his pastoral work, he (the Rector) had made nearly 1200 visits, with an increased number of interviews in his study, where more satisfactory reports were more obtainable. Some forty letters had been given to departing parishioners, and a large number had been received into the parish. He had been entrusted with many confidential missions, which he, as clergyman, ought to be well able to undertake. Perhaps a considerable portion of his time had been occupied by non-church goers, transients and those in distress, and this work would be well pleasing to our people generally. He spoke of the chimes fund and the public dedication of June 23rd last, the 75th anniversary of the opening of the church. There was a balance left over from the chimes fund of $50, but this was insufficient to purchase a commemorative tablet for the church porch. The church had been beautified by a memorial screen to the memory of Mr. and Mrs. James Wallis. He lastly referred to the formation of the St. John's Church Association, which had already been a factor in helping the men of the congregation to recognise and express their rightful participation in the work of the church. After most careful consideration and consultation it had been determined that the Psalms should be sung at the evening service on all Sundays except the first. Next September the effect would be considered and the question taken up. The reverend gentleman expressed warm thanks to the church wardens and other officers of the church who had done their duty nobly. The standard of St. John's in the past had been high, and it had been well sustained by effective and faithful work during the past year. In conclusion, he pointed out that the business side of the church's work, namely, figures and finances, were only valuable in so far as they helped forward, indirectly, the church's mission, which were the glorying of God, the saving of lost sinners and gradual training of the congregation to God-like lives for here and hereafter.

ST. GEORGE AND ENGLISHMEN.

To-day, April 23rd, is the birthday and deathday of Shakspere, and, by a significant coincidence, the nameday of St. George, the patron saint of England—both types of the influences of the head and heart, and spirit of the English race—St. George, prototype of the chivalry and sense of honour that form the grain of the English character, and Shakspere, who has made the English language predominatingly potent wherever the highest civilization prevails. Englishmen have good warrant to glory in their national festival day, by what it means in the way of achievement in all that represents the spread and stay of the highest civilization and its multifarious manifestations in all the arts enterprises and ameliorating agencies of human advance and conditions. When we think of the world's great statesmen, its great warriors by sea and land, its great explorers and nation builders, its great apostles of religion, its great figures in all fields of action, the names that stand out clean-cut and high over all, are those of Englishmen—they stand out bright and abundant on the page of history as stars in the clear night sky.

But with all their justification to be proud of the long roll of great Englishmen and the land that gave them birth, cradled them and fostered the qualities that made them great in infinite variety of achievement, the Englishman, as a type of the class, does not grow enthusiastic over St. George's day; he does not grow enthusiastic and effusively loyal on his national day, as do Scotchmen, Irishmen, and Welshmen, on St. Andrew's, St. Patrick's and St. David's days, and as Canadians do on July 1st, or our powder-burning, squib-shooting, Yankee cousins do, on July 4th. Why, there have been St. George's days, in Peterborough, when the flag was not raised over the Sons of England hall, till the afternoon—almost forgotten. Yesterday, two Englishmen, born, and but recently transplanted to Canadian civilisation, were reminded by a Canadian-born that "to-morrow is St. George's day"—"by Jove, so it is!" was the reply, as unemotional as if it had concerned only market day. An Irishman, Scotchman or Canadian would have had his national day in mind for weeks ahead. But the Englishman's seeming indifference is only seeming. He values St. George's day and what it stands for, and holds them as dear as his heart's blood, which he would spend in their defence and the maintenance of their honour and itegrity; would fight for and die for, as he has been doing from and before the time, when Shakspere made King Henry V. say at the storming of Harfleur: "Cry 'God for Harry, England and St. George,' to the sanguine welter of war in South Africa. The Englishman seems to be satisfied with possession, and the merits of possession without making a fuss over the matter. There's a tendency, in these modern days, to make loyalty too much a mechanical matter, to give it a sort of Dutch-courage quality by a stimulating tipple in the way of flag-waving. The best loyalty, the truest devotion, the love of country most worth while is that kept under the fifth rib, on the left side, and lived up to.

The Englishman is not emotional; though he can feel deeply, he does not wear his heart on his sleeve, and seems to be as much ashamed of gushing and showing emotion as he would be of showing his back to an enemy, or turning his back on duty; but when the call sounds, when the crisis comes, he is not found wanting.

Englishmen may be undemonstrative in their manifestations of loyalty and patriotic devotion, but the present seems a time when they would be, when they might be, a little proud, and a little loud, over their national day, over themselves, and over their breed. A recent heart-crushing disaster brought into play qualities of heroism, self-sacrifice, steadiness in face of fatal peril, and chivalry—alias a matter of course as merely a part of the day's work—whose highest praise and appreciation consist in the world's verdict that they were British and English.

Flaunt, and vaunt, and display are not needed to show true reverence and devotion. The real coin does not need gilding to make it ring true.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Hamilton has another murder mystery—which is an exception; it is no mystery—a woman's dead body found on the mountain in company with an empty whiskey flask. If one could count the gruesome trophies of the bottle the cumulated roll of victims would out-count the Titanic disaster.

There are two kinds of mind, the human mind and the diviner mind. The first delights to blame somebody for every happening—except a beneficient one, or every disaster. The diviner mind is charitable, in a double sense; it judges leniently and seeks to draw lessons of good out of conditions of evil. "What would you do in his place?" is a question the critic of the former class might ask himself.

PATRIOTIC PROGRAMME—A SUGGESTION.

(London Advertiser)

It must be about time now that patriotic ladies were preparing a new set of "programmes" for school exercises in 1912-1913. Doubtless they are thinking of it and the Department of Education is waiting, rubber stamp in fist, to approve, if it has not already drafted the document. It is a fair guess that if Dr. Pyne himself did not prepare the bulletin of 1911-1912, some helpful expert like Mr. J. Castell Hopkins shaped the ladies' mind as well as the whisper of the throne.

But the ladies will be more on their guard, in a second flight, against the suggestions of such persons. They will do their own shaping, let us hope, as well as the roughhewing. The chances are that a Pyne or a Hopkins has already in brew for their gentle and unsuspecting indorsation some programme like the following:

September—Sir Francis Bond Head.
Questions: 1. What did he do for British connection? 2. Why were his opponents wrong, wicked men?
References—His writings and addresses, particularly one to the House of Lords against the Union of the Canadas.

October—Mr. Henri Bourassa.
Question: Why is Britain better off without any Canadian naval contingent?
References — Toronto News, Le-Devoir, and such.

November—Lord Milner.
Questions: 1. "D——n the consequences!" Show how such language was justifiable, and even moral, under the circumstances. 2. Why did Lord M. oppose the grant of self-government to the Transvaal?

December—Col. Sam Hughes.
Questions: 1. Why did he pat Mr. Bourassa on the back? 2. Show the advantages in a new country of a loud voice over quiet reason. 3. Describe a Yankee.
January—Take a rest.

February—R. P. Roblin.
Questions: 1. What are his views on a Canadian navy, reciprocity and British preference? 2. Define his attitude on separate schools. 3. Show how he beat Sir James Whitney to Hudson's Bay.

March—Sir Edward Carson and Union.
References—Kipling's latest poem —Archbishop of Armagh's speeches.
1. What harm would home rule do Ireland and the Empire?
2. Characterize Redmond and Churchill.
3. Why should Ulster Unionists rebel?

April—Col. G. T. Denison.
1. How did he save the Empire? "Though born a Conservative, has never been a party man." (Morgan's Directory). Prove this.
Reference—His own works.

May—Grand Rouse Meeting.
Question: "No truck or trade with the Yankees!" When was this great motto proclaimed? What was its political significance in the election then going on? Estimate the importance of such election ideals.

June—J. Castell Hopkins.
Reference—Himself.
Questions: 1. Name his books.
2. Why does he love a lord?
3. Show the vital necessity of the Lords' veto, Irish coercion, anti-German and anti-American hostilities, and a high protectionist and combined "truly loil" and all-things-to-all-men government at Ottawa.

Holiday reading for July and August—Speeches of J. H. Burnham, M. P., on Ne Temere Decree and consideration of his vote to kill the Lancaster Bill.

WOMAN'S SPHERE IS THE HOME

Written for the Examiner by Adeline C. Roberts. No. VIII.

(Written for the Examiner by Adeline C. Roberts.)

No. VIII

Of course it is. Not even a militant suffragette attempts to deny it, and prominent women of anti-suffrage persuasions have even forsaken their "sphere" and mounted public platforms, in order to assure their hearers that "woman's sphere is the home."

Supposing a woman has no "home," in the sense here implied. Anti-suffragists easily settled that question by the simple answer that she ought to have one, but somehow that statement does not exactly settle the question, except to an anti-suffragist. In the United States there are over 6,000,000 women wage earners, in Canada nearly 50,000; in Toronto alone there are 45,000 business girls and women; a large number of these do not have homes, but "board," and it is not easy to see how any who have homes can efficiently fill their "spheres" in them, when forced to earn their living in the numerous factories, stores, offices, etc., of the country.

And what constitutes a "home," always supposing a woman has one. It may be a luxurious mansion, a modest house or villa, a flat, a tenement, a ceuuar, or even one-fifth of a room rented by five families, one of which occupies the centre and the other 4 the corners. This last, according to authentic reports, constitutes a "home" in some city slum districts. Having defined a home, let us see what are the recognized duties of a woman in it, supposing that circumstances allow of her remaining in it and performing them. Some women are forced to work in their homes as "sweated" labour, from dawn to midnight, in order to earn less than a decent living wage, and have therefore no time to devote to the necessary "duties." Of course anti-suffragists would say that they ought to have time.

Now as to the "duties." A woman's chief duties are generally recognized to be the care of her house and children. In earlier days, when there were few factories, few labour-saving devices, few stores, no "shopping by mail," facilities, few cheap or ready-made articles easily obtainable, much work now done outside the home was then done in it, and women had to stay at home and do it. Man ythings now easily bought ready-made were unobtainable, had to be made at home and women had to stay at home and make them. They had to bake and brew, to can and preserve, to weave and knit, and to sew (without the aid of a sewing achine) in order that they and their families might be properly clothed and fed.

But times change, for this is a progressive age, and we advance with the times. In spite of regretful backward glances, and longings for the "good old days," those "good old days" are gone forever. The watchword of the times is always "forward" and we may as well adapt ourselves to changing conditions, consign the "good old days" to oblivion, where they properly belong, and look forward to the better days to come.

"Why should we see with dead men's eyes,
Looking at Was from morn till night,
When the beauteous Now, the divine To-Be,
Woo, with their charms, the living sight?

As machinery has been invented and perfected and manufactures have increased, the old home duties of woman have been gradually taken from her. She need no longer knit or weave, brew or bake, etc., for she can order all her supplies from Eaton's or a dozen other places. And why not? What earthly rhyme or reason is there in the idea so often brought forward that she should receive those old-fashioned womanly occupations? Why not also revive the sedan chair and stage coach as methods of travel or the candle in place of gas or electric light?

But in spite of changed conditions woman's sphere is still the home, and she still has recognized duties to perform. She still has to see that her family is properly clothed and fed, and her children educated, but changed conditions necessitate changed methods. She now buys nearly all her supplies. The milk may be impure, and the food adulterated. Her children may have to pass through streets where conditions are immoral, degrading, or unsanitary. What power has she to control, change, or better these things which so directly concern her "sphere," the home? None, for the power rests with men only, elected by other men, and since man's "sphere" is not the home, but the office, farm, store, or other place of business, he naturally places his own business interests first.

Humorists are fond of depicting the enfranchised mother in masculine garb, immersed in politics, while the father remains at home as nurse, cook or housekeeper. They seem quite unable to grasp the fact that women do not want the franchise in order to hand over to men the few home duties and responsibilities which directly affect the home, and which have gradually passed into the hands of men to manage, and which, it must be admitted, they manage very badly. Men are not naturally fitted for housekeepers, and since that part of legislation which concerns the home is only housekeeping on a large scale is it to be wondered at that they prove incompetent to efficiently perform such duties without the co-operation of women, the natural housekeepers. Today, if a woman would manage and safeguard her home, she must go beyond its four walls, to do so efficiently. Matters of education, food, health, morals, are no longer individual concerns, under direct control of each mother in her home, and cannot be properly attended to by her remaining in it. Only when women realise their civic duties and responsibilities, and when they are given a direct share in the government administration of all such matters as concern the welfare of the home, will woman be able to do her real duty in her own sphere, the home.

Toronto, April 22nd.

Judgment Given In Peel Case

Charles Alfred Peel to Pay all the Costs—Was Tried in Lindsay

Following is the decision reached by Chancellor Boyd in regard to the Peel vs. Peel case, which was tried before him at the spring assizes in Lindsay.

Peel vs. Peel.—An issue ordered on the application of Charles Alfred Peel to determine whether his brother, John James Peel, is of unsound mind, and incapable of managing himself or his affairs. Judgment: I found upon the evidence that the said John James Peel was not of unsound mind, and incapable of managing himself or his affairs, and then disposed finally of the issue except as to costs. I also then considered an application under the act of 1911 (7 Geo. V., c. 200, whether he was through mental infirmity, arising from disease, age or other cause, or by reason of habitual drunkenness, or the use of drugs, incapable of managing his affairs. He is one who hath had before-time, wit and memory, and hath not failed of his wit, but hath of late improved the same, so that his farm and money (worth in all $3,089) can be by him safely kept without waste or destruction. His own view of this application is that he regards his brother, the applicant, as a man who is after his property, and he does not want to have the court put any man above him. No costs of proceedings prior to the application, which resulted in the order of 7th June, 1911, but all the subsequent costs, including that order, are to be paid by the applicant, the unsuccessful party, to the defendant.

SOME THINGS AND OTHERS

The numerous friends of Miss Gentle Spring, who was nicely convalescing, will regret to observe that last night, she suffered a severe and serious relapse, which, it is hoped, will not be a collapse. The weather man is being subjected to very strong criticism.

The same conditions that put Miss Spring out of gear, or something else seem to have put the local post-office off its base a little. Complaints are frequent of the irregular, tardy distribution and, consequetly, similar delivery of the mails. Complainants say it is a common thing for mail matter to be a mail or two behind, and sometimes more than that. Business men, especially, want their letters delivered like pancakes—to be good—piping hot—without delay.

The Romaine street sewer seems bound to Romaine in the limelight. It is doing things no respectable sewer would, or should do.

If a wharf won't stand a ripple of spring water, how could it be expected to stand under the bumping of some Tret Valley Canal Titanic. A wharf should be water proof.

We can breathe again. The Manager of the Peterborough baseball club has arrived in town, and has chartered a gasoline launch to inspect the grounds. He thinks the local compay has watered the stock a trifle too liberally.

Navigation should open soon—the new George Street Wharf has opened by way of example.

Nicholas Lemperopaulos, assistant chef at the Benton Cafe, believes that his cousin, P. Lemperopaulos of Boston, Glasco., was one of the sixteen hundred victims who went down with the steamer Titanic. In a Greek newspaper, published in New York, was found a list of Greeks who perished in the catastrophe, and among the names appears that of P. Lemperopaulos. The name is that of the local man's cousin, the home address is the same, and furthermore another victim was a particular friend of P. Lemperopaulos'.

NINETEEN PLAYERS WILL BE HERE NEXT WEEK

Transportation Has Been Sent to Squad To-day With Orders to Report Here on Wednesday, May 1st---Catcher Kelly and First Baseman Rothenberger Released.

Manager Templin yesterday arranged the details of transportation for his players and last night the necessary tickets were sent to sixteen men who are ordered to report here on May 1st, a week from to-morrow. The trip has been so arranged that eleven of the players will come on the same train, travelling together most of the way over, which will give the players a chance to get acquainted with each other before they arrive here.

"I could have had eight or ten more good men report," remarked Templin to the Examiner, "but there is no use putting that additional expense on the club. I know the men I have, and unless they fall down in some way I am satisfied they will make any of the League clubs hurry all the way."

The manager is disappointed at the condition of the grounds, as he expected to be able to start right in and get the base-paths skinned and put everything in readiness for the season. It will be impossible to practice over there, and arrangements are being made for the use of either the Exhibition grounds or Nicholls Oval for the two weeks' training the team will have here before going to Hamilton. Morning and afternoon practises will continue during the first month of the campaign as well.

"White Cap" Paragraphs.

Frank Dolan, the most promising of the candidates for the first-base position on the White Caps, is working out daily with the Wilmington Tri-State League team and will be in the pink of condition when he arrives here.

Jimmy Beard, one of Templin's outfielders, is an all round good man. He plays the infield with class and distinction and can take his turn on the rubber in a pinch. His hitting however, is best who he is patrolling one of the outer gardens and he prefers to play there for that reason.

Half a dozen of the White Caps have been playing with fast semi-pro. teams for the past three or four weeks and will not need much work to put them in shape for the opening.

A score or more of local fans are making arrangements to go to Hamilton for the opening on May 14th.

Templin secured Edward Green, the promising New Jersey pitcher, who won twenty-nine games last season from the manager of the Gloucester team, who this year sent Pitcher Brown to the Philadelphia Athletics, where he has apparently made good.

The good game that Pitcher Kutz of the Philadelphia Nationals pitched against Baltimore two weeks ago settled his fate as far as Peterborough is concerned. Templin had been angling for this twirler for some time and had a good chance of getting him, as Philadelphia were going to let him go without a string on him. He showed Manager Dooin so much in the exhibition game against Baltimore, however, that he decided to hang on to the youngster.

Sparks, a Toronto player, who was in the Coast League last year, and who applied to the Peterborough team for a trial, has been signed by London and will be given a chance to make good at first base. His chances are poor, as the Cockneys have "Looey" Bierbaur, their last year's first sacker, available, while Manager Frank Bowerman likes to play the first corner himself.

There will be nineteen ball players in Peterborough a week from to-morrow ready to begin training with the Peterborough Ball Club for the Canadian League campaign. Transportation has been sent to sixteen players and two others are coming at their ow expense. This morning Manager Templin released First Baseman Levi Rothenberger and Catcher E. J. Kelly. Rothenberger had failed to keep in shape and although Kelly is a cracking good man, Templin believes that Mooney, his latest acquisition, is even better, and he has no room for Kelly. Here is the complete squad that has been ordered to report here on May 1st:

BASKETBALL LEAGUE

The Rustlers and the Eko Club battled for the city basketball league championship last night before a large and enthusiastic crowd, and after a fast and interesting game succeeded in again landing the "Beacon." The Ekos won principally because of better all round team play, which has been the outstanding feature of their playing all through the season.

The final score was 23 to 25.

THE BOY IS FATHER OF THE MAN

The Crusade in the Interests of Boys Commences With a Census to be Taken April 23rd

Written for the Examiner by Roy Gilray

To-night, one hundred and fifty workers from the various Sunday schools of the city will take a census of boys between the ages of ten and eighteen on specially prepared cards, containing such questions as: name address, name of parents or guardian, living at home or boarding, church attended, from what Sunday school this year, if not, why; day school or night school attended? and a few others, all intended to give the United Sunday Schools' Association and its band of workers a good foundation upon which to build in commencing an aggressive campaign in the interests of boys. In our article of last Saturday, (which inadvertently appeared under the W. C. T. U. column), we pointed out the great need of fathers making chums of their boys if they wished to maintain that authority which a wise parent should have. We also referred to the inadequacy of the present-day educational system in inculcating the truths of religion or the principals of morality; and in the case of parents failing to do their duty there was othing left but the church and other religious institutions to exert their utmost in retrieving the time lost.

The Sunday School workers of the city need every encouragement in their great undertaking. The task of training up a boy ito a man who shall be an honour to his parents, and who shall be devoted to his Heavenly Father is, under any circumstances a work requiring great patience, tact and wisdom. Not only must the workers be endowed with these qualifications, but they must be true to their colours; a boy has a genuine contempt for shams, or for people who set a bad example by loose habits. They also must be frequent users of the word "do" as against the word "don't". There is nothing a boy despises more than being "don'ted" all the time. Ask him to do something and the constructive, positive qualities of his mind are aroused, whereas if you "don't" him the destructive, negative forces of his brain are at once set in motion, poisoning his finer instincts and increasing the fire of his temper or lower nature.

Boyhood is emotional; he is impulsive, he loves his mother but does not keep telling her so, except in his actions; he is reticent; a friend must be very close to him to get anything out of him; he will sing lustily in a group, but never alone, if his feelings are noticed conspicuously, he will crush them out of sight. With sympathy we can get near to him, and help him to produce his best; in short, we can be his Big Brother.

The place of religion in a boy's life is not alone in the Sunday School, and at home, but out amid the storms of his athletic and gang experiences. Too often work for boys runs on a sidetrack too far before connecting with the main line of his boy-world.

If every Sunday School worker would realise that knowledge comes from instruction; power, from training; skill, from experience; character, from moral living, and, finally, the "vision" of the higher life comes as the fruit of the upward climb. In working out such a programme in a boy's career it is absolutely essential that the teacher (preferably a man) shall be in touch with the lad not only on Sunday, but throughout the whole week: to be his "Big Brother," helping and encouraging him over the rough places and finally bringing him to his "best".

Surely such an object: "the uplift of the boy," merits the hearty approval of every serious-minded person, and it is to be hoped the canvassers will receive every assistance this evening in securing the desired information, and that when the campaign is started by the United Sunday Schools' Association there will be volunteers waiting to undertake their share in the great work of the Sunday school.

The Adjourned Vestry Meetings

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

A large number attended the adjourned vestry meeting of St. Luke's church last night, when the rector gave his annual address, and the reports of the various societies were presented. The reports showed a flourishing state of affairs financially and otherwise.

Mr. E. A. Peck was elected as representative to the Nicholls Hospital, Mr. R. H. Turner to the Protestant Home, and Mr. S. Gaskins to the Charity Board.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

The adjourned meeting of the vestry of All Saints' church was held last night with the rector, the Rev. R. B. Grobb in the chair. The report of the auditors, stating that they had found the books of the church entirely correct, was presented and adopted.

It was decided to have the Parish Hall repainted and to level the grounds graded and sodded.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

The adjourned vestry meeting was held last night in the St. John's School House. Reports were presented from the Girls' Auxiliary and other societies, showing that good progress has been made during the past year. The Sunday School and choir both had most favourable reports, showing painstaking and faithful work done under the direction of Mr. Devey, whose enthusiasm and helpfulness were commented on and warm appreciation expressed. Most valuable services are constantly being rendered to the church by the members of both these organizations.

The financial report was presented by Warden Johnston and proved to be one of the best in the history of the church. It showed a total of about $6,300 raised from all sources. Nearly $900 had been contributed for missions—by far the largest sum in the church's history. The expenditure during the past year had been unusually heavy, including much permanent work, and it was foreshadowed that expenditure would have to be made in the future, including the re-shingling of the church, and the re-arranging of the heating apparatus. The highest praise was given by those present for the splendid work of the Church Wardens of the past year, Messrs. Johnson and Stratton, and it was strongly urged that Mr. Johnston's valuable assistance should be retained, as far he was able to give it. A hearty vote of thanks to the retiring wardens was enthusiastically carried.

On the motion of the Church Wardens, Messrs. Stratton and Morphet, the salary of Mr. John Butcher was increased by $50 in recognition of his capable services and also for the new duties in connection with the chimes devolving upon him. With regard to the latter matter, Messrs. R. J. and Cyril Devey are deserving of credit for their assistance. The vestry then stood while memorial resolutions were passed in silence in regard to Dr. R. P. Boucher and Mr. William Hinchcliffe, who had held official positions in the church. A general discussion then took place upon the necessary ventilation, heating, and other improvements to the church and the chimes, a feeling being expressed that it was desirable to gradually feel the way towards making the very most of the splendid set of bells. After a motion of thanks to the chairman, the meeting was concluded.

"MUTT AND JEFF."

"Never put off until to-morrow what you can do to-day". This is the day and now is the time. The tickets are on sale at the box office window of the "Grand." Now! What? Why! "Mutt and Jeff," the biggest musical comedy hit of a quarter century. See it! Everybody does, sooner or later. So will you.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE

The Hustlers and the Eko Club battled for the city basketball league championship last night before a large and enthusiastic crowd, and after a fast and interesting game succeeded in again landing the "Beacon." The Ekos won principally because of better all round team play, which has been the outstanding feature of their playing all through the season.

The final score was 23 to 25.

THE BOY IS FATHER OF THE MAN

The Crusade in the Interests of Boys Commences With a Census to be Taken April 23rd

Written for the Examiner by Roy Gilroy

To-night, one hundred and fifty workers from the various Sunday schools of the city will take a census of boys between the ages of ten and eighteen on specially prepared cards, containing such questions as: name address, name of parents or guardian, living at home or boarding, church attended, been at Sunday school this year, if not, why; day school or night school attended? and a few others, all intended to give the United Sunday Schools' Association and its band of workers a good foundation upon which to build in commencing an aggressive campaign in the interests of boys. In our article of last Saturday, (which inadvertently appeared under the W. C. T. U. column), we pointed out the great need of fathers making chums of their boys if they wished to maintain that authority which a wise parent should have. We also referred to the inadequacy of the present-day educational system in inculcating the truths of religion or the principals of morality; and in the case of parents failing to do their duty there was othing left but the church and other religious institutions to exert their utmost in retrieving the time lost.

The Sunday School workers of the city need every encouragement in their great undertaking. The task of training up a boy ito a man who shall be an honour to his parents, and who shall be devoted to his Heavenly Father is, under any circumstances a work requiring great patience, tact and wisdom. Not only must the workers be endowed with these qualifications, but they must be true to their colours; a boy has a genuine contempt for shams, or for people who set a bad example by loose habits. They also must be frequent users of the word "do" as against the word "don't". There is nothing a boy despises more than being "don'ted" all the time. Ask him to do something and the constructive, positive qualities of his mind are aroused, whereas if you "don't" him the destructive, negative forces of his brain are at once set in motion, poisoning his finer instincts and increasing the fire of his temper or lower nature.

Boyhood is emotional; he is impulsive, he loves his mother but does not keep telling her so, except in his actions; he is reticent; a friend must be very close to him to get anything out of him; he will sing lustily in a group, but never alone, if his feelings are noticed conspicuously, he will crush them out of sight. With sympathy we can get near to him, and help him to produce his best; in short, we can be his Big Brother.

The place of religion in a boy's life is not alone in the Sunday School, and at home, but out amid the storms of his athletic and gang experiences. Too often work for boys runs on a sidetrack too far before connecting with the main line of his boy-world.

If every Sunday School worker would realize that knowledge comes from instruction; power, from training; skill, from experience; character, from moral living, and, finally, the "vision" of the higher life comes as the fruit of the upward climb. In working out such a programme in a boy's career it is absolutely essential that the teacher (preferably a man) shall be in touch with the lad not only on Sunday, but throughout the whole week; to be his "Big Brother," helping and encouraging him over the rough places and finally bringing him to his "best".

Surely such an object; "the uplift of the boy," merits the hearty approval of every serious-minded person, and it is to be hoped the census-takers will receive every assistance this evening in securing the desired information, and that when the campaign is started by the United Sunday Schools' Association there will be volunteers waiting to undertake their share in the great work of the Sunday school.

The Adjourned Vestry Meetings

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

A large number attended the adjourned vestry meeting of St. Luke's church last night, when the rector gave his annual address, and the reports of the various societies were presented. The reports showed a flourishing state of affairs financially and otherwise.

Mr. E. A. Peck was elected as representative to the Nicholls Hospital, Mr. R. H. Turner to the Protestant Home, and Mr. S. Gaskins to the Charity Board.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

The adjourned meeting of the vestry of All Saints' church was held last night with the rector, the Rev. R. B. Grobb in the chair. The report of the auditors, stating that they had found the books of the church entirely correct, was presented and adopted.

It was decided to have the Parish Hall repainted and to have the grounds graded and sodded.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

The adjourned vestry meeting was held last night in the St. John's School House. Reports were presented from the Girls' Auxiliary and other societies, showing that good progress has been made during the past year. The Sunday School and choir both had most favourable reports, showing painstaking and faithful work done under the direction of Mr. Devey, whose enthusiasm and helpfulness were commented on and warm appreciation expressed. Most valuable services are constantly being rendered to the church by the members of both these organizations.

The financial report was presented by Warden Johnston and proved to be one of the best in the history of the church. It showed a total of about $6,300 raised from all sources. Nearly $900 had been contributed for missions—by far the largest sum in the church's history. The expenditure during the past year had been unusually heavy, including much permanent work, and it was foreshadowed that expenditure would have to be made in the future, including the re-shingling of the church, and the re-arranging of the heating apparatus. The highest praise was given by those present for the splendid work of the Church Wardens of the past year, Messrs. Johnson and Stratton, and it was strongly urged that Mr. Johnston's valuable assistance should be retained, as far he was able to give it. A hearty vote of thanks to the retiring wardens was enthusiastically carried.

On the motion of the Church Wardens, Messrs. Stratton and Morphet, the salary of Mr. John Butcher was increased by $50 in recognition of his capable services and also for the new duties in connection with the chimes devolving upon him. With regard to the latter matter, Messrs. R. J. and Cyril Devey are deserving of credit for their assistance. The vestry then stood while memorial resolutions were passed in silence in regard to Dr. R. P. Boucher and Mr. William Hinchcliffe, who had held official positions in the church. A general discussion then took place upon the necessary ventilation, heating, and other improvements to the church, and the chimes, a feeling being expressed that it was desirable to gradually feel the way towards making the very most of the splendid set of bells. After a motion of thanks to the chairman, the meeting was concluded.

"MUTT AND JEFF."

"Never put off until to-morrow what you can do to-day". This is the day and now is the time. The tickets are on sale at the box office window of the "Grand." Now! What? Why! "Mutt and Jeff," the biggest musical comedy hit of a quarter century. See it! Everybody does, sooner or later. So will you.

FAIR GROUNDS OFFERED TO CITY AT $30,000

putting the by-law before the people?

No Pay For Directors.

Mr. Neill—We think this is entirely in the interests of the city and that it should be done now. None of the directors are paid except the secretary, who sends out the notices.

Mayor Bradburn—I would not mind submitting it when some other by-law is brought up.

Mr. Neill—we want to do something this year.

Mr. Denne—I understand that Mr. Morrow is looking into the matter to see if he can have the lease cut off on a three months' notice.

Ald. Morgan—This might be submitted along with the bridges, a part for the west ward and a little part for the east.

More Than a Joke.

Mr. Neill—This is no joking matte. We ae in earnest. If the city assists us we will try to establish ourselves.

Ald. Buller—We need a by-law for a bridge to connect the south ward with the south end of the east ward. I move that we prepare a by-law for this purpose and also one for the purchase of the Exhibition grounds.

Ald. Duncan—I think it's a good proposition. I am satisfied we would be getting the best piece of property around Peterborough.

Sell a Few Lots.

Ald. Duffus—When this was up in committee I asked that the city reserve the right to sell lots on the east side of the grounds. I think that within five years it will be worth $5,000 more than it is now. I am in favour of purchasing it. Oshawa and other towns take a great interest in their fairs and I believe something should be done to improve the Peterborough exhibition.

Committee's Report.

In the absence of Ald. Gillespie, Ald. Gordon presented the following report of the Manufacturers' committee.

We were waited upon by representatives of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition to ask that the Council purchase Mr. R. A. Morrow's property for the exhibition grounds, and that the Exhibition would pay the sinking fund required to pay the debentures when issued as a rental, and that the property should be held under the present lease at a rental of $500 per annum until it expires in five years, then the payment of the sinking fund to commence.

We recommend that the Council submit a by-law to the ratepayers to provide for the purchase of the property for $30,000 and to the issue of debentures for that sum to pay for it.

Too Valuable to be Vacant.

Ald. Gordon—I believe this is too valuable property to be held open for exhibition purposes. I am impressed by Ald. Anderson's point that people will be impressed by the fact that instead of homes there, they will have an extensive vacant property.

Ald. Brown—Why does not the society take care of the interest and the city take care of the sinking fund.

Mr. Neill— We earned $1500 last year, but we could not do anything with the buildings at our disposal. Lindsay directors bought their grounds some years ago and have had a splendid success.

Mr. Neill again emphasized the point that in five years the grounds would become the property of the city, and that if it were desired the city could close up the society at any time.

Would Interest Business Men.

Mr. Wm. E. Conway—I feel that the people are interested in the fair. I know many who are prepared to make a subscription to put up buildings if they are to be permanent, but they will not spend money which in five years will be lost.

Ald. Gordon's motion, seconded by Ald. Buller, that the report of the committee be adopted, was carried. Ald. Anderson voted nay.

Mr. Neill—We have been talking this mover and we want it to meet the approval of the ratepayers. We are agreeable to paying the interest and the city pay the sinking fund.

Moved by Ald. Duffus, seconded by Ald. Brown that the report of the committee as adopted be changed to this effect.—Carried.

Better Stationery.

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Anderson, that the Mayor be authorized to purchase stationery with appropriate crest thereon, for the Mayor, Clerk and Council Chamber.—Carried.

By-Laws.

A by-law to provide for an additional $100 to the $5,000 appropriation for improvements to the Police Station, passed the several readings. This was necessitated by reason of the tenders for the work exceeding by $100 the $5,000 provided.

The Garbage Contract.

Ald. Duffus asked the chairman of the Property committee if the contract for removing garbage had been signed, and the necessary bonds furnished.

Ald. Duncan replied that the contract is signed, but the city is awaiting arrival of the bonds.

Crossing to Murray St. Church.

Ald. Duffus moved, that a crossing be laid from the north side of Murray street to the new Baptist church, which will be opened shortly.

Ald. Buller assured Ald. Duffus that this matter is being looked after by the Board of Works, who will lay the crossing at the most advantageous point to all concerned.

To Grade Park.

The chairman of the Property committee was authorised to have recent addition to King Edward Park ploughed up and levelled.

DOCTOR ADVISED HER TO TAKE THEM

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Mrs. Bellivesu's Bright's Disease.

Pre Den Haut, Westmoreland Co., N.B. April 22.—(Special).—It is becoming a proverb in New Brunswick that no place is too small to furnish at least one person who owes his or her good health to Dodd's Kidney Pills. And this place is no exception to the rule. Mrs. Dominique J. Belliveau, a well known and highly respected resident says in an interview:

"I took Dodd's Kidney Pills on the advice of my doctor for Bright's Disease, and I am glad to say three boxes cured me completely. I can do all kinds of work now. I always keep Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house in case we might need them."

Sometimes you wonder why people cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills are so enthusiastic in their praises of them. The reason is that they strike right at the root of ill-health. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidneys. That means that all impurities are strained out of the blood. It means pure blood, and pure blood means good health all over the body. Good health means good spirits; hence the enthusiasm.

REV. DR. MARSH DRAWS "TITANIC" LESSON

In Special Sermon on Sunday Morning at Springville

The service in the Springville Presbyterian Church, Sabbath morning, was of a memorial character, and was particularly impressive. The choir rendered special music, and the Scripture reading—Rev. 20th chapter, was most suitable.

Dr. Marsh quoted a portion of "The Ocean"—(Byron); and dwelt on man's power, and vain glory, and God's sovereignty. The speaker pointed out clearly, that as the only safety for passengers was to leave the sinking ship and cling to the life-boats, so our only safety is in Christ—we must cling to Him, the Truth, the Life, the way.

The calamity of Sabbath last, came virtually without warning. Not so with us. We have the Bible, with its many references: "In such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh"; and the parable of the rich fool, etc. But what of our responsibility in warning others? The Canadian Presbyterian Church is responsible for over 14,000,000 souls in heathendom to-day. How then shall they call on Him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in Him, of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? ((Rom. 10, 14). The 1600 passengers of the Titanic are now beyond mortal help. Do not forget in your sympathy for them and those to whom they were dear, that there are in China at least 10,000 a day dying a horrible death from starvation. This has been going on for weeks, and thus millions passing into eternity. Here is surely an opportunity for strong, practical Christianity.

There was not room in the life boats for all—only a comparative few even received an invitation to get in. There is room in Christ: "Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy laden." This includes each and every one.

Some who had an opportunity, refused to enter the boats. Just so today. Many hear the Saviour's gracious invitation, and, instead of instantly accepting, put the matter off, indefinitely, and are lost, even within sight of the harbour lights. There is nothing as uncertain as life; nothing as certain as death. After that, what? Surely the great lesson from this calamity is "Be ye also ready."

The service closed by the singing of James Edmeston's beautiful hymn:

"Lead us, Heavenly Father, lead us
O'er the world's tempestuous sea;
Guard us, guide us, keep us, feed us,
For we have no help but Thee;
Yet, possessing every blessing,
If our God our Father be."

RAILWAY NOTES

Capt. C. H. Nicholson, manager of the Pacific coast service of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, has been in conference with Mr. Dewey, general freight agent, and a number of the company's freight representatives with the result that several decisions of interest to the travelling public have been arrived at.

Capt. Nicholson announces that the time has come for the establishment of a regular steamboat service to Goose Bay, B.C., and that this will probably be done by aking a connection north and south bound with one of the larger steamers by the Prince John, although the alternative plan of sending one of the larger steamers direct to that point is also being considered. This change in schedule will not come into effect until about the middle of next month whe the Prince Rupert is again in commission. It is also announced that a regular schedule will be drawn up taking in the principal ponits and canneries' calls of the Prince Albert, which will leave Victoria and Vancouver fortnightly on regular sailing days. These calls are to be at Alert Bay, Rivers Inlet, and canneries, Namu, Ocean Falls, Bella Bella, Swanson Bay, Lowe Inlet, Claxton, Port Essington, Skeena River canneries, Price Rupert, and Naas Bay. The Prince Albert has a large carrying capacity in addition to considerable accommodation.

Mr. Dewey, genreal freight agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific, has left Vancouver by the Prince George on a trip orth to Prince Rupert and the ed of steel. On his return he will be accompanied to Victoria by Capt. Nicholson and will discuss several matters of mutual interest affecting that city with the Provincial Board of Public Works.

The Vancouver City Council has presented Capt. C. H. Nicholson of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway with a handsome Russian seal travelling bag, accompanied by a letter expressing in the warmest terms that body's appreciation of the latter's courtesy in connection with the inaugural trip of the Prince George as an oil burning vessel.

THE SEASHORE BOOKLET.

Great interest is being taken by the Canadian people in connection with the new seashore resorts at New London, Conn., that will be reached by special train service this summer, over the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont Railways. A handsome booklet has bee issued describing this popular locality, and a copy may be had free by application to A. E. Duff, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toroto, Ont.

Mr. W. E. Duperow has been appointed Generel Agent, Passenger Department, of the Grad Trunk Pacific Railway and Coast Steamships and Grand Trunk Railway System, with office at Vancouver, B. C. Mr. Duperow, for several years past, has been the City Passenger and Ticket Agent of the same lines, at Victoria, B.C., prior to which he occupied various positions in the passenger and transportation departments of the Grand Trunk lines in Eastern Canada.

TORONTO MAN ACCUSED OF SUPPLYING LIQUOR TO BLACKLISTER

Case Was Dealt With in the Police Court This Morning---Represented Toronto Publishing Syndicate---Judgment Reserved.

Exhibits designated as A, B and C, and representing four empty flasks, three empty lager bottles, and an empty whisky bottle ,the latter of the Imperial quart variety, were largely featured in the police court this morning. They were produced as evidence against William Anthony and McIntosh McRoberts respectively.

The former was charged with being under the influence of liquor while on the prohibited list, and the latter was charged with supplying William Anthony with intoxicating liquor, knowing that the said party was on the black list.

REMANDED FOR A WEEK

To the twice repeated charge of being under the influence of liquor while still on the prohibited list, William Anthony entered a plea of guilty. Anthony's presence in the witness box was provocative of the following explanation as to how he secured the liquor:

Chief—"When did you start drinking?"

Witness—"Yesterday afternoon."

Chief—"Where did you get the liquor?"

Witness—"In the bathroom."

"The waterworks must be improving," commented the Magistrate.

Chief—"Who put the liquor there?"

Witness—"I don't know; when I went into the bathroom it was sitting on the window sill, and I took a drink."

Anthony named Homer Holmes and M McRoberts as participants in the alleged carousal.

The Chief then asked for a week's remand in the case of Anthony in order that the latter might have an opportunity of refreshing his memory. This was granted.

WAS A PUBLISHER

The case of McIntosh McRoberts was then proceeded with. Defendant represented himself as being a publisher, and was in the city representing a well known Toronto publishing syndicate. Homer Holmes and Wm. Anthony are two Fenian Raid veterans, and it was for the purpose of securing a story on their experiences in connection with this historical event that led McRoberts to visit Anthony's premises at the time of his arrest. He had made several trips earlier in the day for the purpose of having his boots repaired.

Detective Newhall testified in the witness box that between 7 and 8 o'clock last night he observed the defendant McRoberts descending the stairs leading to Anthony's apartments. McRoberts went into Nixon's hotel and returned to Anthony's place a few minutes later. This was followed by two successive trips of a similar nature. Witness together with P. C. Meharry, who had been watching the performance across the street then crossed over and entered the building. The officers found Anthony, Holmes and McRoberts in the room, the former attempting to hide. They were later placed under arrest.

Constable Meharry and Meagher were next called. The former's evidence practically corroborated the statements made by Detective Newhall, while the latter gave evidence testifying to a conversation which it is alleged took place between Anthony and McRoberts while confined in the cells last night. Meagher was on station duty and overheard some remarks made by McRoberts in which the latter is alleged to have arranged to fix things up for the police court hearing this morning.

Holmes was put in the box and examined by McRoberts. Witness denied having seen McRoberts carry liquor into Anthony's rooms.

He was examined by the chief and some very damaging evidence was elicited from the witness.

DEFENDANT EXPLAINS

McIntosh McRoberts, defendant in the case, explained his actions in the matter as being of purely an accidental nature. Witness visited the premises early in the day for the purpose of getting a boot repaired. The work not being completed in the forenoon, a second visit was made in the afternoon. He remained until five o'clock, returning later at seven o'clock. Holmes, he explained, was suffering from the effects of over indulgence, and was prostrated on a shakedown on the floor at the time of his arrest. He defined Anthony's position as being an undignified one The latter was crouching under the bathtub when the officers entered the building at seven o'clock for the purpose of making the arrest. Witness represented a Toronto publishing concern, and called upon Anthony and Holmes for the purpose of compiling a brochure dealing with the experiences of Anthony and Holmes as Fenian raid veterans.

Further questions asked by the chief elicited the information that defendant had been staying at the National Hotel, and was indebted to the hotel to the extent of $30. A similar circumstance had occurred in Lindsay, in which the Simpson House was concerned. He denied having supplied Anthony with liquor or having consumed liquor on the premises.

Judgment was reserved until tomorrow morning.

INTERESTING LECTURE ON 'MARS" GIVEN BY MR. T. C. ELLIOTT

There was an exceptionally large attendance at the regular meeting of the Astronmical Society, held last evening in the Chemical Laboratory of the Collegiate Institute. After the regular business had been completed, Mr. T. C. Elliott gave a most interesting lecture entitled "Mars; is it inhabitable?" In the course of his remarks he said:

Mars is about one-seventh the size of the earth, and owing to the lightness of its material is only one-ninth its mass, while the force of gravity prevailing upon the former is about thirty-eight per cent. of the latter. Could we pay a visit to Mars we should discover on our reaching that planet that our noses and ears would bleed, and that our veins would burst owing to the lighter air pressure caused by the lower gravity. The force within our veins would exceed that of the outside air. We frequently hear of aviators experiencing this trouble, to a certain extent, and others, when climbing high mountains, sometimes burst blood vessels.

We should also observe a brilliant star from Mars. That star would be our earth, which would be rendered more prominent, owing to its greater size, than Mars, as it appears from our point of view. Owing to the thinness of the air the sun would have greater effect upon the planet and consequently the heat would be greater, but naturally the low pressure of air would cause the nights to be very cold. Were we to light a match it would instantly go out owing to a lack of oxyzen.

Then, supposing we were successful in making a fire, if we were to boil water we should discover that it would boil much easier than on the earth. As we know water will boil at 212 degrees for at that stage the expansion power of the water equals the pressure of air. The thinness of the air on Mars, therefore, would allow of less expansion. Hence it is that water would boil more easily.

Scientists tell us that Mars is now one huge desert, devoid of life, and with no more water than would fill one of our great lakes. It is a worn-out cinder.

The fragrant memory of a cup of delicious "SALADA" Tea lingers with you. For nineteen years always of high and uniform quality.

A Congregation Divided.

Belleville, April 24.—At an adjourned vestry meeting at St. John's Church the wardens protested against the action of Bishop Mills, in which he expressed his determination to close the church. By a narrow majority a resolution protesting to the synods against the bishop's action was defeated. The church and site will be disposed of.

By a vote of 501 to 50 the congregation of Bridge street Methodist Church in this city has decided in favor of church union.

RAILWAY MANAGERS CONSENT TO OFFICIAL MEDIATION

Advances Made by Messrs. Neill and Knapp, of the United States Bureau of Commerce and Labour May Bear Fruit in Averting Huge Strike —Settlement is Probable

New York, April 24.—Mediation of the differences between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and the eastern railways, which have threatened a strike on fifty lines east of Chicago and north of the Potomac, is expected to result from the action of the conference committee of railway managers yesterday in agreeing to confer with Charles P. Neill, U. S. labor commissioner, and Judge M. J. Knapp of the U. S. Commerce Court, regarding the dispute.

While the answer of the railroads to the letter of Messrs. Neill and Knapp did not definitely accept mediation, the opinion was expressed by the engineers that, in the end, this would be the result. Commissioner Neill, in an interview given after he had received the railroads' answer, also indicated that he considered that mediation was intended. Last night in all quarters the opinion was expressed that the possibility of a strike, which yesterday appeared imminent, is increasingly remote.

On a series of conferences beginning to-day probably will depend either the definite settlement of the dispute or the arrangement of a plan of arbitration. Mr. Neill announced last night that he will confer with the railway managers to-day, and, if possible, will meet the engineers later in the day. Judge Knapp, according to word received from Washington last night, will leave that city to take part in the conference to-day.

Notice of the desire of the railways to confer was received after a conference lasting practically all day. The presidents of several railways involved also were in conference here last night, and it is understood that they approved of the letter sent to the Government representatives.

Immediately upon receipt of this letter, Mr. Neill announced his program for immediate action toward ending the trouble if possible. It is his plan for him to confer with the railway managers, while Judge Knapp will confer with the engineers. They will meet later to compare notes. In this way, he pointed out, the rights of each side will be protected by secrecy from the other, while giving the Government representatives a basis upon which to work for a settlement.

Six Clansmen in Court.

Hillsville, Va., April 24.—Six members of the Allen clan were arraigned here yesterday to answer for their part in the Carroll Court tragedy of March 14, when judge, prosecutor, sheriff, a juror, and a spectator were shot to death.

Attorneys for the accused have admitted that an effort will be made to place responsibility for the murders upon Sidney Allen and Wesley Edwards, the only two members of the gang still at large. It will be claimed that Floyd Allen shot in self-defence when attacked by court officers, that Claude and Friel Allen fired in the excitement of the moment, and that Sidna Edwards, Boyd Marion, and Victor Allen did not shoot at all.

C.P.R.'s Colonization Scheme.

Montreal, April 24.—One of the first results of the creation of the natural resources department on the C.P.R. is announced in the adoption of a scheme for the colonization of the company's lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The most striking innovation in this scheme is that the Canadian Pacific will loan each settler colonist a sum of $2,000 for a period of ten years, at 6 per cent. per annum, for use in the development of his farm.

C.N.R. Montreal Plans.

Ottawa, April 24.—Plans of the C.N.R. tunnel and terminus at Montreal have been filed for approval before the Railway Commission. Hearing of the application is expected on Friday.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

Quebec, April 24.—Cleroux and Garneau, the two youths who have been on trial in connection with the death of George Leclerc, were found guilty of manslaughter yesterday afternoon and sentenced to ten and five years respectively in the penitentiary.

Favors Nominated Senate.

London, April 24.—Redmond, speaking at the National Convention at Dublin yesterday said that his own experience with colonies led him to favor a nominated senate. He wanted a second chamber crowded with men who had hitherto no sympathy with the Nationalist party, men with a great stake in the country, representative of literature and art. The chances of the bill were far better than with either of the two previous bills. Mr. Redmond asked the convention to endorse his acceptance of the bill, and the whole assembly rose to its feet, cheered, and waved hats and handkerchiefs for three or four minutes.

"I ask you to say I speak, not for the Irish party, but for the Irish people," said Redmond, and at this an even greater demonstration than before was witnessed, which was renewed when Redmond sat down.

Big Majority for Union.

Toronto, April 24.—Despite the vote of the Presbyterian Church, the Canadian Methodists continue to pile up a large majority for organic union between the three churches, Presbyterian, Methodists, and Congregational.

The latest figures compiled yesterday show that the total votes cast to date give almost ninety per cent. of the membership and adherents in favor of the tri-une church. The quarterly official boards have voted about ninety-five per cent. in favor, which shows that about one-quarter of the boards were unanimous, a half in favor, and only about one quarter against the proposal.

Reports from the mission fields show an exceptionally strong vote for the amalgamation.

PEUCHEN ON STAND

He Blames the Company and Not Captain Smith

LOOKOUT MAN TESTIFIES

Washington, April 24.—Like the missing horseshoe nail that cost a monarch his kingdom, the failure to provide binoculars or eyeglasses for the lookouts on the Titanic was one contributing cause of that ship's loss and, with it, the loss of more than 1,500 lives.

Two witnesses before the Senate investigation committee yesterday agreed on this. They were Frederick Fleet, a look out on the liner, and Major Arthur Godfrey Peuchen, Canadian manufacturer and yachtsman, who was among the rescued passengers. Fleet acknowledged that if he had been helped in his observations by a glass, he could probably have spied the berg into which the ship crashed in time to have warned the bridge to avoid it. Major Peuchen also testified to the much greater sweep of vision afforded by binoculars, and, as a yatchsman, said he believed the presence of the iceberg might have been detected in time to escape the collision had the lookout man been so equipped.

It was made to appear that the blame for being without glasses did not rest with the lookout men. Fleet said they had asked for them at Southampton and were told that there were none for them. One glass, in a pinch, would have served in the crow's nest.

Major Peuchen criticised in strong terms the lack of experienced sailors on board the Titanic. He said that when the call to quarters was sounded not enough of the crew responded to undertake the work required in lowering and filling the boats. Furthermore, he said, no drills had been held from the time the ship left Southampton, although it was customary to hold such drills every Sunday.

At the morning session, Third Officer Pittman of the Titanic admitted that the only drill was that before leaving Southampton. The boat of which he took command under First Officer Murdock's orders, did not seek to pick up survivors after the wreck because passengers in the lifeboat demurred.

Major Peuchen was the first passenger witness to appear before the committee. All ten of his friends with whom he was traveling lost their lives in the wreck.

Senator Smith urged him to strive to remember the names of as many passengers as he could.

"I cannot remember many, but I saw a list being copied in the smoking room of the Carpathia. I did not get a copy," replied Major Peuchen.

Senator Smith then asked Major Peuchen to tell the story of the voyage, telling of the weather, accidents and whether there was any fire aboard. The major told of the trip and said:

"There was no mention of fire and we were all pleased with the trip until the crash. After 11 o'clock I went to my stateroom. I scarcely was undressed when I felt a shock. I thought merely that a large wave had struck the ship."

"I put on my coat and went on deck," said he. "I met a friend, who said, 'We've struck an iceberg.' We went up on deck and saw the iceberg from the fore part of the ship. Some ice had fallen four or five feet inside the rail.

"After a few minutes I went to other friends and said it was not serious. Fifteen minutes later I met Charles M. Hays of the Grand Trunk Pacific. I asked him, 'Have you seen the ice?' He said 'No.' Then I took him up and showed him. Then I noticed the boat was listing.

Major Peuchen was asked with regard to the filling of the boats, if men were allowed in.

"They would only allow women. Men had to stand back. The second officer stood there and that was the order enforced. No men passengers got in that boat."

"Did you see any man attempt to get in?" asked Senator Smith.

"No. The boat was safely lowered. There were about 36 or 37 persons in it. Then we turned to the next boat. I was surprised that the sailors were not at their posts, as they should have been. I have seen fire drills and the action of the sailors did not impress me."

Major Peuchen said that in the lifeboat the quartermaster in charge made a woman row while he held the tiller, steering for a light, which, the major declared, did not exist, so far as he could see. The quartermaster refused to turn about and attempt to pick survivors, said the witness.

Major Peuchen said he had got into the lifeboat by sliding down a rope from the deck. Captain Smith, he said, had told him to break out a window and get into the boat that way, but the major did not think that feasible.

Major Peuchen said the lifeboat he was in was equipped with everything required. Some of the boats he heard were not sufficiently equipped with food. When he got on the Carpathia, he examined several lifeboats and found they had lights, hardtack and water.

"From what you observed, was there proper discipline on the part of the crew in loading the lifeboats?"

"Those of the crew that I saw working in lowering and filling the boats [illegible] were too few. I was surprised not to see more sailors at their stations, and also surprised that more people were not put in the boats."

The men had had no practice, the witness said, the members of the crew had told him.

Major Peuchen read a statement in order to make clear his position, as follows:

"I do not criticise Captain Smith, but I do criticise the policy and methods pursued by the company for I feel sure that in this case caution would have averted a terrible calamity. I have been given credit for saying many things absolutely untrue, and I wish to state that I have not said any personal or unkind thing about Captain Smith."

The major was then excused.

Frederick Fleet, the lookout, then was re-called to the stand, but before his examination was begun the committee decided to adjourn the hearing until 10 o'clock this morning.

Because he claimed to be a sailor rescued from the Titanic, Charles Martin was adjudged mentally incompetent and deported from the States at Niagara Falls yesterday. American immigration officers believe his mind became unbalanced through reading of the disaster.

Hope For Indian.

Sarnia, April 24.—The police here are investigating a new theory in the Walpole Island murder, for which Stephen Kyoshk, a twenty-year-old Indian youth, has been sentenced to hang. The latest developments may remove the stain of guilt from the young man and place it on another Indian.

Kyoshk has stated to his minister, Rev. Mr. Rigsby of the Sarnia Reserve, some very important facts. The blame is put on a neighbor, and the authorities are investigating.

The prosecution in the case claimed that a repeating shotgun was used, but from the facts brought out yesterday it has been proven that the shells produced had not been used in a repeating gun.

Prairie Fire Near Davidson, Sask.

Davidson, Sask., April 24.—Robert Crawford, a farmer living near here, had his ears burned to a crisp and his arms, hands and other parts of his body badly burned in a prairie fire which is believed to have been started from sparks from a railway engine, and which has been raging for some days. Mr. Crawford was hurried to the Saskatchewan Hospital and his recovery is doubtful.

Many farmers are fighting the fire, which for a time threatened to reach Manitou and Long Lake. Some of the fighters had narrow escapes from death, and many farmers have nothing left of their farms but the blackened earth.

Niagara Disappointed.

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 24.—General regret was expressed on both sides of the river yesterday because the governor vetoed the bill appropriating $50,000 for permanent lighting of the cataracts. He disapproved of the measure because Ontario failed to pass similar legislation.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA

Price, large bottle, 100 full doses 50c and well worth it too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at a low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year.

There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from the indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives Rakeness to the movements.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's remedies.

Some way, these questions, thus surging upon him, became a call to live, to fight, to unravel their mystery. The memory of that sweet-faced woman who had bent above him when the fever began its mastery, appealed to him now with the opportunity of service. He might be able to clear this, bring to her the truth, save her from despair, and hand over to justice the murderers of her husband. It was up to him alone to accomplish this—no one else knew what he knew, suspected what he suspected. And there was but one way—through escape. To remain there in weak surrender to fate could have but one ending, and that swift and sudden. He had no doubt as to "Blark Bart's" purpose, or of his ability to use the "Red Light" outfit as desired. The whole plan was clearly evident, and there would be no delay in execution—all they were waiting for was night, and a lax guard. He glanced about at the walls of the room, his eyes grown hard, his teeth clenched.

"Neb," he said shortly, "I guess that was your outfit all right, but they were not killed by Indians. They were run down by a gang from this town—the same fellows who have put you and me in here. I don't know what they were after—that's to be found out later—but the fight you put up at the camp spoiled their game for once, and led to your arrest. They failed to get what was wanted in Carson, and so they trailed the party to the Cimmaron Crossing. Then I got on their track, and fearing the result, they've landed me also. Now they'll get rid of us both as best they can. These fellows won't want any trial—that would be liable to give the whole trick away—but they have got to put us where we won't talk. There is an easy way to do this, and that is by a lynching bee. Do you get my drift, Neb?"

The whites of the negro's eyes were very much in evidence, his hands gripping at the bench on which he sat.

"Fo' de Lawd, yes, Massa Jack, I sho' does. I corroborates de whole thing."

"Then you are willing to take a chance with me?"

"Willin'! Why, Massa Jack, I'se overjoyed; I ain't gwine leave yer no mo'. I'se sho' gwine ter be yo' nigger. What yo' gwine ter do?"

Keith ran his eyes over the walls, carefully noting every peculiarity.

"We'll remain here quietly just as long as it is daylight, Neb," he replied finally, "but we'll try every board and every log to discover some way out. Just the moment it grows dark enough to slip away without being seen we've got to hit the prairie. Once south of the Arkansas we're safe, but not until then. Have you made any effort to get out?"

The negro came over to him, and bent down.

"I was layin' on a board what I'd worked loose at one end," he whispered hoarsely, "back ob de bench, but I couldn't jerk it out wid'out somethin' ter pry it up wid."

"Where is it?"

"Right yere, Massa Jack."

It was a heavy twelve-inch plank, part of the flooring, and the second from the side-wall. Keith managed to get a grip next to the black fingers, and the two pressed it up far enough for the white man to run one arm through the opening up to his shoulder and grope about below.

"There's a two-foot space there," he reported, as they let the board settle silently down into position. "The back part of this building must be set up on piles. I reckon we could pry that plank up with the bench, Neb, but it's liable to make considerable racket. Let's hunt about first for some other weak spot."

They crept across the floor, testing each separate board, but without discovering a place where they could exert a leverage. The thick planks were tightly spiked down. Nor did the walls offer any better encouragement. Keith lifted himself to the grated window, getting a glimpse of the world without, but found the iron immovable, the screws solidly embedded in the outside wood. He dropped to the floor, feeling baffled and discouraged.

"It will have to be the plank back of the bench, Neb," he announced briefly, wiping the perspiration from his face. "Get down there, and work it as loose as you can without making any noise, while I keep my ear to the door and listen for any interruption."

They took turns at this labour, discovering a loose nail which gave an opening purchase at the crack, thus enabling the insertion of a small wooden block, and ensuring a space for a good finger grip when the right time came. A sleepy Mexican brought in their dinner, and set it down on the bench without a word, but on his return with supper, the marshal accompanied him, and remained while they ate, talking to Keith, and staring about the room. Fortunately, the single window was to the west, and the last rays of the sun struck the opposite wall, leaving the space behind the bench in deep shadow. Whatever might be the plans of "Black Bart" and his cronies, Keith was soon convinced they were unknown to Hicks, who had evidently been deceived into thinking that this last arrest had created no excitement.

"That's why we picked yer up so early," he explained, genially. "Bart said if we got to yer afore the boys woke up they'd never hear nuthin' 'bout it, an' so that wouldn't be no row. He didn't even think thar'd be enny need o' keepin' a special guarter-night, but I reckon I won't take no such chance as that, an' I'll have a couple o' deputies prowlin' 'round fer luck. When Carson does wake up, she's h——."

He left them tobacco and pipes, and went away evidently convinced that he had performed his full duty. The two prisoners, puffing smoke-rings into the air, heard the heavy clang of the iron bar falling into place across the door, and sat looking into one another's faces through the deepening twilight. In the mind of both black and white reposed the same thought. The negro was first to break the silence.

"'Pears ter me, Massa Jack, like dis yere Bart pusson am mighty xious ter hab no suspicions raised."

"Anybody but Hicks would see that," acknowledged the other, the rings of smoke circling his head, "but he hasn't any brains. It was pure nerve that got him the job. Well, this is one time that 'Bart pusson' is going to find an empty coop. We'll get out, Neb, just as soon as it gets dark enough. Hicks isn't likely to put on an extra guard for an hour yet, and the 'Red Light' bunch won't be fit for business much before midnight. By that time we'll be in the sand hills, heading south, able to give them a run for their money—we'll have horses, too, if we can nd them."

The negro's eyes shone white.

"Fo' de Lawd's sake, Massa," he protested, "dat'd sho' be a hangin' job if ebber dey cotched us."

Keith laughed, knocking out the ashes from his pipe.

"With an hour's start that will be the least of my troubles," he said quietly.

CHAPTER VI.
THE ESCAPE.

It was dark enough for their purpose in half an hour, the only gleam of remaining colour being the red glow of the negro's pipe, even the openings in the iron grating being blotted from sight. Keith, staring in that direction, failed to perceive any distant glimmer of star, and decided the night must be cloudy, and that time for action had come. Guided by Neb's pipe bowl, he touched the boy on the shoulder.

"Knock out your ashes, and shuffle about lively with your feet, while I pry up the board."

In spite of his slowness, Keith possessed unusual strength yet no exertion on his part served to start the loosened plank sufficiently for their purpose. Ripping a strip from the bench he managed to pry the hole somewhat larger, arranging the bench itself so as to afford the necessary leverage, but even then his entire weight failed to either start the spikes, or crack the plank. Some altercation began in the other room, the sound of angry voices and shuffling feet being plainly audible. It was clear to Keith that they must take the chance of a noise, and no better time than this could be chosen.

"Here, Neb, take hold with me, and bear down—put your whole weight on it, boy."

The two flung themselves upon the end of the bench, leaping up and down so as to add weight to power. Something had to give, either the stout wood of their improvised lever or else the holding of the plank. For an instant it seemed likely to be the former; then, with a shrill screech, the long spikes yielded and the board suddenly gave. With shoulders inserted beneath, the two men heaved it still higher, ramming the bench below so as to leave the opening clear. This was now sufficiently ample for the passage of a man's body, and Keith, lowering himself, discovered the earth to be fully four feet below. The negro instantly joined him, and they began creeping about in the darkness, seeking some way out. A rudely laid foundation of limestone alone obstructed their path to the open air. This had been laid in mortar, but of inferior quality, so that little difficulty was experienced in detaching sufficient to obtain hand hold. Working silently, not knowing what watchers might be already stationed without, they succeeded in loosening enough of the rock to allow them to crawl through, lying breathless in the open. Accustomed as they were to the darkness, they could yet see little. They were upon the opposite side from the town, with no gleam of lights visible, prairie and sky blending together into spectral dimness, with no sound audible but the continued quarrel in the front room of the jail. Keith crept along to the end of the building from where he could perceive the lights of the town twinkling dimly through the intense blackness, evidently the regular evening saturnalia had not yet begun, although there was already semblance of life about the numerous saloons, and an occasional shout punctuated the stillness. A dog howled in the distance, and the pounding of swift hoofs along the trail told of fresh arrivals. An hour later and the single street of Carson City would be alive with humanity eager for any excitement, ready for any wild orgy, if only once turned loose. That it would be turned loose, and directed, the man lying on his face in the grass felt fully assured. He smiled grimly, wishing he might behold "Black Bart's" face when he should discover the flight of his intended victims. But there was no time to lose; every moment gained, added to their chance of safety.

"Are those horses tied there by the blacksmith's shop?" he asked, pointing.

The negro stared in the direction indicated, confused by the shadows thrown by the dim lights.

"I reck'n dey am, Massa Jack; I done make out fo'."

"Then two of them must belong to us; come on, boy."

He ran forward, crouching behind every chance cover, and keeping well back behind the line of shacks. A slight depression in the prairie helped conceal their movements, and neither spoke until they were crouching together beside the wall of the shop. Then Neb, teeth chattering, managed to blurt forth:

"Fo' de Lawd's sake, yer don't actually mean ter steal dem hosses?"

Keith glanced about at the other's dim, black shadow.

"Sure not; just borrow 'em."

"But dat's a hangin' job in dis yere country, Massa Jack."

"Sure it is if they catch us. But we'd be strung up anyway, and we can't be hung twice. Besides there is a chance for us with the ponies, and none at all without. An hour's start in the saddle, Neb, and this bunch back here will never even find our trail; I pledge you that. Come, boy, stay close with me."

It was the quiet, confident voice of assured command of one satisfied with his plans, and the obedient negro, breathing hard, never dreamed of opposition; all instincts of slavery held him to the dominion of this white master. Keith leaned forward, staring at the string of deserted ponies tied to the rail. Success depended on his choice, and he could judge very little in that darkness. Men were straggling in along the street to their right, on foot and horseback, and the saloon on the corner was being well patronised. A glow of light streamed forth from its windows, and there was the sound of many voices. But this narrow alley was deserted and black. The fugitive stepped boldly forward, afraid that otherwise he might startle the ponies and thus create an alarm. Guided by a horseman's instinct he swiftly ran his hands over the animals, and made quick selection.

"Here, Neb, take this fellow; lead him quietly down the bank," and he thrust the loosened rein into the black man's hand.

An instant later he had chosen his own mount, and was silently moving in the same direction, although the night there was so black that the obedient negro had already entirely vanished. The slope of the land not only helped cover their movements, but also rendered it easy for them to find one another. Fully a hundred yards westward they met, where a gully led directly down toward the river. There was no longer need for remaining on foot, so they were a sufficient distance away from the little town to feel no fear of being discovered, unless by some drunken straggler. At Keith's command the negro climbed into his saddle. Both ponies were restive, but not vicious, and after a plunge or two, to test their new masters, came easily under control. Keith led the way, moving straight down the gully, which gradually deepened, burying them in its black heart, until it finally debouched on to the river sands. The riotous noises of the drunken town died slowly away behind, the night silent and dark. The two riders could scarcely distinguish one another as they drew rein at the edge of the water. To the southward there gleamed a cluster of lights, marking the position of the camp of regulars. Keith drove his horse deeper into the stream, and headed northward, the negro following like a shadow.

There was a ford directly opposite the cantonment, and another, more dangerous, and known to only a few three miles farther up stream. Keeping well within the water's edge, so as to thus completely obscure their trail, yet not daring to venture deep for fear of striking quicksand, the plainsman sent his pony struggling forward, until he dim outline of the bank at his right rendered him confident that they had attained the proper point for crossing. He had been that way only once before, and realized the danger of attempting passage in such darkness, but urgent need drove him forward.

"Follow me just as close as you can, boy," he said sternly, "and keep both your feet out of the stirrups. If your horse goes down hang on to his tail, and let him swim out."

There was little enough to guide by, merely a single faint star peering out from a rift of the clouds, but Keith's remembrance was that the ford led straight out to the centre of the stream, and then veered slightly toward the right. He knew the sand ridge was only used by horsemen, not being wide enough for the safe passage of wagons, but the depth of the water on either side was entirely problematical. He was taking a big chance, yet dare not wait for daylight. Summoning all his nerve and alertness, he urged his horse slowly forward, the intelligent animal seemingly comprehending the situation, and feeling carefully for footing. The actions of the animal gave the rider greater confidence, and he loosened his grip on the rein, leaving the pony's instinct to control. The latter fairly crept forward, testing the sand before resting any weight upon the hoof, the negro's mount following closely. The water was unusually high, and as they advanced it bore down against them in considerable volume; then as they veered to the right, they were compelled to push directly against its weight in struggling toward shore. The men could see nothing but this solid sheet of water rushing down toward them from out the black void, and then vanishing below. Once Keith's horse half fell, plunging nose under, yet gaining foothold again before the rider has deserted his saddle. A dim blackness ahead already revealed the nearness of the southern bank, when Neb's pony went down suddenly, swept fairly off its legs by some fierce eddy in the stream. Keith heard the negro's guttural cry, and caught a glimpse of him as the two were sent whirling down. The coiled rope of the lariat, grasped in his right hand, was hurled forth like a shot, but came back empty. Not another sound reached him; his own horse went steadily on, feeling his way, until he was close against the bank, with water merely rippling about his ankles. Keith driving his feet again into the stirrups headed him down stream, wading close in toward the shore, leaning forward over the pommel striving to see through the gloom.

He had no doubt about Neb's pony making land, unless struck by some driftwood, or borne to the centre of the stream by the shifting force of the current. But if Neb had failed to retain his grip he might have been sucked under by the surge of waters, them, dripping and weak from the struggle, yet otherwise unhurt. There were no words spoken, but black and white hands clasped silently, and then Neb crept back into the saddle, shivering in his wet clothes as the cool night wind swept against him. Keeping close in toward shore, yet far enough out so that the water would hide their trail, the fugitives toiled steadily up stream, guided only by the black outline of the low bank upon their left.

Redistribution Bill Before Provincial House

Proposed New Constituency to be Formed With Biggar as Seat

The Provincial Parliament now have the new Distribution Bill framed up into working shape, and this will erect 15 new seats and make 54 seats for the whole province.

One of these new seats is allotted to our own town of Biggar, with a district extending thirty miles from east to west and from sixty to ninety miles from north to south, the deflection being caused by the North Saskatchewan River.

As laid out, the new constituency of Biggar consists of all that land shown on the map as follows:

Starting from a point on the line between ranges 11 and 12 on the top of township 30, and proceeding straight north along this line to the North Saskatchewan river in township 40; then along the line of the river till reaching the line between ranges 17 and 18 in township 44, and proceeding south along this line to the N. E. corner of township 30 in range 18, and from there straight east to the starting point.

This gives the Biggar constituency an area of somewhere about 2,400 square miles, and includes the towns of Biggar, South Battleford, Naseby, Traynor, Harris, Zealandia, Herschel, Palo, Oban, Mead, Vance, Neola, and a lot of other smaller places inside the area mentioned above.

FACE WAS LITERALLY COVERED WITH PIMPLES.

Four Different Doctors Did Her No Good.

Two Bottles of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS Cured Her.

Bad blood is directly the cause of the face breaking out in pimples, and it is impossible to eradicate them unless you put your blood into good shape

Burdock Blood Bitters is compounded from roots, herbs, barks and berries, and is without a doubt the best remedy procurable for the purpose of driving all the blood impurities out of the system.

Mr. Geo. E. Miller, Clavering, Ont., writes:—"Last fall I was very much troubled with pimples. My face was literally covered with them. I went to four different doctors, but they could do me no good. One day a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got two bottles, and before I had taken all the first one, the pimples had nearly all disappeared, and by the time I had taken all the second one the pimples had disappeared completely, thanks to Burdock Blood Bitters. I would advise anybody who is troubled with any blood trouble to use Burdock Blood Bitters.

ART OF POISONING

Toxicology Made a Record in the Seventeenth Century.

SECRETS NOW HAPPILY LOST

It Was In Trying to Rediscover Them That Sainte-Croix, the Accomplice of the Notorious Mme. de Brinvilliers Met His Tragic Fate.

The basis of most poisons in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries was arsenic. It was extremely easy to procure, the taste was easy to hide, and until Marsh's test was discovered about a hundred years ago its traces were difficult to discover. In the seventeenth century toxicology reached heights that it has never since attained. The laboratories of the poisoners in France and Italy contained secrets happily lost today.

The preparation of the potions used during the reigns of Louis XIII. and XIV. may be briefly described. An animal was doctored with a dose of arsenic. After death the liquids of the body were carefully distilled, and the resultant was of extreme virulence, being composed of the virus of arsenic and the alkaloids of decomposition. When the animal thus killed was credited with a bodily venom the distilled liquid was a concentration of three poisons instead of two. For this reason the toad was the favorite subject of experiment. This was the poison used by Mme. de Brinvilliers. Against it medical skill was almost helpless.

The list of monarchs whose deaths were attributed by popular gossip to the effect of poison is a long one. Catherine de' Medici was a known poisoner, surrounded by poisoners, and her two sons, Francis II. and Charles IX., were probably hurried to their end by the administration of drugs as well as by their feeble state of health.

There are some grounds for the assertion that Louis XIII. died of poison. His mother, Marie de' Medici, was said to be the greatest poisoner of her age. The comment in Paris was that the king was well or ill as he agreed or quarreled with the queen mother. The state ministers ran desperate risks. Richelieu suffered from many curious illnesses. He knew his danger and took every precaution. Mazarin's death cannot wholly be explained by natural causes. The death of the sister of Charles II. of England is also a matter of mystery.

The chief accomplice of Mme. de Brinvilliers and perhaps actually the instigator of many of her crimes was Gaudin de Sainte-Croix, than whom a more sinister scoundrel does not cross the pages of the century.

He was sent to the Bastille, liberated and met his death before Mme. de Brinvilliers herself was brought to trial. The accounts of his end are conflicting and illuminating. According to one of them, Sainte-Croix was endeavoring to discover a poison the emanations alone of which would be able to kill. He had heard of the poisoned napkin with which the young Dauphin, elder brother of Charles VII. had wiped his face while playing at tennis and the contact of which alone was sufficient to kill. Then there was the gossip about the gloves belonging to Jeanne d'Albret, which had been prepared by one of the Italian poisoners in the train of Catherine de' Medici, a crime which was never brought home to its instigators. The secrets of these poisons had been lost, and Sainte-Croix wished to find them.

There came to pass one of those strange events which seem rather to be a punishment from heaven than an accident. At the moment when Sainte-Croix, leaning over his stove, watched his fatal mixture reach its highest state of intensity, the glass mask which covered his face and preserved him from the mortal exhalations which escaped from the liquor became unfastened and dropped off.

Sainte-Croix fell to the ground as if struck by a thunderbolt.

After the death of Sainte-Croix Mme. de Brinvilliers took flight and found a refuge in London and afterward in the Netherlands. Her arrest was affected by stratagem, and she was brought back to Paris to stand trial. The most damaging testimony against her was that of the tutor, Braincourt, who had been in a measure her unwilling accomplice. In one part of his evidence the episode must have suggested to Dumas one scene between D'Artagnan and Lady de Winter described in "The Three Musketeers." Mme. de Brinvilliers was condemned and a full confession of her crimes was wrung from her by the application of the torture of the water. She remained seven hours in the torture chamber and she avowed all her crimes, but denied that she had any accomplices.

The trial, torture and execution of Mme. de Brinvilliers served as a useful lesson. Poison did not disappear, but its practitioners were taught to curb their malevolent enthusiasms. The pursuits of astrology and alchemy waned for a time to reappear in the next century in the richest fruition in the person of that astonishing arch impostor, Cagliostro.—Bookman Review of "Mme. Brinvilliers and Her Times."

RASH SO BAD BABY CAME NEAR DYING

Head Broke Out. Spread to Arms, Legs and Entire Body. Itched So He Would Scratch Until Blood Ran. One Box of Cuticura Ointment and Nearly One Cake of Cuticura Soap Cured Him. Has Had No Return.

"When my boy was about three months old, his head broke out with a rash which was very itchy and ran a watery fluid. We tried everything we could but he got worse all the time, till it spread to his arms, legs and then to his entire body. He got so bad that he came near dying. The rash would itch so that he would scratch till the blood ran, and a thin yellowish stuff would be all over his pillow in the morning. I had to put mittens on his hands to prevent him tearing his skin. He was so weak and run down that he took fainting spells as if he were dying. He was almost a skeleton and his little hands were thin like claws.

"He was bed about eight months when we tried Cuticura Remedies. I had not laid him down in his cradle in the daytime for a long while. I washed him with Cuticura Soap and put on one application of Cuticura Ointment and he was so soothed that he could sleep. You don't know how glad I was he felt better. It took one box of Cuticura Ointment and pretty near one cake of Cuticura Soap to cure him. I think our boy would have died but for the Cuticura Remedies and I shall always remain a firm friend of them. He was cured more than twenty years ago, and there has been no return of the trouble. I shall be glad to have you publish this true statement of his cure." (Signed) Mrs. M. C. Maitland, Jasper, Ontario, May 27, 1910.

For more than a generation mothers have found a speedy, agreeable and economical treatment for their skin-tortured little ones in Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Although they are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a liberal sample of each may be obtained free, from the Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., 53 Columbus Ave., Boston, U.S.A.

WHEN BUYING STOCKS.

Do as the Successful Wall Street Speculator Does.

If you want to speculate buy stocks that Wall street speculators buy. Don't buy things offered by smooth tongued agents working for a handsome commission. Don't buy stocks that are guaranteed to have a big advance.

The successful Wall street speculator never tries to make money in these sort of things. He buys stocks that have passed muster and been listed on the exchange. Before they can be listed the company must make a report that will justify listing. While this report is not as complete as it should be, it bars out all the wildcat propositions by which the people are being swindled.

It is just as easy to buy listed stocks as any other. Brokers of good standing in the stock exchange are advertising in reputable publications, and one can always open up a correspondence with a broker and have his questions freely and fully answered. The broker likes nothing better than to answer letters from a customer or from a prospective customer.

If any one is timid about dealing with a broker he can always deal through his bank or get a reference to some broker from his banker.—Jasper, in Leslie's.

SALT AND ICE.

The Process That Begins When the Two Are Mixed.

It is not correct to say that salt dissolves ice, since real solution only takes place when a solid, liquid or gas is dissolved in a liquid.

The true explanation of the fact that ice melts when common salt is added to it depends upon the simple physical principle that when a salt is dissolved in water heat is absorbed and its temperature is lowered. When salt and ice are mixed together some of the salt dissolves in the small amount of water which is always present, the temperature is thereby lowered, and a new freezing point is established.

The remainder of the ice, being at a temperature higher than this new freezing point, slowly melts, and more salt is dissolved until the solution is saturated. The temperature can in this way be lowered to 22 degrees C., which is the freezing point of a definite compound of salt and water.

The salts dissolved in sea waters serve a very important purpose, as it requires a greater degree of cold to cause the formation of ice on them than on fresh water.

Bonaparte and Mlle. Montansier.

The Cafe Corazza, in the Palais Royal, had many interesting clients in its time. It was there that General Bonaparte, then only a general of brigade, asked his friend Barras to find him a rich wife, and Barras suggested Mlle. Montansier, the proprietress of the adjacent Theatre Montansier. She was sixty-three, but she was well preserved and might have passed for forty-five, and she was believed to have accumulated a fortune of £48,000. Bonaparte asked to be introduced, and Barras presented him and assures us in his memoirs that the match would have come off if it had not been for the events of Vendemiaire. After that memorable day of the "whiff of grapeshot" the future emperor broke off the engagement, feeling himself too important to marry a superannuated actress, even for the sake of having the spending of her savings.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Example Better Than Precept.

John Wesley, accompanied by one of his preachers, was once dining at the house of a rich Methodist. The tables were spread with a liberal meal, but Wesley's companion no sooner saw it than he said:

"Oh, sir, what a sumptuous dinner! Things are very different from what they once were. I fear there is but little self denial among Methodists in these days."

"My brother," said Wesley, pointing to the table, "there is a fine opportunity for self denial now."

The hint was not taken, but the rebuke did its work.

Gilbert of Colchester.

Gilbert of Colchester, who flourished three centuries ago, has been called the founder of the science of electricity. Gilbert discovered the augmentation of the power of a loadstone by arming or capping it with soft iron cheeks, the screening effect of a sheet of iron, the method of magnetising iron by hammering it while it lies north and south, the destruction of magnetism by heat and the existence around the magnet of a magnetic field. Generalizing from small to large, he advanced the entirely novel idea that the globe of the earth is itself a magnet.

Words Lamb Didn't Like.

Who would have thought that these respectable words were banned by Charles Lamb as detestable novelties? "Physical," he says, "vile word. Apathetic, vile word. Reaction, vile slang. Mechanically—faugh!" Now, physical is in Shakespeare, not in the sense to which we are now used, but meaning medicinal. Coriolanus makes light of the blood letting of his wound and says it is physical to him.—London Standard.

His Comeback.

"But," the father objected, "you have never shown that you are capable of supporting a wife."

"Oh," the young man replied, "if you want her to marry a widower I'll have to confess that I can't qualify."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Stuff that Men are Made of

YOU couldn't write the history of porridge without bringing in many of the world's greatest men—great thinkers and great doers.

The Scotch Universities particularly, have many a romance that the world knows nothing of. Young fellows, who having to work their way through college, studied by candle light in a garret and lived on porridge and herring.

The record of the Highlanders in England's wars is a record of wonderful endurance. This endurance is due in considerable part to the splendid physique built up by the right foods.

As you know, porridge is their mainstay.

Thus there are two good reasons why you should eat Tillson's Oats. First—because well made porridge is the best thing you can eat for breakfast, and second, because Tillson's Oats make the best porridge.

Insects in Flight.

Motion pictures of insects in flight prove that the movement of the wings of all insects presents the same general character. When flight is begun the amplitude of the first wing beats is much smaller than of the subsequent ones, but the period remains almost unchanged. The insect regulates the velocity of its flight, not by the rapidity of the motion of its wings, but by changing their inclination. Although in normal conditions the period of the wing beat remains constant, it may be increased or diminished by various influences, such as fatigue and cold.

FAMOUS TRAGEDIES that BALKED SOLUTION

The Slaying of "Pitifully Pretty" Mamie Cunningham and the "Voodoo Mystery" Concerned with the Murder of Kate Scharn.

(Copyright, 1912, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

RUNNING at top speed through Second avenue, New York, a tall, rough looking man bumped into and almost knocked over "Doc" Henry Tyler, who was standing in front of his drug store, at No. 674. There was never a word of apology, and the strangely acting man continued uptown through Second avenue with no regard for the safety or comfort of pedestrians. "Doc" Tyler was angry, and, besides, the man was acting very suspiciously. He might be a sneak thief, the apothecary thought, so he started in pursuit, yelling at the fugitive to halt. Many persons joined the chase, and after a lively run of about six blocks a policeman managed to collar the quarry.

The man was hurrying home to an ill wife, he said. But the policeman started to walk back with him in the direction of Tyler's drug store just to make sure that nothing had happened. At the corner of East Thirty-seventh street there could be seen a big crowd of people standing in front of the building at No. 315. The policeman marched his prisoner straight to the building and inquired what was the trouble.

"A girl has been murdered inside," some one told him.

The captured man gave a start looked about in a frightened manner and then apparently regained his composure. The policeman led him into the hallway, which was filled with people.

"Does any person here recognize this man?" he asked.

After he had repeated the question several times three or four men assured him that the prisoner had been seen in the hallway just after the murder was discovered. One man said that he had suddenly edged his way out of the building and started to walk hurriedly in the direction of Second avenue. His pace had gradually increased until he had broken into a run. In the excitement no one thought of suspecting the man of having any complicity in the crime which had been committed.

The Suspect's Explanation.

The man was locked up in the East Thirty-fifth street police station to await further examination. Meanwhile Captain Martens made a thorough examination of the premises and of the body of Mamie Cunningham, the murdered girl.

She was lying in the sitting room of her mother's apartment, face downward, at the foot of a large figure of the Virgin Mary. Beneath her body, with the blade bent almost double, lay a large carving knife, yet she had sustained no knife wounds, and it was thought that she had attempted to defend herself with the weapon. Her head had been battered with some blunt instrument, a towel was tightly twisted around her throat and her feet were bound.

The history and circumstances of the Cunningham family revealed no clew as to who might have committed the murder. Mamie, who was fourteen years old, lived with her mother, who was a widow and acted as janitress of the apartments in order to help pay the rent. Her brother John was studying in Montreal for the priesthood and her uncle was a priest at St. Gabrielle's, where Mamie was studying music. The child had great talent and by dint of careful saving and scraping her mother had just purchased a piano on the instalment plan.

While this examination was in progress the statements made by the prisoner, Edward McCormick, were being investigated. McCormick told the police that he had been visiting his aunt at No. 315 East Thirty-seventh street. She lived on the second floor above the Cunninghams, he said. On his way out of the building he had stopped in the hallway, curious to see what was attracting the crowd. He had lingered there longer than he should have done, for his wife was dying with tuberculosis. When he realised how long he had been away from home he had hurried from the building and started to run.

The statement that he had been visiting his aunt was verified, but she said that when he arrived she had been looking out of the front window and did not see him in the street nor see him enter the door. If he had come by the front way, at the time he knocked at her door she did not think she could have missed seeing him. At the time she thought, with some surprise, that he must have entered the building by a rear way. McCormick had testified that he entered the building by way of the front door.

At the address which he gave as his home it was learned that his wife was seriously ill, but not from tuberculosis, as he had stated. Before she knew that her husband was under arrest and suspected of murder she said that he had left the house that morning at nine o'clock. Now, this left two hours to be accounted for, as McCormick had deposed that he left the house at eleven o'clock in the morning. There was also a slight discrepancy between the statements made by McCormick and his aunt regarding the time he had arrived at her apartment.

The Identification.

So damaging was the circumstantial evidence against him that Captain Martens put him through a terrible form of the third degree, hoping that if guilty he would confess while the horror of the whole affair was fresh in his mind.

There were certain red stains on McCormick's clothes which the police regarded as signs that he had committed the crime, but he was positive in his statements that they had been caused by dye. While he was locked up in the East Thirty-fifth street police station a man from the Detective Bureau cut out several pieces of cloth from his coat, each bearing a red stain, and carefully wrapped them up in brown paper. He did not say a word in explanation, simply took the scissors from his pocket and snipped the pieces of cloth which he wanted. It would be plain to McCormick that the cloth would be used as evidence against him and it was the first step in attempting to break down his nerve.

While McCormick watched him the detective marked the little brown paper packages with pencil and then silently left the room. The prisoner was then taken in a patrol wagon to the building where the murder had been committed. The curtains in the rear of the wagon were drawn down so that he could not see where he was going. He was hurriedly led into the bedroom where the body of Mamie Cunningham had been placed. As McCormick entered the door Captain Martens lifted the covering from the body. McCormick stared at the pretty face of the girl, with heavy brown ringlets pushed back from the forehead. Her lips, just a little parted, showed a beautiful even set of perfectly white teeth. The policemen in the room watched McCormick as tigers watch their prey. He was silent for a moment and shook slightly, then he said:—

"My God, it is terrible! And you think I could do that"

"I haven't said I thought so," replied Captain Martens gruffly. "She is pretty, isn't she?"

"Pitifully pretty," murmured McCormick.

The police captain stepped to the bedside and lifted one of the pale hands.

"Here, McCormick," he growled. "Feel this. "It's warm, isn't it? She can't have been dead very long. What do you think?"

McCormick bit his under lip and drew himself up as a man does who is about to meet danger and has the will to obliterate his fear. He took the hand in his own.

"No," he said. "It feels very cold to me."

This was the truth.

So far the prisoner had exhibited no emotion except what might have been expected from any man confronted by such an ordeal, but the captain was not satisfied. There was a fresh scratch over McCormick's eye. Captain Martens stepped close to him and scrutinized the wound.

"Your face is scratched, McCormick," he said. "How did you do that?"

"I struck my face against a low gas jet in the dark," he replied.

"Ah," said Captain Martens, "it looks to me as though it might have been done by a finger nail. Just such a nail as these," he said, taking the girl's hand in his again.

McCormick shuddered, but he did not break down. Nevertheless, he was taken to Police Headquarters and locked up. He had not satisfactorily accounted for all the time between eleven o'clock in the morning and two o'clock in the afternoon, when Mamie Cunningham's body had been discovered. Her mother had left home at eleven o'clock. Shortly after that a neighbor saw Mamie sweeping the hall and the front steps. In reply to a question the girl said she wanted to surprise her mother by having the work all done. Mrs. Cunningham returned home at two o'clock and found her daughter murdered.

The kitchen window was broken and the doors from the parlor and the kitchen to the public hall were not locked. There was also another door leading from the kitchen to a back alleyway, which was open. Mrs. Thompson, McCormick's aunt, who had been sitting at her front window, had seen Mamie Cunningham sweeping the front steps, but after she had gone back into the building, Mrs. Thompson had seen no one enter the building by the front door. It was evident that the struggle between the girl and her assailant had commenced in the kitchen and the murderer probably entered by that way. If the suspected man was guilty this would account for the fact that his aunt had not seen him approach the building.

While McCormick was held a prisoner the police found an Italian boy, Joseph Marreno, who said that he had seen the murderer. Marreno's father kept an ice stand at the corner of Third avenue and Thirty-seventh street. On the morning of the murder a young girl had left an order for twenty pounds of ice. Marreno had taken it to the address she had given. He had been so frightened at what he saw there that he had forgotten the name. According to the boy's story the ice had evidently been ordered by Mamie Cunningham. Joseph said that as the kitchen door stood partially open he had pushed it open wide enough to see into the room and through another open door into a bedroom. A tall, gaunt man was leaning over the bed, he said, and was maltreating a girl. Marreno was so frightened that he ran back to the stand with his ice, and when he learned that murder had been committed he was afraid to tell of what he saw.

Without hesitation the Italian boy identified McCormick as the man whom he had seen in the bedroom of the Cunningham apartment. It looked as if the case had been cleared up and there was no doubt in the minds of the investigators that McCormick was the murderer of Mamie Cunningham.

But suddenly it was discovered that in no possible way could Marreno have seen into the bedroom without entering the kitchen and walking at least half way across the floor. It was learned that Joseph was a habitual liar and that he had often invented tales quite as fantastic and imaginative as the one he now told. On top of this McCormick's lawyers proved an absolute alibi for him and accounted for every second of time between the hour he left home and the hour that the body was found.

McCormick was discharged and Marreno was sent to the Gerry Society for detention until his case was investigated.

Meanwhile a man named Frank Farrel, a great friend of Mamie Cunningham, had been arrested and discharged. Marreno's identification of McCormick as the murderer was greatly responsible for this. Farrel had a key to the Cunningham apartment. He had given Mamie many presents and was seen talking to her not long before eleven o'clock on the morning of the crime. After he was discharged he disappeared.

The Marreno boy was closely watched by Rocco Celiano, a bootblack employed at Police Headquarters. Celiano was sent to the Gerry Society, where he roomed with Marreno, posing as a murderer. One night Celiano confessed an imaginary crime to Marreno in order to win his confidence and draw him out.

"I was mighty scared," he told the police afterward. "In the middle of the next night Marreno suddenly waked up with a scream. He leaped from the bed in which we both slept and looked under it. Then he crept all around the room, as though he was searching for something. Suddenly he jumped back into bed and pulled the clothes up over his head. I was afraid, but I did not let on, only tried to make him easy, and asked what was the matter.

"'I did it,' he told me. 'I killed Mamie Cunningham, but I cannot tell you how or why.'"

This story was investigated, and although Marreno repeated to Celiano the story that he killed the girl, it was proved that he could not have done so. The question, Who did? has never been answered. The only man to whom circumstantial evidence pointed with almost certainty had proved absolutely that it could not have been he. The one who confessed to the murder was shown to have been in a distant part of the city during the entire day of the tragedy. Frank Farrel had disappeared.

Where had he gone? Why had he left no traces of his movements? Did he know anything about the death of Mamie Cunningham? These are questions which to this day have not been answered.

IT was May 30, 1896, when Mamie Cunningham was murdered, and "Doc" Tyler caused the arrest of the mysterious man he saw fleeing from the scene of the crime. On the night of August 19, 1900, the apothecary was again called to play a part in a similar tragedy. He was wakened at about one o'clock in the morning by Fred Scharn, a tenant in an apartment building which "Doc" Tyler owned just around the corner from his drug store.

"My sister has been killed," said Fred excitedly, when "Doc" Tyler had responded to the frantic ringing of the night bell.

On the way to the apartment they encountered a policeman, who went with them. They found the body of the girl in an inside bedroom, lying on the floor. Her head had been smashed in by a hammer, which lay near her. She had also been strangled. Fred was sent into the apartment of a neighbor and the police and the apothecary set about examining the premises and the body.

The brother had found the front door to the building and the front door from the public hall to the sitting room both locked when he arrived home, at one o'clock. The sitting room had two windows, which opened over a rear yard. There were two bedrooms and a pantry opening onto the main room. One bedroom had a window facing a fire escape, but a thick deposit of dust on the iron platform and on the rungs of the ladder showed that no person had entered the apartment that way. The inside bedroom opened by a door to the sitting room, but had no connection with the public hall except a small, colored glass window, which was not movable and had not been broken.

The investigators were in possession of the weapon which had been used, but as it was identified as a hammer which belonged to the Scharns, it might be of little use. On the bed lay the girl's hat and hatpins and her jacket, as though she had just removed them. Across the back of a chair lay a freshly ironed waist, but Kate was fully dressed. She had probably put the fresh waist out ready for the morning, or perhaps she had been about to change her clothes before going out when the murderer attacked her. A cheap watch, some jewelry of practically no value and change which had been in her pocketbook were gone. Yet there were other small articles about the room of more value which had been left untouched, and the bureau and desk had not been rifled. So far as was known, the apartment had not been entered since the time of the murder, and the criminal must have had at least four hours in which to take what he wanted.

The one tangible clew offered to the police was a black mask such as is worn at a costume ball. It was constructed so as to cover the eyes and nose, and a curtain hung from the lower edge so as to conceal the mouth and chin of the wearer. It was lying on the floor very close to the girl's body.

When Fred Scharn was questioned the police learned that he and his sister lived alone in the four room apartment. Their mother had married a Connecticut silk manufacturer and the children, being displeased that she had married so soon after the death of her first husband, decided to remain in New York. They had been obliged to struggle pretty hard to make both ends meet, Fred working as a printer's apprentice and Kate in a pencil factory.

The Scharn Mystery.

Fred had recently lost his position and was looking for work. On the morning of the fatal day Kate Scharn had received a special delivery letter while the two were at breakfast. Fred had remarked that she looked as though she had spent a sleepless night, and shortly after she had read the letter and placed it inside her waist she complained that she felt ill. Her indisposition seemed to increase, and at last she told Fred she was too ill to go to work.

Fred remained at home until noon, when he left for Yonkers on business. At the same time Kate left the house, saying that she would go to the pencil factory for her pay envelope, as her salary was the only income they had while Fred was out of work. Fred was in Yonkers, he said, all afternoon, and from there went to the home of a Miss Kubin, in the Bronx. He expected his sister to be there in the evening with Lincoln Price, a bank clerk, whom she was engaged to marry. Fred had dinner with the Kubins and when Kate and her fiancé did not appear he thought that she must be ill. He left the Kubin home at twelve o'clock and went directly to his apartment, where he found his sister murdered.

It was reasonable to suppose that Lincoln Price might have something of interest to tell the police, especially about the letter which had been sent by special delivery. He was found at his lodgings and although he appeared to be greatly surprised at the news, did not seem very much shocked or saddened. The story he told was that he had an engagement with Kate Scharn on the previous evening, to go to Miss Kubin's home. He was to have met the girl at the 166th street station of the Third avenue elevated railroad at half-past seven. He took dinner with several friends and left them to keep his engagement with Miss Scharn. He waited, he said, for an hour, and when she did not meet him he returned to his friends, telling them that he had been "thrown down hard."

Although the dead girl's jewelry and money were taken, the police did not incline toward the robbery theory. The nature of the wounds and the mutilation of the body did not indicate mere murder for gain. It was considered positive that the murderer had been swayed by some terrible passion of anger or jealousy. The special delivery letter would probably tell which, but it could not be found. The apartment was searched inch by inch, but the letter had disappeared. Lincoln Price and Fred Scharn both fell under suspicion. It was thought Fred might have discovered a guilty pair of lovers on his unexpected return home and killed his sister in a fit of anger.

The special delivery letter might mean that Price was not supreme in the girl's affections, and jealousy might have been the motive for him to commit the crime. There were also other motives imputed to the bank clerk.

But it did not take Price long to establish an alibi. The gateman on the elevated station identified him as a man who had hung around the platform for at least an hour on the night of the crime, and as nearly as he could place it it must have been between half-past seven and half-past eight o'clock. The friends with whom Price had been eating and drinking accounted for the rest of his time from five o'clock on that Saturday afternoon until the very small hours of Sunday morning.

Fred Scharn could not so easily evade the clutches of the law. It was established pretty certainly that Kate had been killed between seven and eight o'clock. That was just the time that Lincoln Price had been absent from his friends, but the alibi proved by the gate man could not be shaken, although the police always regarded it sceptically.

The murdered girl's movements were traced, and it was found that after collecting her pay she had left the factory with another girl employe. A shop girl who said that Kate had bought stockings from her and that she was in the company of a young man answering to the description of Lincoln Price led the police off on a false trail, for it was shown that Kate had been in the company of the girl employe all afternoon.

Was It Human Sacrifice?

Together they had bought several articles of clothing and had parted company at six o'clock. Kate had then made a number of purchases at grocery and delicatessen stores in the neighborhood of her home, and the last man who had seen her sold her a bag of apples at about ten minutes to seven. A woman who lived in the same building saw the girl enter the house at seven o'clock.

At eight o'clock the laundry was delivered at the door of the Scharn apartment, and after ringing the bell several times the delivery boy rang Mrs. Carlson's bell. She thought that Kate was out and took the laundry into her own apartment.

This evidence, together with the medical examination, established the fact that the murder had been done between the hours of seven and eight. Now it was thought that Fred Scharn might have left the Kubin home just after dinner, hurried home, killed his sister for her money and returned to the Bronx to spend the evening and to establish an alibi. It was not beyond the range of possibility that Miss Kubin might be in collusion with him. Fred's movements were watched. He was unexpectedly confronted with the hammer which had killed his sister and with the mask which it was believed his sisters' murderer had worn. He showed no signs of emotion except what would be expected of any man confronted by such mementos of the terrible death of his sister. He finally succeeded in establishing his alibi beyond a doubt, and the whole nature of the boy seemed to make it impossible that he could have committed such a crime.

The letter bearing the blue special delivery stamp probably held the key to the mystery, but the letter was gone. Was the mask a sign that some person who had met Kate at a masquerade had sought her out for some evil purpose and killed her, or was it worn by just an ordinary burglar? These questions have not been answered. At any rate, the presence of the mask in the room suggested a spirit of romance which the police could not dispel and which practically killed the possible belief that robbery had been the motive.

The Kate Scharn mystery had not been forgotten when the New York papers printed short notices of the discovery of a band of Voodoo worshippers, who held their meetings in a cellar of a building in East Thirty-ninth street, only two blocks from the scene of the Scharn murder and in the neighborhood of the Mamie Cunningham mystery. The band of Voodooists was broken up because of immoral practices. In the cellar where they met were found a number of bones, all of animals, but it was whispered that the devil worshippers were not always content with animal sacrifice. It was known that in Cuba and other islands of the West Indies the negroes of the cult sometimes offered human lives in sacrifice and it was suggested by one newspaper that the head of the Voodoo cult might be able to tell something about the two atrocious murders which occurred in the same neighborhood and which have always remained unsolved.

"He Took the Hand in His Own."

NOT TO BE SNEEZED AT.

IN October, 1890, an American citizen, Mr. Joseph Jonassen, of New York, was arrested in Berlin for "wickedly, feloniously and treasonably avowing a willingness to sneeze at the German Emperor." And yet from the earliest times the act of sneezing has been held in respect and veneration. The old Greeks cried, "Jove preserve thee" when a man sneezed. The Romans cried, "Sit salutiferum" or "Servet te Deus." In modern Italy the sneeze is greeted with "Felicita," in France with "Dieu vous benise," in Germany with "Gesundheit," in Ireland, Scotland and Sweden with "God bless you."

Nevertheless, the augury was not always a favorable one. In ancient times the sneeze often caused alarm instead of rejoicing. As Timotheus was sailing out of an Athenian port he happened to emit a mighty sneeze. The whole fleet heard it. The sailors rose and clamored to return. Luckily, Timotheus had presence of mind to exclaim:—

"And do you marvel, O, Athenians, that among ten thousand there is one whose head is moist? How would ye bawl were all of us to be so afflicted?" Thereupon the fleet sailed out to victory.

In Hindoostan if the men praying while performing their ablutions in the Ganges should chance to sneeze they have to begin their prayers all over again. In some parts of England the superstition is held that if one sneezes for three nights in succession some one in that house is doomed to death.

A LITTLE BIRD TOLD ME.

THAT phrase, so often used to children, "A little bird told me," has its origin in an idea that the birds, wandering over the world at will, spied out all strange and secret things and revealed them to such as could understand. Thus in Eccles., x., 20, "Curse not the king, no not in thy thought; and curse not the rich in thy bedchamber: for a bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter." The Greek and Roman soothsayers drew auguries from the flight of birds, and pretended to a knowledge of the bird language which made them privy to the secrets the birds had to reveal. There were various recipes for acquiring the bird language. Pliny recommended a mixture of snake's and bird's blood. Malampus said that one must have his ears licked by a dragon. According to the Koran, Solomon was first informed by a lapwing of the doings of the Queen of Sheba. Mahomet was supposed to be instructed by a pigeon which whispered in his ear in the presence of the multitude. In the Mahabarata we are told that King Nsinara was taught by a dove, which was the spirit of God. In the old wood cuts the Popes are distinguished by a dove whispering in their ears. And talking birds, as well as other animals, appear in the folk-lore of every country. Proverbial and popular literature also abounds with allusions to the spying habits of birds, from the old Greek saw, "None sees me but the bird that flieth by," to the passage in the Nibelungen Lied, "No one hears us but God and the forest bird."

THE UNLUCKY THIRTEEN.

FEW superstitions have held their own so long as that the number 13 is unlucky. There are streets in Paris where the houses are numbered 12 bis, 112 bis, &c., in lieu of 13 or 113. Many hotels in this country and others will not have any rooms numbered 13. The Italians never use the number 13 in making up their lotteries, and in one of their card games the 13th card bears the figure of death.

In New York the Thirteen Club was organized in 1884 for the purpose of killing this superstition. The number of members always consists of some multiple of 13; they dine together on the 13th of the month, 13 at the table. The dues are 13 cents a month, and so on.

In England it used to be thought that Americans were peculiarly superstitious about the number 13 and a London newspaper of 1776 wrote:—

"Thirteen is a number peculiarly belonging to the rebels. A party of naval prisoners lately returned from Jersey say that the rations among the rebels are 13 grains a day. Mr. Washington has 13 toes on his feet (the extra ones having grown since the Declaration of Independence), and the same number of teeth in each jaw; that the useless Schuyler has a top-knot of 13 stiff hairs which erect themselves on the crown of his head when he grows mad. It takes 13 Congress paper dollars to equal one penny sterling, and Polly Wayne was just 13 hours in subduing Stony Point and as many seconds in leaving it. A well organized rebel household has 13 children, all of whom expect to be high and mighty ambassadors of the Congress of the 13 States when they attain the age of 13 years.

THE ROAD TO COBOCONK.

It Is a Leisurely Little Line Where Trainmen Have Few Worries.

"Fifty on Wire-in, straight and place."
"A hundred and fifty on War Whoop, across the board."

Of the thousands of racegoers at the Woodbine track who in years past have heard these phrases in the betting ring, there were probably very few who ever paused to ask where the Kirkfield Stable, under which title the racing string owned by Sir William Mackenzie's sons were known on the turf, had obtained its name. The answer to the question, had it been asked, casts an interesting sidelight on the human side of the famous railway magnate. The stable was named after the little village in Victoria County, where Sir William was born sixty-three years ago, and the strong affection which the president of the Canadian Northern feels for his humble birthplace is apparent not only in his maintenance of a summer residence there, but also in some substantial benefactions which he has bestowed upon the village.

Kirkfield is situated on the Lindsay-Coboconk branch of the Grand Trunk Railway, near the cutting which carries the Trent Valley Canal from the Kawartha chain of lakes to Lake Simcoe. If the citizens of Southern Ontario, long accustomed to the luxury, speed and comfort of travel by limited trains, wishes to obtain a taste of the railway conditions enjoyed (or rather endured) by a previous generation, he need only take a trip up the Coboconk line. If there had been a railway in Arcady, it would have been closely modelled upon the Coboconk branch. Every morning at 7.10 the mixed train leaves the northern terminal and makes its leisurely progress southward, at the rate of 37 miles in three hours. At 6.30 in the evening it departs from Lindsay for its return trip, and as there are no connections to make, the already generous schedule is lengthened by ten minutes, and even then no unseemly effort is made to arrive on time. At each station the train stops to discharge freight, mail, express, baggage, and an occasional passenger, while once in a while there is an empty car to drop or a full one to pick up. The postmaster, the blacksmith, and the preacher stroll down to exchange greetings and gossip with the train crew, and if the conversation is especially interesting, the train is merely detained a few minutes longer.

It is not so long since the Coboconk branch was run upon an even more primitive plan than it is at present. Whenever three or four old Victorians get together and begin swapping reminiscences, the talk is certain to turn sooner or later upon the late "Jimmie" Greaves, who for years held the post of conductor on the line. Jimmie was a famous character in his day, and his rotund form and rubicund countenance were truthful indexes to his character and habits. "Goin' to Coby?" was the cheery inquiry which he generally addressed to the passenger holding a ticket through to the end of the line. Several of the stories told of him concerned his insistence upon his right as a man and a brother to take a drink when he felt like it. One Saturday evening the train on its up trip reached Lorneville Junction a little later than usual, and the hotelkeeper near the station refused to open up his bar. Jimmie was not to be balked of his desired refreshment, however, and under his instructions the engine was detached from the train and run down the Midland branch a few miles to the village of Beaverton, where a more accommodating Boniface was found. His thirst slaked, Jimmie and the engine went back to the junction, and the train proceeded. On another occasion, Jimmie entered the hotel to beguile a short wait for orders. When the orders came, the operator delivered them to the brakesman and the engineer, and they, under the impression that their conductor was on the train, pulled out of the station, only to find, after proceeding to the next stop, that Jimmie was absent. The train's progress was reversed, and after running back nearly to Lorneville, the crew sighted Jimmie walking at a comfortable pace toward his train, he having set out to pursue it on foot when he discovered that it had departed.

Jimmie had a watch by which he swore. It is related of him that one morning he was seen standing with watch in hand and staring fixedly at the eastern hills. "What's the matter, Jimmie?" asked an acquaintance. "If the sun isn't over that hill in one minute and twenty seconds, she'll be late," was the old conductor's solemn reply.

Too Familiar With Quotations.

The principal of a Boston school who requests that his name be withheld in order that he may maintain discipline in his classrooms tells this:

"When I was teaching in a school in the western part of the state some years ago I had some trouble in maintaining order among the girls of my classes. They were continually playing tricks on me and each other in the classrooms, and I decided to stop it. The next day, following a breach of discipline, I ordered two of the girls to remain after school and gave them two long problems that kept them for a long time. At the opening of school the following morning I opened the day as usual by asking each member of the class for a quotation. One of the girls rose and quoted, 'With all thy faults I love thee still,' and the other, 'The hours I spend with thee, dear heart, are as a string of pearls to me.'"

Salt Means Much to Health.

"If the human race should be deprived of salt, even for a period of a few months," said a physician, "we would not only lose a natural healthful incentive for our food, but disease, with all its attendant miseries, would spread with such relentless speed as to defy the efforts of the most skillful doctors of the land. Ailing persons frequently refuse sugar, but they seldom turn up their noses at common salt. That is because there is in the body a deficiency of chloride of sodium, and nature intuitively excites the desire for it. Salt is essential to health and life and is as much a food as bread or flesh. If there is no wish for salt in a person, doctors uniformly conclude that disease in some form is lurking unsuspected in the system. It is an imperative duty of those who have at heart the well being of their fellow creatures to impress upon them that if they wish their blood to be in a healthy condition they must make salt a frequent article of diet."—Chicago News.

The Chances Against You

"Oh, I will be all right in a few days," says the person who is tired out and has to drag himself to his daily work because the nervous system is exhausted.

Unfortunately nervous diseases do not right themselves, and the wasting process which has brought you to this condition keeps right on until there is a complete breakdown.

You must get the building-up process started, so that, instead of being a little weaker at the end of each day, you will find the balance on the other side and know that you are gradually getting strong and well.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you wonderfully if you only give it a reasonable chance. As the system is built up you will find such symptoms as headache, sleeplessness and indigestion leaving you. You will find the old energy coming back. The mind and body will better serve you and you will see a new pleasure in life.

Singing on Carpet.

Standing upon carpet has a tendency to muffle the voice, since a layer of inelastic and nonconducting material is then interposed between the seat of voice production and the floor, which, when it is not covered, acts as a sound board, taking up the vibrations and giving increased effect and distinctness to them. This can be illustrated by placing a timepiece first upon a rug or carpet and then upon the bare floor. In the latter position the ticking is much louder, because the vibrations of the clock are then much more forcibly communicated to the floor and so to the air of the room and finally to the ear by actual contact between the clock and the floor. A carpet damps or kills these vibrations because it is a bad conductor of sound. The difference, which is so audible in this case, is in some degree to be detected when the voice is heard under similar conditions.

IS NOT A WILDERNESS

LABRADOR DEFENDED BY A MAN WHO LIVED THERE.

Former Resident of Canada's Little Known Territory Says It Is Not the Bleak Inhospitable Place So Frequently Described — People Who Live There Like It and Make a Comfortable Living.

In most articles continual reference was made to the bleakness of aspect which is generally regarded as characteristic of Labrador and also to the barren nature of that cold and rocky country. But though this is the generally received opinion of Labrador, it would seem that those who spent years on that somewhat forbidding coast have a different view to present. In their eyes Labrador is a country where a man may make as good a living as in any other part of Canada and also where he may enjoy considerable comfort in the process. Mr. Frank C. Crean, in a recent letter to Saturday Night, makes a strong presentation of this side of the case.

Can anybody tell, he asks, why it is that if Labrador is such a forbidding country as it is said to be in so much of the literature dealing with it, the people of Labrador are still willing to go on living on the coast. In appeals for money sent out in aid of the Grenfell hospitals and also in letters from stray visitors, we read of the terrors of the cold and barren wastes of Labrador, and yet people who might easily go out to the great West, and take up a farm in that region, which has been so much exploited as a farmer's paradise, remain on the rocky coast, where they have been making a living for years. As one who for twelve years and more has lived on the Labrador coast, not as a missionary or a trader, but as a genuine resident of it, Mr. Crean speaks from a full personal knowledge.

Twelve miles west of Harrington Harbor, where one of the Grenfell hospitals stand, is Nettagawmi river. On the high sand bank beside its mouth is to be seen a cross standing in a little fenced plot of ground. It marks the grave of a Welshman who had made his living for over twenty years by the trout and salmon fishery, and who had directed that he should be buried beside the river where he had spent so many years.

Six miles west of this river is Point au Maurier, where lives Joe Gallibault, fisherman, storekeeper, postmaster and also telegraph agent. When the hospital was being built at Harrington, Gallibrault was asked whether or not he liked to have the doctors so near him. His answer was that he didn't know. He had lived there for forty-five years, had made a good living, had raised a family, and had never needed a doctor. And he seemed to think that having a doctor handy would probably result in their acquiring diseases which they had never known before.

Eight miles west of this again is a bay, where a number of families live that were taken from the Island of Anticosti a couple of years after it had been purchased by Menier, the chocolate king. Menier started in to stock his island with fur-bearing animals and spent a great deal of money for the purpose of obtaining them. These people, however, took advantage of this to trap and shoot all they could. When warned, they still continued to disobey the regulations, and finally had to be put off the island altogether. At the time the case caused a great sensation, as it was alleged that Menier's action had been based on religious grounds. But religion had nothing to do with it. The upshot of it all was that these people were removed from the island and given farms in the west with houses, cattle, horses, implements, seed and provisions for a year. But the striking feature of the whole thing is that the people would not stay in the West in spite of these great inducements to do so, but gave up their farms and other possessions and now are all settled on the Labrador coast, where they seem to be perfectly satisfied with their lot. Mr. Crean relates that not long ago he saw one of them sell ninety cases of lobsters at fourteen dollars a case. This represented the result of two months' work of a man and two boys.

A few miles west of this again is another bay where there are seven five English families from Perth, Ont. They are all doing well and seem quite happy in their surroundings in spite of the terrifying accounts which might be given of the severity of the climate and the rockiness of the land.

Twenty-five miles west of this is Natashquan Harbor, a settlement containing a population of three hundred and seventy-five people, most French-Canadians.

Mr. Crean states he dug up oats and timothy grown near here as fodder for cattle, and that it measured, roots and stems, four feet and eight inches in height. When they were shown by him to officials of the Department of Agriculture, they could scarcely believe that it had been grown on the Labrador.

At Betchawan Harbor, sixty miles west again, is to be seen the grave of an old Scotch fisherman who, when he was dying, ordered that his team of five dogs should be shot and buried with him.

Mr. Crean states that in talking with one of the English residents of the coast concerning the doctors and the hospitals, this man stated that he was glad to have the doctors in case of accident, but that the people were not looking for charity, and could well afford to pay a reasonable rate for medical services.

In conclusion, Mr. Crean states that what Labrador really needs is a reasonable steamboat service, both as regards rates and frequency. If this were obtained, and if Labrador were properly advertised, he thinks there would be no further need of people in this country going to Norway or Sweden in the summer, when they have a better place right at their own doors.

Children and Books.

Dr. Johnson held views far in advance of his age on the subject of children's books. The child itself, he held, was the best judge. "I would put a child into a library (where no unfit books are) and let him read at his choice," he said. "A child should not be discouraged from reading anything he takes a liking to from a notion that it is above his reach. If that be the case the child will soon find it out and desist. If not he, of course, gains the instruction, which is so much the more likely to come from the inclination with which he takes up the study."

Cheer Up.

"Before I was married life was one continual round of pleasure."
"And isn't it now?"
"No; it's one continual round of economy now."—Washington Herald.

COULD NOT SWEEP FLOOR

Was So Terribly Afflicted With Lame Back.

It is hard to do housework with a weak and aching back, and no woman can be strong and healthy unless the kidneys are well.

The weak, lame and aching back comes from sick kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney trouble. Mrs. Harvey W. Brownell, Northport, N.S., writes:—"I now take pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About a year ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad at times I could not sweep my own floor. While looking through your B.B.B. Almanac I saw Doan's Kidney Pills were a great remedy, so thought I would try a box or two. After using five boxes I was completely cured, and I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure." 6

LIFE LOST IN FIRE

Hamilton Man Perishes in Early Morning Blaze

FORT WILLIAM'S BIG LOSS

Hamilton, April 24.—Shortly before six o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in the factory of the American Can Co., Shaw and Emerald streets, that caused the death of the night watchman, Charles W. Warren, 186 Gibson avenue; about $15,000 damage, and will result in about 100 men being thrown out of work for a time. The property loss is covered by insurance. Mr. Warren made his rounds of the premises about twenty minutes before the fire was discovered, and everything appeared to be all right. It was his duty to light the gas under a pot containing asphaltum that is used for soldering cans. It is believed that he had done this and in some manner the asphaltum caught fire and that he tried to check the flames. He failed in this and tried to get out of the burning building, but was probably overcome by the heavy smoke which quickly filled that part. The head watchman, Daniel Orders, made an effort to get him out, but was unable to continue at his task because of the overpowering smoke. The fire had gain considerable headway when the firemen arrived, and they succeeded in getting the unfortunate watchman's body out of the building, but he was then past help. Owing to the slow burning construction of the building the firemen were enabled to check the flames before they spread to other parts of the plant, and the principal damage was by water from the sprinkler system. This was largely instrumental in checking the spread of the fire, but the water ruined a large amount of stock which was made or in progress of manufacture. It was stated by the management that the manufacturing part of the establishment would not be crippled by the fire, and that it would be in a position in a day or two to carry out all its orders. The part that was damaged was the paper can department.

Fort William's Loss.

Fort William, April 24.—Fire broke out in Colville's hardware store on Simpson street yesterday morning, and, owing to the fact that the city mains were turned off for repairs, three stores were consumed—W. G. Colville's hardware, Gregory's poolroom and Henderson's outfitting establishment. The first named form part of the Nault block, a double-storied structure, while Henderson's store was three stories high. Total loss estimated at $132,000, one-fourth being for the buildings and the other for stock, $25,000 of the latter being made up of the Plymouth Clothing Co.'s goods, damaged by water. About two-thirds of the loss is covered by insurance.

$15,000 Fire in Montreal.

Montreal, April 24.—Fire caused $15,000 damage early yesterday morning to the premises occupied by Smeaton Bros., 10 Cote street.

Two Stunned by Lightning.

Kingston, April 24—Lightning struck the home of Mrs. Agnes Nicholson. Her two sons were stunned, but recovered in five minutes. The roof of the house caught fire and a large hole was burned in it before it was extinguished.

Dalton & Sons' hardware store was badly damaged by fire, which broke out late yesterday afternoon. The fire started in the basement from some unknown cause.

WOMEN TOO IMPATIENT.

Only Their Thirst For Blood Saved French at Fez.

Paris, April 24.—The massacre at Fez, in which a large number of French officers, soldiers and citizens were killed and wounded, has given rise to considerable criticism of the Government authorities for not foreseeing and preventing the occurrence. It is pointed out by the newspapers that the French troops occupied the Moroccan capital more than a year ago.

Premier Poincaire telegraphed yesterday to Eugene Regnault, the French Minister, to make a rapid and complete investigation.

The special correspondents of the French newspapers at Fez indicate that the plot of the rebels included the massacre of the whole of the French mission, headed by M. Regnault, which recently arrived at the capital to establish the protectorate. This plan failed, owing to the impatience of the Arabian women to begin the carnage.

These women are described by the correspondents as creatures of terrifying appearance, who passed their time in rushing about the streets and torturing the wounded, and sometimes aiding the Moorish rebels in the final mutilation and desecration of the victims.

Scenes of awful horror occurred in the Jewish quarter of the city where the mob murdered, pillaged and burned all the Jews they could find, throwing their bodies from the roofs. Many young girls were carried off and suffered indescribable outrages. The Jewish quarter was set on fire and three-fourths of it entirely destroyed, rendering over a thousand people homeless.

St. John Under a Commission.

St. John, N.B., April 24.—The commission form of civic government will be given its first trial in Eastern Canada by the council which was elected in St. John yesterday. The new body will consist of James H. Frink, mayor, and four commissioners, H. R. McLellan, H. B. Schofield, R. W. Wigmore and M. E. Agar.

This was the final election following the primary held two weeks ago. By the previous election the candidate for mayor on the citizens' ticket, and ten candidates for commissionerships were eliminated and two for mayor and eight for commissionerships were left on the final ballot. The defeated candidate for mayor, T. H. Bullock, who had served two terms. He lost yesterday by only seven votes.

Under the new arrangement, the mayor will be the head of the finance department, and each of the commissioners will head one of the four civic departments, allotment of officers to be arranged among themselves. McClellan and Schofield, who led the polls, will serve four year terms, and the other commissioners two years. In 1914, two more commissioners will be elected for four year terms, and after that two will retire every second year. The mayor is elected for a two year term.

Exposure Caused Death.

Bridgeport, Conn., April 24.—G. W. Wilson, the 19-year-old cabin boy to Captain Smith of the Titanic, died at his home near this city Monday night as the result of shock and exposure suffered in the wreck.

He had been subpoenaed to appear before the Senate investigating committee at Washington.

Wilson came to his home at Oronoque Saturday and had been critically ill since. His brother, John J. Wilson, was lost when the Titanic went down.

Disestablishment Bill for Wales.

London, April 24.—Reginald McKenna, Home Secretary, yesterday introduced in the House of Commons the Welsh disestablishment bill, which provides that after July 1, following the passing of the act, the four Welsh dioceses will cease to form part of the province of Canterbury.

Policeman Gets Reward.

Toronto, April 24.—The reward for the apprehension of Dr. Hedwig Neebitt at Chicago will not go to Joseph Sadacco, the former waiter at the Albany Club here, for the reason that that gentleman did not notify the police that he had any information regarding the whereabouts of the doctor until after he was arrested. The man who is entitled to the reward is Herman S. Sebastian, assistant superintendent of police for Chicago. It was he who first located the doctor in that city.

While the police here will not confirm the report, it is learned that the doctor was located by tracing through a three-stage delivery by the letters of Mrs. Nesbitt to Dr. Nesbitt at Chicago. Some time ago, it is said, the police learned that there was likely to be considerable correspondence from friends of the doctor here and himself regarding proposed negotiations for his return, and a strict watch was set, with the result that trace was had of one or more letters going from Toronto to him by an indirect route, and he was thus located.

A Trial for Murder.

Port Huron, Mich., April 24.—Geo. Eason of Petrolea, Ontario, charged with killing Thomas Major, whose body was found under the steps of the first Baptist Church here on February 28th, is now on trial in the Circuit Court before Judge Law. It was expected that a jury would be obtained to-day.

The case has excited unusual attention throughout the state owing to the prominence of Mr. Major and the mysterious circumstances surrounding his death.

Robbery is said to have been the motive for the act. The police declare that two men were responsible for the crime, but Eason is the only one under arrest at present.

Accused by Hotelman.

Goderich, Ont., April 24.—A sensation has been sprung in connection with the license administration of Centre Huron.

M. J. Farr, proprietor of the Union Hotel, makes a charge implicating the license inspector and one of the commissioners for the riding. He alleges that, in return for a substantial cash payment, they were to guarantee the renewal of his license and cut off one of his competitors.

The Town Council passed a bylaw early in the year providing for the cutting off of two licenses.

Crown Attorney Seager has communicated with the Attorney-General and the Department has ordered an investigation to be held on Friday next.

Filled Strikers' Places.

Brantford, April 24.—After a week, in which local shippers were tied up, the Grand Trunk freight department here commenced yesterday receiving shipments again freight handlers were secu outside places to take the places of the strikers, and the railway authorities announced that conditions were normal. The men were receiving 16 cents per hour and asked for 18 cents.

Different Points of View.

"Good morning, Jones."

"Good morning, Brown. Any news today?"

"Well, yes. You know my brother who works at the bank? Well, he went to business the other day and found £1,000 on the counter. And what do you think he did? Stole the money and tripped off to Canada. And when the news reached my father it broke the old man's heart!"

"That's funny. You know, my brother works at a bank, too, and when he went to business the other morning he found £1,000. And what do you think he did?"

"What—stole it?"

"No; took it straight to the manager's office. And when the news reached my father, do you know it broke the old man's heart!"—London Tit-Bits.

Danger Ahead!

A battleship was cautiously feeling her way through a fog. Suddenly the navigator on the bridge heard church bells startlingly near. As he believed the land to be some miles away he turned to the engine telegraph and ordered the leadsman to sound. The sounding showed plenty of water. Again the church bells pealed clear and near. The navigator paled a little, and his jaw set. In face of danger he must keep his wits about him. His glance met the face of the leadsman.

"What the dickens are you grinning at?" the navigator demanded sharply.

Choking back his emotion, the man explained that one of his mates had got a new record of a peal of church bells and he was trying it on his gramophone.—London Answers.

Man and Woman.

Man is born an understanding and woman a love. The wife cannot enter into the proper duties of the man, nor the man, on the other hand, into the proper duties of the wife, because they differ, as wisdom and its love or thought and its affection or understanding and its will. In the proper duties of men the understanding, thought and wisdom act the chief part.—Swedenborg.

Professor Gets Reward.

Toronto, April 24.—The reward for the apprehension of Dr. Hedwig Neebitt at Chicago will not go to Joseph Sadacco, the former waiter at the Albany Club here, for the reason that that gentleman did not notify the police that he had any information regarding the whereabouts of the doctor until after he was arrested. The man who is entitled to the reward is Herman S. Sebastian, assistant superintendent of police for Chicago. It was he who first located the doctor in that city.

While the police here will not confirm the report, it is learned that the doctor was located by tracing through a three-stage delivery by the letters of Mrs. Nesbitt to Dr. Nesbitt at Chicago. Some time ago, it is said, the police learned that there was likely to be considerable correspondence from friends of the doctor here and himself regarding proposed negotiations for his return, and a strict watch was set, with the result that trace was had of one or more letters going from Toronto to him by an indirect route, and he was thus located.

A Trial for Murder.

Port Huron, Mich., April 24.—Geo. Eason of Petrolea, Ontario, charged with killing Thomas Major, whose body was found under the steps of the first Baptist Church here on February 28th, is now on trial in the Circuit Court before Judge Law. It was expected that a jury would be obtained to-day.

The case has excited unusual attention throughout the state owing to the prominence of Mr. Major and the mysterious circumstances surrounding his death.

Robbery is said to have been the motive for the act. The police declare that two men were responsible for the crime, but Eason is the only one under arrest at present.

Accused by Hotelman.

Goderich, Ont., April 24.—A sensation has been sprung in connection with the license administration of Centre Huron.

M. J. Farr, proprietor of the Union Hotel, makes a charge implicating the license inspector and one of the commissioners for the riding. He alleges that, in return for a substantial cash payment, they were to guarantee the renewal of his license and cut off one of his competitors.

The Town Council passed a bylaw early in the year providing for the cutting off of two licenses.

Crown Attorney Seager has communicated with the Attorney-General and the Department has ordered an investigation to be held on Friday next.

Filled Strikers' Places.

Brantford, April 24.—After a week, in which local shippers were tied up, the Grand Trunk freight department here commenced yesterday receiving shipments again freight handlers were secu outside places to take the places of the strikers, and the railway authorities announced that conditions were normal. The men were receiving 16 cents per hour and asked for 18 cents.

Different Points of View.

"Good morning, Jones."

"Good morning, Brown. Any news today?"

"Well, yes. You know my brother who works at the bank? Well, he went to business the other day and found £1,000 on the counter. And what do you think he did? Stole the money and tripped off to Canada. And when the news reached my father it broke the old man's heart!"

"That's funny. You know, my brother works at a bank, too, and when he went to business the other morning he found £1,000. And what do you think he did?"

"What—stole it?"

"No; took it straight to the manager's office. And when the news reached my father, do you know it broke the old man's heart!"—London Tit-Bits.

Danger Ahead!

A battleship was cautiously feeling her way through a fog. Suddenly the navigator on the bridge heard church bells startlingly near. As he believed the land to be some miles away he turned to the engine telegraph and ordered the leadsman to sound. The sounding showed plenty of water. Again the church bells pealed clear and near. The navigator paled a little, and his jaw set. In face of danger he must keep his wits about him. His glance met the face of the leadsman.

"What the dickens are you grinning at?" the navigator demanded sharply.

Choking back his emotion, the man explained that one of his mates had got a new record of a peal of church bells and he was trying it on his gramophone.—London Answers.

Man and Woman.

Man is born an understanding and woman a love. The wife cannot enter into the proper duties of the man, nor the man, on the other hand, into the proper duties of the wife, because they differ, as wisdom and its love or thought and its affection or understanding and its will. In the proper duties of men the understanding, thought and wisdom act the chief part.—Swedenborg.

RAT PELTS SOLD TO-DAY

Hiawatha Indians Have Had a Fairly Good Season—Bringing Pelts to Fur Buyers

75c IS RULING PRICE

Muskrat pelts sold in the city to-day at from 71 to 75 cents, as compared with 33 cents last year and $1 two years ago.

The Hiawatha stage brought a large consignment of pelts from the Indian village on Rice Lake this morning, and the Indians began the rounds of the buyers to investigate the prices offering. Quotations ranged from 71 to 75 cents.

Jim Howard, of Hiawatha, told the Examiner he had sold 150 pelts at 74 cents a piece, and the smiling James pocketed $111.00 as the result of his work during the past few weeks.

Alfie Crow is reported to have secured the largest number of pelts among the Hiawatha Indians this year and most of the Hiawatha people can show good returns for their efforts this spring.

The number of pe ltsbrought in this morning was large, considering the rather unfavourable conditions this year. There are still 400 pelts or more in the village and the season does not close until Tuesday, April 30th.

This acquisition of wealth will enable the Indians to purchase many necessaries and luxuries to which they have been looking forward. Generally there are peddlars and other salesmen who do not wait for the Hiawatha people to look for methods of spending their money, but carry their goods to the village to make sure of the sales.

LITTLE DANGER OF A STRIKE

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, APRIL 24.—The possibilities of a strike of the engineers of fifty railroads between here and Chicago were regarded this morning as now very remote. The United States Labor Commissioners are already at work, and both sides are inclined to be conciliatory.

INCREASE IN IMMIGRATION

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, ONT., APRIL 24.—During the fiscal year ending March 31, 1912, 354,297 immigrants arrived in Canada. Of this number 220,527 arrived at the ocean ports and 133,710 from the United States. These figures show an increase of 14 per cent. over last year.

ICE IS OUT OF RICE LAKE

Rice Lake is once more free of ice and already the Indians have been fishing. All that was needed a few days ago when a bright sun was shining, was one W. Mangon and his old dark grey canoe with the white patch on the stern, to recall the halcyon da of spring. But William has been absent during the winter months. He has been basket-making on the northern reserves or employed at some such work, although those who know him intimately, will scarcely believe it. Mangon's return is daily expected in answer to the call of Rice Lake.

STOKERS AND FIREMEN ON THE "OLYMPIC" HAVE STRUCK

Claimed the Big Liner's Collapsible Lifeboats Were Not Seaworthy and Refused to Sail on Her---Many Boats Might Have Assisted the "Titanic" if They Had Received Word of the Accident---"California" Was Only 20 Miles Away.

Special to The Examiner.

CREW GOES ON STRIKE.

SOUTHAMPTON, APRIL 24.—Three hundred firemen and stokers of the White Star Olympic went on strike and left the ship just about as she was to sail for New York to-day because they said that collapsible boats installed on the vessel were unseaworthy.

SHOOT ICEBERGS TO PIECES.

WASHINGTON, APRIL 24.—Experts have reported strongly against the proposal made in Congress to have warships shoot icebergs to pieces with their heavy guns. They say this would be ineffective and very expensive, and a better idea would be to locate the icebergs and tow them down into the Gulf Stream to melt. It is not likely anything will be done regarding this proposal.

KAISER WILHELM DODGED ICE.

NEW YORK, APRIL 24.—The steamer Kaiser Wilhelm Second reached here to-day after an unusually long trip of six days and a half en route from Europe. The commander took warning from the Titanic disaster and steered an extreme southerly course, meeting with no ice at all.

TORONTO, APRIL 24.—That the 1,600 lives lost on the Titanic would have been saved had the S. S. Californian's wireless plant been working, is admitted by the Captain of that boat. Every day adds to the list of steamers, which were within a few hours' steaming distance of the Titanic, when she struck the iceberg, and which either had no wireless and therefore failed to get the distressed vessel's appeals for help, or had only one operator who was asleep at the fatal moment. The Californian was bound to Boston and was less than twenty miles away in an icefield, with her engines shut down and her wireless apparatus not working. She didn't hear of the tragedy till morning when the Virginian flashed word.

The Titanic tragedy may result in the nations of the world agreeing to compel all ocean vessels to carry wireless plants and two operators. Ultimately, no doubt, the receiving of mesages will be automatic and the instrument will write its own messages without the agency of an operator at the receiving end.

ORDERED ISMAY AWAY.

WASHINGTON, APRIL 24.—Fifth Officer Lowe declared before the Senate Investigating Committee on the Titanic disaster, that he had occasion to order Managing Director Ismay to keep away from interfering in the launching of boats. Ismay was very much excited. There was lots of room in the lifeboats and no women around when he got in. In other respects evidence given this morning was pretty much of a repetition.

TO MEET THE BODIES.

NEW YORK, APRIL 24.—Nearly one hundred persons have already gone, or are preparing to go to Halifax to meet the bodies recovered by the cable ship Mackay-Bennett. Of the 116 Titanic survivors at St. Vincent's Hospital, only nine now remain, the others having recovered, and departed for their homes. Mrs. Madeline Force Astor is still in a state of nervous weakness at her home on Fifth Avenue.

WATER IS ALMOST INTO DINING ROOM OF MR. BOYD'S HOME AT 'CAYGEON

From all sections along the Otonabee come reports of high water and floods. Farmers at the market stated to-day that the water was extremely high at Lakefield, Young's Point, Buckhorn and Bobcaygeon. At Buckhorn, the water is finding its way in several directions around the lock. It has sought a course of its own around the Hill property, and is almost up to the floor of the cheese factory, according to one story. At Bobcaygeon, the water is flowing over the locks and over the canal banks. Mr. John Belcher stated that it is as high as it was in 1860. With another few inches rise it will be into the dining room of Mr. John Boyd's residence. Parts of several of the streets are under water, and the wharf is practically out of sight. The Government construction work has had to be called off. The ice is moving out of all the back lakes, and is finding its way down the river. Not only is the canal being flooded and the water at a high point, but worst of all (to some at least) it has inundated Riverside Park, and gulls disport themselves where the ball players should work out next week.

SOUTH MONAGHAN RESIDENTS WOULD WELCOME ANNEXATION OF "STRIP"

A resident of North Monaghan who is just outside the proposed strip the city wishes to have annexed stated recently that the feeling out at the Town Hall is in favour of annexation. This scarcely seems probable from the fact that a large part of the taxes is paid by the residents who may become citizens of Peterborough within the next year or so. But this farmer stated that such was the fact, and that if it came to a vote, the feeling of the ratepayers further out in the township is that the township can do without the section adjoining the city on the west and south boundaries. It is claimed that the residents in this section want nearly everything, at least they put in their claims, and owing to the large number of ratepayers from this strip alone, they can just about sway the entire township. But even with this advantage, it is shown that the section near Peterborough has received but little of the townships' gifts.

This farmer claimed that his statements were well founded, and spoke of those living near the city as parasites living upon the city and the township and being neither here nor there.

IF MARCONI'S FELLOW COUNTRYMEN HERE HAD BOUGHT MARCONI STOCK!

One result of the Titantic catastrophe was the demonstration of the remarkable and successful appliance of the Marconi wireless apparatus. It afforded a terrible but emphatic illustration of the uses of wireless telegraphy and aMrconi stock in the United States jumped from $2 and $5 a share to $250 a share, and Canadian stock jumped from 25c a share to $9 and $10 a share. In Toronto a number of the Italians bought rather heavily in this stock at the low prices out of sympathy for their fellow countryman, Guiglio Marconi. Within a day their holdings soared in value and by night those who bought them more heavily did not know what they were worth.

Mr. Tom Minicolo stated that in Peterborough he did not know of any persons of Italian descent who had bought Marconi stock. He and others had contemplated it, and would have bought but for the company that was floating the stock in Canada when it was first issued. He was not impressed by the standing of the company and invested his money in Peterborough real estate, at the same time advising his acquaintances to do likewise.

DECTECTIVES MURDERED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

PARIS, FRANCE, APRIL 24.—While proceeding to arrest terrorizing automobile bandits to-day, two chiefs of the city detectives were murdered on the outskirts of the city. This makes the list of victims of these bandits at least twenty-four.

MUSEUM OPENED

Many Citizens Inspected Splendid Exhibition in the Public Library Building Last Night

CREDIT TO CITY

The museum in the Public Library building which, through the kindness of the members of the Peterborough Historical Society has been removed there from Inverlea Park, was opened to the public for the first time last night and six or seven hundred citizens took advantage of the opportunity to drop in and look over the splendid exhibition. Most people were surprised to find such an extensive array of curios and objects of interest and their astonishment was the best possible endorsation of the removal of the museum from Inverlea Park to the more central Public Library.

Thanks to the earnest efforts of Mr. T. A. S. Hay, the curator, the exhibit is splendidly arranged and ticketed so that the visitor is given an opportunity of inspecting everything intelligently. The large room at the south west corner up stairs and the spacious corridor have been used for museum purposes, for which they are admirably adapted. There is plenty of light and the rooms are cheery and bright. The museum promises to be a very popular place not only among visitors to the city but to citizens as well. It will be open to the public every afternoon from 1 until 6 p.m. and on Saturday from 1 until 10 p.m. These hours depend a great deal of course, upon the conduct of visitors, especially of the children. If the latter do not behave properly it may be necessary to only open the museum once or twice a week and have someone in charge.

The Grand Opera House orchestra was present last night and rendered a splendid programme of popular music. The members of the Library Board were in attendance, and with Mr. Hay the curator, courteously welcomed the many visitors.

The entire collection has been systematically arranged in attractive cases. The larger exhibits, which are too cumbersome to store in glass cases, have been conveniently arranged around the walls. Several exhibits of immense historical value, among them being an invitation to a mansion house ball, in celebration of the successful issue of the peace negotiations following the Battle of Waterloo, are included among the exhibit, which finds a conspicuous place in the glass cases.

The mineral collections are extensive and represent samples of all the wealth-producing ores of the world. Specimens obtained from the geological survey and from the Coral Islands of the South Seas are also on show.

A blood-stained, bullet-riddled flag, which was taken from the Boers at the cost of many lives by the British troops at the storming of Johannesburg, adorns a large glass case at one end of the room. Many other interesting relics pertaining to historical military events are included in this collection.

Among the collection of birds are included all of the species known to exist in Canada, with many foreign specimens included. A vulture which fell before the gun of a hunter in Dummer, and is the only known specimen ever shot in Canada, finds a prominent place among the collection. Bears, opposums, wolves and a full representation of all the fur-bearing animals of Canada are here exhibited.

This brief synopsis inadequately describes the extent and the interesting nature of the collection. Nothing but a visit to the museum will serve the desired purpose.

May Postpone The Hearing

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, APRIL 24.—There is a possibility that the stated case in regard to arriage, which was set for hearing by the Supreme Court for May 7th, next, may not be heard until the autumn term of the court.

ICE AND SPRING FLOODS THE CAUSE OF CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE

Chemong Floating Bridge Was Badly Shaken But No Serious Damage Has Resulted---Boathouses Moved From Foundations and Sides Smashed in by Ice.

No further damage has occurred to the Chemong floating bridge, and unless the wind veers around and increases in velocity it is altogether likely that the structure will withstand the buffeting to which it has been subjected to during the past few days. The water is still above the level of the approaches and old residents of the vicinity aver that the water is one foot higher than it was ever known to be before. The bridge is open for traffic and teams are crossing daily. It is impossible to open the bridge to allow the accumulation of ice to pass through as the ice is crowding the structure on both sides. Those who have witnessed a similar circumstance in years gone by predict that it will be the first of May before the ice resolves itself into a liquid element. The breaking up of the ice by the waves aids very materially towards the desired result.

BOATHOUSES IN DANGER

A number of the boathouses along the lake shore are in danger of demolition. The ice is banked up along the shore line and in a great many instances, is exercising a detrimental influence towards many of the boathouses. Among hte worst to suffer is the Lundy boathouse, which has been crowded over at a dangerous angle and a part of the front stove in. A boathouse owned by Mr. Bogue met a similar fate, as also did the Chemong Park boathouse. The latter was not moved from its foundation, but the side facing the lake was crushed in by the weight of ice.

CABLE REPAIRED

The Examiner was informed this morning that the wind had shifted, and was blowing the ice across to the other side of the lake, where it will likely remain for a few days at least. As each day passes the danger to property occasioned by the ice piling up along the shores is decreasing, and it is predicted that a few more days of fine weather will have reduced the destructive propensities of the ice fields to a minimum. The cable crossing Chemong bridge, which was snapped in two on Monday, owing to the movement of the bridge, has been repaired, and as yet no interruption in the traffic has been occasioned by the breaking up of the ice.

High At the Point.

The Examiner telephoned to Mr. P. P. Young at Young's Point this morning and found that the water was very high there. "It certainly looks wild out here just now," remarked Mr. Young. "The water is flowing over the locks and there is three inches of water on the lawn. Some of the ice has come out of Clear Lake, but it will be several days yet before it has all gone. The water is not rising as rapidly this morning and once the ice goes out, will start to drop again. There was a rumour that the dam at Young's Point was apt to give way, but Mr. Young said the structure was in no danger.

MASQUERADED IN FEMININE ATTIRE AND WAS NABBED BY THE POLICE

Local Youth Interrupted in the Carrying Out of a Freak Bet---Judgment Given in the McRoberts Case---Blacklister Fined.

This morning's [illegible] was not of such a character as to indicate that there had been an absence of inclination to respect St. George's Day. A number of cases were dealt with by Magistrate Dumble.

Masqueraded in Feminine Attire.

A rosy-cheeked local youth tried to pull off a masquerade stunt on George street last night. He disported himself up and down the main thoroughfare and made a pretentious show of being what one is not. The only person who is know to have fallen a victim to his misrepresentation was himself. It was brought home to him in a striking manner by one of the blue-coated minions of the law, who gathered him in and chaperoned him to the police station. This morning the costume with which he had attempted the crude impersonation, decorated the walls of the police station, while its owner occupied a seat in front of the magistrate's desk in the court room alone.

A charge of disorderly conduct was registered opposite his name, to which the youth pleaded guilty. He was fined two dollars.

$10 or Thirty Days.

Judgment was given in the case of William Anthony. The accused appeared on a charge of being under the influence of liquor, while still on the prohibited list.

His Worship imposed a fine of $10 with an option of thirty days in gaol attached.

Was Discharged.

McIntosh McRoberts, who was charged with having supplied liquor to William Anthony, while the latter was on the blacklist, was discharged.

"I have perused the evidence carefully," said His Worship, "and while there is much in it that would lead the mind to a conviction, that McRoberts did supply the liquor all the circumstances do not justify such action. I therefore discharge defendant" concluded the Magistrate.

Afternoon Court.

Two Norwood men were arrested at a late hour last night on George St. They pleaded not guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly in a public place. As a result they were held over until this afternoon in order that the officer who made the arrest might testify as to their behaviour. Upon this evidence they were convicted at the afternoon session of the police court and were fined two dollars each.

"Sylvia" Replies To Miss Roberts In Regard To "Future Citizens"

(Written for the Examiner by Sylvia)

In Miss Roberts' recent article, "Future Citizens," she seems to have no better grasp of the real state of affairs than had the suffragettes of England. These made vicious attacks on the persons of Lloyd George and Premier Asquith. They gave annoyance in every possible way to the statesmen who were endeavouring to better the condition of the poor.

The following statements are from what is reported to have been one of the most notable speeches ever delivered by Lloyd George: "Poor women, old and worn, after honest, industrious lives, extending over seventy years, were still working their live-long day, starting early and resting late, to earn a wretched pittance which just saved them from starvation, but never lifted them from privation. The wages of these were six to seven shillings a week, and this was earned by needle-work put upon the garments of others, who in one idle hour would spend more in frivolity than these poor people would earn in three years of toil. In the city of York [illegible] per cent. of the children in the working class districts, and under the average standard in physical development. More than half of these poor little wretches possess puny, feeble bodies, insufficiently clad, insufficiently fed, and bearing every sign of privation and neglect. Out of £90,000 [illegible] who die in Britain, in the course of a year, five-sixths own no property which is worth [illegible] one's while to secure a Government certificate for.

"At the other end of the scale there are a number of men and women who have been given the best training that money can afford, who have spent the first third of their lives, in preparing themselves for work, and who are now wasting the rest in a life of luxuriant idleness. These men and women with their retainers, amount altogether to something like two million people and represent an absolute waste in the social economy.

"In Great Britain alone, the annual bill for armaments costs something like £8 for each household in the United Kingdom. Were this burden removed, Great Britain could afford to pay every member of the wage-earning classes an additional four-pounds a week without interfering in the slightest degree with the profits of the capitalist.

"All over Europe the masses are writhing under a system which crushes the many for the enrichment and glorification of the few."

Were the welfare of humanity the object of the suffragettes they would have assisted Lloyd George, instead of smashing his face.

COUNTY COURT

Residents of Ennismore Dispute the Right to Trap on a Specified Piece of Land

EVIDENCE HEARD

A case was heard in the County Court this morning, [illegible] trespassed upon the lands of [illegible] for the purpose of trapping muskrats contrary to the provisions of the Ontario Game Protection Act.

Magistrate Dumble presided in the absence of County Magistrate Edmison.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Jas. J. Dickson, defendant in the case and Mr. F. D. Kerr acted on behalf of the complainant, Frederick Eason. Both parties in the case reside in the vicinity of Eaton.

Mr. Gordon would not elect to plead, giving as his reason that the complainant was not the owner of the property upon which the alleged offence was committed. "It was a reservation of the river front. Furthermore, it was a navigable stream and is therefore out of the jurisdiction of the province," said Mr. Gordon.

The statute upon which counsel for defendant based his contention, reads as follows:

The Crown's patent does not grant to grantees, but reserves the full use, passage and enjoyment of, and upon all navigable waters flowing through, and upon any parcel of land hereby granted.

For reasons as stated, Mr. Gordon submitted that the title of the land was in question and the case was beyond the jurisdiction of the court. The navigable nature of the question is known as a matter apart.

His Worship noted the objection and called for the examination of the witnesses.

Mr. Frederick Eason, complainant, was first called. He described in detail the geographical situation of the land upon which the alleged trespass is said to have taken place. Registered notices were posted at intervals on the property, which were for the purpose of warning would-be trespassers. Witness had forbidden Dickson hunting on the property prior to the placing of the notices. He had also notified defendant through the mail to abstain from trapping on his land, after the signs were put up.

John Gordon Drummond testified that he had placed the posts in position. This was done at the instance of Mr. Eason. The posts bore a sign bearing the inscription, "TRAPPING AND SHOOTING FORBIDDEN." Witness saw defendant setting traps within the boundary portion of the marsh in question, subsequent to and after the placing of the posts. Defendant questioned witness as to why he was placing the signs. Witness replied that it was for the purpose of protecting the game in that particular portion of the marsh. Defendant then replied that he would not refrain from trapping on the disputed territory until he was compelled to. Witness had an arrangement with Mr. Eason whereby he was entitled to the use of the marsh for trapping purposes. It also developed that the action was brought about for the purpose of defending these rights which accrued to the witness.

Several more witnesses were examined, after which the case was adjourned until three o'clock this afternoon.

"INDEPENDENCE" AND REWARD.

The "independent" politician, though apparently shut out of the pen, where party politicians are herded, and whence they are selected as beneficaries of government patronage, has a way of "getting there", and, sometimes ahead of the straight party man, for human nature is sometimes ungrateful in politics, as in anything else. The real benefactor, the honest worker for the party is sometimes sidetracked for the independent, or the political up-start, who can make himself personally useful to the representative distributor of patronage; sometimes gets the call ahead of old-timers. The "independent" politician does not ride for a fall; by virtue of a little clever "jockeying" he gets first under the wire. Mr. Robert Newman, of Toronto, once contested West Peterborough, for the Dominion House. He was the caddidate of the Equal Rights' movement, incorruptible, non-partisan, and independent as "a hog on ice." Party had no charms, no chains for him. But time passed on and though defeated on the political stage, Mr. Newman was promoted to the dignity of the variety stage, recently manager of Shea's theatre, he has been appointed Provincial Inspector, under the Act relating to picture theatres, a post for which he is amply qualified. His duties are to see that the building, and the wiring and appliances are safe as against fires. His thirty-seven years' experience as stage mechanic, well qualify him for the position; and his experience in "independent" political stump mechanics, followed by the invariable relapse to party orthodoxy, has politically qualified him. Reference is made to this matter ot show that sometimes the Whitney Government gets the right man for the right place, and to show that a short season of starring as a political Ishmaelite does not disqualify a man for party recognition in the matter of patronage—providing his "independence" is practised in the interests of the party that profits by his "independence," and has its interests indirectly subserved. Mr. Newman must have made his peace with the Whitney Government party or his merits as a stage maneger, would not have been recognized. His fitness for the position he has received is an accident, dovetailing with party plans and interests. Modern Conservatism has frankly adopted the "spoils system," and that does not provide for appointment to the civil service on merit of qualification—it is only party service that counts, and sometimes, as in the case of West Peterborough representation, service in personal interests.

APPEAL FROM PARLIAMENT TO THE COURTS

(Montreal Herald)

Not the least important of the provisions for safeguarding the rights of the minority in the Home Rule Bill is the proposal to leave to the courts and to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to decide whether a given Act passed by the new Irish Parliament is within its powers. This is an innovation so far as British constitutional usage is concerned, for the mother of Parliaments is the highest court in the land, as has been shown on more than one historic occasion. Premier Asquith explained in his speech introduced the bill that such judicial oversight of Irish legislation was felt to be a desirable and even necessary safeguard.

The appeal lies first to the Irish Court of Appeal, and thence it may be carried to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. It is moreover provided in the Home Rule Bill itself that any legislation in Ireland which is repugnant to the terms of the bill shall be null and void. There have been cases in which colonial legislation has been disallowed by His Majesty's Privy Council, but this has never been in the regular course of judicial appeal. It is the first time in which an appeal from the legislative authority to the courts has been followed.

Prostituting The Public Service To Personal And Party Advantage

When the Borden Government was placed in power under the aegis of the waved flag, it was naturally expected that its policy and practice would be modelled on British principles, British fair play, and honourable dealing. It was not thought that a Government whose motto was "No truck nor trade with the Yankees," would import the most odious principle in United States politics—the spoils policy. The clamour of the office-hungry brought Mr. Borden to the point, and heads began to fall, right and left. The matter was brought up in the House, and Mr. Borden, who, at first, had some conscience in the matter, promised that no dismissal of public officials would take place without proper and fair investigation.

We know how this was disregarded in respect of several local officials, and conspicuously in the case of the late Postmaster at Peterborough, who was charged with "offensive partisanship," and dismissed without investigation, according to Mr. Borden's promise and all through investigation was persistently refused, and finally refused, till April 16th, when a curt letter from the Postmaster-General declared "the matter closed".

In order that the public and all concerned may see how the Government has kept faith in the matter, the correspondence between the retired Postmaster and the Government is given. The first swing of the axe is represented by the following letter:

Ottawa, 26th October, 1911.
A. H. Stratton, Esq., Postmaster
Peterborough, Ont.

Sir—Representations having been made to the Postmaster General that during the recent general election you were guilty of offensive partisanship, he has desired me to communicate with you, direct, as to the charges which have been made against you, and to ask you to be kind enough to inform me whether you took an active part in the campaign.

An early reply is requested.

Yours truly,
Hector B. Verret,
Assistant Deputy Postmaster General

In the following reply the accused official categorically denies the charge:

Peterborough, Oct. 31, 1911.
Hector B. Verret, Esq., Asst. Deputy Postmaster General, Ottawa.

Sir,—In answer to your letter of 29th inst., in which you state that reports have been made to the Postmaster General that during the recent election campaign I was guilty of offensive partisanship, I desire to state that the implied charge is absolutely without foundation.

As you are no doubt aware my brother was the candidate, but during the whole campaign I never visited a committee room, did not attend any public or private meetings of a political nature, nor did I canvass nor solicit a vote of any elector.

In a word, I had nothing whatever to do with the election one way or the other. I was not on the streets of Peterborough daring election day.

For anyone to say that I was guilty of offensive partisanship, is not correct.

I am, sir,
Your obedient servant,
A. H. Stratton,
Postmaster.

This denial that should have been met by the promise of Mr. Borden for an investigation, was followed by the following letter of dismissal:

Post Office Department, Canada
Staff Branch,
Ottwa, February 23rd, 1912.
Mr. A. H. Stratton, Postmaster,
Peterborough, Ont.

Sir,—I am directed to inform you that your services as Postmaster have been dispensed with, by Order in Council, on account of your having acted as a political partisan during the last Federal elections.

The Post Office Inspector at Kingston has been instructed to transfer the office to your successor at once.

I am, sir,
Your obedient servant,
B. M. Northrup,
Superintendent.

The next step was communication directly with the Prime Minister, from whom, in effect, was demanded an investigation:

Peterborough, Feb. 26, 1912.
Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, Prime Minister, Ottawa, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Attached hereto you will please find a copy of a letter dated October 26th, 1911, from the Assistant Deputy Post Master General, charging me with offensive partisanship during the last Federal election and annexed thereto you will find my letter dated the 31st of October, 1911, containing my unqualified denial of this charge.

Under the circumstances, and in the face of my positive denial, I expected that an investigation should have taken place before I was dismissed.

I was very much surprised to receive the annexed letter, dated the 23rd of February, 1912, from the Staff Superintendent of the Post Office Department, announcing my dismissal, to take effect to-morrow evening, without my being given the faintest chance to vindicate myself. I have sent the enclosed telegram to-day to the Hon. the Post Master General, respectfully requesting an investigation to take place before my successor is appointed.

I sincerely hope that you will see that my request is complied with.

I have been tried in a Star Chamber, to which I was not admitted, and convicted behind my back on the evidence of lying witnesses, who are ashamed to meet me face to face in a fair, open trial.

I trust you will kindly advise the Hon. the Postmaster General to defer my dismissal until the unfounded charge against me is properly investigated.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
A. H. Stratton,
Postmaster.

Below is the telegram to the Postmaster General, referred to in the foregoing letter, and of the same date:

Peterborough, Feb. 26, 1912.
Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Post Master General, Ottawa, Ont.

Received notice of dismissal as Peterborough Postmaster, on account of alleged charge of having acted as political partisan during the last election. I emphatically deny this charge and refer you to my unanswered denial of same charge in my letter of 31st October last, addressed to your Assistant Deputy. I respectfully request immediate investigation and submit that in justice and fair play investigation should be granted before my successor is appointed.

A. H. Stratton.

Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden sends the following acknowledgment and implied promise of looking into the matter:

Ottawa, Ont., March 8th, 1912
A. H. Stratton, Esq., Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Your letter of the 26th February, with enclosures, is before me. I am submitting the correspondence to the Postmaster General, with whom I will confer thereon, as soon as the demands upon our time, which are very insistent at the present moment, will permit. Believe me,

Yours faithfully,
R. L. Borden.

The next step in the correspondence is a letter to the Postmaster General, repeating the demands for investigation made to Mr. Borden:

Peterborough, March 12, 1912.
Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster General, Ottawa, Ont.

Dear Sir,—On the 26th of February last, I received a Notice of Dismissal as Postmaster at Peterborough, upon the grounds of offensive political partisanship, to take effect as soon as the Post Office Inspector could make the transfer. Immediately, upon receipt of this notice of dismissal, I telegraphed you asking for an investigation, and requesting that I be not removed until an investigation took place, to which I received no reply. My removal took place upon the first of March.

I have read in the newspaper your statement in Parliament that any parties who considered themselves aggrieved would be entitled to an investigation. I have already denied that I was guilty of the charge of offensive political partisanship and I submit that I am entitled to have an investigation.

I therefore trust that you will kindly see that an investigation is granted at the earliest possible date

I have the honour to be Sir,
Yours truly,
A. H. Stratton.

Next, the Postmaster General promises consideration of the request for investigation:

Ottawa, 14th March, 1912.
A. H. Stratton, Esq., Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I have your letter of the 12th instant, asking that an investigation be held into the charges of political partisanship made against you, and will take your request into consideration at the earliest opportunity.

Yours sicerely,
Louis P. Pelletier.

The next step is the following extraordinary explanation of the dismissal of the Postmaster and excuse for denying a fair investigation.

Ottawa, 16th April, 1912.
A. H. Stratton, Esq., Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I have received your several letters and comunications about your dismissal, as Postmaster at Peterborough. I have been so hard pressed for time, that I have been obliged to put several matters to one side, in order to answer later.

Your dismissal took place because Mr. Burnham, M.P., investigated the matter, himself. Mr. Burnham after looking into the matter carefully, reported to us facts and evidence, which, according to the policy laid down, and followed, justify your dismissal without an investigation. I therefore must ask you to consider the matter closed.

Yours truly,
Louis P. Pelletier.

The frank, bold statement of the Postmaster-General that the evil spirit of the spoils system is to be the ruling factor in civil service administration shows how the service is prostituted to subserving personal, and incidentally, party interests—that the interests of the whole people are to be made the plaything of vindictive politicians. The investigation intrusted to Mr. Burnham in the Peterborough postmastership matter is a shameless travesty and outrage of the spirit of the promise made by Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden, that dismissals would be made after investigation, which promise, coming from an honourable man, the first commoner in Canada, implied fair, impartial and honest investigation. To select Mr. Burnham, especially in the case of question, was like selecting the wolf to judge and condemn—in this case convertible terms—the lamb against which it had a bitter spite and for whose blood and flesh he was thirsting and hungering. There was practically no investigation for condemnation was assured in advance. If Mr. Burnham's investigating instinct, if his judical opinion, was influenced by the same jumping-at-conclusions that justified his oath in the canal investigation, they were of little account. He swore—pledged his oath—that Frank Fairen was drawing electors to the registration booths in East City because he saw him driving two men in the direction of the Lift Lock. On the same principle any man who was careless enough of his oath, could swear that a bishop or clergyman took a drink in a hotel bar on a certain day because he was seen passing along the street in the direction of the bar. To further show that the civil service in this case was prostitute to the promotion of personal advantage without reference even to party advantage, it is to be noted that Mr. Burnham's "investigation" created a vacancy and excused its creation, in the interests of a personal supporter, who had infinitely less party service to his credit, than any one of a hundred members of the party that could be named. To what extent the "investigation" of Mr. Burnham was in the public interest is shown by the service the public receive, compared with the service given by the displaced incumbent of the office. How has Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden kept his promise of fair investigation? He weakly yielded, as he did in the naval question and in other matters to the demands of the Nationalist element of his cabinet. He permitted the Postmaster-General to override his promise of fair investigation when he declared in the House as a Minister of the Crown, that he would take the word of a prejudiced witness, the word of a member in regard to the culpability of a member of the civil service, who must be removed to give place to one the faithful. Thus the spoils system was definitely adopted and the government of a British dominion, made, in respect of the civil service, subject to a code of morals, little above those of a band of brigands—the right of might.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue rom below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissues above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years — he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage.) Address Zam-Buk Co. Toronto.

MAKING ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE NEW GRAND STAND

Baseball Magnates Visited Riverside Park Grounds This Afternoon to Decide What is to be Done--Spring Training Will be Done at Nicholls Oval.

A committee of the Peterborough Baseball Club, including Manager Templin, are visiting Riverside Park today for the purpose of deciding what additional grandstand accommodation will be needed. The work will be rushed through as quickly as possible. Manager Templin also visited the Exhibition grounds with a view to seeing what could be done there in the event of Riverside Park not being ready for the opening of the season. In this connection the Peterborough Radial Railway Company has very kindly offered to assist the club in putting the Exhibition grounds in shape for baseball if the high water in the river puts the Wightman-Howden ground out of commission for the time being.

It has been decided that the White Caps will do their training at Nicholls' Oval, which will be in good shape by next week. The oval is a splendid ground for the purpose and the club is lucky in having such a good park available as a substitute training ground. The club is making arrangements with the Y.M.C.A. for the use of their baths during the training season.

The White Caps wil report in Peterborough a week from to-night. Nearly every member of the squad will reach Peterborough on the local C.P.R. train on the evening of May 1st, leaving their home towns the night before.

HEFFERNAN FOR CLEVELAND

Ottawa Free Press: Frank Heffernan, the Ottawa College football star, has left town and will not figure in a garnet and gray uniform this fall. Heffernan was the best line plunger in the Intercollegiate and was the first choice for the All Star University team. His absence will weaken the College team considerably. Heffernan went to his home in Peterborough, but will very likely take a position in Cleveland.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

(Hamilton Spectator.

The Peterborough Canadian league team will be known as the White Caps—at least the club owners have so decided—evidently overlooking the fact that the fans around the circuit will dub the Petes a name of their own before the season is under way very long. The name White Caps was suggested by W. H. Denham, one of the leading manufacturers of the Lift Lock city, who along with several other industrial leaders is taking a very keen interest in the team. Another one of the big men behind the team is E. G. Patterson, the general superintendent of the Canadian General Electric works. With men of this calibre behind the team there is no reason to doubt Peterborough's ability to make good as a ball town. Mr. Denham is president, and Mr. Patterson vice-president of the club.

Berlin Telegraph.

Manager Templin of the Peterborough Club of the Canadian League, was in town on Sunday and left this morning for Peterborough where he has called his recruits, numbering over two dozen, to report. "Temp" looks better than he did last year and a good season is predicted for the manager of the new club. Templin has been given a free hand since assuming the managerial end of the Petes and Old Folks has taken every advantage of it. Templin is worked up over the raps some of the sport writers have been making, and is out to show them when the playing season commences. He is anxious to play in Berlin on flag raising day.

Ottawa Free Press.

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 23.—Infielder Robertson, Pitcher Kuhat and Catcher Hopper, who have been on the Fort Wayne training squad this spring, were released to the Ottawa Canadian League Club last night and leave for Chatham on Sunday night. Robertson is one of the most promising infielders Shaughnessy had, but in view of the big league material Varnell bought up and the limitations placed by the Central League on the number of players a club can carry, he was transferred to the Canadian Club. The purchase of Catcher Harry Mastin of the Pittsburg Pirates, permitted Shaughnessy to send Hopper to Ottawa. Kuhat is a southpaw with great promise. He was one of the pitchers Louie Cook was particularly anxious to secure when here last week. All three men are in good condition, having been working hard since April 2nd.

London Advertiser.

Two more players have been added to the list who will report in London next week to struggle for places on the London Canadian League team. Edward Rudolph, a brother of the famous Dick Rudolph, the Toronto International League pitcher, is one of the players. Rudolph is an outfielder. Last season he played in the New York State League and had a good record Several Canadian League Clubs were after him this season, but the London club seemed to attract him a little stronger than the others, and his signed contract was received by the local management yesterday. Rudolph is only a youngster, scarcely out of his teens. He is said to be good with the bat, fast on the bases, and an outfielder that can cover a great deal of territory. If he lives up to these requirements there is no doubt but that he will hold a summer-long job with the Tecumsehs.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

THE other day I heard a man complain that when he gave up his seat to a woman in the trolley car, she behaved so ungraciously that he made up his mind he would never be so courteous again.

We, the feminine sex, quite frequently hear complaints of that sort on the part of offended masculines who feel that they have not received due payment in gratitude for their courtesy, and I, at least, always feel very sorry that any woman should have been so ungracious. But there is another side to this matter. Since men are such sticklers for courtesy, I am sure they will agree with me in condemning the man who does a kindly act in such an ungracious manner that he robs it of all its grace and courtesy.

To what do I refer? I refer to the man who gives up his seat on the trolley car, but gives it up with such evident reluctance and resentment that he makes the woman, who accepts his ungracious offering rather than make herself conspicuous by refusing, feel uncomfortable and unhappy instead of complimented and protected.

Just yesterday I witnessed a striking example of this kind of ungraciousness. The man was a good looking, well dressed young person, apparently sufficiently educated to warrant better manners thanhe showed. He was sitting down in a trolley car. In front of him a plain little woman of about forty or forty-five was standing. He let her stand for a few minutes; finally he slouched to his feet saying crossly to an acquaintance who was already standing, "Guess I might as well stand up." After a moment the woman took his seat. She did not thank him. How could she? He had not taken any notice of her, nor in any way suggested that his act was in deference to her.

Now, to have lifted his hat and said pleasantly, "Won't you have my seat, madame," would not have cost that man any great effort. It would not have made it any harder or more tedious for him to stand. And it would have made the reception of the seat a hundred times pleasanter to the little woman. She would have felt protected and complimented, and would doubtless have remembered and been pleased at the little act of chivalry long afterwards.

"Is it not enough,' 'someone says, to give up one's seat without putting on a lot of frills, too?"

No, my friend, it is not. A gracious act done in an ungracious manner is never complete, ever enough.

The world needs love as well as service.

A single act done willingly and graciously out of the heart's goodwill is worth more than a dozen done ungraciously, and only because convention or some other force extorts them from the doer.

The woman who does not say, "Thank you," when a man gives up his seat to her certainly has reason to be ashamed of herself, but no more reason than the man who gives up his seat only because convention or fear of opinion forces him to, and acts like a bear when he does it.

St. George's Day Adequately Celebrated By St. George's Society

Annual Banquet Held Last Evening in Coleman's Restaurant, When Inspiring Speeches Were Delivered by a Number of Prominent Local Citizens.

St. George's Day was adequately celebrated last evening in the banquet parlour of Coleman's restaurant where a large representation of the local branch of the St. George's Society assembled at their annual banquet. There were seated at the head of the table many prominent citizens, including Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen G. N. Gordon, Messrs. F. D. Kerr, F. H. Dobbin, Major Walker and Capt. Cluxton. After full justice had been done to the excellent viands placed before the gathering, the chairman, Alderman Gordon opened the toast roll and said:

Ald. Gordon.

It is fitting on an occasion like this that we meet together and consider those thoughts which are now in the heart of every true Englishman. During last week we have had one of those instances where the English have shown that great control which one would think could never exist. But it did exist, and as you know, men helped the women and children to save their lives while they themselves went down to the darkness of death. As the grandson of a Yorkshire mill wright I am proud, and the only thought of weakness that I may feel is that I may not be able to do my part to earn that noble inheritance to which I am entitled by being a descendant of a Yorkshire yeoma. He asked the assembly to rise and drink a toast to the King, who was the head of those British institutions which stood for right, freedom and the same chivalrous mottoes which prevailed in the Society of St. George.

Mr. F. D. Kerr.

In responding to the toast of "Canada ,the land of our adoption," Mr. F. D. Kerr said:

Although I am proud of being a Canadian I am perhaps prouder that I have the right to claim with you, with the Australian, with the New Zealander, and with the South African, that I am British and that I, like you, a British citizen, owning the same allegiance to one flag and one king. My proudest boast is that I can look to a sturdy old Englishman from Somerset who was my grandfather. Mr. Chairman, it is not right to say we welcome our English friends—not friends but brothers, for after all we were only the advance guard that arrived here some one hundred or hundred and fifty years ago and kept the country until the present generation were ready to come out to us. We have preserved the British flag for a hundred and fifty years, and pray God we may preserve it for ever. I think it is our duty as citizens, and a duty to our country to see that the British flag is kept floating not only in England and Canada, but upon the high seas wherever the waves may roll. I like those words of old Captain Smith —"Be British." He, faithful to the last, went down with his ship. Let us keep the British ship afloat, but if it has to go down then I, for one, would be content to go down with it.

Mr. F. H. Dobbin.

The next toast was that of "Thd Day We Celebrate," which was responded to by Mr. F. H. Dobbin, who said:

"It is a good thing to think that Englishmen the world over are assembling in groups in honour of their patron saint. An Englishman as a rule is modest and requires a helping hand to assist him on his way, but ultimately he will make a mark for himself."

Mr. Wm. Guy.

The toast of "The Land Of Our Birth' was responded to by Mr. Wm. Guy, who said:

"England is poorer in the loss of those who have recently perished, but England is richer in her old traditions of heroism. Wherever an Englishman may be, whether in Canada, United States or Africa, he thinks to-night of his Mother land. To honour our native land we must have cause to honour it, and we have cause to honour it in the production she has made. In literature she has produced men like Chaucer, Tennyson and Dickens. She has produced many patriarchs, many scientists ad many heroes. But the there is another thing—we have to honour our native land for these liberties which she has handed down to us."

Mayor Bradburn.

Mayor Bradburn in responding to the toast of "Our City," gave some interesting figures and statistics relative thereto frim which it was gleaned that the increase of population during the decade from 1871 to 1881 was 47 per cent. and from 1881 to 1901 the percentage had fallen to 15 per cent. During 1901 and 1911, however, the figure had jumped to 67 per cent. After dealing with the many advantages offered by the city, he concluded by saying: "We have a fair city to live in. We have ample parks; we have schools that cannot be beaten by any city of this size in Ontario; we have lots of churches and we have good sporting associations, so that I cannot see where any man can find a better place to live in than our fair city of Peterborough."

Major Walker.

"Imperial forces are necessary," said Major Walker when responding to the toast of "Imperial Forces," "not only for the maintenance of Great Britain, but for the peace of the world. That is what the British forces stand for, and that is what we are proud of—that she is prepared to advance the work of righteousness and of truth. et uLs hope that Canada will soon rise to a realisation of her duty and assist in this world's peace. Let us hope and pray that the Imperial forces will ever maintain the prestige she has heretofore maintained."

Capt. Cluxton.

The last toast on the list was "The Ladies" which was responded to by Capt Cluxton, who said:

"It is the hope and aim of every patriotic Canadian that the same unfortunate conditions which exist in some older nations of the world will not prevail in ours—that crime and vice will not take place in our country. But to what power must we look to subdue such things but to that force which turns a brute into a man.

Although the ladies are a conundrum—inEngland they are a conundrum to Mr. Balfour, in the States they are a conundrum to Mr. Roosevelt, and in Canada they are a domestic conundrum. But I think we will all agree that they are conundrums that we will never give up.

The toast list was interspersed with musical items. Vocal selections were rendered by Messrs. Harold, Lee S. Thompson and R. J. Devey, while Mr. J. Johns rendered a splendid recitation. Mr. R. J. Devey acted as accompanist. After a vote of thanks had been accorded the chairman, the evening closed with the national anthem.

Fire Threatens Dwelling House

Of Mr. Edward Green, of Water Street

Early this morning a fire broke out at the residence of Mr. Edward Green, of 326 Water st.

The occupants of the house and also of the houses on either side had noticed smoke issuing from some point in the buildings early last evening and again at about 10 o'clock, but could not determine the exact spot.

At 3.30 this morning the cellar of the house in question burst into flame, and an alarm was turned in by the police. The firemen were able to extinguish the flames with the use of several chemical tanks, and as it was not necessary to use water, very little damage will result.

It was afterwards discovered that the floor was laid upon a layer of sawdust in which the fire in some manner had originated. The only portion of the building that burned at all was the floor.

THANKSGIVING PSALM.

A Rhythmical and Grateful Chant.

A teacher in a Terre Haute public school joins in the chorus:

"Teaching is a business which requires a great deal of brain and nerve force. Unless this force is renewed as fast as expended the teacher is exhausted before the close of the year. Many resort to stimulating tonics for relief.

"For three years I struggled against almost complete exhaustion, getting what relief I could from doctors' tonics. Then in the spring of 1903 I had an attack of la grippe and malaria which left me too weak to continue my work. Medicine failed to give me any relief, a change of climate failed. I thought I should never be able to go back in school again.

"I ate enough food, (the ordinary meals—white bread, vegetables, etc.) but was hungry after meals.

"I happened at this time to read an article giving the experience of another teacher who had been helped by Grape-Nuts food. I decided to try Grape-Nuts and cream, as an experiment. It was a delightful experience, and continues so after a year and a half of constant use.

"First, I noticed that I was not hungry after meals.

"In a few days that tired feeling left me, and I felt fresh and bright, instead of dull and sleepy.

"In three months, more than my usual strength returned, and I had gained 15 pounds in weight.

"I finished the year's work without any kind of tonics—was not absent from duty even half a day.

"Am still in the best of health, with all who know me wondering at the improvement.

"I tell them all, "Try Grape-Nuts!"' Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. "Theres' a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

WATER RISING IN LOCK ST. SEWER

The high water in the river has not only flooded the Riverside Park, the various wharves, the islands on the river and has risen high along the banks, but it has begun rising in the sewer in the south end of the city. Yesterday there were indications that it had backed up to Romaine st. Commissioner Evans found nothing of a serious nature. The water has continued to rise of late, and unless it soon reaches its limit other reports may be expected. The water had risen in the sewer from the river to Romaine st., and was coming up the taps, closets and other outlets.

A CHANCE TO LEARN TO SWIM

The swimming campaign at the Y.M.C.A. is going on merrily. The schoolboys are certainly taking advantage of it, and are turning out regularly in good numbers, and it looks as if there would be a big run on the fine swimmers button which will be given to the boys who are able to swim 50 feet at the close of the campaign.

Peterborough must be fairly well stocked with men who can swim. At least that is the opinion that one would arrive at judging from the attendance at the men's swimming classes. So far very few of the men who cannot swim have gathered enough courage to make a start at the art of swimming. Now if you want to be taught to swim, the Y.M.C.A. have made it possible for you to do so, so that it is "up to you" to make

"EXCUSE ME"

Two carloads of laughter will be delivered at the Grand next Tuesday April 30, in the side-splitting farce "Excuse Me," that Henry W. Savage will present with a brilliant New York cast. A trip from Chicago to Reno, a two-thousand-mile, four-day journey that has howls of laughter, and every other expression of merriment every mile and every minute, is what "Excuse Me" is made of. It is not often a play produces laughter in such quantities as "Excuse Me" does, for in this farce laughter is constant. Every person, everything they say and do, everything that happens is a laugh, and of the roaring variety. The play is a scream of hilarity. Plays that provide entertainment in the abundance furnished by "Excuse Me" are few, and everybody will enjoy and be benefitted by this one. It will not pucker a brow with thought but it will light every face with glee, and the light will last too, for the very thought of this farce will bring a smile. "Excuse Me" is a present joy in the way of comedy and it will leave a merry memory. The piece is a tremendous hit. It is as big a laughing success as New York has ever known. It ran for nine months at the Gaiety Theatre. Mr. Hughes has hit on a unique idea in the matter of locale; all the scenes being laid in the interior of a vestibuled train. A novel and amusing story is unfolded during the progress of the journey, and, in addition, there are plots and counter plots, involving a series of rollicking episodes. The cast is of remarkable excellence.

5 DAYS' DRESS GOODS SALE

Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Monday, Tuesday - - April 25th to 30th

AN "End of the Month" Clean-up Event which offers exceptional snaps on fresh, new, 1912 Dress Fabrics. There is a reason for every special sale and our purpose in this "5 Days' Sale" is threefold. First: It is our ambition to make this the greatest April ever experienced in our Dress Goods section. Second: So far, this season has been one of unusually brisk selling, with the result that we are left with many broken lines and short lengths which we are desirous of clearing, to keep stock in perfect condition. Third: At this time of year, manufacturers find themselves with certain lines for which there is no immediate market, and, to dispose of this surplus stock, they offer wonderful price concessions. Our buyer has been keen to take advantage of such opportunities and secured several lines at prices which make for quick, profitable buying and supply the Big Leaders for this Great 5 Days' Sale.

The usual merit of the "Cressman" Dress Fabrics is fully maintained during this Sale. Every purchase carries with it our guarantee for satisfactory service. Shop To-morrow—it will mean something to have "first selection" of these remarkable values.

WITH BUGLE AND DRUM

"You cannot be the same men, the same soldiers that you were before the terrible disaster which befell the Titanic. You have been taught the lesson of duty, self sacrifice, and self heroism, as you were never taught before. You have seen men do their duty right up to the hour of death, and we are confident that every one of us can do likewise. It is for every one of us now, to steadfastly tread the path of duty, and accustom ourselves so that we may be ready to do our duty, unflinchingly, whenever overtaken by an emergency"—Canon Davidson, chaplain to the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

In extending a hearty invitation to the officers and men of the 57th Regiment to attend the social to be given by the Daughters of the Empire, next Tuesday afternoon and evening in the Recreation room of the Armouries, Rev. Canon Davidson, Chaplain of the Regiment, said that the duty of this society was to interest themselves in the welfare of the individual members of the Regiment, as well as the whole Regiment. He strongly urged the wives and sisters of the members to join the Society and assist in the furtherance of the movement. The object of the social was not primarily to get funds, but to bring the men closer together in a social atmosphere.

A marked improvement was noticeable in the parade of the 57th Regiment at the Armouries last evening, both numerically and the way in which the men went through their company manoeuvres. The new recruits are manifesting a keen interest in acquiring the rudiments of military drill and discipline.

Captain Cluxton commanded the Regiment in the absence of Colonel Clegg and Major Mills.

Headquarters, Peterborough,
23rd April, 1912.

Order by the Officer Commanding 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

No. 1.—Following extracts from general orders are promulgated for the information of the Regiment.

"G. O." No. 29, 20th February, 1912

57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, Lieutenant J. D. Clarke is transferred to the Corps Reserve, 20th January, 1912.

To be provisional Lieutenant: Roland Maxwell Glover, gentleman, 20th January, 1912.

"G. O." No. 44, 5th March, 1912:

57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, Lieutenant J. E. Hodgson is transferred to the Corps Reserve, 24th February, 1912.

No. 2. The following is struck off the strength of the Regiment: Colour Sergeant H. Barrett, 23rd April, 1912.

No. 3. Leave of absence from parade is granted to Majors Bennett and Mills and Lieutenant Meyers.

No. 4—The Commanding Officer has been pleased to make the following promotions:

C. Company—To be Sergeant, provisionally: Pte. E. R. Menzies, vice H. Barrett, discharged.

To be Corporal, provisionally, Pte. G. Faux, vice Corporal S. Anderson, discharged.

G. Company—To be sergeants, provisionally, Pte. A. MacLean and Pte. O. R. Girven and Pte. W. McIntosh.

D. Walker,
Brevet Major, Adjutant.

"That's one commonplace way of [illegible] a regiment," remarked a close observer, as he watched the companies resolve themselves into a rabble and make a raid for their respective quarters at the conclusion of the parade. "What might your idea of dismissing the Regiment take the form of?" queried the Examiner. "Why! have the band play God Save the King and make the Companies march off to their quarters in marching order," he replied.

An idea of the difficulties that have to be overcome in carrying on the training of the various branches of the Regiment, may be obtained by any one who watched the smart signalling corps in the gallery transmitting messages in military code from end to end of a 200-foot drill hall, while seven companies of infantry in full marching order are manouvred by their Company officers on the floor below.

A militia order announces that the Minister of Militia approves of a team of officers representing the Canadian militia at the International (London), The Hague, and the Continental Horse Shows to be held this summer.

The team will consist of Lieut. C. Sifton, Lieut. J. W. Sifton and Lieut. W. B. Sifton, all belonging to the corps of guides.

SUCCESSFUL TENDERERS

Contracts Awarded for Reconstruction of Police Station

The city trust commissioners met yesterday afternoon. The principal item of business dealt with at the meeting was the awarding of the contracts for the alterations and addition to the police station.

The successful tenderers were as follows:: For the erection of the extension, Mr. N. Carveth; R. J. Sturgeon, heating; and F. J. R. MacPherson Bros., plumbing. The total amount of the three tenders amounted in all to $5081, being $31 over the appropriation. An amendment to the bylaw was passed last evening granting an aditional sum of $600 to carry on the work. Three months is allowed the successful tenderers in which to complete the work.

CITY OFFICIALS WERE IN A WRECK

Ald. Buller and Street Commissioner Evans Shaken Up by Collision

Ald. Buller and Mr. Harry Evans, while on an investigating expedition in regard to the purchase of a street scraper, were shaken up in a railway accident near Mimico. They were sitting in the smoking compartment of the parlour car 'when the crash came,' (fortunately it was not serious) and the chairs and their occupants were thrown heavily across the compartment. The collision was a minor one, causing about an hour's delay. The vicissitudes of serving the state are not to be disdained.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The Y. M. C. A. swimming campaign opened with a big rush yesterday afternoon, over 50 boys who could not swim were given their first lesson. Quite a few of the older boys (men) turned up for their class in the evening. This will be continued for the next two weeks.

SENSIBLE CUSTOM

Spring Best Time to Renew Blood.

Spring is nature's season for renewing the life of things, and for sweeping away the impurities that have accumulated in the winter.

This custom of taking a remedy for the blood during spring months is based on hard common sense. Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, stands far above all other spring medicines in value because it contains the elements needed to enrich and purify the blood.

J. A. Thief of Bronx Borough, N.Y., says, "Feeling the need of a good spring medicine to purify my blood and build up my strength I started using Vinol in April. It has done me so much good in every way that I believe it is in all respects just as valuable a remedy as you claim."

We guarantee that Vinol will build up and strengthen all weakened, rundown persons. Try Vinol—we will give back your money if it does not satisfy you perfectly. McDermid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Paynes' drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

WILD GEESE.

A flock of wild geese were seen flying north over the city last night, stretching out into a long line, changing formations behind the leader. They disappeared from view, but apparently the same flock returned some hours later with the mouth of the Otonabee as its destination.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells

RAILWAY NOTES

A despatch from Durand, Mich., states that the Union men employed on the Grand Trunk Railway in Michigan, who are not affected concede the justice of the reduction in pay on the branch lines. Union leaders say that only 27 men on the branch lines and two crews on the main line are affected by the cut, and as they are receiving higher wages than the majority of the men on the ain line, the latter are not greatly disturbed over the matter. The wages paid the men who have been reduced are, it is pointed out, still higher than before the strike.

The Hudson Bay branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has been completed through Melville and Yorkton, as far as Canora. Surveys are finished northward and the line will strike Le Pas in an almost stright line from Melville. Meanwhile the Government end is progressing apace and gangs are already out on the first 180 iles of the contract work.

Mr. F. W. Bergman, manager-in-chief of the Grand Trunk System hotels, reports that the numbers are now going on the doors of the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa, and that the decorations in the main dining room, dining room corridor, lounge room, rotunda, and palm room are practically completed and that the entrance to the building is making good progress, while it is expected that the kitchen will be completed by the end of the month. Two prosperous-looking safes have been installed in positions ready to receive the money that is to come in. Mr. Bergman further announces that he has decided to offer for this year's Horse Show at the Capital, a Chateau Laurier challenge cup to be awarded to the winning exhibitor of saddle horses, if secured three times in succession.

DAUGHTERS OF THE EMPIRE.

Mr. J. B. Ormond left yesterday noon to spend a few weeks in Carleton Place and Smith's Falls.

Rev. Father Meagher of Peterborough, is taking Rev. Father Casey's place at St. Mary's, during the latter's absence in Ireland. Rev. Father Meagher is already well known to our citizens and we are sure he will thoroughly enjoy his stay in Campbellford.—Dispatch.

Mr. William Wilson, who so greatly distinguished himself at his violin recital at the Conservatory, last night, has it in his blood. He comes of musical stock. His maternal uncle, Mr. Wm. Sylvester, is a member of the London (Eng.) symphony orchestra which will be heard in Toronto, to-morrow.

REVEALING VIOLIN RECITAL

The large audience that filled the hall of the Conservatory of Music last night, was attracted on false pretenses. The invitation cards requested "the pleasure of your company, and friends, to a violin recital, given by a pupil," implying, according to ordinary experience, the average performance of the amateur pupil. Here is where the audience was deceived; they did not hear a "pupil"; they heard an artist, Mr. William Wilson, described on the invitation card as "a pupil of Miss Julia Choate," is more of a master than a pupil. He possesses extraordinary talent and splendid technical proficiency for a lad of only seventeen years. This is shown by his programme, which consisted of the following high-class numbers: Salterella, Papini; the three movements of De Beriot's 7th Concerto, Legende, Wieniawski; and a caprice by Ten Have. The De Beriot concerto, being a concerto, gave opportunity for showing the capacity of the instrument as well as the performer. In this, as well as in his other numbers, Mr. Wilson showed himself a great violinist in the making, as well as an excellent player, in facts. He played with a firmness, smoothness, clarity, and roundness of tone that would have been more pronounced in a more responsive instrument) his technique was remarkable, he was true as steel to time, his intonation was prompt and sure, he plays with spirit and intelligence, and wonderful authority for so young a performer. He showed evidence of splendid talent—his whole programme was played from memory, without a folder. He has in him a large share of the personal qualities and possession of a great artist. He only needs experience, artistic atmosphere, and the inspiration to "climb" [illegible] the supreme virtuoso.

The success of his great progress of last night is due to the splendid assistance and teaching of Miss Choate, who has devoted to the pupil of both her pupil and herself. She is not only a brilliant violin virtuoso, but an artist with a capability of inspiring her pupils with her own enthusiasm, and excellent methods. Her playing with Mr. Wilson in the Dancla "Concertante No. 4" was a splendid treat. It was brilliantly performed with unique harmony of tone, tempo, expression and fire. We shall hear more of Miss Choate and her talented "pupil," to which term his performance of last night gave a new meaning. He was heard with delight and enthusiastically applauded which he accepted with a hopeful modesty of bearing.

The programme was varied by excellent readings by Mrs. A. D. Jardine, who was compelled to respond to a recall, and a lullaby song by Mr. A. Huycke. This song was sung with fine feeling and expression, though a more robust and heroic composition would have better suited the character of his really superior bass voice. He, also, was honoured with a recall. Miss Hazel Dean's sympathetic accompaniment to the "Concertante" was a contribution to an all-round excellent programme, of which, of course, Mr. Wilson was the bright particular star.

FIVE MINUTE STOP AS A MEMORIAL TO C. M. HAYS

As a testimonial to the late C. M. Hays, President of the Grand Trunk Railway, who perished in the Titanic disaster, all traffic will stop on the Grand Trunk lines and all lines operated by the company for five minutes to-morrow. From 11.30 a.m. to 11.35 a.m. not a whel will turn either on trains, yard engines or boats, and all telegraph and telegraphic instruments will be silent. All labour of any kind will be suspended for that period also. Flags everywhere will be at half-mast, including the car-ferries between Detroit and Windsor, Grand Haven and Milwaukee.

The Union Station and city ticket office, Toronto, also the principal stations and ticket offices on the line, will be draped in black and purple.

and will continue so util 2 p. m. Thursday.

A special train consisting of one coach, two Pullman sleepin gcars, and three private cars for the accommodation of officials will leave Toronto at 9.30 p.m. to-night, April 24, to attend the memorial service to be held in the American Presbyterian church Montreal at 11.30 a.m. to-morrow.

This is the first time in the history of the company that traffic has been stopped at a mark of respect for an official, although it was done at the time of Queen Victoria's death and at that of King Edward.

The local G.T.R. up-town office, in conformance with instructions, has been draped with purple and black.

Piles Not Taken Seriously

"Annoying, but not dangerous, seems to be the way many think of piles in the early stages. But gradually they become worse, until they prevent sleep, undermine the nervous system and make a wreck of life.

When the doctor is finally consulted he considers the case so serious that he recommends the surgeon's knife as the only means of cure. It may cure or it may kill. The risk is yours.

But there is an easier and surer way to relieve and cure piles. That is by applying Dr. Chase's Ointment. The earlier you begin the cure of this ointment the quicker the cure. But you need not be discouraged because you have suffered for ten or fifteen years. It would be difficult to imagine worse cases than have been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment. Relief comes at once and cure is just as certain if you persist in the use of this great ointment.

OBITUARY

MR. SAMUEL GRANDY.

The many friends in Peterborough, and district of Mr. Samuel Grandy, late of Cavan, will regret to hear of his death, which occurred at Oxbow, Sask., on Monday, April 22nd.

The deceased gentleman, who was one of the most prominent farmers of the district, was born in Cavan. He later resided some time in Manvers Township, ultimately returning to Cavan, where he spent the remaining ten years of his life. The high esteem in which he was held by his fellow men is evidenced by the fact that he was once a candidate for the representation of East Durahm. He was, in creed, a Methodist, and, in politics, a Liberal-Independent. He left for the West to visit some friends last June, and it is understood that he intended to return shortly, but death took place at Oxbow, Sask., after a short illness.

The late Mr. Grandy is survived by two sons and three daughters ,namely, Robert of Cavan, Joshua, of Oxbow, Sask., Mrs. R. D. Dundas, of Cavan, Mrs. Grandy and Mrs. Evans, both living in the West.

The remains will arrive in Peterborough, on Thursday evening per the C. P. R. local train.

The remains will arrive in Cavan by to-night's C. P. R. local, and interment will take place in Cavan tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Honors For Canadian.

Canada's famous scientist, Sir John Murray, K.C.B., F.R.S., has been awarded by the Swedish Anthropological and Geographical Society of Stockholm, the highest distinction that the society has to bestow, the Vega medal, founded in 1881, as a memorial of Nordenskiold's circumnavigation of Europe and Asia on board the Vega. It will be personally handed to the Canadian scientist by the King of Sweden, on the anniversary of the return of the vessel to Stockholm on April 24.

This honor has been conferred on Sir John Murray as a "token of the homage and veneration that Swedish natural scientists pay to the epoch-making contributions to ocean research that he has made in the course of his long life, so enthusiastically dedicated to the pursuit of scientific investigation."

Sir John, who is now in his 71st year, was born at Cobourg, Ont., and was a naturalist on board His Majesty's ship Challenger during her navigation cruise, 1872-6. Since then he has written a great deal on scientific subjects and his works are quoted as authoritative by scientists all over the world.

GIRL GETS FIVE YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

TORONTO, APRIL 25.—Five years in the penitentiary, was the term given by Magistrate Denison, to-day, to Madeline Laimond, the Montreal girl who summoned Gustave Hilliken from his home Thursday morning, and dashed carolic acid in his face, disfiguring, and nearly blinding him. The prisoner fell on her knees and burst into lamentations in French when she heard the sentence. She said Hilliken brought her from a good home in Montreal, wronged her and refused to make a home for her.

"OLYMPIC" UNABLE TO SAIL UNTIL HER FULL COMPLEMENT OF CREW IS SECURED

Board of Trade Will Inspect Lifeboats To-day—Bodies of 205 "Titanic" Victims Have Been Recovered.

INQUIRY RESUMED

Special to The Examiner.

SOUTHAMPTON, APRIL 25. — The White Star Liner "Olympic" is still lying off the Isle of Wight waiting for the full complement of firemen who went on strike yesterday just before sailing time, because they said the collapsible boats were unseaworthy. At the urgent solicitation of the Board of Trade representatives of the firemen have gone aboard the vessel to-day to watch demonstration tests with the boats. If they are satisfied, the Olympic may get her firemen back and proceed to-night.

Scarcity of Life Belts.

BRANTFORD, ONT., APRIL 25. — That the supply of life belts was very short in the Titanic steerage, was the statement of a foreigner named Verthanian, who arrived here last night from New York, having been among those picked up by life boats and brought in on the Carpathia. Verthanian says at least one hundred of his fellow steerage passengers jumped into the sea without life belts.

Matter For British Courts.

LONDON, ENG., APRIL 25. —The London Times this morning takes the opportunity to remind its readers that the United States investigators are displaying a remarkable ignorance of naval affairs and are evidently possessed of a seeming impulse to punish the scapegoat rather than reform the system. The Times points to the United States that there is a strong feeling in England that as the Titanic was flying the British flag when she went down, and the accident happened on the high seas, not in United States waters, an investigation of the personal conduct of Ismay or anybody else on the Titanic when the disaster came, belongs to the properly constituted British courts and to Lord Mersey, former judge of the Admiralty, officially appointed by the British government.

205 Bodies Recovered.

NEW YORK, N.Y., APRIL 25.—The White Star Line has given out a despatch from the MacKay-Bennett steamer that two hundred and five bodies have now been picked up, some of which will be brought to Halifax embalmed.

NEW YORK, N.Y., APRIL 25.—Capt. Lardner of the Mackay-Bennet Morgue ship, has wirelessed again today that the opinion of medical men on board is that death was instantaneous in all cases owing to the pressure when the victims were drawn down into the vortex, caused by the sinking ship.

"DEALERS IN WHITE WOMEN"

Series of Feature Films Approved by Clergymen to be Shown at the Red Mill

READ THIS ANNOUNCEMENT

The management of the Red Mill Theatre introduce to the people of Peterborough to-day a series of films that marks the beginning of a new departure in the moving picture business in this city.

To-day's feature is a specially tinted film of 4,000 feet, entitled "Nick Carter in Paris." The chief interest in this film, apart from the almost natural colours secured, is the idea it gives the audience of the methods of the celebrated Apaches of Paris, that band of criminals who have made sections of the French city noted for their crimes.

Taken in Streets of Paris.

Nick Carter is an American detective, who is on the trail of "Zigomar," a leader of a band of Apaches. The action of the film takes place in the streets of Paris, and the audience is given an intimate idea of the streets in the gay capital. The rapid disguises of Carter are also shown in his tracking the gang and in one minute he is compelled to make no less than twelve quick changes. This film has a strong moral lesson, and attracted large crowds to-day.

It takes a little more than an hour to present it, and holds the interest of the audience throughout. "Nick Carter" is the first of a series secured from Mr. Jack Martin and herein lies the principle feature of these films.

Booked Ahead Like a Company.

Ordinarily, films are received from exchanges, but Mr. Martin purchased from the makers in Europe, the rights to a series which are to be exclusively presented at the Red Mill. The route for their presentation is planned in the same manner as that of a dramatic company.

"Nick Carter in Paris" was shown for three solid weeks at a Yonge St. theatre in Toronto. They go through this district covering all the main towns and cities, and one particular house secures sole right to them in each city. The Red Mill has been fortunate in this respect, but it is only a mark of the progress and thoughtfulness of Mr. Clayton that they were secured for Peterborough. They can be best judged by seeing them. "Nick Carter" will be shown for the rest of this week, but beginning on Monday next there will be three changes each week.

The White Slave Trade.

"Dealers in White Women" is a record-breaking series, to be begun on Monday next. It is an exposal of the "white slave" traffic, and has been given the sanction of prominent clergymen in England, United States and Canada. Rev. Dr. Shearer of Toronto, has endorsed its presentation. The film teaches a great moral, and its attractive feature is not in the story it tells but in the advice it quietly tells to young people, and to the old as well. It is an education to parents and young people, alike.

The Methods of the Mormons.

One section of this series is entitled "An Exposal of the Mormons" The films were taken in England and illustrate the methods which have been attributed to Morou representatives in their work in various countries. Mr. Martin states that this film has aroused great interest wherever shown and was strongly objected to by Mormon leaders.

This film is 27,000 feet long (nearly five miles) and will be presented in a series, just like a serial story. To get the good out of the whole story you must begin with the first pictures on Monday or Tuesday, and continue as each change is made, every second day. The same characters appear through this entire series.

This is something Peterborough people have never had the opportunity of seeing. It is a real drama in picture form, and having seen one section no one will miss the others. This is one of the strongest of the feature films purchased by Mr. Martin.

"The Death Ship," or "At the Mercy of the Sea," will be shown here in a short time. It is in memory of the awful "Titanic" disaster, although not taken from it.

How They Were Secured.

The reason these are not purchased by the big film exchanges is that they were prepared at great expense, and the exchanges having to buy a certain number of ordinary films every week from producers, which they send out as a regular service through out the whole country, it is not to be expected that they would purchase these and throw away films which they have to buy from makers with whom they have contracts. Mr. Martin steps in and buys a series and takes them through the country. They are more expensive than the ordinary films, but Mr. Clayton believes the Peterborough people want the best in motion pictures, and did not think of expenses when he arranged for them.

Admission to the Red Mill will be the same, and the theatre began today to open at 9 a.m. and runs until 11 p.m. Ladies are recommended to attend the special matinee for them in the afternoons.

It is felt that this interesting series dealing with modern day questions and problems, will bring out many of those who have but a slight acquaintance with the extent to which the moving picture business has developed.

MR. SHERIFF HALL GOES BACK TO 1868

Recalls April the 23rd of That Year

Forty-four years is a long span to bridge, even with memory, but Mr. Sheriff Hall told the Examiner that he had a vivid recollection of April 23rd, 1868. On that day he drove a lady in a sleigh (with about a foot of snow on the ground) to the site of the present Wolfe Street wharf, to take a steamer for Cobourg. The method of reaching the lake shore town was a boat trip from Peterborough to Harwood, or Gore's Landing, and by stage over the rest of the journey. The condition of sleighs and steamers being out at the same time served to impress that day and year in Mr. Hall's memory. It was the steamer "Forester," which older residents will well remember, was running her regular trips, the weather preceding the snow storm having been mild enough to cause the opening of navigation. 1868 was two years before the Peterborough flood of 1870, not 1860, as stated in yesterday's Examiner by a member of the staff who was not born at the time, nor indeed for twenty years after.

ATTENDING LONDON SYMPHONY CONCERT

Party From Conservatory of Music In Toronto To-day

Peterborough's Conservatory of Music should be well represented at the London Symphony concert that it being held to-night in Massey Hall, Toronto. One party that left this morning for Toronto was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Gliddon, Miss Choate, Miss Dean, the Misses Logan, Miss Wilson, and Mr. Wilson.

Prof. Nikisch, a virtuoso conductor who is leading the London Symphony over a tour of 21 days, is the most celebrated orchestra conductor of the present day. When Mr. Gliddon was in Leipsig, he had the privilege of attending the rehearsals of the orchestra of the Gawaundhaus, the premier orchestra in Germany. The rehearsals were conducted every Wednesday morning by Prof. Nikisch and for three years Mr. Gliddon enjoyed this weekly treat.

MR. JAMES SIMPSON TO SPEAK HERE

Before Labour Council—Regular Meeting Last Night

Mr. James Simpson, of Toronto, prominent in Labour Union affairs, will deliver an address to the Trades and Labour Council in this city, on May 9th. At the meeting of the Council last night, Mr. Wm. Pretty gave an address on "Old Age Pensions". The reports in regard to the recent concert showed that it had been a financial success. The co-operative scheme has been indefinitely shelved. The plans in regard to the convention to be held here on May 24, are materializing. A large number of delegates are expected from Western Ontario and the day promises to be a big one for the Peterborough Labour Council.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA

Price, large bottle, 100 full doses 50c and well worth $1 too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at a low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year.

There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood. Routes the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from the indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's remedies.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

THURSDAY, APRIL 25, 1912

BUY THE EXHIBITION GROUNDS.

In these days of activity in real estate movements, a great many are attacked with the mania of speculating in real estate. But an opportunity is presented the city to enter into the real estate business, not as a speculation, but as good investment. An opportunity is presented the city for the purchase of the Exhibition grounds—30 acres for $30,000.

In the recent interview to this end, between representatives of the Exhibition Board and the City Council, there was shown a disposition by some members of the Council, to haggle over the trifling matter of the expense of submitting a by-law to secure popular consent to the purchase. This should not be.

In this matter there should be no difference between the Exhibition people and the City Council. In regard to the exhibition ,there is a common interest, and the two bodies are practically one. It is as much to the interest of the city as it is to the Exhibition people to have a successful exhibition every year in Peterborough; it is to the interest of all calsses, to our business men especially, while the exhibition people are deriving no personal benefit. They are rather making sacrifices in the interests of the city and county in connection with the exhibition. In order to keep the exhibition moving, they have made themselves personally responsible for no little expenditure, no little liability. They wish to have the ground safe under their feet so that they will be warranted in doing permanent work on the grounds, so that they may insure an exhibition worthy of Peterborough.

In order to do this they are asking the city to commit itself to, or rather seize the advantage of, the purchase of the property.

There is no reason why the city should hesitate. It is pointed out as a fact, and it is a fact, that the purchase of the property—30 acres for $30,000, is a good investment. Some half dozen years ago the property could have been bought for $10,000. Now the figure is placed at $30,000, a figure that shows that Mr. Morrow is more influenced by public spirit than by strict business considerations in fixing the price, embodied in the option to the exhibition people. The property in five years hence, if it is not now, will at a moderate estimate, be worth more than $50,000. The city is growing southward, and every new building in the group of buildings surrounding the grounds, will add to their value.

At four per cent., the interest on the purchase price would amount to $1200 per year. The Exhibition Board which now pays a rental of $500 per year, could afford, under the conditions that could be brought about by the more liberal cooperation of the city, to pay from receipts, a larger share of the interest than $500, if not the whole of it; while any balance of interest would be more than made up by the continuous increase in the value of the property. In case the necessity should ever come to realise upon the property, its sale within a few years would recoup the city for the whole purchase price and leave a handsome margin of profit.

The city could profitably afford to take more stock—by way of deeper interest—in the exhibition. The city of Toronto by its interest in the National Exhibition, has made it, or helped make it, the greatest permanent exhibition in the world—one that amply repays the city, by the prestige it gives and by the presence of hundreds of thousands of visitors in the city for weeks, for every cent of expenditure. The city of Peterborough, by taking a simlar interest in our Industrial Exhibition, could make, or help to make it, a corresponding success.

Besides the purchase of the property by the city would give a new park that would be available for public use during the whole interval between exhibitions. Some aldermen object that it would be too near the King Edward park. But there's little force in this. King Edward park could be used as a quiet place of resort for women and children and men who love quiet. Exhibition park could be used more as a play ground and athletic field.

There is a demand in Peterborough as well as other cities, for more open play grounds, so that boys and girls may find some other place to play than the streets. Other cities are spending large sums of money to acquire such grounds, but Peterborough has a chance to get them on a paying, instead of pay-for, basis, as a profitable investment.

King Edward park is small, and in one sense the rapid growth of the south part of the city will make it smaller. The opening of Exhibition park would relieve any possible congestion and provide something that the growing city needs.

This cursory reference to the proposed purchase of the Exhibition grounds is not intended to be in any way exhaustive in respect of the arguments in its favour. It is simply intended to call attention to the subject,, arouse interest and excite thought. If the question is dispassionately and thoughtfully considered, it is difficult to see how any other conclusion can be reached than that, in view of the many-sided advantages, the purchase of the property would be a good thing. If it were on the market to-day, open to all purchasers at the present price, it would be snapped up before night, by some wide-awake individual or syndicate.

There is danger of loss by delay. Only six or seven years ago the Exhibition property, which is to-day easily worth $40,000 or $50,000, could have been bought by the city at $10,000.

Further comment is unnecessary. Think it over.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"Nearer My God to Thee" was never a more earnest prayer than when played on the edge of death by the band of the Titanic.

Mr. Willison praising Sir Wilfrid Laurier's naval policy in a speech, is a striking comment upon his attitude as editor of the Toronto News. He seems bound by a different standard of morals in his personal and editorial capacity.

It is fair, remarks the Hamilton Herald (independent Conservative), to say that the session of the Legislature which ended yesterday was one of the most interesting and fruitful sessions on record. And it is fair to add that this is due in no small degree to the progressive spirit of the Opposition.

Two provincial general elections are now on—in Quebec and Saskatchewan, in both of which the full strength of the Ottawa government, will be used in an effort to defeat the appealing governments because they are Liberal.

The Montreal Star says that a successful home rule parliament at Dublin will be worth a fleet of Dreadnoughts to the British Empire. A contented Ireland certainly ought to be a greater imperial asset than a discontented Ireland but the brand of loyalty that feared self-government in Canada is still extant.

THE MAN THAT UTILIZED MR. VINETTE AS A CATS-PAW

Mr. Ed. Vinette was unfortunate in yielding to the request of the gentleman who wrote the letter over his signature which appeared in the Times in reference to the "Rogers" dam. Mr. Vinette is misled into the assertion that the Examiner blamed him "for the fault, if any" (note the legal phraseology here) that may have led to the wash-out. The Examiner did nothing of the kind. It distinctly said quite the opposite. It said:

"There is no complaint, so far that the dam was badly built; the dam appears to be all right as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough—into the bank. The plans that did not run the dam far enough into the solid earth of the bank for safety, or did not provide for a wing dam, were defective, and hence the trouble. No staff, old or new, would dare to change the plans. The staff is not to blame; the blame lies higher up, and Mr. Barnham must take his share."

Mr. Vinette should read the Examiner and not allow his emanuensis load him up with false statements such as he made in a letter to the Times, in order to shield himself; he misquoted the Examiner. He should be as much above making an innocent man a cats-paw, and putting false statements into his mouth, or over his signature, as he should have been above the cowardly subterfuge of blaming the staff for the botch work of the Rogers dam, as he did in his first letter. Such petty, shifty subterfuges do not seem to be the characteristics of great statesmanship.

CATACLYSM.

It is rather curious, perhaps in another age we might have said providential, that at a time when statesmen and people everywhere are thinking about the problems arising out of high living and the high cost of living, the relation between which is rather felt than discerned, the sea should claim for its victim precisely that one of the ships that floated upon it which represented the acme of luxurious appointments, the last word in all that modern science and invention could put at the disposal of the rich. There have been other tragedies, plenty of them, directly associated with the striving for superiority in the things money can buy, but the scene has been more restricted, the interest less general, the action more commonplace. How many millionaires have gone to their death, in the last ten years, under an overturned motor car? Probably more than perished in the sea last week. How man men of the type of money makers and money spenders have died by their own hand or gone to prison? How may palatial homes have been wrecked, how many lives blasted, by the substitution of luxury and its concomitants for the serene atmosphere of the home? All of us have known of such cases, and perhaps, taken together, they may have had something to do with stirring up the unrest which undoubtedly fills the general mind. But if the purpose were to bring the subject into the full glare of the sunlight, in such wise that the maximum of luxury and the most special adaptation to the comfort of the wealthy, unrelieved by all complication of ordinary life and ordinary business, should be made the object of a special disaster, here surely was the one spot in all the world upon which the blow of the fates might fall, and it detracts nothing from the completeness of the tragedy that it should be upon a lump of ice, floating down from the unchauging Arctic, that the choicest output of man's handiwork should break, crumble and disappear, carrying with it some of the foremost of the captains who were engaged in the work of conquering nature by learning and using her secret against herself—Montreal Herald.

SOME THINGS AND OTHERS

The new Peterborough Protestant Home will be formally opened on Tuesday evening, April 30th.

In 1868, in April the weather was so mild that navigation had opened and the steamer "Forester" was running regular trips. On April 23 snow fell to the depth of over a foot and sleighs were put into use.

The combined choirs of St. John's and All Saints' will go to Norwood tomorrow to sing Stainer's "Crucifixion" and give the villagers an opportunity of hearing good music, well sung.

There has been, and is being, taken off our streets, enough well fertilised soil, to make the top skin of a small farm.

The leap year tradition was realised yesterday. A young English lassie, after waiting four years for her young man to make good and prepare a nest for a pair of turtle-doves, came to the city, a day or two ago, and exercise the leap year privilege; at least there was a wedding last night.

Last winter the public made a highway of Victoria Park and tramped the snow into ice, that killed the grass, or at least left a long disfiguring streak on the turf this spring. There seems a lack of authority to force people to be civilized to the extent of respecting the beauty of our public places.

There isn't complete harmony of policy in the City Council. The southend alderman who advocates a new bridge over the river at Dalhousie street, is contravening the high level scheme of the civic Pontifex Maximus.

Boys, remember the band rehearses on Friday night of this week—not to-night. Mr. Gliddon is in Toronto.

An amusing conversation was overheard in the Public Library, the other day. A young man dropped into the Library, and, remarking that he wanted to get a book for his mother, asked one of the librarians to suggest something that would be suitable.

"Has your mother read "Freckles?" inquired the librarian.

The young man glared indignantly. "No, she hasn't red freckles, or any other kind of freckles," he retorted angrily, and took his departure.

How Mrs. Reed of Peoria, Ill., Escaped The Surgeon's Knife.

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctor said I had a tumor and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a well and healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. I am glad to tell anyone what your medicines have done for me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Lynch Also Avoided Operation.

Jessup, Pa.—"After the birth of my fourth child, I had severe organic inflammation. I would have such terrible pains that it did not seem as though I could stand it. This kept up for three long months, until two doctors decided that an operation was needed.

"Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. JOSEPH A. LYNCH, Jessup, Pa.

Women who suffer from female ills should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of the most successful remedies the world has ever known, before submitting to a surgical operation.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

DESPITE the cry of hard times which we are hearing on every side, a dressmaker declared the other day that never in all her life had she had so much work as this season. When asked why was that, she answered: "I think it is because people have to have so many gowns nowadays. They want something different for every separate occasion."

Then she went on to explain that the time had passed when a woman of moderate means in possession of two or three inexpensive house gowns, an afternoon dress, a tailored suit and an evening gown had reason to think that her wardrobe was competent for every occasion. This is the age of differentiation in clothes. Every year fashion narrows down the number of functions at which any particular gown can be worn. For instance, a few years ago a young woman in moderate circumstances was satisfied if she had a stylish and attractive evening gown, and considered herself prepared for any evening function. To-day she must have at least two gone reception gown with long train, and one shorter dress for a dancing frock.

Again, the middle class woman's afternoon gown of a few years ago did service for home wear, for any afternoon function, for church and for the less dressy evening function. To-day this dress has been subdivided into at least two frocks. One is called a house gown and is supposed to be worn at home, or to very informal gatherings. The other is a much more elaborate affair and is worn to teas, afternoon receptions, concerts, bridges, etc.

Mind you, clothes differentiation such as this is not simply for the wealthy. If I were to try to chronicle the occasions for which the real society woman must have separate gowns, I should use the rest of this column. But the frocks I have mentioned must be in the wardrobe of the distinctly middle-class woman if she wants to be properly dressed at the functions which middle-class society offers to her.

Do you remember your mother's modest dress of twenty years ago? Do you remember the innumerable occasions for which it did duty—the church supper, the high school graduation, the afternoon tea, the ladies' aid social, the concert, the formal call, the woman's club meeting? Again I could fill this column if I were to chronicle the occasions for which that gown was considered perfectly proper.

Compare that with to-day, and then prophesy what we shall have twenty years from to-day—if you dare.

While I am on this subject, I can't forbear to pass on to you a method which the dressmaker whom I quoted above has invented to eliminate one extra gown. It may help some young woman who wishes to keep up with the times but finds herself breathless, or rather penniless, in her efforts to do so. This dressmaker made a combination dancing frock and reception gown for one of her customers in the following way: She made a dancing frock with the tunic effect, which is so popular, and hanging about four inches from the floor. Under the tunic, where it wouldn't show, she put a broad tuck and she also fashioned a train which was to fall from the waist. When her customer wants to go to a reception she lets down the tuck and sews on the train, and behold, a reception gown!

Perhaps by telling you this I am helping on the cause of this outrageous clothes differentiation, but I guess I am willing to risk it.

CHAPTER VII.

IN THE SAND DESERT.

Suddenly Keith halted, bringing his pony's head sharply about, so that the two faced one another. The wind was rising, hurling clouds of sand into their eyes, and the plainsman held one hand before his face.

"There's no need of keeping up a water trail any longer," he said quietly. "By all the signs we're in for a sand storm by daylight, and that will cover our tracks so the devil himself couldn't follow them. Got a water bag on your saddle?"

"I reck'n dis am one, sah."

Keith felt of the object Neb held forth.

"Yes, and a big one, too; fill it and strap it on tight; we've got a long, dry ride ahead."

"Whar' yo' propose goin', Massa Jack?"

"To the 'Bar X' on the Canadian. I've worked out that outfit. They'll give us whatever we need, and ask no questions; I don't know of anything in between. It's going to be a hard ride, boy, and mighty little to eat except what I saved from supper."

"How far am it to dis yere 'Bar X'?"

"A hundred and fifty miles as the crow flies, and sand all the way, except for the valley of Salt Fork. Come on now, and keep close, for it's easy to get lost in these sand hills."

Keith had ridden that hundred and fifty miles of sandy desolation before, but had never been called upon to make such a journey as this proved to be. He knew there was little to fear from human enemies, for they were riding far enough east of the Santa Fe trail to be out of the path of raiding parties, while this desert country was shunned by Indian hunters. It consisted of sand hill after sand hill, a drear waterless waste where nothing grew, and amid the dread sameness of which a traveller could only find passage by the guidance of stars at night or the blazing sun by day. To the eye mile after mile appeared exactly alike, with nothing whatever to distinguish either distance or direction—the same drifting ridges of sand stretching forth in every direction, no summit higher than another, no semblance of green shrubbery, or silver sheen of running water anywhere to break the dull monotony—a vast sandy plain, devoid of life, extending to the horizon, overhung by a barren sky.

They had covered ten miles of it by daybreak, their ponies travelling heavily, fetlock deep, but could advance no further. With the first tint of rose in the east the brooding storm burst upon them in wild desert fury, the fierce wind buffeting them back, lashing their faces with sharp grit until they were unable to bear the pain. The flying sand smote them in clouds, driven with the speed of bullets. In vain they lay flat, urging their ponies forward; the beasts, maddened and blinded by the merciless lashing of the sand, refused to face the storm. Keith, all sense of direction long since lost, rolled wearily from the saddle, burrowed under the partial shelter of a sand dune and called upon Neb to follow him. With their hands and feet they made a slight wind-break, dragging the struggling ponies into its protection, and burrowed themselves there; the clouds of sand scurrying over them so thick as to obscure the sky, and rapidly burying them altogether as though in a grave. Within an hour they were compelled to dig themselves out, yet it proved partial escape from the pitiless lashing. The wind howled like unloosed demons, and the air grew cold, adding to the sting of the grit, when some sudden eddy hurled it into their hiding place. To endeavour further travel would mean certain death, for no one could have guided a course for a hundred feet through the tempest, which seemed to suck the very breath away. To the fugitives came this comfort—if they could not advance, then no one else could follow, and the storm was completely blotting out their trail.

It was three o'clock before it died sufficiently down for them to venture out. Even then the air remained full of sand, while constantly shifting ridges made travel difficult. Only grim necessity—the suffering of the ponies for water, and their own need for soon reaching the habitation of man and acquiring food—drove them to the early venture. They must attain the valley of the Salt Fork that night, or else perish in the desert—there remained no other choice. Tying neckerchiefs over their horses' eyes, and lying flat themselves, they succeeded in pressing slowly forward, winding in and out among the shifting dunes, with only the wind to guide them. It was an awful trail, the hoofs sinking deep in drifting sand, the struggling ponies becoming so exhausted that their riders finally dismounted, and staggered forward on foot, leading them stumbling after. Once the negro's horse dropped, and had to be lashed to its feet again; once Keith's pony stumbled and fell on him, hurling him face down into the sand, and he would have died there, lacking sufficient strength to lift the dead weight, but for Neb's assistance. As it was he went staggering blindly forward, bruised, and faint from hunger and fatigue. Neither man spoke; they had no breath nor energy left to waste; every ounce of strength needed to be conserved for the battle against nature. They were fighting for life; fighting grimly, almost hopelessly, and alone.

About them night finally closed in, black and starless, yet fortunately with a gradual dying away of the storm. For an hour past they had been struggling on, doubting their direction, wondering dully if they were not lost and merely drifting about in a circle. They had debated this fiercely once, the ponies standing dejectedly, tails to the storm, Neb arguing that the wind still blew from the south, and Keith contending it had shifted into the westward. The white man won his way, and they staggered on uncertain, the negro grasping the first pony's tail to keep from being separated from his com-

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT NARROWLY AVERTED

East City Resident Rescues a Local Man From the Jaws of Death

That a certain East City resident escaped being ground to pieces by a C. P.R. freight train on Saturday evening, was through no fault of the person concerned. The circumstances of the case which have just leaked out, are somewhat belated, it must be admitted, but that is accounted for by the fact, that for certain specific reasons it was deemed advisable to withhold them.

The person to whom all credit is due for the prevention of what might easily have been a horrible fatality, is Mr. Alex. Calder, who resides in close proximity to the C.P.R. railroad bridge, which spans the Trent Canal at a point south of the Lift Lock. On Saturday evening Mr. Calder had occasion to go outside of his house for a pail of water, when he was horrified to see a drunken man stalled midway on the bridge, while a short distance down the track a fast approaching freight train was discernable. No time was to be lost and Calder rushed down the track to where the helpless man was standing, and half dragging him and half carrying him, he brought him to a place of safety, just as the huge mogul, hauling a long string of cars, roared by. With the assistance of a neighbour, the rescuer conveyed the man to his home. Eye-witnesses of the affair state that had it not been for the prompt action of Mr. Calder, the man would surely have been struck by the train, as he was in such an advanced state of intoxication as to be unable to help himself.

RHEUMATISM YIELDS TO ZAM-BUK

Read This Lady's Experience

Just at this season many people find themselves suffering from aches and pains of rheumatism, sciatica, etc. For these, Zam-Buk is a sure cure.

Mrs. Mary Harman, Wheatley, Ont., writes: "I had rheumatism very badly. It affected my right arm and leg, and was so bad that I could not put my hand to my head or behind me. I was quite helpless, could not do my work, and could not even dress myself, but had to be attended to like a child. The rheumatism in my leg was so bad that at times I could hardly walk.

"Naturally I tried various remedies, but they seemed to do me no good. A friend advised me to try Zam-Buk. I obtained some, and had it rubbed thoroughly into the affected muscles. Before the first box was used I was very much better. I could move around the house with ease, and dress myself ,and needed very little personal attention. I continued with the treatment, rubbing Zam-Buk in thoroughly every day, and in a few weeks' time the rheumatism was driven completely out of my system. The cure was permanent, too, and since that time I have never been troubled with rheumatism."

It is just as good for skin injuries and diseases, eczema, scalp sores, eruptions, piles, cuts, burns, bruises, scalds, etc. All druggists and stores, 50c. box, or by mail from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

IMMIGRANTS ARRIVE.

A party of immigrants to the number of twenty arrived in the city today. A small section came in last evening and for a few hours to-day the Immigration office was a scene of bustle and activity. A reception committee, in the form of a couple of dozen sturdy farmers, were on hand to meet them, and it is expected that this evening will see the last of them satisfactorily disposed of.

ENJOYABLE DANCE.

The members of the "Sylvia" Company, which produced that operetta, under the auspices of the Ladies' Sodality of the St. Peter's T. A. S., in the Opera House a few days since, held a very enjoyable dance in the T. A. S. rooms last evening. Misses L. Hurley, A. Doris, A. Sullivan, F. Lacey and others furnished the musical element. Refreshments were served about eleven o'clock, after which a pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Y.M.C.A. Is Helping To Improve Health Of The Community Through Its Physical Department

Because of Its Preventative Measures Disease is Dying, Crime is Being Arrested, and Poverty Starved to Death for Lack of Material.

Written for the Examiner (By Roy Cleary)

Dr. John Brown of New York, Canadian representative of the International committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, was the guest of honour Tuesday night at a banquet given by the Physical Department of the local Association. In the absence of the President, Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., Mr. Jas. H. Connal, Vice-President, performed the duties of chairman. A large number of men sat down to a sumptuous repast prepared by the ladies, and were thoroughly representative. Of the clergy of the city there were present: Reverends Pogue, Riddiford, Sawers and Brown, the educational interests were represented by Messrs. Ferguson and Firth, the professions, by Dr. Yelland, J. W. Bennett and H. B. Cowan, and the neighbouring Associations by Physical Director McGuire of Ottawa, all of whom graced the evening with bright speeches sparkling with wit and humour.

It was interesting to note the eulogistic terms used by each in praising the work of Physical Director Thompson, who was appreciated not only for his superiority along the athletic line, but for the splendid influence he exerted among the young men of the Association.

Dr. Brown proved himself a forceful speaker, He led his hearers on by natural steps, proving his assertions as he proceeded, and, notwithstanding his relationship to the medical profession, his utterances were always couched in language so simple that everyone might understand.

By way of introduction he traced the development of the physical work of the Association from the time that the Physical Director was nothing more than a professional acrobat, a star performer on the flying trapeze, magic wizard of the Indian clubs, sometimes garbed in pink tights to heighten the effect. Those were the days when Christian people questioned the methods, and with certain amount of justification. At the present time all has been changed; it is now a question of administering to the needs of the ordinary men. The work of the gymnasium has the desired effect of attracting young men from the street into the building, where the uplifting influence of a Christian leadership exerts itself in building up the moral and religious natures as well as attending to the wants of the physical. Great emphasis was placed on the grand work of the leaders' corps, who as a band of consecrated men are not only leaders in physical work but strive to a definite Christian service from definite motives to win fellows into the Kingdom.

From being a selfish discharge of duty primarily for the benefit of the member sewh ha mbem rfegeceves members, the work is now etxending in all directions reaching the boys of the schools, of the brotherhoods, in fact any place where the spiritual uplift can be of service to man.

In explaining the objects of the work of the Physical Department a large chart was used very effectively in showing how the prevention of disease added materially to the life of the individual, and hence to the wealth of the community.

In all diseases, the restoration of the individual depended upon his resisting powers, upon his organic vigour, his vitality, as well as upon the virulence of the attacking germ. The best work is done on the person before he gets ill, in other words ,if his physical condition is fortified against sickness, so that his powers of resistance will throw it off we add to his happiness, for health and happiness are intertwined, they are inseparable.

The Association is helping to improve the health of the community through educational measures, by the work on the floor of the gymnasium and by the knowledge of disseminates. A well known physician of New York asserts that all contagious and infectious diseases could be stamped out if the knowledge that doctors now possess could be made available.

Many men are incapable of doing their best through inefficiency. They fail because of headache, indigestion, because they are below par. Men who have achieved success are those who have had sound bodies, who have been able at all times to undergo great strains, to stay with a problem until they have gained the mystery.

One of the great problems confronting the Association to-day is the task of disassociating the commercialism of sport from the true conception of ordinary play and recreation. In fact this fundamental principle of play and recreation permeates the whole of life. In school the child studies ethics, but these are practised in their plays where the spirit of self-sacrifice, of fair play and the square deal enter into the formation of heroic characters.

The great objective is the welfare of the community, which can be accomplished better by co-operation with the churches, and with the schools. This is not so much the day of the strenuous life (a la Roosevelt); it is the day of the efficient life, where life is considered as an investment, the dividends of which are sure, not in terms of money, however, but in the currency of character.

Before concluding his address, which, but for the lack of space, we would give more fully, he paid a glowing tribute to the work of the Physical Department of the local Association and complimented the Board on having such an able Director, in the person of Mr. Thompson, who, he declared, was doing a splendid work for men.

CASE ADJOURNED UNTIL TUESDAY

Important Legal Principle Involved in the Case Will be Fought Out in the County Court on That Date

Examination of the witnesses in the case of Frederick Euson and James Dickson, complainant and defendant respectively, in which the former sought redress for alleged trespass on concession 6, lot 12, township of Otonabee, was reopened yesterday afternoon at three o'clock.

Failed to See Signs.

The cross-examination of the defendant by Mr. F. D. Kerr, developed some interesting phases and was featured by verbal fireworks on the part of the lawyers. Witness admitted having trapped on defendant's property and contended that he had a right to trap on the disputed land, it being adjacent to a navigable stream and was flooded over by water. Witness denied knowledge of the presence of poles on the property. From the tops of these posts a small white flag fluttered and was used to attract would-be trespassers to the presence of signs which were placed at intervals on the property.

Trapping For 50 Years.

James Dickson, father of the defendant, was next called. He swore that the stream was a navigable one. He had on different occasions observed steamboats passing up and down. Witness had trapped along that particular portion of the river for over fifty years. He also failed to discern the poles bearing the flags from his position in the boat. Witness scored a point when he admitted that he had visited the spot in question for that particular purpose. He anticipated that he would be called upon to give evidence on this point.

Mr. Easbn was recalled. He said that the poles were visible from the shore line, but would not commit himself as to whether they would be visible from a canoe on the river. To Mr. Gordon, witness admitted that he had no deed to the property, but exercised his right of possession of the land by reason of the fact that he had all but concluded the purchase of the property and had been the leaseholder of the land for some time.

This practically concluded the evidence in the case, and it remained for the contending lawyers to sum up the case. As the principle involved in the case is being fought out on a tenchnicality, it was decided to adjourn the case until next Tuesday, when counsel for the complainant and defendant respectively will present their side of the case, and a weighty legal argument of interest to the Province of Ontario, will be threshed out to a finish.

The most important principle involved in the case deals with the right of the tenant or owner to the solo privileges respecting the wild animals that run over his land.

A STRIKING TRIBUTE TO LATE C. M. HAYS

Entire G.T.R. System Suspends Business for a Brief Period in Commemoration of Late President

Precisely at 11.30 to-day, operations on the Grand Trunk railway system were suspended for a space of five minutes, as a memorial of the late President Hays, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster. One can but faintly picture in the mind's eye, the full import that characterizes this action on the part of the mammoth corporation, whose feelings toward their departed leader, it is expressive of. It is one of those unstaged events in the world's history, that by reason of the singular circumstances under which it is enacted, is exempt from the desecrating influences of those who would violate the sancity of the occasion by putting it to an unworthy use. The only literal evidence that remains to mark the occasion is that to be found in the order book at the headquarters of the giant system, which has three countries in its grip.

Observed Here.

This striking, far-reaching memorial was observed in Peterborough in strict accordance with the telgeraphic instructions which were received here a few days ago, with the times arranged so that the cessation of work on a system extending nearly half-way round the world was simultaneous.

Sharp on the appointed time, the employees at the G.T.R. station ceased their work and removed their hats as a mark of respect. Even the sputtering telegraph instrument was stilled in silent commemoration of the passing of him who was the presiding genius over all.

Cost 50c. to Start Train.

A traveller walked up to the wicket and called for a ticket, but received no response. There was nothing doing. The telephone rang incessantly, but without avail. The spell remained unbroken until the expiration of the appointed time.

At 11.50 the Port Hope train in charge of Conductor Jones, pulled up at the station and a passenger carrying a grip alighted. "Did you stop for five minutes out on the line?" queried the reporter. "Yes, but I don't know what they did it for. The conductor informed us that it would cost fifty cents to start the train again; the same would apply to all trains throughout the system," he added. The conductor informed the Examiner that his train was halted at a point a mile and a half this side of Omemee junction.

A Striking Memorial.

It may be readily imagined how vividly the whole disaster must of necessity appear in the mind's eye of the passengers and crew of the trains. Take for example an express thundering over the prairie. Suddenly the brakes are aplied to the wheels, causing the sparks to fly and the train is brought to a standstill. A passenger, should it happen that he is uniformed of the occasion of the incident, thrusts his head out of the window and gazes expectantly around as if anticipating some calamity. He is informed of the reason of the cessation of business over the entire system and it is then that the whole scene will rise vividly before him. And the crew, too, could not fail to revolve in their minds the appalling event of the past week, and also to think of him whose untimely end is now lamented and whose memory is held in general reverence.

Replying to a remark as to the brevity of the business cessation this morning, an old railroad man was heard to exclaim: "If you had a brother lying sick to death in Chicago or any other place, and you wished to see him before he dies, you would, think such a delay al ong one, wouldn't you?"

Fire In Lundy Shovel Factory

At 3.20 o'clock this morning, a fire threatened in no small measure, the buildings of the Lundy Shovel and Tool Co.

In the south west portion of the building there are some annealing machines and ovens, which are heated by oil. It was under one of these machines the loose oil, in some manner, caught fire, and blazed fiercely. The watchman, after telephoning the Brigade, set to work with the Company's hose, and a watchman from a neighbouring factory, perceiving the reflection, came to his assistance. On the arrival of the Brigade the flames were almost subdued and gave little subsequent trouble. The floor under the already mentioned machine was somewhat charred, but very little damage will result.

The bride, charmingly attired in blue satin, with hat to match, and carrying a bouquet of orange blossom was attended by Mrs. Harry Cook, while Mr. Harry Cook acted as best man.

After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of Mr. Mrs. Harry Cook of East City where a dainty wedding repast was participated in and a pleasant evening spent in music and conviviality.

Mr. and Mrs. Copson will reside in the city.

FANCY CHOCOLATES MADE IN PETERBORO'

By a New Company Will be Offered For Sale on Saturday

A high grade line of fancy chocolates made in this city, will be put on sale at an introductory price at Payne's and McDermid's drug stores on Saturday, and Peterborough people will have the first opportunity of enjoying the product of a new company recently formed and now operating in our midst.

The Sweet Meat Compay, whose plant is in part of the building of the Canadian Chicle Company, George street south, has been at work since the first of the year putting their equipment in order for the manufacture of a complete line of chocolates and experimenting with a number of special chocolates which they have perfected and which will be featured in their sales.

The company has aimed at securing a high standard of quality in their chocolates, realizing that this is an absolute essential to future success. They are putting on the market a chocolate which will appeal to the discriminating tastes of those who demand the best in this form of candy. Chocolate caramels, creams, mints, chocolate strawberries, etc., are generally familiar and have received special attention from the Sweet Meat Company. A new line will be known as crushed strawberry creams. Instead of the mere strawberry flavour being used, the actual crushed berries are used, making a chocolate cream that is wholesome and dainty, but particularly is it pure.

Nearly all the company's present output has been disposed of to a Montreal firm, and the chocolates that will be put on sale on Saturday will be fresh and appealing. In a short time they will be put up in most attractive one and two pound boxes. They will be shown at the Peterborough summer fair, and arrangements are under way for their distribution throughout Canada. The regular price will be fifty cents a pound, but on Saturday they will be sold for the first time in Peterborough, and at 40 cents as an introductory price at McDermid's and Payne's drug stores.

To Mr. Gordon, witness admitted that he had no deed to the property, but exercised his right of possession of the land by reason of the fact that he had all but concluded the purchase of the property and had been the leaseholder of the land for some time.

This practically concluded the evidence in the case, and it remained for the contending lawyers to sum up the case. As the principle involved in the case is being fought out on a tenchnicality, it was decided to adjourn the case until next Tuesday, when counsel for the complainant and defendant respectively will present their side of the case, and a weighty legal argument of interest to the Province of Ontario, will be threshed out to a finish.

The most important principle involved in the case deals with the right of the tenant or owner to the sole privileges respecting the wild animals that run over his land.

A STRIKING TRIBUTE TO LATE C. M. HAYS

Entire G.T.R. System Suspends Business for a Brief Period in Commemoration of Late President

Precisely at 11.30 to-day, operations on the Grand Trunk railway system were suspended for a space of five minutes, as a memorial of the late President Hays, who lost his life in the Titanic disastar. One can but faintly picture in the mind's eye, the full import that characterizes this action on the part of the mammoth corporation, whose feelings toward their departed leader, it is expressive of. It is one of those unstaged events in the world's history, that by reason of the singular circumstances under which it is enacted, is exempt from the desecrating influences of those who would violate the sanctity of the occasion by putting it to an unworthy use. The only literal evidence that remains to mark the occasion is that to be found in the order book at the headquarters of the giant system, which has three countries in its grip.

Observed Here.

This striking, far-reaching memorial was observed in Peterborough in strict accordance with the telgeraphic instructions which were received here a few days ago, with the times arranged so that the cessation of work on a system extending nearly half-way round the world was simultaneous.

Sharp on the appointed time, the employees at the G.T.R. station ceased their work and removed their hats as a mark of respect. Even the sputtering telegraph instrument was stilled in silent commemoration of the passing of him who was the presiding genius over all.

Cost 50c. to Start Train.

A traveller walked up to the wicket and called for a ticket, but received no response. There was nothing doing. The telephone rang incessantly, but without avail. The spell remained unbroken until the expiration of the appointed time.

At 11.50 the Port Hope train in charge of Conductor Jones, pulled up at the station and a passenger carrying a grip alighted. "Did you stop for five minutes out on the line" queried the reporter. "Yes, but I don't know what they did it for. The conductor informed us that it would cost fifty cents to start the train again; the same would apply to all trains throughout the system," he added. The conductor informed the Examiner that his train was halted at a point a mile and a half this side of Omemee junction.

A Striking Memorial.

It may be readily imagined how vividly the whole disaster must of necessity appear in the mind's eye of the passengers and crew of the trains. Take for example an express thundering over the prairie. Suddenly the brakes are aplied to the wheels, causing the sparks to fly and the train is brought to a standstill. A passenger, should it happen that he is uniformed of the occasion of the incident, thrusts his head out of the window and gazes expectantly around as if anticipating some calamity. He is informed of the reason of the cessation of business over the entire system and it is then that the whole scene will rise vividly before him. And the crew, too, could not fail to revolve in their minds the appalling event of the past week, and also to think of him whose untimely end is now lamented and whose memory is held in general reverence.

Replying to a remark as to the brevity of the business cessation this morning, an old railroad man was heard to exclaim: "If you had a brother lying sick to death in Chicago or any other place, and you wished to see him before he dies, you would think such a delay al ong one, wouldn't you?"

Fire In Lundy Shovel Factory

At 3.20 o'clock this morning, a fire threatened in no small measure, the buildings of the Lundy Shovel and Tool Co.

In the south west portion of the building there are some annealing machines and ovens, which are heated by oil. It was under one of these machines the loose oil, in some manner, caught fire, and blazed fiercely. The watchman, after telephoning the Brigade, set to work with the Company's hose, and a watchman from a neighbouring factory, perceiving the reflection, came to his assistance. On the arrival of the Brigade the flames were almost subdued and gave little subsequent trouble. The floor under the already mentioned machine was somewhat charred, but very little damage will result.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Manse, last evening, when Mr. Harry Copson and Miss Mary Jane Ashford were united in marriage, by the Rev. Robert Pogue.

The bride, charmingly attired in blue satin, with hat to match, and carrying a bouquet of orange blossom was attended by Mrs. Harry Cook, while Mr. Harry Cook acted as best man.

After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of Mr. Mrs. Harry Cook of East City where a dainty wedding repast was participated in and a pleasant evening spent in music and conviviality.

Mr. and Mrs. Copson will reside in the city.

FANCY CHOCOLATES MADE IN PETERBORO'

By a New Company Will be Offered For Sale on Saturday

A high grade line of fancy chocolates made in this city, will be put on sale at an introductory price at Payne's and McDermid's drug stores on Saturday, and Peterborough people will have the first opportunity of enjoying the product of a new company recently formed and now operating in our midst.

The Sweet Meat Compay, whose plant is in part of the building of the Canadian Chicle Company, George street south, has been at work since the first of the year putting their equipment in order for the manufacture of a complete line of chocolates and experimenting with a number of special chocolates which they have perfected and which will be featured in their sales.

The company has aimed at securing a high standard of quality in their chocolates, realising that this is an absolute essential to future success. They are putting on the market a chocolate which will appeal to the discriminating tastes of those who demand the best in this form of candy. Chocolate caramels, creams, mints, chocolate strawberries, etc., are generally familiar and have received special attention from the Sweet Meat Company. A new line will be known as crushed strawberry creams. Instead of the mere strawberry flavour being used, the actual crushed berries are used, making a chocolate cream that is wholesome and dainty, but particularly is it pure.

Nearly all the company's present output has been disposed of to a Montreal firm, and the chocolates that will be put on sale on Saturday will be fresh and appealing. In a short time they will be put up in most attractive one and two pound boxes. They will be shown at the Peterborough summer fair, and arrangements are under way for their distribution throughout Canada. The regular price will be fifty cents a pound, but on Saturday they will be sold for the first time in Peterborough, and at 40 cents as an introductory price at McDermid's and Payne's drug stores.

Nesbitt To Fight On Every Point

Special to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, ILL., APRIL 25.— Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and his lawyers are to-day in close consultation preparing to put up a big fight to-morrow, when the British law asks for the extradition of Nesbitt on several charges of breach of the Banking Act.

H. P. Dewart of Toronto, arrived this morning and at once went to the office of W. K. Pattison, the ex-Canadian attorney, who is Nesbitt's chief counsel.

There your correspondent had a brief interview with them. "We sure will," said Pattison, when asked if they proposed to fight the crown on every point. "And whats' more, we'll win. They can't get Nesbitt away from here if I know anything about extradition law." The lawyers were together all morning carefully going over all the ground to be battled on to-morrow before United States Commissioner Foote.

APPALLING REPORT FROM DR. HELEN MacMURCHY

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, APRIL 25. — "The feeble-minded are increasing with alarming rapidity, and more rapidly than the normal people. It is estimated that about one hundred children are born of feeble-minded women in Ontario every year. There are not less than 20,00 idiots, imbeciles, and feeble-minded persons in Ontario, and probably there are 40,000. The Orillia Institute can take care of about 800, the rest are ignored." These are sofe of the startling statements in Dr. Helen MacMuchy's report to the Provincial Secretary's Department on "The Feeble Minded in Ontario."

"The appalling fact is," says Dr. Macmurchy, "that the children of feeble-minded parents are themselves feeble minded."

Dr. Macmurchy recommends that a register of feeble-minded persons, especially feeble-minded children should be prepared forthwith; that legislation should be passed enabling the Province to protect, care for and control the feeble minded.

RAILWAY NOTES

In view of the very largely increased number of winter tourists this season at the Highland Inn in the National Algonquin Park, extensive improvements are being made to the premises by the Grand Trunk Railway which will be completed about May 1st.

These improvements consist of a 1n5 foot extension to the west wing, which will include 50 additional bedrooms, a music room, tea room, and a unique store outfitting department, where visitors will be able to purchase everything from a needle to a complete camp equipment. The rotunda, too, has been considerably enlarged, as has also the dining room, kitchen, and serving rooms. An additional room for the use of children, and nurses is being built, while the guides are to have a separate establishment. When the above alterations are made and the large toboggan slide to be constructed during the coming summer is completed the Inn will be one of the most completely equipped holiday resorts in the lake and mountain district of Ontario.

During the summer tourists desiring to make trips through the Park can be accommodated with tents, boats, canoes, fishing tackle, camp supplies, and guides. Throughout the past winter visitors from all over Canada have made use of the Inn, the daily average of guests varying from eighteen to twenty-five.

The officials of the Middle and Southern Divisions, and the General Yardmaster in charge of the Grand Trunk Terminal at Fort Erie, Ont., which in most cases from Stratford, have established a record that is probably let the equipment has been taken in forwarding recently from Fort Erie, within a period of 24 hours, five minutes to intermediate freight trains, with a total of 100 loaded cars received from the connecting connections at that point. The number of cars in a train varied from 22 for a pair of small engines to 48 for each compound engine. This is equivalent to assembling and forwarding a train every 40 minutes.

"The Shoreline," a forty-eight page booklet with a striking cover and over 100 illustrations, has just appeared describing the New London Districts of Connecticut on the line of the Central Vermont Railway, which promises to be an even more popular summer resort for Canadians in general and Montrealers in particular than even Old Orchard was, in its palmiest days. Anyone who is worried over the annual "summer vacation problem" will find interest if not inspiration in the contents. Just how varied the resources of this new territory are can be realised from the statement that they include deep sea fishing and sailing at New London, river boating on the Thames, salt water bathing and sand for the youngsters at Ocean Beach, Watch Hill and Block Island, as well as golf and tennis at Fisher's Island.

New London is the scene every year of Harvard-Yale boat race, which corresponds in America to the historic contests between Oxford and Cambridge Universities on the older Thames of the British Isles, and this sporting event attracts large crowds of college men and summer girls to the sturdy sea port town.

Laurier's Tribute to Hays.

Montreal, April 25.—Acting President Wainwright of the Grand Trunk yesterday received the following telegram from Sir Wilfrid Laurier, now at Hot Springs, Va.:

"The premature death of Mr. Hays would have been, under any circumstances, an irreparable loss for his family, for his friends, for the Grand Trunk Railway Co., and for the whole country. The awful catastrophe in which he lost his life adds horror to the gloom all will feel. The blow must be particularly severe for the company at a time when it is engaged in enterprises of such gigantic proportions."

Was Engaged to Marry.

Hamilton, April 52.—A romance in which John Wilson, the 70-year-old man, whose head was cut off by a Grand Trunk train on Saturday morning last, figured, was unfolded yesterday when Mrs. Margaret Ellen Taylor, of Valleyfield, Que., arrived here yesterday morning expecting to be married to Wilson.

She called at his boarding-house and collapsed when she heard about his death.

Wilson met Mrs. Taylor on board the Corsican in March last and proposed to her and was accepted. She has ten children in Canada and the States.

Out of the proceeds of this issue the Trustee is to retain a sum sufficient to retire outstanding bonds of previous issues, and the whole of the proportion of this issue applicable to vessels under construction, until they are completed. In addition, the bonds constitute a direct obligation of the Canadian Interlake Line, Limited.

The earnings last year on the vessels in commission were twice the amount of the Bond interest. With all the vessels operating, the net annual earnings should be well over 3 1-2 times the bond interest.

The following information has been furnished by officers of the Company; further particulars are given in the letter of its Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Norcross:

INSURANCE.

Insurance policies covering every possible loss or damage to or by the vessels to the extent of at least 150 per cent. of the outstanding bonds will be made payable to and held by the Trustees, as security for Bondholders.

SINKING FUND.

Although the life of steel vessels of this type on the lakes is considered to be sixty years, the Trust Deed provides for an Annual Sinking Fund sufficient to retire the whole of the issue within the term of the bonds—fifteen years. The bonds so retired will be cancelled, but the whole of the security remains intact until the last bond is retired in 1927.

COMPANY AND FLEET.

Canadian Interlake Line, Limited, was incorporated by Dominion charter, for the purpose of acquiring and operating the steel vessels "Canadian" (built in 1907), "Acadian" (built in 1908), "A. E. McKinstry" and "Renvoyle" (built in 1910), and, further, the "Indian," "Hamiltonian" and "Calgarian," to be completed, respectively, 1st May, June and October of this year. The seven vessels, the total carrying capacity of which will be 825,000 bushels, will constitute the finest, most modern and best equipped fleet of full canal size package and bulk steel freighters on the great lakes.

The fleet will have a decided advantage over vessels operating singly, in that it will be able to contract for freight in large quantities, and will be able to give much better despatch.

OPERATIONS.

The regular route of the vessels is between Montreal and intermediate ports and Port Arthur, Fort William and Westfort, the lake ports of the three great Canadian railways. At the head of the lakes there are now 16,000,000 bushels of grain awaiting transportation by water, and vessel-owners have refused charters at rates 1½ cents per bushel in advance of rates for corresponding months last year. The continuous development of the West insures plentiful cargoes of grain, in addition to which the fleet will be important carriers of iron ore, coal, cement, wood pulp, pulpwood, etc. Package freight westbound, for which the boats have been specially constructed, is increasing annually. The Company has valuable freight contracts, one of which runs for a series of years, and all of which promise good profits. The Company works in close conjunction on rail and water freight with the Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern Railways.

MANAGEMENT.

The Company's Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Norcross, has had a wide and successful experience as master of some of the largest vessels on the great lakes, and, later, in the management of transportation companies. He is generally regarded as having a thorough knowledge of the business of water transportation, and his important traffic affiliations will be of great value to the Company in keeping the fleet actively and profitably employed. In his management he will be supported by Directors several of whom have been actively associated with lake shipping for many years, and whose business connections will be valuable in securing traffic.

Copies of the Trust Deed and the certificates of the Appraisers and Auditors may be examined at our office.

Interim certificates will be issued pending delivery of definitive bonds.

Circular describing the issue in detail, and embracing the letter of the Managing Director, and certificates of the Appraisers and Auditors, will be furnished upon application.

Bonds secured by a first mortgage on modern, steel-clad freighters are held in high esteem by conservative investors. Mr. Lawrence Chamberlain, in his recently published work on the principles of Bond Investment, states that, "approximately $40,000,000 of new steamship securities have been floated and as yet there has been no default."

Pitcher Green Will Not Be Asked To Report Here For A Few Weeks

Pitcher Edward Green of Gloucester, N.J., will not be asked to report to Peterborough for some weeks. The New Jersey phenom., who won twenty-nine games last season, has been working very badly in his spring training, and Manager Templin will give him a chance to get into proper shape before coming north. Green was recommended to Templin by Manager Harry Black of the Gloucester Club and scout for the Philadelphia Americans and Boston Nationals. At Templin's request Black has been keeping an eye on the spring workouts of the young twirler and in a letter received by the White Caps' skipper last night, Black advises Templin not to bring Green north for the present, as he has not been showing well so far this season, and may take some time to work right. Although he has five other pitchers coming and another, Nork, the Dickinson College twirler to report at the end of next month, Templin does not believe in taking chances and he is already arranging to have still another pitcher come to Peterborough for the spring training, so that he will be well fortified in the "gunning" department. He expects to secure a box artist from the Springfield (Connecticut) Club, and also has lines on a pitcher from Brown University, so that he is not worrying very much about Green.

The Torontos Offer Three Twirlers To Senators

OTTAWA, APRIL 24.—President McCaffery of the Toronto Baseball Club to-day offered to the Ottawa Club of the Canadian League three pitchers, namely, Jim McGinley, a veteran, who has been on the Toronto staff for many years, and who was one of their mainstays when they won the championship five seasons since; Carther, a youngster of exceptional promise, and Corey.

The Torontos wished to sell McGinley outright, but wished to retain strings on the other men. Several of the other clubs in the Canadian League have also been negotiating for these twirlers, but McCaffery gave Ottawa first call. The Ottawas wired back asking terms on Cather, but passed up the other two. The locals already have six good pitchers.

President Sam. Lichtenhein of the Montreal Club offered the Ottawas Pressey, Leclair and several others, but his offer was also declined with thanks.

Real Phenom Trying To Land A Berlin Berth

Berlin Telegraph:

Well, say, here's a ball player, a "phenom" from Phenomville. He wants to play with the Green Sox, and maybe he will and again maybe he will not.

This player is Joe "Rope" Sweeney of Detour, Michigan. He modestly flashed the glad tidings about himself to Manager Deneau through the writer, and the Green Sox manager immediately set the wires to Michigan afire in his haste to corral the rival of Home Run Baker and Larry Lajoie before any major league team grabs him.

Is he as good a batter as Cobb? He's better. Can he sprint the bases? Such silly questions! Why, would you suspect it? He can run faster than Bobby Kerr. Just imagine. Sweeney pummeled the pellet last season for .454. Yessir, and what's more, he made 16 home runs, 20 three-baggers and 18 doubles. Singles? He made so many that he does not think it necessary to even mention them.

He played in the Detour County League and the only reason that he didn't crowd Joe Delehanty out of his job on second with the Tigers was because on the day that Joe Sugden, scout of the Tiger tribe, was in Detour, Rope was sick in bed, and Sudden missed him. When Manager Deneau sees Rope in a Green Sox uniform breaking down the stockades around the new Athletic Field, his heart will ache.

As a sprinter, Sweeney resides in the last house on Speed street. Prepare yourself for a shock, and then listen to what he did at the Holy Rollers' church picnic in Detour last summer. Rope was in the 100-yard dash, and was away with the gun like a fish. He sped the "century" in 9 seconds flat! Think of that. This achievement is notable principally because of the fact that it clips 3-5 of a second fro the world's record held by Arthur Duffy and Dan Kelly.

For the benefit of the fickle-minded public, who might take the veracity of this story as the creation of a fertile imagination, the letter, just as Rope wrote, spelling and all, is appended. Get it:

Manager Rube Deneau,
Berlin Baseball Club.

Dear Sir,—I have always read of your being manager of the Green Sox of Berlin, who liked to see a beginner have confidence. Now, I am no beginner. I am 26 years old, and have been playing ball for about 5 years in an organized league. I played in the Detour County League last year and batted .454. Now Ty Cobb hit .421, I know that, but say, Bo, .454 is one better that .421, aint it. I played second base. I am 25 years old. I am 5 feet 10 inches tall and weigh 160 pounds. Last year in 34 games I made 16 homers, 20 3-baggers and 18 2-baggers. But d—d it, I lived up to my usual hard luck. The Detroit scout came to our town to look over the players in the league and I just happened that I was sick and didn't play the day he saw our team play.

Now I am a real fast guy on the bases (stole an average of 2 bases a game last season). In the winter I work on my paw's farm out this way and always am in the pink of condition.

At the Holy Rollers church picnic last summer I ran the 100 yards in 9 seconds. I am also an all-round athlete, and University of Michigan offered me a course in their schole. Now I am certain that I can make good on your ball team. Just take me to Windsor and I will make good. You can tell Templin that I will play short or third base if he likes, because it wouldn't do to buck the cap for the job.

Yours hopefully,
Joe "Rope" Sweeney.

Gorging Is Suicide

In these words a prominent graduate of Harvard Medical School, E. R. Morns, M.D., calls attention to the habit of "overeating," which is resulting in the shortening of so many useful lives.

Every day you read of deaths of persons in middle life caused by acute indigestion, peritonitis, appendicitis or Bright's disease. All of which result from overcrowding the digestive organs.

The liver gets sluggish, the bowels become constipated, and the whole system is poisoned by the fermenting waste matter.

You can overcome this poisoned condition by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Then turn over a new leaf and eat less, particularly of meats, pastry and highly-seasoned foods. One kidney-liver pill occasionally at bedtime will keep the liver and bowels active and insure the healthful working of the organs of digestion.

"Excuse Me" For Laughing!

"Excuse Me" will unload its Pullman cars of laughter at the "Grand" next Tuesday, April 30. This Rupert Hughes farce that Henry W. Savage is sending here is an entertainment that a large number of theatregoers have been looking forward to, and it is one that will please everybody of whatsoever taste. The play is tremendously bright and clever and it has novel idea. The scene of its narrative is a railroad train and the story is developed on a journey across the continent with Pullman car passengers and train crew as the characters. This farce has been an extraordinary New York success, and the favour it has won on Broadway was repeated in Chicago. The acting company is especially strong, both in the point of numbers and ability. The cast is a big one for farce, and the range of characters, all of the types being striking personalities, calls for especially clever work on the part of the company.

Investigation Proceedings Removed To Washington

Captain Moore, of the "Mount Temple," Will be Called Upon to Testify—Work of Examining the Sailors Continues —Marconi Put Through a Rigid Examination.

Washington, April 26.—To learn why a speedy steamer did not offer aid to the sinking Titanic and to fix the exact hour at which the last flare was warned that she was in the vicinity of dangerous ice, Senator W. A. Smith, chairman of the Senate committee investigating the disaster, yesterday summoned three important witnesses. These are J. H. Moore, captain of the steamer Mount Temple, which passed within a short distance of the Titanic when she was in extremity, and the captain and wireless operator of the Mesa Caillaghan, which sent the warning. All will be put on the stand to-day.

Summonses were issued for the operator and captain of the Californian, while announcement that Captain Moore would appear was contained in a telegram from Acting Premier Pelley of Canada.

Captain Moore's story, will probably [illegible] first [illegible] to-day.

It was decided of examining the members of the crew of the Titanic [illegible] to insure greater despatch. The men are anxious to return to their homes in England.

Archibald, a coal member of the committee, yesterday undertook the examination of a group with the intention of extracting such as had nothing important to tell. The others will be placed on the stand. The names of those to be called were not made public.

Virtually the entire day was given over to questioning G. Marconi, inventor of the wireless telegraph and head of the company bearing his name. Both the Titanic and the Carpathia were equipped with the Marconi apparatus. Harold T. Cottam, the wireless operator on the Carpathia, also was re-examined.

Senator Smith asked Mr. Marconi: "I desire to ask whether an officer, director or employe of the International Mercantile Marine, after the collision warned you to enjoin silence on Titanic operator Bride, or Carpathia operator Cottam, as to the time or manner in which the accident occurred?"

"No request was made and no order was issued to stop any messages. No such instructions of any sort or manner ever were issued."

The witness was excused.

Senator Smith made the following announcement: "I desire to say that some rumors have reached the committee that there is friction and lack of harmony among the members of the sub-committee, and I have the concurrence of my assistants that that statement is absolutely untrue.

"Personally, I have never heard of the slightest friction. We are all proceeding on our own way to get at results. I wish to say further that we have determined to hear the members of the crew of the Titanic. It has been thought necessary because of the large number of these men to proceed with the hearing without the attendance of the public, each member of the committee examining his quota of them now. This is done to expedite the hearing."

The committee adjourned until to-day and the Senator took the sailors into conference.

It was the purpose to talk to each man, each Senator taking as many as he could.

"We will endeavor to find out everything that each sailor knows about the wreck instead of putting each man on the stand to go over the whole ground," said Senator Newlands. "If we find any man who have [illegible] importance, they will be brought before the committee for detailed examination."

P. A. S. Franklin, the president of the White Star Line, and J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the International Mercantile Marine, were pleased over this move.

Badly Hurt in Quarrel.

Brantford, April 26.—Harry Jones, an employe of the Massey-Harris Co., was rushed to the hospital at noon hour yesterday, having been struck on the head by a fellow-employe following a wrangle over a truck Jones left on the floor. Jones is alleged to have first threatened his assailant with a peakyoke. He was unconscious and his condition was regarded as critical, but it is stated to-day that he will recover.

Died of Injuries.

Toronto, April 26.—James Pearson of 69 Gordon avenue, who fell from a scaffold on a Tyndall avenue building on April 20, died in St. Michael's Hospital yesterday, as a result of internal injuries received. The remains were removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held. He was 56 years of age, and is survived by a widow.

Argue on Fraud Charge.

Chicago, Ill., April 26.—Hartley Dewart, K.C., and Supt. Rogers, of the Ontario Provincial police, arrived here yesterday from Toronto, in connection with the extradition of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, whose case comes up to-day. The argument will be upon the charge of fraud.

Brakeman Injured.

Toronto, April 26.—George Frankling of 28 Brad street, was caught between two C.P.R. freight cars while coupling them yesterday morning and was badly crushed. He was taken to the Western Hospital, and will recover.

London's Big Titanic Fund.

London, April 26.—The Mansion House Titanic fund exceeds $600,000, and over $1,550, including all coins, even farthings, was deposited in the box outside the Mansion House on Wednesday. Offers to adopt orphans are continually pouring in. Hon. Clifford Sifton subscribed $500 to the fund.

Did Kaiser Say This?

Berlin, April 26.—According to a report current in court circles, Emperor William made the following comment on the Titanic disaster at a military luncheon of officers, at which he was present: "This is another monumental example of British incompetency."

Optical Institute Talk No. 7

EVERY TIME you wipe a pained or blurred lens you run the risk of wiping off the wafer or thin part of the glass.

EVERY TIME you wipe the solid invisible bifocal lens you make it brighter and better. You cannot wipe off the wafer because there is no wafer to wipe off.

EVERY TIME you see a person wearing a pretend or bifocal lens the lens say over forty if a day. The absence of lines in the invisible bifocal makes you think the wearer is under forty.

EVERY TIME someone looks at you they will think the same of you.

We are supplying many of these beautiful invisible bifocal glasses, and are pleased to demonstrate them to any who are interested.

THE STATE SHOULD ACT

Feeble-minded Increasing in Ontario, Says Dr. MacMurchy

SHOULD KEEP REGISTER

Toronto, April 26.—That the children of feeble-minded parents are themselves feeble-minded, and that these unfortunates are increasing with alarming rapidity is stated in Dr. Helen MacMurchy's report to the Provincial Secretary's Department on "Feeble-minded in Ontario."

Dr. MacMurchy recommends that a register of feeble-minded persons, especially feeble-minded children, should be prepared forthwith; that legislation should be passed enabling the province to protect, once for and society, the feeble-minded.

"Segregation only," says Dr. MacMurchy, "is the only way to deal with the feeble-minded. Taken connection with industrial and agricultural training and employment are most successful. The cost of these should be partly borne by the municipalities.

"It is necessary to refuse entrance to undesirable immigrants," says the report, "but it is, if possible, more necessary not to return to the feeble-minded that protection and care which alone can prevent them from wrecking their own lives and bringing into the world native-born Canadian citizens more feeble-minded and unfit in body and mind than they are themselves.

"Persons who are feeble-minded should be under the control of the state, the most should be made of their working powers to maintain them in comfort, and the balance, if any, in default of their relatives being unable to pay it, should be borne partly by the municipality where they and their families have resided and partly by the state.

"It is now universally agreed that the place to attack this problem is in childhood and school life. As soon as the child comes to school his mental capacity reveals itself."

Reorganizing Queen's.

Kingston, April 26.—The provincial board of Queen's Theological College met yesterday with Principal Gordon in the chair. Committees were struck and there was considerable routine work necessitated by the separation from the college. A committee was appointed, with Rev. Dr. McGillivray as convener, with power to nominate a principal for the theological college. Dr. McGillivray was also appointed commissioner to the general assembly, to outline plans and to get the sanction of that body for the proposed measures.

At the meeting of the Queen's board of trustees, twelve new members of the board were elected as follows: Rev. Dr. Herridge, Ottawa; Lt.-Col. Logie, Hamilton; Rev. Dr. Clark, Montreal; D. B. Macdonnell, K.C., Cornwall; Hon. Justice MacLennan, Toronto; Edward Brown, Winnipeg; Judge MacTavish, Ottawa; J. K. Macdonald, Toronto; Rev. Dr. McGillivray, Kingston; Dr. A. T. Drummond, Toronto.

Taft Goes After Teddy.

Springfield, Mass., April 26.—President Taft made his answer here yesterday to the criticisms that Col. Theodore Roosevelt has made of him and his administration.

In a speech that pulsated with indignation, in which he wanted Roosevelt once and over again, Taft told a crowd that filled Springfield's public square how he believed Roosevelt had used them when a "square deal," and how he had "misstated" and "distorted" the facts concerning Taft's conduct and actions in the White House.

Wishes to Avert Race War.

Memphis, La., April 26.—A dispatch of the Louisiana National Guard left here yesterday morning for Delhi, 30 miles east, where serious trouble between whites and negroes developed Wednesday night.

One negro was lynched and further disorder is anticipated.

REPLIED PROMPTLY

"Mount Temple" Went at Once to the Scene of the Disaster

OPERATOR TELLS STORY

St. John, N.B., April 26.—J. Durrant, Marconi wireless operator on the steamer Mount Temple, now lying at Sand Point, tells a story of wireless calls he picked up from the sinking Titanic.

Mr. Durrant said: "I was lying in bed reading with the telephone over my ears at 10.55, ship's time, or 12.11, New York time, when I caught the first call. Immediately getting up at bed, I answered, asking the position of the ship. This was sent back with the addition: 'Come at once. Have struck berg.'

"As soon as I got the message, I notified the captain, who at once doubled the watch of firemen below, called all hands on deck, and changed the ship's course towards the position of the Titanic.

"At 12.25 I heard the Carpathia answer the 'C. D. Q.' calls of the Titanic and heard the operator on that ship give his position, adding: 'Have struck iceberg; come to our assistance at once.' At 12.26 I heard the Frankfort answer the appeals of the Titanic. That ship asked: 'What is the matter with you?' The answer was: 'We have struck an iceberg; please tell the captain to come.' To this the operator on the Frankfort replied: 'O.K., will tell the bridge right away.' The answer to this was: 'Yes, quick.'

"All this time the 'C. Q. D.' message was being sent out incessantly from the sinking liner, and at 1.45 I heard the Olympic answer the call. To this the Titanic said: 'Captain says get your boats ready. Going down fast by the head.' Five minutes later the Frankfort struck in with: 'Our captain will go to you.'

"At 1.51 the Olympic sent another message which the Titanic answered, saying: 'We are putting the women off in the boats.' Another five minutes of anxious waiting passed, when the operator 'C. Q. D.' again cut the air, accompanied by the words: 'Engine room flooded.' One of the duplicates the Olympic operator asked: 'How is the sea round you?' to which the reply was: 'The sea is calm.' Another four minutes passed when the operator on the Frankfort asked the Titanic: 'Are there any boats around you already?' To this there was no reply, and two minutes afterwards the Olympic sent a message to the Titanic which the latter barely acknowledged by the code letter R.D. That was the last message I heard and I presume the flooding of the engine room had put the wireless out of commission.

"Meantime everything that was possible was done on the Mount Temple. All hands were on deck, the lights were thrown out on the ocean and every [illegible] was ready to lower at a moment's notice. It was not until 4.30 that we arrived at the position of the Titanic, having been much delayed by the thick fog. At the time we saw no sign of the ill-fated ship, nor any wreckage.

"At 8.11 I had a call from the Californian and said that boat of the disaster and gave the position in which it occurred. Shortly after the Frankfort also called me.

"About forty minutes later, we saw the Carpathia and Californian, with the Russian steamer Birma. There was also a tramp steamer sighted about, apparently going in the same direction as ourselves, but as she had no wireless installation and never approached very near, we could not find out what she was.

"As soon as I saw the Carpathia, I asked for news of the Titanic, and if she had seen anything, but got no reply. Other ships asked the same question, but she kept silent to all. It was not until 8.30 that the Carpathia gave any answer, and then she said: 'Have picked up thirty boats. There was not a word as to the number of survivors.

"At the time I received the first message I would judge the Mount Temple to be fifty miles from the Titanic's position, and when the big ship went down, there was still 20 or 30 miles between us."

Also Guilty Remanded.

Toronto, April 26.—Charged with the murder of Rebecca Cooper on Agnes street, a few weeks ago, Abe Cohen appeared in the police court yesterday. Magistrate Denison remanded him for a week. Cohen was arrested on a charge of vagrancy, but was changed to one of murder following the verdict of the jury at the inquest, which inculminated Cohen.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA

Price, large bottle, 100 full dose size and well worth it too. It's better to take home remedies at will than to depend upon those concoctions that you cannot pronounce. It's at the price and a fair trial. I tell Nugent's there is a local demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year.

There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to the trade to-day, some even at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla will at 100.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and takes [illegible] thereby [illegible] that comes from that sluggish liver of yours. It advances energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives freshness to the complexion.

Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's remedies.

COULD NOT RAISE MY RIGHT ARM

Otto Bannenmeier, C. R.

"For the past 25 years, I have been suffering with Rheumatism. When I read in the papers that GIN PILLS would positively cure rheumatism, I wrote you for a free sample to try. I could not raise my right arm because of the awful pain in my shoulder—was not able to drink. After taking a few GIN PILLS, I was able to lift my hands and put it on the top of my head.

I went to the Islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon and met an old fisherman named La Page. His limbs were stiff from Rheumatism and I gave him some Gin Pills. I met him again in a few days and he told me he could lift his arms, which he had not been able to do for ten years. ADOLPHE B. MARR.

Keith arose reluctantly and removed the saddles from the animals, hobbling them so they could graze at will. Neb was propped up beneath an out-cropping of the bank, which partly protected him from the wind, a mere bulk of a shadow. Keith could not tell whether he slept or not, but made no effort to disturb him. A moment he stared vacantly about into the black silence, and then lay down, pillowing his head upon a saddle. He found it impossible to sleep, the chill of the wind causing him to turn and twist in vain search after comfort, while unappeased hunger gnawed incessantly. His eyes ranged about over the dull gloom of the skies until they fell again to the earth level and then he suddenly sat up, half believing himself in a dream—down the stream, how far away he could not judge, there gleamed a steady, yellowish light. It was no flicker of a camp fire, yet remained stationary. Surely no star could be so low and large; nor did he recall any with that peculiarity of colour. If such a miracle was possible in the heart of that sandy desert he would have sworn it was a lamp shining through a window. But he had never heard of any settler on the Salt Fork, and almost laughed at the thought, believing for the instant his brain played him some elfish trick. Yet that light was no illusion; he rubbed his eyes, only to see it more clearly, convinced now of its reality. He strode hastily across, and shook Neb into semi-consciousness, dragging him bodily up the bank and pointing down stream.

"Do you see that?" he inquired anxiously. "There, straight ahead of you?"

The negro stared, shaking with cold and scarcely able to stand.

"Maybe it am de moon, Massa Jack," he muttered thickly, "or a goblin's lantern. Lawd, I don't jest like de looks ob dat ting."

"Well, I do," and Keith laughed uneasily at the negro's fears. "All I wanted to know was if you saw what I saw. That's a lamp shining through a window, Neb. What in heaven's name it can be doing here I am unable to guess, but I'm going to find out. It means shelter and food, boy, even if we have to fight for it. Come on, the horses are safe, and we'll discover what is behind that light yonder."

CHAPTER VIII.
THE WILDERNESS CABIN.

The light was considerably farther away than they had at first supposed, and as they advanced steadily toward it, the nature of the ground rapidly changed, becoming irregular, and littered with low growing shrubs. In the darkness they stumbled over out-croppings of rock, and after a fall or two, were compelled to move forward with extreme caution. But the mysterious yellow glow continually beckoned, and with new hope animating the hearts of both men, they staggered on, nerving themselves to the effort, and following closely along the bank of the stream.

At last they arrived where they could perceive dimly something of the nature of this unexpected desert oasis.

The light shone forth, piercing the night, through the uncurtained window of a log cabin, which would otherwise have been completely concealed from view by a group of low growing cottonwoods. This was all the black, enshrouding night revealed, and even this was merely made apparent by the yellow illumination of the window. The cabin stood upon an island, a strip of sand, partially covered by water, separating it from the north shore on which they stood. There was no sign of life about the hut, other than the burning lamp but that alone was sufficient evidence of occupancy. In spite of hunger, and urgent need, Keith hesitated, uncertain as to what they might be called upon to face. Who could be living in this out-of-the-way spot, in the heart of this inhospitable desert. It would be no cattle outpost surely, for there was no surrounding grazing land, while surely no professional hunter would choose such a barren spot for headquarters. Either a hermit, anxious to escape all intercourse with humanity, or some outlaw hiding from arrest, would be likely to select so isolated a place in which to live. To them it would be ideal. Away from all trails, where not even widely roving cattlemen would penetrate, in midst of a desert avoided by Indians because of lack of game—a man might hide here year after year without danger of discovery. Yet such a one would not be likely to welcome their coming, and they were without arms. But Keith was not a man to hesitate long because of possible danger, and he stepped down into the shallow water.

"Come on, Neb," he commanded, "and we'll find out who lives here."

The window faced the west, and he came up the low bank to where the door fronted the north in intense darkness. Under the shadow of the cottonwoods he could see nothing, groping his way, with hands extended. His foot struck a flat stone, and he plunged forward, striking the unlatched door so heavily as to swing it open, and fall partially forward into the room. As he struggled to his knees, Neb's black face peering past him into the lighted interior, he seemed to perceive in one swift, comprehensive glance, every revealed detail. A lamp burned on a rudely constructed set of drawers near the window, and a wood fire blazed redly in a stone fireplace opposite, the yellow and red lights blending in a peculiar glow of colour. Under this radiance were revealed the rough log walls, plastered with yellow clay, and hung about with the skins of wild animals, a roughly made table, bare except for a book lying upon it, and a few ordinary appearing boxes, evidently utilized as seats, together with a barrel cut so as to make a comfortable chair. In the back wall was a door, partially open, apparently leading into a second room. That was all, except the woman.

Keith must have perceived all these in that first hurried glance, for they were ever closely associated together in his mind, yet at the moment he possessed no clear thought of anything except her. She stood directly behind the table, where she must have sprung hastily at the first sound of their approach, clutching at the rude mantel above the fireplace, and staring toward him, her face white, her breath coming in sobs. At first he thought the vision a dream, a delirium born from his long struggle; he could not conceive the possibility of such a presence in this lonely place, and staggering to his feet, gazed wildly, dumbly at the slender, grey clad figure, the almost girlish face under the shadowing dark hair, expecting the marvelous vision to vanish. Surely this could not be real! A woman, and such a woman as this here, and alone, of all places! He staggered from weakness, almost terror, and grasped the table to hold himself erect. The rising wind came swirling in through the open door, causing the fire to send forth spirals of smoke, and he turned, dragging the dazed negro within, and snapping the latch behind him. When he glanced around again he fully believed the vision confronting him would have vanished. But no! there she yet remained, those wide-open, frightened brown eyes, with long lashes half hiding their depths, looking directly into his own; only now she had slightly changed her posture, leaning toward him across the table. Like a flash he comprehended that this was reality—flesh and blood—and, with the swift instinct of a gentleman, his numbed nerveless fingers jerked off his hat, and he bowed bare-headed before her.

"Pardon me," he said, finding his voice with difficulty. "I fell over the step, but—but I didn't expect to find a woman here."

He heard her quick breathing, marked a slight change in the expression of the dark eyes, and caught the glitter of the firelight on a revolver in her lowered hand.

"What did you expect to find?"

"I hardly knew," he explained lamely; "we stumbled on this hut by accident. I didn't know there was a cabin in all this valley."

"Then you are not here for any purpose—to meet with any one"

"No; we are lost, and had gone into camp up above, when we discovered your light."

"Where do you come from?"

Keith hesitated just an instant, yet falsehood was never easy for him, and he saw no occasion for any deceit now.

"Carson City."

"What brought you here?"

"We started for the 'Bar X' Ranch down below, on the Canadian; got caught in a sandstorm, and then just drifted. I do not know within twenty miles of where we are."

She drew a deep breath of unconcealed relief.

"Are you alone?"

"The negro and I—yes; and you haven't the slightest reason to be afraid of us—we're square."

She looked at him searchingly, and something in Keith's clean-cut face seemed to bring reassurance, confidence in the man.

"I am not afraid," she answered, coming toward him around the table. "Only it is so lonely here, and you startled me, bursting in without warning. But you look all right, and I am going to believe your story. What is your name?"

"Keith—Jack Keith."

"A cowman?"

"A little of everything, I reckon," a touch of returning bitterness in the tone. "A plainsman, who has punched cattle, but my last job was government scout."

"You look as though you might be more than that," she said slowly.

The man flushed, his lips pressing tightly together.

"Well, I—I may have been," he confessed unwillingly. "I started out all right, but somehow I reckon I just went adrift. It's a habit in this country."

Apparently those first words of comment had left her lips unthinkingly, for she made no attempt to reply; merely stood there directly facing him, her clear eyes gazing frankly into his own. He seemed to actually see her now for the first time, fairly—a supple, slender figure, simply dressed, with wonderfully expressive brown eyes, a perfect wealth of dark hair, a clear complexion with slight olive tinge to it, a strong, intelligent face, not strictly beautiful, yet strangely attractive, the forehead low and broad, the nose straight, the lips full and inclined to smile. Suddenly a vague remembrance brought recognition.

"Why, I know you now."

"Indeed!" the single word a note of undisguised surprise.

"Yes, I thought you looked oddly familiar all the time, but couldn't for the life of me connect up. You're Christie Maclaire."

"Am I?" her eyes filled with curiosity.

"Of course you are. You needn't be afraid of me if you want it kept secret, but I know you just the same. Saw you at the 'Gaiety' in Independence, maybe two months ago. I went three times, mostly on your account. You've got a great act, and you can sing, too."

She stood in silence, still looking fixedly at him, her bosom rising and falling, her lips parted as if to speak. Apparently she did not know what to do, how to act, and was thinking swiftly.

"Mr. Keith," she said, at last in decision, "I am going to ask you to blot that all out—to forget that you even suspect me of being Christie Maclaire, of the Gaiety."

"Why, certainly; but would you explain?"

"There is little enough to explain. It is sufficient that I am here alone with you. Whether I wish to or not, I am compelled to trust myself to your protection. You may call me Christie Maclaire, or anything else you please; you may even think me unworthy respect, but you possess the face of a gentleman, and as such I am going to trust you—I must trust you. Will you accept my confidence on these terms?"

Keith did not smile, nor move. Weak from hunger and fatigue, he leaned wearily against the wall. Nevertheless, that simple, womanly appeal awoke all that was strong and sacrificing within him, although her words were so unexpected that, for the moment, he failed to realize their full purport. Finally he straightened up.

"I—I accept any terms you desire," he gasped weakly, "if—if you will only give one return."

"One return?—what?"

"Food; we have eaten nothing for sixty hours."

Her face, which had been so white, flushed to the hair, her dark eyes softening.

"Why, of course; sit down. I ought to have known from your face. There is plenty here—such as it is—only you must wait a moment."

CHAPTER IX.
THE GIRL OF THE CABIN.

He saw Neb drop down before the blazing fireplace, and curl up like a tired dog, and observed her take the lamp, open the door into the other room a trifle and slip silently out of sight. He remembered staring vaguely about the little room, still illumined by the flames, only half comprehending, and then the reaction from his desperate struggle with the elements overcame all resolution, and he dropped his head forward on the table, and lost consciousness. Her hand upon his shoulder aroused him, startled into wakefulness, yet he scarcely realized the situation.

"I have placed food for the negro beside him," she quietly, and for the first time Keith detected the soft blurr in her speech.

Science Reverses Accepted Theories on Heredity

Biology Has Demonstrated That Tuberculosis, Gout, Rheumatism, the Liquor and the Drug Habit Is Handed Down Parent to Child

BY JAMES J. WALSH, M. D., Ph. D., LL. D.

[illegible] to the New York Sunday [illegible]

[illegible] popular theories among the [illegible] to lay many of the known [illegible] to be attributed to this power [illegible] heredity. Rheumatism [illegible] heredity transmitted [illegible] and children are always to be found and are sometimes very striking. It was assumed that all the qualities, good and ill, of the parents were likely to be transmitted to their children. As is the way of human nature, the principle of heredity was considered to apply particularly to the bad rather than to the good qualities. All the diseases with which parents were afflicted were not only thought to be transmissible, but were considered almost inevitably to be transmitted to the children. It is now found that most of them are not justified by the advance of modern biology and that the range of heredity is comparatively limited.

Tuberculosis, for instance, used to be set down very definitely as hereditary, and its occurrence in families was thought to be convincing proof of this. Rheumatism and gout, stomach trouble, heart trouble and nervousness of all kinds were all considered to be transmitted by inheritance. Tuberculosis is declared by those who know most about the disease at the present time to kill only the quitters—that is, those who give up the struggle for existence. Patients who fight bravely against it survive for years and often accomplish a magnificent life work. The idea that it was inherited and therefore apparently inevitable and more or less inevitably progressive took the heart out of many a young person in the older order of ideas, and often led to an early death which might have been put off for many years had the patients had strength of mind enough. Now we know definitely that tuberculosis is not inherited, and those who know most about it consider its occurrence in the previous generation in the family history of the patient as rather a good thing to know. There is likely to be more resistive vitality in such a case than if the disease is developing in that particular family strain for the first time.

That declaration seems such an open contradiction of previously accepted notions supposed to be scientific as almost to make those who have not been familiar with recent biological advances in the subject of the heredity of disease gasp. At least half a dozen of the men whose long experience and successful practice with the disease have rightly gained them prestige are on record with the declaration that inheritance as regards tuberculosis is probably protective to a noteworthy extent, rather than productive of a predisposition to the disease or a tendency to have it run a severe course.

Disease Acquired.

What is true for tuberculosis holds so far as our present knowledge goes also for other diseases. There is at the present time a very different and quite contradictory state of mind to that which obtained when physicians listened complacently if not perhaps more or less agreed with such expressions as "My mother suffered from heart trouble, so that I suppose I must expect to suffer from it also, or, at least, not be surprised if heart trouble develops." "My father suffered from indigestion all his life, and I suppose that I must grin and bear it." "Rheumatism runs in our family, and I suppose that I cannot be exempt." What was thus said of disease was even applied to habits. There seemed to be some justification for a young man who began to drink to excuse if it could be said, "Well, his father drank heavily before him." Other habits and even vices were spoken of in very nearly the same way.

Now we know that no disease is inherited. Diseases are acquired, not inherited. Many of them are contagious and therefore spread among the members of families and seem to be hereditary. Some of them are due to the environment of succeeding generations being the same and producing the same pathological effect from father to son and mother to daughter. It is about as nonsensical to talk of stomach trouble or indigestion or dyspepsia being a matter of family inheritance as it would be to say that a man who happened to lose a little finger before he was twenty would, if he married after that, have children looking that little finger. Whatever disturbances of stomach exist are acquired by neglect or overeating or very often by understeating, for nothing so disturbs a stomach as not to have enough to occupy itself with, and not from anything in the family strain.

Heart disease is acquired. Indeed, what is ordinarily called heart disease, the curling up of the valves as a consequence of rheumatism, resembles the production of gout there in any portion of the body.

That makes such remarks as are usually made with regard to inheritance still more absurd is the fact that many of the disease conditions that are said to be inherited developed in the parents after the children were born instead of before it. Somehow it was supposed, however, that they must have developed as a consequence of some family tendency and that that family tendency was transmitted.

We know now that no acquired characters are ever transmitted. Nothing that happens during the course of an individual life affects the next generation. There are some scientists who still hesitate a little as to this doctrine, but they are growing fewer and fewer, and all are agreed that if acquired characters are ever transmitted it is very rarely indeed. If such inheritance occurred there would be abundant evidence of it everywhere around us. They are so rare that they probably represent coincidences. Certainly we have no reason to think, after more than a quarter of a century of experimentation, that a disease or a deformity acquired by any one generation is ever transmitted to the next. This doctrine, which since Weismann's time has more and more come to have the force of scientific law, absolutely does away with most of the old notions of pathological heredity.

The question of the heredity of disease has strong light thrown on it by what we know of the spread of disease among nations. The longer a nation has been subjected to a particular disease the less severe are its ravages among that people. The diseases that we now call children's diseases, because they are only rarely seen in adults—chickenpox, mumps, measles, and even whooping cough—often make heavy inroads on savage peoples when they are first epidemic among them. Measles, the harbinger, when introduced among a tribe of American Indians or among South Sea Islanders attacks adults quite as frequently as children, and always with a high mortality. Smallpox under such conditions has been known to carry off almost the whole of a tribe of Indians. Tuberculosis, in spite of the fact that the Indians live an outdoor life, and therefore would seem to be favorably situated to resist the disease, is much more severe among them than among civilized whites. The longer a nation has been subjected to such a disease as tuberculosis the more immunity to the disease exists in them. That means that not only does the disease develop more rarely but when it does occur it runs a milder course and much better resistance is exhibited against it.

What is thus true of disease is true also of other pathological tendencies. As pointed out by Dr. Archdall Reid in his "Principles of Heredity," the nations that have been longest subjected to the temptations of strong drink best resist tendencies to over indulgence. The Southern nations of Europe have had the knowledge of how to distil wine and how to make strong spirituous liquor out of it for centuries. There is less drunkenness among them than among the Northern nations of Europe, to whom a knowledge of making spirituous liquors came much later. Among the savage nations—though probably no nation, however low in the scale of civilization, has ever been found that did not possess the knowledge of how to make an intoxicating drink—the use of strong liquor has only come with the spread of civilization in the last century or so. It is among them that intoxicants make the worst ravages.

Father and Son.

What happens is exactly the same thing that occurs with regard to disease. The savages are unaccustomed to resistance to strong drink just as they are unused to resisting the diseases of civilization, and "fire water" carries off its victims by the score among them. Certain individuals among them, though few in number, have the power of resisting its allurements. They survive and propagate the race while the others perish.

The usual popular idea is that alcoholism is intensely hereditary and that if a father has indulged in spirituous liquors to excess the son is almost sure to do so. Such indulgence indicates a lack of resistance, but the taking of spirituous liquors is much more due to environment than to any natural craving. Men get into habits in the matter, and then the craving develops. This is an acquired character.

The son may have the natural lessened resistance of his father, but if he is safeguarded while young and knows his own danger when older there is no good reason in his immediate heredity why he should not resist. Instead of his father's drunkenness predisposing him to yield in the same way, if anything, there is greater resistive vitality in the next generation. The mother counts for at least as much as the father, indeed, more in the make-up of a son, and the bogey of heredity need not disturb him. Unfortunately, the very fact that he is told over and over again of his father's drunkenness and his owe danger sometimes acts as a suggestion with regard to the taking of liquor. All of this is absolutely contrary to our modern biological knowledge of heredity, but the thought acts as an unfavorable suggestion.

What is true for alcoholism is true also for drug habits. Opium, for instance, introduced among the Chinese centuries ago, does not now produce very serious habitués, if they learn that father or appear. In this as with regard to alcoholism the feeling that is rife among drug habitués, if they learn that father or a child always would infect a healthy wet nurse.

According to Profeta's law, even though

In a word, there are no good grounds now left in medicine for asserting that any disease that we know is contagious. Leprosy used to be considered so until we found the germ of the disease and studied its contagion. Other rarer diseases were thought to be hereditary until we learned enough about them. Josh Billings once said:—"It isn't so much the ignorance of mankind that makes them ridiculous as the knowledge so many things that ain't so." We have known a fearful and wonderful lot of things about heredity that literally weren't so.

Mankind does not readily part with a persuasion that it has entertained for many generations, and when it does so it is likely to be not quite complete in its conversion to the newer ideas. As a consequence many physicians who have given up the idea of the heredity of disease insist at least that a predisposition to certain diseases is inherited, and that, for instance, a predisposition to tuberculosis runs in certain families. I should be quite as willing to admit that a predisposition to contagious blood disease ran in certain families as the predisposition to tuberculosis. Certain persons are predisposed to suffer from the invasion of the tubercle bacillus, but I think that as a rule that has very little to do with the family inheritance. Our modern life insurance companies have found that apparently the main factor in predisposing individuals to tuberculosis is being under weight. A man who is twenty per cent under weight is always in danger of developing tuberculosis, no matter whether any others of his family have ever had tuberculosis or not. A man who is well up to weight or above it and who has a bad family history in the matter of tuberculosis, but is not living with tuberculous relatives, is much less likely to develop tuberculosis than the thin individual whose family history is free from taint in this matter.

Concerning Tuberculosis.

It is all a question of contagion and the resistive vitality. Persons who work in dusty trades of any kind are likely to develop tuberculosis, no matter what their heredity in this matter. Laundresses, scrubbing and sweeping women, and men in the polishing trades contract the disease at least three times as frequently as persons of the same class of the community who have other occupations. Tuberculosis is not so contagious as to require extraordinary precautions. No nurse in a tuberculosis hospital has ever caught the disease. It only requires ordinary cleanliness, especially before eating, to avoid it. The disease is contagious, however, and the hereditary element in it, even the supposed hereditary predisposition, is probably entirely lacking.

Defects, of course, are inherited. It is well known that crossed eyes run in families, that specially formed noses, not always ornate, go from father to son; that all the family features are inherited. When Florence Marryat came to this country and a reporter of the New York

Even the smallest kinds of deformity may be inherited. White patches of hair, single locks, consisting of one hundred or so of hairs out of the many thousands on the head, may be white in generation after generation. Moles and birthmarks of various kinds, situated in particular places, may recur down the family. Personally I know of three families in which merely transmitted by contagion from the parents. Delay in the manifestation of the symptoms of a disease, however, is usually three out of four, illness having not an unfamiliar phenomenon in certain chronic conditions. Typhoid affections of bone, osteomyelitis and the like have been known to occur from seven to twenty years after the patient had the typhoid fever. The typhoid germ has been demonstrated in pure culture in such abscesses, though it had probably been lying dormant in the tissues for all these years until an injury of some kind, or a running down in general health, either provoked it to activity or permitted it to overcome the resistive vitalities of the tissue in its neighborhood.

[illegible] should not [illegible] the boy until [illegible] illustrated [illegible] his [illegible] and said:—"No, you don't have [illegible] I know that grandpa did [illegible] over again." Sometimes a [illegible] seem whose ancestors [illegible] dance with wrinkle of [illegible]

Such family features are a constant subject of inheritance. The mystery is how they get into the family strain. Where did such features come from originally? That is probably what is not known as yet. It is extremely difficult to trace the beginnings of them. We can trace the Hapsburg lip for eleven centuries. When we find the first Hapsburg we note that according to tradition he had this feature. Did his father have it before him, or had it been a family trait for many generations? We do not know. We get back to the end of our traditions, but this by no means necessarily implies that we get to the beginnings of the family feature.

Unfortunately, some of the defects that may be inherited and that constantly run in family strains are very serious in their consequences. Insanity, of course, is largely influenced by heredity. For certain forms of suspected insanity nothing is a stronger confirmation of suspicions in the physician's mind than a history of previous cases of insanity in the family. Insanity is due to brain defects. These run in families just as much as mental defects, or ear defects or mouth defects. We all know how closely children often resemble their parents in these regards and sometimes even to the minutest details. Different colored eyes, for instance, run in families. Unequal pupils run in families. Color of hair runs in families. It is not surprising, then, that the gray matter of the brain should have peculiarities that run in families. The form, the size, the constitution of the brain is a family matter. Hence, family dispositions are often characteristic, tendencies to irascibility and other forms of lack of self-control run in families. "Anger is a short madness," is an old familiar aphorism.

Epilepsy is another form of mental or nervous disease that has a strong hereditary element in it. It may develop in a second family strain as the result of difficult labor or a serious disease in the early months of life, accompanied by convulsions, or as a consequence of an injury to the brain, or following certain severe infectious diseases. In most cases, however, it develops in members of families that are predisposed to nervous and mental disturbance by heredity. Nervous persons of many varieties may be found in previous generations of the family and some of them may have been insane. There is a defective brain to begin with, and then certain injuries or diseases that ordinarily would produce serious effects, but not lasting consequences, bring about the occurrence of the explosions of nervous energy that we call epileptic attacks.

Disease vs. Defects.

There are other defects, often, seemingly, of a trivial character, that pass by inheritance. It has often been noted that father and son are likely to walk alike. All human beings have peculiarities of gait by which those who know them are able to recognize the sound of their step or even to tell who they are when seen from behind even at a considerable distance. Family gaits in the same sex are often remarkably alike. Differences in gait are due to certain differences in the length of the lower limb and of the condition of the ankle joints, and the anatomy of the feet. While human legs are supposed to be perfect, equal in length, there is a normal average difference between them of half an inch, and individuals with three-quarters of an inch of difference or even more do not seem deformed. Such peculiarities are passed from generation to generation, for instance the length of the nose or the width of the mouth does.

There are a great many defects that are spoken of as diseases. Huntington's chorea, for instance, a so-called disease of the nervous system that runs in certain families, so-called because it was first observed at Huntington, L. I., is not a true disease, but is due to a defect of the nervous system. Such defects may of course run in families, and indeed are known to. On the other hand, there are many diseases that affect the nervous system that are acquired. Tabies, or locomotor ataxia, and paresis are examples. These are not hereditary. None of the ordinary diseases are transmitted by inheritance. Rheumatism used to be put in this category, but a physician would about as soon talk of the inheritance of pneumonia now as the inheritance of rheumatism. They are both acute infectious diseases. Even gout, which used to be considered so surely hereditary, has lost its distinction in that matter to a great extent in recent years. Two out of [illegible] of people particularly develop gout—that is, true gout. They are workers in lead and people who drink heavy malt liquors in considerable quantity. Certain forms of arthritis that used to be thought gouty but that are now known to be dependent on states of the nervous system still run in families, but, as a distinguished authority said not long since, gout is probably caused by the individual and not inherited. The same thing is true for all diseases.

The Use of Hoar Frost in Surgery.

Every boy brought up in the country and it is to be hoped most of the boys who unfortunately have had to be brought up in the city have learned by precious experience how actively destructive of superficial tissue hoar frost may be. Down on the farm in the morning when the temperature was something below zero, but the sun had just made its appearance, there was likely to be a glistening coating of rime or hoar frost on the iron handle of the pump or on the smooth surfaces of an iron railing somewhere. The country youth who had not yet bought his experience dearly enough to know would be told by some one that such hoar frost had a very special taste of its own, very much like one of the highly flavored teas. He was usually assured very seriously that the taste of it was something never to be forgotten. If he was tempted actually to put his tongue down and taste it there was no doubt that he never forgot it. It would take a layer of mucous membrane off his tongue that would make it sore for days, and would generally have a very definite cauterizing effect. As a matter of fact, metal exposed to the air in very cold weather will even produce cauterizing effects on the skin as well as on the more delicate mucous membranes. In a recent railroad accident, when the temperature was twenty degrees below zero, most of the passengers were not injured, but in alighting from their overturned Pullman those who touched the iron hand rail with bare hands had the skin of their palms seared almost as if by a hot iron.

This principle that intense cold has destroy tissue almost as does [illegible] through [illegible] effect of the [illegible] used with decided advantage in medicine and surgery. The mode of application is by means of a frozen pencil of carbon dioxide. This heavy gas is compressed in a cylinder supplied for the purpose in which pressure is produced by means of a pinion worked by the ordinary street electric current. The pencil of carbon dioxide snow which is obtained from the end of the cylinder is extremely cold. Wherever it touches the skin it burns slightly, but without producing pain, for it actually deadens the nerves with which it comes in contact. It can be used then for cauterizing purposes. Warts are removed with excellent success and with very slight scars. Moles of various kinds, and especially those that are slightly raised above the surface, may be removed in the same way. Superficial mother marks, that is, nevuses in which there are enlarged blood vessels making red or dusky purple marks, can be eradicated better than has ever been accomplished before, with comparatively little discomfort and with very slight disfigurement. The best of the use of this means is that the operation need not be completed at one sitting, but successive portions of a disfiguring condition may be cauterized from week to week and the results carefully watched.

It has been found that in far more serious conditions, even for superficial cancer, there is probably no better or more easily applied remedy than this carbon dioxide snow, as it is called. Such cancers occur very commonly on the face and often produce hideous deformity and sometimes get beyond the possibility of being benefited by operation, because patients dread the knife and subsequent ugly cicatrization. Some of the best results with this new treatment of these have been reported from the Scandinavian countries, where a few years ago Finsen obtained the Nobel prize for the application of concentrated light for the curing of such lesions. This would seem surely to indicate that the method is very successful. Nystroem, in the medical journal Hygiea, of Stockholm, emphasizes "the harmlessness of this method of treatment, the simplicity of its application, the possibility of exact dosage, the relative painlessness, the smooth effectual action, the ideal cosmetic result and the inexpensiveness of the method." He gives a series of pictures of patients treated in this way in which the portrait before and after shows really marvellous results. In some of these cases the patients had actually been turned away from surgical clinics as inoperable, though subsequent photographs show nothing except a small scar left where the cancer had eaten very deeply. It is interesting to realize that the amazing experience of youth is thus being transformed into a very beneficent application for some of our most pitiable cases of malignant disease.

REBINDING BOOKS.

It is only "books for show" that do not have signs of wear sooner or later. The ones that are closer than most friends, those into which we love to dip at odd moments for the loving companionship they give, are the ones, alas! that soon show signs of wearing out, so far as the bindings go.

Rebinding one's dearest books has a certain disadvantage besides that of the expense. There is no more uncertain person than your bookbinder, and he will keep you waiting and actually aching for the book that means no more than a parcel of printed leaves to him. And in too many cases he finds it necessary to trim off the original margins and make a smug, prim looking volume, stiff backed, of the dear, easy one that felt so familiar to your hand. Wherefore it is well to think up other ways of repairing the worn out look of bindings.

Slip covers there always are, and they are most easily made, but they have always an alien feel in our hands—skin to the contact with the paper cover which comes to protect a newly bought book. Then, if the cover be only faded, there are several ways of remedying the dull look. It can be touched up with water colors or the liquid wood stains which come in small bottles for artistic work and must not be confounded with common floor and woodwork stains. Then, again, the side covers can be recovered with fine, closely woven fabric, such as flowered satcen, or the heavier plain variety. Plain material, smoothly glued or pasted on, can be stencilled with the title and a conventional design. Even smooth gray or brown paper, such as is used for photograph holders, will make excellent material for re-covering books without making "rebinding" necessary.

THE POET LAUREATE.

The institution of court poet is a very old one. It can be traced back to Greece, from which the custom was adopted by Rome. The title "poet laureate," so far as can be learned, was derived by Frederick I. of Germany, who bestowed it, with a wreath of bay leaves, upon the monk Gunther.

From the time of Petrarch, who was crowned at Rome, the title became for some centuries an honorary degree which the universities of the Continent and of England were authorized to confer. We may suppose that the favor was sometimes unworthily granted, for Sancho Panza, in consoling his ass, when both ass and rider had fallen into a ditch, exclaimed:—

"I promise to give thee double feed and to place a crown of laurel on thy head, that thou mayest look like a poet laureate."

It is only through tradition that there may be assigned an origin to this office in England. In the deed that conferred upon Chaucer and his successors in the post an annuity and the yearly allowance of a tierce (forty gallons) of sweet Malvoisie wine, the King named the father of English literature as "My valet, Geoffrey Chaucer." The monarch made no allusion to his "valet's" poetic genius.

In the time of Queen Elizabeth there was need of a poet laureate because of the frequency with which masques were performed at her command. These masques required the composition of what we call libretti, a species of verse which is set to music, of which we have a sample in Milton's "Comus." Spenser served Elizabeth well in supplying them.

BROKE OUT OF GAOL

Norman Cryster Performs During Fest at Toronto

IS A HARD MAN TO HOLD

Toronto, April 25.—By ripping up the flooring of Wilton avenue police station, Norman Cryster, an alleged horse thief, escaped from custody shortly before 9 o'clock last night. At an early hour this morning he was still at large, with the police completely mystified.

Cryster was arrested after a hair-raising chase yesterday afternoon, participated in by Detectives Murray and Beckett and the accused. On a warrant charging theft of a horse worth $200 the two detectives went after their man, who, they had learned, had stabled the horse on De Grassi street. When the detectives arrived at the stable they found Cryster trying to close a deal which would have brought him $60 for the animal. When Cryster saw the detectives he promptly ran the horse back to its stall and in some way eluded the officers.

Murray and Beckett gave chase, but Cryster was fleet-footed. He got a lead of 100 yards on the officers before they knew he had vanished. The chase covered many city blocks, principally through lanes and alleys, fences and sheds. Altogether, it was a most gruelling sprint.

After a mile had been run with the detectives still following up, and all pretty well exhausted, a policeman on Pape avenue loomed up. Attracted by the shouts of the detectives from somewhere up a lane the police man swung around and caught Cryster who was then taken to No. 4 station.

"You have me all right, but not for long," panted Cryster to the constable. "The whole police department can't hold me."

He was placed in the corridor. Two hours later, at 8 o'clock, P. C. McKee carried a loaf of bread to the prisoner.

At 8.40 two friends of Cryster entered the station with a tray covered with food of all sorts and asked that it be given him. P. C. McKee took the food to the large cell, but Cryster was nowhere to be seen. Over against the wall a large patch of the floor had been torn up. Cryster had crawled through this hole and had managed, although the going must have been difficult, to work his way under the boards to the cellar, which was just sufficiently large to accommodate a furnace. He then made his escape through a coal chute.

This is the second time Cryster has broken jail. A year ago he was placed in the Whitby lock-up, charged with stealing a launch. He was only there a few hours when he got away by making a hole in the roof. He was later arrested and taken back to face the charge. He is about 24 years of age, a steamfitter by trade and lives in Chedoka, near Hamilton.

Many Thousands Coming.

Toronto, April 25.—Word was received yesterday by the Toronto committee that the Brotherhood Crusaders from Great Britain to the convention here, which begins May 11, will come 150 strong.

Secretary Ausman of the local committee states that about 75,000 members of the Brotherhood Association are now in Canada. The parent organization in Great Britain and Ireland has 750,000.

Sir James Whitney has been invited to preside at the Massey Hall meeting on Sunday afternoon, May 12, and Mayor Geary at the banquet to visiting delegates.

Connaughts to Travel Some.

Ottawa, April 25.—An official itinerary of the year's program of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught announces a visit to Toronto, May 16 and visits to London and Guelph, May 29 and 30. June will be spent in Quebec and New Brunswick fishing. July 7 the Winnipeg Exhibition will be opened, the party returning east towards the end of the month to tour the Maritime Provinces. After opening Toronto Exhibition, the Connaughts will go west, visiting cities along the north shore, and proceeding to the Pacific coast, returning to Ottawa about the end of October.

Toronto's Dirty Streets.

London, Ont., April 25.—"If London's streets were as dirty as Toronto's, there would be a riot immediately."

Such was Mayor Graham's comment on the condition of the streets of the Queen City, through which he passed yesterday morning on his way from Montreal.

"Montreal's streets are in a terrible condition, and Toronto's not an awful lot better," said his worship.

Dismissed Telegraph Suit.

London, April 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Privy Council has dismissed with costs the appeal of the Reid-Newfoundland Co. versus the Anglo-American Telegraph. The dispute was concerning what messages the appellant were to transmit over the respondents' special wire.

LOWE WAS TRUE HERO

Young Officer's Story Shows He Played the Man

DID MOUNT TEMPLE PASS?

Washington, April 25.—Harold G. Lowe, fifth officer of the sunken Titanic, yesterday told the Senate investigating committee his part in the struggle of the survivors for life following the catastrophe. His testimony developed that with a volunteer crew, he rescued four men from the water, saved a sinking collapsible lifeboat by towing it astern of his, and took all twenty men and one woman from the bottom of an overturned boat. Every one of these under his charge he landed safely on the Carpathia.

From first to last Lowe's story showed that he played the man. Ordered away in charge of lifeboat No. 14, he packed it to its capacity on the top deck, and, fearing that some might attempt to jump into it while it was descending, kept a fusilade from his revolver. Once afloat, he took charge of a flotilla of small craft, which eventually were picked up by the rescue ship without the loss of a life.

Interesting in interest with the day's testimony was the interchange of telegrams between Senator Wm. Alden Smith, chairman, and the acting Premier of Canada, George E. Foster.

The latter told of the docking of the steamer Mount Temple at St. John, N.B., with passengers aboard who claimed to have sent the Titanic sink. It was thought possible the Mount Temple was the ship that was only five miles from the White Star liner when she took her final plunge.

Senator Smith has requested that the depositions of the officers and crew of the Mount Temple be sent to him. In addition, he accepted the offer of Dr. F. C. Quitzman of Toronto to appear before the committee. Dr. Quitzman was one of the passengers who said they saw the Titanic sink.

Acting Premier Foster's telegram, dated yesterday, gave the version of Captain Moore of the Mount Temple, and added:

"Under these circumstances it does not seem necessary to detain boat, due to sail Friday evening. If commission can be appointed to take captain's evidence, will no doubt be examined later by British commission."

In reply Senator Smith despatched the following:

"Telegram received. I will greatly appreciate it if deposition of captain of the vessel, Mount Temple, which is scheduled to sail from St. John, N.B., Friday, could be taken by commissioners, as suggested by you, and forwarded to me at Washington, relative to the movements of his ship on Sunday evening, April 14, stating relative positions to Titanic and Carpathia, together with a detailed report of all wireless messages sent and received."

The committee also received a telegram signed by John H. Moore, master of Mount Temple; A. H. Sargent, chief officer; H. Mould, second officer; and J. Durrant, the Marconi operator, dated at West St. John, N.B., yesterday, practically repeating the information contained in the Premier's message, and adding that the Mount Temple did not see the Titanic's lights.

The names of the passengers who claimed they saw the lights of the Titanic, the message said, were not known.

Captain Moore states that a message asking aid was received from the Titanic and that he responded, but owing to the obstruction of ice, his steamer did not arrive until after the Carpathia did, and that the latter sent a message that aid wasn't required.

Captain Moore's Statement.

St. John, N.B., April 25.—The rumor that the steamer Mount Temple was within five miles of the Titanic when she sank and without heeding signals of distress, steamed away, leaving 1,800 souls to perish, is indignantly denied by Captain Moore, who was in command of the vessel. His statement is as follows:

"We received a wireless message after midnight Sunday from the Titanic, stating that she had struck an iceberg and to come at once. We turned about at 12.30 o'clock and steamed back to position given us, arriving there at 4.30 o'clock. We encountered so much ice, however, that we stayed until daylight. We cruised about but could not see any sign of the ship. About 6 a.m. on an immense field of ice studded thickly with bergs, we saw the Carpathia. We also saw the Californian, which was to the northward of us, steaming west, then coming down to the southward, and she met us. She did not communicate anything. At 8.40 o'clock, ship's time, we received a general message that the Carpathia had picked up twenty boats. We asked if they wanted assistance, but got no reply. Shortly after we received another general message stating, "Nothing more can be done; no need to stand by." We then left the scene and proceeded on our way."

When he turned his ship and rushed back among immense fields of ice he was doing so at a great risk, for he had on board 1,441 passengers, besides his crew. Nevertheless, he promptly answered the call for help.

Hanged Himself in Cell.

Montreal, April 25.—Stanislaus Radishiefsky, a Pole, serving a sentence of eight months for stealing money from a fellow-boarder after which he was to have been deported, yesterday morning committed suicide by hanging himself with a strap in the lavatory of the jail.

Forgetful.

Jones—What have you got that string around your finger for? Brown—My wife put it on so that I would remember something. I forget what it was. I'm hoping it on now to remind me to ask her what it was when I get home this evening.

DEPARTMENT ATTACKED.

Lord Muskerry Severely Assails the Board of Trade.

London, April 25.—Severe criticisms of the marine department of the Board of Trade were made by Lord Muskerry at the meeting of the Imperial Merchants' Guild yesterday afternoon.

Lord Muskerry declared that the measures urged by the guild met with bitter opposition, and he hoped that the great disaster to the Titanic would lead the public to insist on a full and searching enquiry by an independent committee into the methods pursued by the marine department.

Lord Muskerry stated explicitly that, although the advisory committee had presented a report to the Board of Trade last July calling attention to the insufficiency of boats on ocean-going liners, "Not a single thing had been done or any notice taken until the news came that the Titanic had struck an iceberg. Then the marine department wrote to each member of the committee saying that it agreed with their proposals. They, however, might go further and that meant that the marine department desired to throw the blame on other shoulders."

Lord Muskerry hoped that the advisory committee would insist on a reform of the marine department, and on the appointment of a man possessing professional knowledge of the sea as its chief.

Sir Ernest Shackleton emphasized the importance of having a committee consisting of unbiased practical men. He continued: "We do not want men like the Archbishop of Canterbury on this job."

Sir Ernest Shackleton evidently referred to the fact that the Archbishop of Canterbury is a member of the Board of Trade.

Charges Excessive.

Ottawa, April 25.—A matter relative to express charges, which was not covered by the judgment in the express inquiry, will be made the subject of a special hearing by the Railway Commission shortly. It concerns the excessive rates which the board on investigation has discovered are charged by the express companies in connection with C.O.D. shipments. The matter was first brought to the board's notice by a complaint made by a Japanese merchant of an overcharge of 65 cents.

The statement goes on to say that formerly express companies, after collecting C.O.D. shipments, made return of the cash to the shipper, basing the charge for this service upon merchandise rates. For some years, however, instead of remitting and carrying back the cash, the agent at the delivery office has issued express orders, posting these direct to the shipper at the old merchandise rates instead of the scale of charges for express orders.

"This cannot be defended," says the board. "The present scale of charges is excessive."

Crushed by Cars.

Toronto, April 25.—Wedged between two cars at the corner of Queen and Bathurst street last night, Miss Nellie Stevenson of 30 Fisher street suffered a compound fracture of her right leg and was badly bruised. She was removed to the Western Hospital.

The accident happened shortly after 6 o'clock. The motorman on a westbound Dundas car thought the switch at the corner was open, allowing him to turn north on Bathurst street, the regular route, but, instead, it was favorable to West Queen cars. He ran the car over the switch and, noticing the mistake, applied the reverse, which shot the car back. Miss Stevenson was caught between the rear vestibule of this car and the fender of a Queen car, and was badly crushed. P. C. Padgett rendered first aid and immediately removed the young woman to the hospital. She will recover.

Shot Detective Dead.

Paris, April 25.—A further crime was added yesterday morning to the long list of those recently committed by the gang of bandit anarchists which is terrorizing Paris.

Assistant Superintendent Jouin of the Paris Detective Department was shot dead, and his comrade, Chief Inspector Colmar, seriously wounded while trying to arrest one of the gang named Gallot at Petit Ivry, a suburb of Paris.

The bandit succeeded in escaping, although pursued by police and civilians.

Rescued Child From Water.

Kingston, April 25.—The little daughter of Dean Bidwell had a miraculous escape from death when a portion of a stone wall at the Tete De Point barracks gave way. The child was sitting on the wall when it toppled over and she was thrown into the lake, but was saved by the prompt action of Capt. C. F. Constantine, who happened to be passing at the time and who jumped into the water and got her out.

Child Died From Neglect.

Montreal, April 25.—Ethel Knight, who had just returned to her home here after working in Toronto, has been arrested, charged with being criminally responsible for the death of her infant daughter here.

The child was found dead in the girl's room, and the coroner's jury yesterday morning brought in a verdict of death by neglect.

McCARTHY IS DEAD

Irish Historian and Nationalist Passes Away

WAS GREAT HOME-RULER

London, April [illegible] Justin McCarthy, novelist and historian, and for many years a member of Parliament, died last night at Folkestone. He had been ill throughout the winter and spring. His daughter had acted as his nurse, and friends had hoped that he would live to see the fruition of home rule.

The retirement of Justin McCarthy from political and Parliamentary activity in 1900, on account of failing health, removed from British public life one of its ablest and worthiest men, and was a distinct loss to the Irish home rule cause.

Mr. McCarthy was born in Cork, Nov. 22, 1830. From 1860 to 1880 he was on the staff of The Cork Examiner, and then joined the staff of The Morning Times of Liverpool. In 1880 he became reporter in the House of Commons for The London Star, of which he was afterwards foreign editor, and then chief editor in 1884. Mr. McCarthy resigned this post in 1886 and came to the United States. There he traveled for nearly three years, visiting thirty-five states. He then lived in New York for some time.

Mr. McCarthy's activity in Parliamentary affairs is widely known by his zeal for the home rule cause.

Mr. McCarthy's literary work was important. He was the author of several novels, critical and historical works, including the celebrated "History of Our Own Times."

Up Go Wages.

New York, April 25.—The sub-committee, which is arranging the terms of settlement in the anthracite region, has settled the wage increase, it is reported, from 5 to 6 per cent., and may further increase it. It is said that the operators will agree to abolish the conciliatory board and substitute a plan by which the grievances will be settled directly with the men.

The sliding scale will remain in force, but the base, it is reported, will be increased from $4.50 to $4.75.

The operators are said to have informed the miners' committee of their intention to raise the price of coal.

It is further stated there will be no eight-hour day and no other concessions.

Looks Like Quiet May Day.

Ottawa, April 25.—Reports to the Department of Labor indicates a particularly quiet May Day this year, with a comparative absence of labor disputes.

For the season, labor conditions are especially satisfactory. No board of Conciliation is sitting at present, nor is there any application for one pending.

Petrolea Man on Trial.

Port Huron, Mich., April 25.—Medical testimony occupied the greater part of both sessions yesterday in the trial of George Eason of Petrolea, Ont., who is charged with the murder of Thomas Major of this city. It was evident that the defence will endeavor to show that the major's death was due to natural causes, probably kidney trouble.

Repairs at Queen's Park.

Toronto, April 25.—Work has been resumed on the interior of the rebuilt west wing of the Parliament Buildings. After the temporary hold-up during the session, the scaffolding is again in place and the noise of the hammer and chisel is echoing through the building just as was the case prior to Feb. 7. The ground floor and first floor are practically completed, the remaining work to be done on the second and third floors.

Farmer Charged With Arson.

Waterford, April 25.—Fred Messecar, a prosperous farmer living near here, was arrested by provincial detectives. A charge of arson is laid against him in connection with the burning of a barn on the farm of Mr. Albert McMichael last fall.

Several recent fires of incendiary origin are also being investigated.

A WEAK, ACHING BACK CAUSED HER MUCH MISERY

Could Not Work and Had No Ambition For Anything.

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

Weak, lame or aching backs come from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles.

Mrs. W. R. Hodge, Fielding, Sask., writes:—"A few lines highly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For this last year I have been troubled very much with nasty sick headaches, and a weak, aching back which caused me much misery, for I could not work and had no ambition for anything. My kidneys were very badly out of order, and kept me from sleeping at nights, I tried many kinds of pills and medicines but it seemed almost in vain. I began to give up in despair of ever being well and strong again, when a kind neighbor advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and am thankful for the relief I obtained from them, for now I am never in trouble with a sore back or sick headaches. I will always say Doan's Kidney Pills for mine, and can highly recommend them to any sufferers."

Redistribution Bill Before Provincial House

Proposed New Constituency to be Formed With Bigger as Seat

The Provincial Parliament now have the new Distribution Bill framed up into working shape, and this will grant 15 new seats and maybe 16 seats for the whole province.

One of these new seats is allotted to our own town of Bigger, with a district extending thirty miles from east to west and from sixty to ninety miles from north to south, the definition being caused by the North Saskatchewan River.

As laid out, the new constituency of Bigger consists of all that land shown on the map as follows:

Starting from a point on the line between ranges 11 and 12 on the top of township 36, and proceeding straight north about nine miles to the North Saskatchewan river in township 46; down along the line of the river till reaching the line between ranges 17 and 18 in township 44, and proceeding south along this line to the N. E. corner of township 39 in range 18, and from there straight east to the starting point.

This gives the Bigger constituency an area of somewhere about 3,600 square miles, and includes the towns of Bigger, [illegible], Wilkie, Traynor, Harris, Zealandia, Hershel, Pale, Olsen, Maud, Vance, Hoole, and a lot of other smaller places inside the area mentioned above.

OUR MILITARY PRISON.

Halifax Possesses Canada's Only "Pen" For Soldiers.

Despite the fact that Canada is going to build a navy—some day; that she can boast her many military stations and large standing army, there is in the Dominion but one military prison. This is located on Melville Island, at the head of the Northwest Arm at Halifax. It was built to be used in conjunction with Canada's first military station, though constructed some time after the establishment of the garrison troops at Halifax. It was built in 1868 and for over a century has served as a jail for miscreant soldiers.

The island upon which it is situated takes its name after that Scottish statesman, who was the second Pitt's Secretary of the Navy in the stirring times following the French revolution.

One of the stories which was formerly connected with Melville Island was that the prison officials kept a shark swimming about the waters of the island and regularly fed it. This, when circulated among the prisoners, was thought to prevent them from trying to escape. However effective it may have been, it may be said to the credit of the Melville Island Prison management that not for many years has only one man been able to successfully escape captivity.

Forbidding though its name and appearance, Melville Island is not without its tinge of romance. On the farther shore of the Northwest Arm, back of a little cove, in a mound or natural hill upon which is a lonely grave marked by a wooden cross and inscription. Over it the Union Jack always floats.

The secret of the slumberer is, so far as the world knows, sleeped with his dust, secure in the lonely grave, but legend, ever ready to step forth and embellish a story, relates a romantic tale connected with the man whose mouldering remains rest on this island. The inmate of the lonely tomb was a young soldier who, during his own term, the victim of the cruel father of his sweetheart, who was colonel of the regiment to which the young man belonged in the garrison.

Nixon, for the [illegible] was an orderly, of good family although in the ranks. The wife of a handsome physician, and while living at the colonel's quarters his duties threw him much in the company of the beautiful daughter of his commander. She was a girl of eighteen and they loved in secret for a long time. When the father learned of it, he sent the young man back to the duties of a private soldier. He had kept there only a short time when the charge of theft from a comrade was trumped up against him and he was confined in Melville Island prison, where he pined for a time, but finally escaped and threw across the Arm, hiding in a cave nearby for a long time, being supplied with food in the meantime by residents of the locality, whose compassion had been excited by the stories of his suffering within the prison walls.

Finally, however, dreading capture and giving up hope of ever seeing his sweetheart again, he committed suicide and was interred upon that lonely hillock near the lapping of the waters and beneath the pine trees' shade. The soldiers who guard the prison have passed on the trust of keeping the grave and inscription in good repair to each succeeding regiment for almost a hundred years.

The tale told to the passing stranger of the [illegible] who rests on Dead Man's Isle reads as follows:

John Nixon,

Better than Ringing Door-bells

A PIANO manufacturer recently made a house-to-house canvass. He's one of those men with an absurd fear of the "waste-circulation" bugaboo—cannot get away from the haunting thought that only 10 out of every 100 readers of a newspaper may be possible buyers of his goods.

So he refused to advertise, and went a-canvassing—inviting people to come to his piano recitals. Then he wondered why they didn't come.

This [illegible]
[illegible] reaching the people.

His canvassers rang every door-bell in town. They talked to some one in every house.

But one in seven households isn't enough—particularly as [illegible] the right person, that is, a married man or a child. The [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

EIGHT in this very respectable neighbourhood there lives a woman who is a cruel slave. No, not a slave in the old sense, nor even in the new—not a white slaver," nor even a slave to her husband or children. This woman is simply what I call an obsession slave. What is: How the unhappy and tortured vassal and victim of the obsession which she cannot resist has set up as master over herself.

Do you want to make myself clear? Well, suppose I become something. This woman has a kind and devoted husband. He is occasionally called away on business trips and, on the latest trip his customary bi-weekly letter failed to come on one occasion. His wife at once became obsessed of the idea that he did not love her any longer. She brooded over this idea, amassed evidence to prove it, became absolutely convinced of it, and in the few days in which she did not hear from him, dismally worried herself almost sick. At the end of the week two letters came together; the first had been intercept by the postal authorities. We had told her all the time that something like this was the cause of the delay, but she was so completely under the domination of her obsessions that she could not use her reason of her common sense.

So much for one struggle of her slavery. She has other obsessions on many other subjects, and I find her in the enslaved state sadly often.

This woman is an exaggerated case of obsession slavery, but I think a great many of us suffer in lesser degree from this mental disease. For that is what it is. We allow an idea to take possession of us and we become absolutely incapable of using reason on the subject. And that is not healthy or normal. We get an idea that we are going to lose our position; that some dear one no longer loves us; that we are losing our mental keenness, or our grip on business, or our ability in some direction; that people dislike us or regard us with aversion; and we begin to hunt for evidence to support this idea. And in this kind of hunting one is always sure of bagging plenty of game.

By and by something happens to completely disprove our fears. Our employer gives us an unasked raise; the loved one offers some unusual and unmistakable proof of affection; we demonstrate our mental power of our grip on business or our talent, in some way indisputable even to ourselves; or we are brought face to face with some unexpected proof of our popularity; and then we say, I'll never be so foolish again." And we are not—until the next time.

What's the cure for this common disease? Well the best cure, as for all diseases, is prevention. Cure it before you have it. Don't let yourself get into this habit of mind. When you find yourself brooding over anything like this, take your mind "by the scruff of the neck," as Arnold Bennett says, and put it on some other subject. Do this a hundred times, if necessary. You will never regret the effort.

"But what if the disease is already started?" some unhappy victim asks. Well, then, administer the same treatment, only more of it. Furthermore, when you have found that one of these obsessions was utterly foolish, write down that fact and keep the document where you can see it when the next attack starts. Don't let your attacks get under way. Nip them in the bud. Again, don't give yourself time to brood. Keep busy working and playing and being happy. When you feel an attack coming on, go out into God's sunshine outdoors and try to absorb some of its serenity. Take a long walk; try to get your body healthy and your mind will get some of the benefit. Go and call on some cheerful friend who will give you the contagion of his optimism, or visit some one less fortunate than you whose real troubles will shame your imaginary ones.

Rev. Irl Hicks' Weather Predictions For May

Following are Rev. Irl Hicks' storm and weather forecasts for May, as given in "Word and Works":

A regular storm period is central on the 1st, covering the last three days in April, reaching to May the 4th. This period involves a marked seismic period, also, central on the 1st. May will come in with low barometer, high temperature and storms of rain, wind and thunder well on their transition from west to east. Even a well-instructed child having a barometer to consult, will be able to forsee whether the storms are going to be dangerous. Low barometer, high temperature, humid, muggy air and south, to south-easterly winds, at this and all May storm periods, will be signals of tornadic danger. Heed them! Mugh-cooler will spread from west to east about the 2nd to 6th, behind storm areas.

A reactionary storm period has its centre on the 6th, 7th and 8th, during which it will grow warmer, barometer will fall and more rain and blustering winds will pass eastward over the country. The Venus period will remain in force to the middle of May, causing vicious electrical storms, with sudden changes from warm to very cool, at all the storm periods. Nights will be quite cool from about the 8th to 11th, with possibly frost northward.

A regular storm period central on the 13th, involves the 11th to the 16th. The Moon is on the equator on the 13th, and new on the 16th, which facts indicate that a daily cycle of heavy rain and thunder storms, beginning on the 12th, will most likely continue until after new Moon on the 16th. Here, again, the barometer will prove the most reliable and faithful friend. If it drops to low readings about the 11th and 12th, look for severe storms of wind, rain, hail and thunder to follow, and if the barometer fails to rise and the winds continue from the east and south, with continued high temperature, expect storm paroxysms to repeat themselves daily. When the wind shifts steadily and cooler from the west, and the barometer rises resolutely, the cycle of daily storms will cease, and settled weather will follow. We must cautiously warn our readers that we are now in the "solar eye," or the focus of solar energy, as it passes from south to north, and that tornadoes are at a maximum frequency and severity through all this part of the month. The mid-month seismic period extends from the 13th to the 19th, being central on the 16th.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 18th, 19th and 20th, with Moon at perigree and extreme north declination. Atmospheric tides, or wind currents, will be strong from the south, causing high temperature and low barometer, with return of rain and thunder storms at this period. The Moon being nearest the Earth on the 19th, and furthest north on the 20th, will necessarily bring its disturbing influence to bear most forcibly in the northern hemisphere. Ocean tides and perturbations will be greatest in latitudes corresponding to the Moon's north declination, hence—why not atmospheric tides as well as electric and magnetic concentration? A cool wave will follow this period from the north-west.

A regular storm period, intensified by the Mercury period, covers the 23rd to 27th, being central on the 24th. In western extremes the barometer will begin falling by the 22rd, south to east winds and warm weather will prevail in central to eastern sections. Low barometer, attended by rain, wind and thunder, will advance eastwardly across the country during the 24th to 27th. The crisis of the period will fall on the 25th and 26th. All gathering storms should be watched at this time, as violent storms are probable. A reactionary storm period is on the 29th, 30th and 31st. A seismic period is central on the 30th—from 27th to June 4th.

NERVOUS WOMAN

Lost Sleep and Appetite—Is Now Well and Strong.

If men only understood better how fearfully a woman's strength is taxed by her monotonous round of household duties, they would not be surprised at an occasional spell of "nerves."

When a woman is strong and well she does not know what it is to be nervous—it is only when she is weak that her nerves go to pieces.

Mrs. M. A. Robinson, of West Grove, Pa., says: "I had a nervous trouble for some months, affecting both my appetite and my sleep. Soon after I began to take Vinol I felt ever so much better and now I am as well as ever. Vinol did me a lot of good."

Our advice to all nervous, run down women is—Take Vinol and regain your strength, then you will have no more nervous spells. This delicious cod liver and iron remedy without oil always agrees with the stomach, and it has made thousands of weak, discouraged, sickly women well and vigorous. We guarantee it—money back if Vinol does not please you. McDermaid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

STANFORD WHITE'S FRIEND FOUND WITH BROKEN NECK.

Was One of Those Who Fell With the Quebec Bridge.

CHICAGO, APRIL 25.—After having wandered about the country with a broken neck since 1907, Theodore W. Peters, a civil engineer of Phoenix, Ariz., and former friend of Stanford White, slain by Harry K. Thaw in 1906, was picked up by the police here yesterday.

Peters was found staggering about and at first was supposed to be intoxicated.

Peters declares he was one of the men who disarmed Thaw after the latter had shot Stanford White. Peters suffered his injury in 1907, when 90 men fell to the depths in the collapse of the Canadian Pacific railroad bridge over the St. Lawrence river at Quebec.

Peters, in falling, dropped on a policeman in a passing police boat. The policeman was killed and Peters suffered the broken neck.

FIRST SPRING QUARREL

Is Credited to Two North Ward Residents.

Scene: Dublin street. Time, 9.35 Sunday morning.

The neighbours were enjoying their first spring quarrel.

"Confound you you've been coaxing my hens over into your yard!"

"Why, you dingblistered chump, it's the seeds in my garden that do the coaxing!"

"Ha, ha, your garden! I like that!"

"Not half so well as your hens do!"

"Pooh, pooh! You coax my hens to crawl under your house and lay."

"Your hens are cheeky trespassers."

"Yes, and your little boy crawls under the house and gets the eggs."

"Does he? It's lucky he's so thin."

"If you were a squeeze mail, you'd close up those holes in the foundation."

"If you were a sanitary expert you'd know that ventilation is a prime necessity."

"Confound you, I'll put up a spite fence!"

"Hang you, I'll have a pollification if you do!"

Whereupon they separate, without clinching and stalk their several ways.

Dame rumour has it that police court proceedings are impending.

ANOTHER SHIP LOST?

Norwegian Vessel Reports Disaster to an Unknown.

New York, April 26.—News that an unidentified ship met the same fate as the Titanic in the ice fields was brought by the steamship Romsdal, from Ajugesund, Norway, in port yesterday.

Officers and crew tell tales of experiences in the field of ice on March 26 while trying to aid an unidentified steamship, which was fast in the floe and signalling for help. Before they could get close enough to give aid the unidentified vessel disappeared, and it is believed she sank with her crew. The steamer was about four hundred miles north of where the Titanic went down.

This One Struck a Berg.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 26.—The British steamship Bulwieh reports having been in collision with an iceberg within a few miles of the spot where the Titanic went down. Her bow was badly damaged.

Ross Rifle Accepted.

Ottawa, April 26.—An official statement was issued by the D.R.A. yesterday morning relative to the meeting with representatives of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain Wednesday night in regard to the Ross rifle and sight at Bisley. It reads:

"The Ross rifle and sight attachment as adopted by the Militia Department were submitted and accepted by the representatives of the N.R.A. as complying with the regulations. Col. Crosse, secretary of the N.R.A., asked that it be announced that the N.R.A. never questioned the eligibility of the Ross rifle since 1909."

The D.R.A. was invited by the British representatives to send an officer to Bisley to act as range officer. This is the first time such a courtesy has been extended to Canada, and will be complied with. It was announced that the Canadian team would sail on June 21. The names of Lieut.-Col. J. W. DeC. O'Grady as commandant and Lieut.-Col. Charles F. Winter as adjutant have been submitted to the Minister of Militia and H.R.H. the Governor-General for approval.

World Insurance Convention.

London, April 26.—The International Congress of Insurance Brokers and Agents will be held here from June 3 to 9, when it is expected that Canada, in common with the other dominions, will be represented.

France, Germany, the United States, Italy and Russia are sending representatives.

Next Week's Arrivals.

Montreal, April 26.—Local immigration and steamship officials state that 20,000 immigrants will arrive in Canada next week. Seventeen ships are required to carry these newcomers.

WAS TROUBLED WITH Headache
AND Constipation.

After Suffering For Two Years Was Cured By BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

Headache of whatever nature is nearly always symptomatic of other diseased conditions, rather than a disease itself, but in most cases a disordered stomach, constipation, or bad circulation is the chief source of the difficulty. Burdock Blood Bitters removes the cause of the trouble through its cleansing, strengthening and tonic action on the stomach, liver, bowels and blood. Mr. Wm. Redmond, Cardigan Bridge, P.E.I., writes:—"I have been troubled with headache and constipation for about [illegible] years, trying every doctor knew, a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I found myself, after using one bottle, getting much better, and after using three bottles I was completely cured.

"After then I was on a visit, and found my cousin very sick, and the doctor told her there was something wrong with her head. I told her to use Burdock Blood Bitters and she was cured in a short time. I can safely recommend it to all."

WEST WORKS TOGETHER

Indian Says Two Others Sprained Murder an Accident.

Sarnia, April 26.—Stephen Kiyash, the young Indian murderer, who is custody in the county jail here, awaiting to be hanged on June 6 for the murder of two Indians, Adam Jibay and Charles Kaiser, on New Year's night, at the Walpole Island Reserve, in his statement to his spiritual adviser, Rev. Mr. Hanley, of the Sarnia diocese, says:

"I was at the scene of the crime on the fatal night. Francis Williams was there, also Natchee and Johnny, who were later killed."

Here is a very startling point, not commented, when Kiyash admitted there was also present two women, a wife and daughter of a nearby neighbor, and that the two could not started a quarrel over the presence of his women at the house, and then Johnny stepped in and committed the crime.

Interviewed by Mr. Rigsby, Francis Williams showed her first willingness to speak of the fatal affair. She states that she left the house before the killing, and that there was no one there except the three men.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Dr. D. W. Carroll, an old physician, of Ingersoll, dropped dead.

The Owen Sound local option bylaw is to be attacked in the courts.

Prince Edward Island proposes to put a $300 tax on liquor travelers.

The Mackay-Bennett steamer reported having recovered 295 bodies of victims of the Titanic wreck.

Rev. James Livingstone, pastor of the Methodist Church at Mitchell, died yesterday morning, aged 62.

Mr. G. T. Blackstock of Toronto may be offered the chairmanship of the Public Service Commission when Mr. Morine resigns.

Almost every passenger on the three transatlantic liners leaving New York yesterday became an inspector of the vessels' lifeboats en route aboard.

Active proceedings are being taken at Yale, B.C., against the Industrial Workers of the World, who are alleged to have organized the raid on the C.N.R. railway camps.

Mrs. McArthur, wife of Fred. McArthur, of Hamilton, Ont., and a daughter of John Henry of Ottawa, died in Hamilton yesterday. Her father died Wednesday night in Ottawa.

The re-taking of Huitalac, in the State of Morelos, Mexico, by Federals last Monday, after an artillery bombardment, cost the Zapatistas 200 men killed, according to reports received yesterday.

To Name Commissioners.

Ottawa, April 26.—The Prime Minister is expected home from Hot Springs next week and Hon. W. T. White will come with him. Cabinet meetings will then be held and appointments made, one of the most important being a successor to Hon. A. B. Morine, as head of the Public Service Commission. Another appointment is that of third member of the Civil Service Commission, now composed of Dr. Adam Shortt and Mr. M. G. Larochelle. It is understood that deadlocks frequently arise, making necessary a third commissioner.

When the commission investigating the law branch of the House of Commons finishes its work, there will likely be important reforms calculated to remove existing friction. The head of the branch is Major A. H. O'Brien and assistants are Dr. J. K. Foran, A. G. Troop and Mr. Lonaks. Speaker Sproule regarded the tangle as necessitating the advice of experts, and so W. D. Hogg, K.C., and Dr. Adam Shortt are investigating.

Angus MacMurchy Injured.

Toronto, April 26.—With his skull probably fractured, and unconscious, Angus MacMurchy, once a prominent educationist here, lies in St. Michael's Hospital, as a result of being struck by a street car last night. The old gentleman was crossing Bloor street, near Jarvis, when a westbound Belt Line car, hit and threw him against the kerb. He was picked up and carried into his home nearby, where his daughter, Dr. Helen MacMurchy, gave first aid, and then had him removed to the hospital in the police ambulance. His recovery is improbable.

"Wets" Plan Fight.

Owen Sound, April 26.—Barrister W. H. Wright, acting on instructions from J. D. Soddart, has served notice on the Town Council that action will be instituted at once to have the local option bylaw declared null and void. The action is based on irregularities alleged to have taken place at the polling last January when local option was sustained by a majority of 125. It was upon these same irregularities that five local option councillors were unseated a few weeks ago.

No Licenses for Cobalt.

Cobalt, Ont., April 26.—The news that Cobalt will not be granted beer and wine licenses, and that the Provincial Secretary has vetoed the findings of the license commissioners, has been received with poor feeling by many. A number of temperance people think that the licenses would be much better than the present "blind pig" system.

Hurt on Elevator.

Toronto, April 26.—Henry Holdup, an employe of the Nerlich Co., fancy goods factory, 146 East Front street, was painfully injured in an elevator yesterday. While carrying goods on to the hoist, he missed his footing and was squeezed against the door, sustaining injuries to his face and arms. He was removed to St. Michael's Hospital, and will recover.

Brockville Comes In.

Brockville, April 26.— The freeholders of Brockville yesterday empowered the Town Council to enter into a contract with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission for the supply of power.

The bylaw was carried by a majority of 491, only 32 votes being recorded against the bylaw.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO, April 26.—Wheat and corn today at one time showed the highest prices in Chicago for a year or more. It was also the first time corn touched above the dollar and oats above the old mark. Other leading grains, too, gained a cent, wheat 1-4c to 1-4c to 1-4c higher than a week ago, and provisions 7 1-2c to 25c.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, April 26.—There was no improvement in the demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, and with the few bids received the majority were 2c to 3c per quarter cut of line. "OLYMPIC" HAS TO ABANDON HER VOYAGE
FIFTY SEAMEN ARE JAILED FOR MUTINY

Refusal to Sail With "Blacking" Firemen and Strikers Said to be Called for to Prevent the Men.

RIOTS ARE FEARED

Special to The Examiner:

SOUTHAMPTON, APRIL 26.—With fifty of her seamen in jail charged with mutiny and with only half a complement of firemen aboard the White Star Liner Olympic, after waiting for two days dickering with her home ports staff regarding the efficiency of her lifeboats, this morning put back into her docks and is now discharging her passengers, having abandoned the trip. The crisis came this morning when a tender drew alongside with two hundred and fifty non-union firemen to take the places of the regular men, who refused to go back to work because the company wouldn't discharge so-called "blacklegs" who did not walk off with the majority. Seamen jumped from the decks of the liner to smaller boats declaring that they neither would serve on the same steamer with "blacklegs." The Olympic appealed to his Majesty's cruiser, Cochrane, for assistance; and officers and marines who came aboard warned the striking sailors that they, having signed for voyage, were guilty of mutiny. Nevertheless, they refused to return to the Olympic and were placed under arrest. All Southampton is much excited and riots are anticipated.

Three hundred first and second class passengers of the steamer offered to replace the striking firemen, but the commander declined the offer with thanks.

EVIDENCE IN NESBITT CASE

Special to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, APRIL 26. — The big fight by Dr. William Beattie Nesbitt, to avoid being taken back to his own country for trial was commenced this morning before United States Federal Commissioner Foote. Nesbitt's lawyers declared before starting that if Commissioner Fote ordered Nesbitt's extradition, they would fight the order on habeas corpus writs to the last. The chief evidence presented against Nesbitt after his formal admission of identity was the affidavit of William R. Travers, the convicted manager of the bank to the effect that Nesbitt signed false statements to the Minister of Finance, WELL knowing them to be false. Other affidavits corroborated this. It is expected the evidence and argument will take all day.

SAYS DISTRESS SIGNALS WERE VISIBLE FROM THE "CALIFORNIAN"

Wireless Operator on Allan Liner Says He Saw Rockets From the "Titanic"—Startling Affidavit Read Before the Senate Investigation Committee To-day.

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., APRIL 26.—There was a startling announcement before the Titanic Investigating committee to-day in the form of an affidavit by Ernest Gill, the wireless operator on the Liner California, who swore that distress rockets were plainly visible from the deck of the California and must have been seen by the bridge and lookout. Gill says he tried to organise a deputation of the crew to go up to protest to the captain for not turning aside to render assistance, but the crew were afraid of losing their jobs, so the vessel passed on without trying to give assistance.

Refused to Jump.

WASHINGTON, D.C., APRIL 26.—Before the Titanic Investigating committee to-day, Evans, one of the Titanic sailors, said that some of the women were not saved because they would not jump into the boats from the ship's rail. There were others, too, who feared to have themselves let down by the ropes, and still others, as already stated, who declined to leave their husbands.

To Receive Bodies.

HALIFAX, APRIL 26.—Hundreds of relatives of missing people from the Titanic disaster are here on sorrowful work of reaching the bodies of the loved ones and attending to proper burial. The White Star Line has purchased large blocks in both Roman Catholic and Protestant cemeteries here, where bodies of both identified and unidentified may be buried in sacred ground.

The business men of Peterborough and every clerk behind the counter with ambition to increase his efficiency, will be accorded the opportunity of gaing something worth while on Tuesday evening next, April 30th, on the occasion of the monthly dinner of the Peterborough Ad Club, when Mr. Fritz Kuhn, of Ottawa, will deliver an address on "Why Advertising Does Not Pay Without Store Service."

Mr. Kuhn is secretary of the Ottawa Ad Club, and is an expert on advertising and store management, at which business, in an advisory capacity, he is engaged.

Amongst other business transacted last evening the Ad Club brought under way a plan whereby more pride and loyalty to Peterborough institutions will be instilled into the minds of Peterborough citizens.

"DEALERS IN WHITE WOMEN"

Series of Feature Films Approved by Clergymen to be Shown at the Red Mill

NEWS THIS ANNOUNCEMENT

The management of the Red Mill Theatre introduces to the people of Peterborough to-day a series of films that mark the beginning of a new departure in the moving pictures business in this city.

To-night's feature is a specially timed film of 4,000 feet, entitled "Nick Carter in Paris." The chief interest in this film, apart from the almost natural colours secured, is the idea it gives the audience of the methods of the celebrated Apaches of Paris, that band of criminals who have made sections of the French city noted for their crimes.

Taken in Streets of Paris.

Nick Carter is an American detective, who is on the trail of "Zigomar," a leader of a band of Apaches. The action of the film takes place in the streets of Paris, and the audience is given an intimate idea of the streets in the gay capital. The rapid disguises of Carter are also shown in his tracking the gang, and in one minute he is compelled to make no less than twelve quick changes. This film has a strong moral lesson, and attracted large crowds to-day.

It takes a little more than an hour to present it, and holds the interest of the audience throughout. "Nick Carter" is the first of a series secured from Mr. Jack Martin and herein lies the principle feature of these films.

Booked Ahead Like a Company.

Ordinarily, films are received from exchanges, but Mr. Martin purchased from the makers in Europe, the rights to a series which are to be exclusively presented at the Red Mill. The route for their presentation is planned in the same manner as that of a dramatic company.

"Nick Carter in Paris" was shown for three solid weeks at a Yonge St. theatre in Toronto. They go through this district, covering all the main towns and cities, and one particular house secures sole right to them in each city. The Red Mill has been fortunate in this respect, but it is only a mark of the progress and thoughtfulness of Mr. Clayton that they were secured for Peterborough. They can be best judged by seeing them. "Nick Carter" will be shown for the rest of this week, but beginning on Monday next there will be three changes each week.

The White Slave Trade.

"Dealers in White Women" is a record-breaking series, to be begun on Monday next. It is an exposal of the "white slave" traffic, and has been given the sanction of prominent clergymen in England, United States and Canada. Rev. Dr. Shearer of Toronto, has endorsed its presentation. The film teaches a great moral and its attractive feature is not in the story it tells but in the advice it quietly tells to young people, and to the old as well. It is an education to parents and young people, alike.

The Methods of the Mormons.

One section of this series is entitled "An Exposal of the Mormons," The films were taken in England, and illustrates the methods which have been attributed to Mormon representatives in their work in various countries. Mr. Martin states that this film has aroused great interest wherever shown and was strongly objected to by Mormon leaders.

This film is 17,000 feet long (nearly five miles) and will be presented in a series, just like a serial story. To get the good out of the whole story you must begin with the first pictures on Monday or Tuesday, and continue as each change is made, every second day. The same characters appear through this entire series.

This is something Peterborough people have never had the opportunity of seeing. It is a real drama in picture form, and having seen one section no one will miss the others. This is one of the strongest of the feature films purchased by Mr. Martin.

"The Death Ship," or "At the Mercy of the Sea," will be shown here in a short time. It is in memory of the awful "Titanic" disaster, although not taken from it.

How They Were Secured.

The reason these are not purchased by the big film exchanges is that they were prepared at great expense, and the exchanges having to buy a certain number of ordinary films every week from producers, which they send out as a regular service through out the whole country, it is not to be expected that they would purchase these and throw away films which they have to buy from makers with whom they have contracts. Mr. Martin steps in and buys a series and takes them through the country. They are more expensive than the ordinary films, but Mr. Clayton believes the Peterborough people want the best in motion pictures, and did not think of expense when he arranged for them.

Admission to the Red Mill will be the same, and the theatre began today to open at 9 a.m., and runs until 11 p.m. Ladies are recommended to attend the special matinee for them in the afternoons.

It is felt that this interesting series dealing with modern day questions and problems, will bring out many of those who have but a slight acquaintance with the extent to which the moving picture business has developed.

FOR HOME RE-UNION

Project to Advance Transportation to Ready Families Meeting With Approval of Merchants

ADVISORY BOARD FORMED

The Imperial Home Reunion Association, which was launched here a short time ago, in meeting with the approval of the business men of the city. They favour the immediate promulgation of the scheme, a desire which, in all probability, will be met with, now that the matter of forming an Advisory Board has been satisfactorily disposed of.

Before an application for assistance will be considered, it will have to have the approval of the Advisory Board. This the applicants can secure by filling out to the satisfaction of the Board, the necessary blanks, which are furnished for that purpose, in addition to furnishing first-class references as to character. The applicant's employer is also asked to fill out a form, testifying to the reliability of the applicant. This is done in order that the guarantors may be protected, and to satisfy the Association as to the genuineness of the applicant.

How it Works in Calgary.

The project has worked very successfully in the western cities, and more especially in Winnipeg and Calgary. An extract from the latter reads as follows:

The Imperial Home Reunion association considered four applications for assisted passages last evening, and in two cases assistance will be granted. This will mean an addition to Calgary's population of 11 more people, making a total of 62 assisted passages brought about by the association since it commenced operations.

It will be readily seen how Peterborough can be benefitted by such a scheme, as there are between seventy-five and one hundred breadwinners in the city, who send away a sum of money, sufficient to guarantee the support of their families in the old land, semi-monthly. The amount usually averages ten dollars. If these wage-earners were assisted by paying the transportation of their families so situated, the city's population would be augmented, and a valuable asset would be secured.

The system in giving assistance is that the applicant makes a small cash deposit or gives a security and pys the amount of the balance in monthly instalments.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, who is chairman of the Advisory Board, states that steps are being taken to have the scheme put into operation by the first of May. This will insure a large number of families being added to the city's population by June 1st.

OPENING OF THE NAVIGATION SEASON

It's canoeing time again.

Navigation on the Otonabee River was officially opened a few days ago by the arrival of the steamer Geneva from Gores landing. The river near Wolf st. wharf bore a number of canoes and skips this morning, and many more who had the navigation fever sat on the edge of the wharf and gazed wistfully at their more fortunate (?) fellow-creatures who possessed sufficient courage to venture out into the swollen stream.

In one instance a man of ponderous proportions sat at the stern of the boat, bare-headed, and with his sleeves rolled up. He was probably getting his foundation coat of tan for the coming summer. Another fever-stricken youth lolled luxuriously on the cushioned bottom of a scarlet red canoe, while he propelled himself over the choppy waters, with an air of indifference, that could only be credited to an experienced sailor.

Activity among the rivermen is to be beginning to assert itself in no unmistakable manner, and this morning the sounds of the hammer re-echoed on all sides. Old boats are being rejuvenated, and new boats are having their seams tightened up in addition to receiving their final coat of paint.

A number of boats, particularly the launches, take to the water like a submarine, and it is several days before the dry timbers become saturated enough to close the cracks, which are responsible for this condition. An instance of this was reported a few days ago, when a twenty-five foot launch was placed in the water for the first time this year. The craft took the water at 10.30 a.m. and by noon was entirely submerged.

BODIES OF CHAS. M. HAYS AND JOHN J. ASTOR RECOVERED

Word Received This Morning From Sydney Says "Healthy-Summer" and "Minia"—Other Bodies Seen on Iceberg.

FOUND TO DEATH

Special to The Examiner:

HALIFAX, N.S., APRIL 26.—Word was received this morning from the marine chiefs MacKay-Bennett and Minia that the bodies of Charles M. Hayt, John Jacob Astor and Isador Straus have been recovered and identified. It is presumed they have been embalmed and are being brought to port. From the wireless station at Table Island it was reported that an unknown steamer had sighted a huge iceberg floating southward with a dozen dead bodies with life belts on, lying on it. It is thought these victims crawled up on the berg, only to be frozen to death. No attempt was made to take them off.

RESIDENCES WORTH ABOUT $2,000 WANTED

Real Estate Man Says Demand is Brisk For These Rather Than Those of Higher Price

MOVEMENT IS GOOD

"We want a few more houses that will sell at about $3,000 or thereabouts," said a real estate man to the Examiner this morning.

"There are people," he continued, "who want to buy homes, but they do not want to go as high as three or four thousand dollars, and still they want a modern home with the present day improvements. If I had more of this style of houses right now I could sell them, for the demand for them is much greater than is the present enquiry for the more expensive dwellings. I would think that if some one were to open up a district as was done in the west ward, and erect buildings a little less elaborate, but comfortable and well put together, houses that would sell for about $1,800 or $2,000, I believe these would be quickly disposed of.

"The demand for more expensive houses is just normal. There are quite a few enquiries, but there is a greater number looking for residences that will suit the ordinary purse."

DRUG COMPANY PLANS TWO LARGE BUILDINGS

Will Sell Present Property on Wellington Street, West

TORONTO, APRIL 26.—The National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada has decided to erect, at the corner of Beverley an dPhoebe streets, two five or six-storey, reinforced concrete buildings, to cost in the neighbourhood of $200,000. They will sell their present property at 378 Wellington street west, near Bay street, the brick and stone building, on which was erected, four years ago, a five-storey structure, it has a frontage of 60 feet on Wellington, and a flankage of 170 feet, and is valued, roughly, at $115,000.

The Company's new plants will be the most modern in America. Before approving of the plans members of the firm will visit Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles and St. Louis, where the most up-to-date drug manufacturing plants and warehouses are to be found.

The National Drug & Chemical Company is entirely Canadian.

The company has branches in every place of importance in Canada and employs 600 hands in addition to the 75 travelling salesmen, who cover the Dominion from coast to coast.

Mr. W. W. Ball died yesterday the Company's business had outgrown the existing plant. He could not disclose the name of the prospective buyer of the Wellington St. property.

These changes are necessitated by the increase in general business and especially the tremendous development of the NA-DRU-CO Department which is located in Toronto.

GREATEST PREMIUM EVER OFFERED THE PUBLIC

The Examiner Has Made Arrangements for Supplying Peterborough With a $4.00 Dictionary for Less Than Quarter This Amount

BONA-FIDE VALUE AT LIGHT COST

The Examiner takes proper pride in the Dictionary Premium proposition which it offers to the people of Peterborough and vicinity, because it is truly beneficient in scope and influence, and the terms are so philanthropic in fact.

There is nothing sensational in this deal except the story of it and the unparalleled conjunction of so much bonafide value with so little cost. The Funk & Wagnalls Dictionary is STANDARD. Its publishers have every right to the use of that word STANDARD on the title page and in their advertising. It is theirs by preemption and registration. It is theirs by popular concession. It is theirs by verdict of the World's Best Scholarship. They paid more than One Million and One Hundred Thousand dollars to make it Standard—more than any other Dictionary ever cost. They had the continuous co-operation for years of a great body of specialists—227 all told—in their gigantic effort to produce the only really STANDARD DICTIONARY of the English language in all the World.

As a result—it is the most marvelous product of man's brain, and the printing press. From it, by careful abridgement, and at careful expense of labour and care, has come this "Comprehensive Standard" work which the Examiner was enterprising enough and fortunate enough to obtain—sufficient copies of it, each book a worthy representation of the royal mother-book itself, in contents, in print and binding, in every feat.

Added to the dictionary parts of their extraordinary plan, so admirable in their presentation of about 25,000 words and terms, and with their exclusive features as to definition, comprehensive and discrimination, are nearly all other parts which alone are worth far more than the store nominal charges made for this book. In these you will find a complete world's atlas, in finely coloured maps that show every state in the union, and every country on the globe; the census of 1910, in a compact form duly edited by business men; and a mass of miscellaneous information, encyclopedic in its character, not found in any other dictionary and not elsewhere conveniently assemble in any single volume.

If you have an unabridged dictionary of any kind, you need this in your home or your office, in the school-room, as a business every-day convenience, a handy educator. If you get this you will seldo need the larger. For this is a 1912 production, and it is a live book, with live words to it. 2,500 of which are the newest in use. And one of its merits is that young and old can study it without peril to their eyesight. It is intensely clear and readable as it is externally elegant and inviting. Think of getting a book of such character, size and elegance for merely six cents, plus, and 35 cents to pay for its handling and transportation! Or if you don't think of it, you should—and will be forever glad later if you do.

A FITTING TRIBUTE.

Yesterday, from 11.30 to 11.35 every wheel of every train of every industry, and every hand of every employee of the Grand Trunk Railway System, stood still, or was withheld, out of respect to the memory of the late Charles M. Hayes, President of the Company, who went down in the Titanic. This is to be regarded as the greatest tribute ever paid to a private individual, and in Mr. Hayes' case, especially fitting. The whole Grand Trunk System might well stand still as a tribute to the man, but for whose work the system might, in a real, active sense, have been standing still altogether. He took charge of the road when it was in a moribund condition and galvanized it into life, brought to its present prosperous condition. The value of President Hayes' services to the Grand Trunk is shown in part by the statement of Chairman Smithers, of the Board of Directors:

"Every bridge has been rebuilt. Heavier rails have been laid. The big bridge over the St. Lawrence, at Montreal, has been rebuilt to more than double the capacity of the old bridge. The bridge at Niagara has been rebuilt. The St. Clair tunnel has been electrified. The gradings have been cut down. The line from Montreal to Chicago has been double tracked. The old 20 to 25-ton cars have been nearly all superseded by modern 30 to 50-ton cars".

This helps the public to realize what the great work of Mr. Hayes has been in the interests of Canada, a realization that will be deepened when his services in connection with a greater work are remembered—the Grand Trunk Pacific.

CANADA'S DAIRY INDUSTRY.

The census records of butter, cheese and condensed milk produced in Canada in 1910, as enumerated last year, show that there were 3,625 factories in operation. The quantity of butter made in the year was 80,675,807 pounds, having a value of $15,622,564. This is 23,818,256 pounds more than in 1900, and the value is more by $8,441,592. The quantity of cheese is 281,212,726 pounds, which is more than at the previous census by 10,179,269 pounds, but the value is less by $630,776. The total value of butter, cheese and condensed milk in 1910 was $30,142,989, and in 1900 it was $20,731,322, being an increase of $9,411,167 in ten years.

Taking butter alone the value of the factory product was $7,240,972 in 1900, and $15,622,564 in 1910, and the value of cheese alone was $22,232,420 in 1900, and $21,630,654 in 1910. The average price of factory butter was 20 cents per pound and of cheese 16 cents per pound, whilst in 1900 the average price of butter was 25.2 cents per pound and of cheese only 9 cents per pound.

Taking the production by provinces, Quebec easily takes the lead in factory butter, with 34,625,000 pounds in 1911, valued at $4,846,750, a falling off from 1910, when the production was 37,346,107, of the value of $5,228,345, while Ontario, in 1911, produced 13,699,153 pounds of factory butter, worth $3,462,171, as against, in 1910, a production of 7,559,548, worth $1,927,966. But in the matter of cheese Ontario "gets in her work". In 1911, Ontario produced 42 million pounds more than all the provinces combined. Ontario's cheese product in that year was 151,927,612 pounds, of a value of $13,440,927.

A DECIDED DIFFERENCE.

The Toronto World chides the Examiner, says it has no faith in public ownership. The World and its maker, Mr. W. F. Maclean, M.P., have been in their bonnet in the matter of public ownership and sundry other matters, which they exalt to the first place of importance, the only things worth striving for and all are anathema maranatha who do not bow down in grovelling worship of the fetish.

The World is much mistaken, does the Examiner so intimate, in asserting that "the Examiner is another Liberal paper that has no faith in public ownership." It quotes in support of its charge an article in Saturday's issue showing that the taxes of [illegible], under municipal ownership and others like rate—municipal management. And not being able to say as what the World claims this hydro-electric system has done—"cut the rates all over Ontario in two." It was shown that in Orillia, not only were the rates not cut in two, but they were maintained at as high a rate—and in some cases higher—as electric service was given in Peterborough under a "monopolistic" private corporation; and it was shown that not only was that the case, but that even with such high rates the municipality had had to rather sharply advance the rates in order to close the gap between selling price and price of production.

This condition justifies and emphasizes the position the Examiner has consistently taken. It has never opposed public ownership per se, but it has criticized and doubted, and still doubts, with good warrant, the success of municipal operation of public utilities. The Examiner supported the acquirement by the city of the Water-works, which has been fully justified, because its operation was kept free from a condition of municipal management that would have, as it has done elsewhere in respect of public utilities, resulted in failure. The Peterborough Water-works are owned by the city, but managed by a commission, with satisfactory and profitable results; excellent water service at very reasonable rates, something that would not have resulted if the Water-works had been under municipal management.

The Examiner is not opposed to the public ownership of public utilities; but it has always differentiated strictly between municipal ownership and municipal operation—one is good, the other is bad—in practise and outcome.

That is the head and front of the Examiner's offending; that is all the excuse the World has for charging it with being an enemy of public ownership. The Examiner has as much solicitude for, stands as stoutly for, the public interests as the World, which seemingly assumes the sole interest in, the exclusive championship of, public rights. There are a few persons, there are a few newspapers, that have some interest in, and some share in, promoting the public welfare. They are not justly condemned by the World because they refuse to accept an exaggerated paternalism, the public ownership and operation of everything from a milk route to a transcontinental railway. The World should recognize reason; should recognize that public or municipal ownership of public utilities is one of the easy things, easily possible of success; but that municipal operation is one of the difficult things, easily impossible of successful application as we have had, and are having every day demonstrated. There's a decided difference in the two things.

AN ALIEN'S TRIBUTE.

"There's something in the British after all." Apropos of the wreck of the Titanic, these verses of Bertrand Shadwell of Washington, are worth recalling:

When the seas demand their tribute and a British ship goes down,
There's something in the English after all;
There's no panic-rush for safety where the weak are left to drown,
For there's something in the English after all;
But the women and the children are the first to leave the wreck,
With the crew in hand as steady as a wall,
And the captain is the last to stand upon the sinking deck,
So there's something in the English—after all.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., NEW YORK.

FEEBLE-MINDED INCREASING FASTER THAN NORMAL PEOPLE

Says Dr. Helen MacMurchy in Report to Government—Declares Institution Care is Only Way to Stop the Evil in This Province.

"The feeble-minded are increasing with alarming rapidity and more rapidly than normal people.

"It is estimated that about one hundred children are born of feeble-minded women in Ontario every year.

"There are not less than 2,000 idiots, imbeciles, and feeble-minded persons in Ontario, and probably these 4,000. The Orillia institute can take care of about 300. The rest was ignored."

These are some of the startling statements in Dr. Helen MacMurchy's report to the Provincial Secretary's Department on "Feeble-minded in Ontario." The appalling fact is, says Dr. MacMurchy, that the children of feeble-minded parents are themselves feeble-minded.

Dr. MacMurchy recommends: That a register of feeble-minded persons, especially feeble-minded children, should be prepared forthwith.

That legislation should be passed enabling the Province to protect, care for and control the feeble-minded.

"Institution care," says Dr. MacMurchy, "is the only way to deal with the feeble-minded. Farm colonies with industrial and agricultural training and employment are most successful. The cost of these should be partly borne by the municipalities.

"It is necessary to refuse entrance to undesirable immigrants," says the report. "And if, if possible, more assistance and no access to the feeble-minded who perpetuate and save which either one prevent them from wrecking their own lives and bringing to the world unfortunate Canadian citizens more feeble-minded and unfit in body and mind than they are themselves.

"Persons who are feeble-minded should be under the control of the State, the most should be made of their working powers to maintain them in comfort and the balance, if any, in default of their relatives being unable to pay it, should be borne partly by the municipality where they and their families have resided and partly by the State.

"It is now universally agreed that the place to attack this problem is in childhood and school life. As soon as the child comes to school his mental capacity reveals itself.

"Feeble-minded children should not be adopted. It would be a wicked thing to receive from a good family home an application for a child for adoption and abuse the confidence of the foster parents by placing in that home a child destined to disappoint all their hopes and harm the other children in that home and community."

"TITANIC" INVESTIGATION BY "SENATORIAL LANDLUBBERS"

(Montreal Herald.)

The Titanic survivors, after a wreck happening on the high seas, chanced to be brought to a port of the United States of America. That is the sole visible basis in law for the extraordinary inquiry which is now being conducted by a committee of United States law-makers endowed with an almost incredible ignorance of maritime matters. If the Titanic's passengers had gone ashore on one of the Fiji Islands it would have been just as logical and proper for the wreck to be investigated by the local medicine men.

The Titanic was a British ship, belonging to British owners, and she foundered in mid-Atlantic. The Washington committee, if duly appointed under statute of the United States, has doubtless the legal right to hold witnesses and examine them under oath, no matter what their nationality may be or how remote from American waters was the occurrence under investigation. The Canadian Parliament could legally apoint a committee to inquire into the prevalence of lynching in the United States, and call upon all American citizens within the Dominion to give evidence. It would be a horrible nuisance and do nobody any good, but it would be perfectly legal.

Nobody has raised any particular objection to this inquiry by Senator Smith and his fellow-landsmen. The reasons for that are numerous. The White Star Line itself could not possibly adopt the attitude of objecting to any inquiry, without seeming to be afraid of the investigation itself and not of the manner of its conducting. There was a reason for prompt action in the fact that most of the witnesses were bound to separate and spread over the face of the earth, so that it would be hard to get them together again. The presence of all parties in New York would have been a great advantage to a genuine marine court, but Senator Smith and his colleagues threw away that advantage by the preposterous amateurism of their questioning and their extreme and obvious "parti pri." With that sublime self-confidence which distinguishes the politician from the statesman, they did not even associate with themselves an advisory board of professional maritime experts, but went at the matter with the assumption that a man who had attained to the United States Senate could have nothing more to learn of any branch of industry. And some of their questions would have made a deck-swab weep!

Fortunately their incompetency has been so obvious that their enquiry is not likely to do any positive harm, while the real, serious inquiry to be conducted in England by maritime experts should be productive of enough information to correct any false impressions produced in Washington. Sober-minded persons will do well to wait until the whole matter has been probed and passed upon by men who know their business.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Government of Saskatchewan is pushing a dry farming propaganda. We are something ahead of them in Ontario, with two-thirds of the province under local option, we have too much "dry" farming to suit some thirsty agriculturists.

The local option people of Toronto have exercised the option of abandoning the submission of local option to the vote of the city of Toronto. Toronto may be "the good," but the optionists with, all the enthusiasm born of a good cause and past success, consider it too hard a nut to crack. Toronto is a big and growing city; it has reached the hobbledehoy stage of advance to metropolitan honours—like the gawky youth of 16 or 17, who considers himself all sufficient and thinks it an assertion of manhood to pull a pipe and toss off a beer. He resents any interference with his personal liberty.

In the death of Justin McCarthy, Ireland loses one of her greatest sons. He was, says the London Advertiser, an ornament of the British House of Commons for many years, and compelled the respect and admiration of his bitterest political opponents by his dignity, character and moderation. It was he who induced Edward Blake to enter the British Parliament. He was in the front rank of of English letters, and will be the best remembered by his "History of Our Own Times." There is no better chronicle of the Victorian era. It is written with singular impartiality and literary charm.

"I charge you," said Mr. J. S. Willison, at the Toronto St. George's dinner, "to hold in some respect and honour the French-Canadian Liberal who fought the pioneer battle for a Canadian contribution to the Imperial Navy." The man to whom he alluded was Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The method which Mr. Willison's paper adopted for showing respect and honour was to ally itself with those who most bitterly opposed Sir Wilfrid in that pioneer battle, and to aid them to wreak their vengeance by striving him from power. The sentiment, says the Montreal Herald, is an admirable one; all that it needs is living up to.

A LAURIER VINDICATION.

Rt. Hon. Lewis Harcourt, the colonial secretary, announced in the British House of Commons recently that as a result of the resolution passed by the last Imperial conference upon the motion of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, asking for the repeal of certain favoured-nation treaties, which hamper the fiscal freedom of the self-governing Dominions, "negotiations had been going on for some time, and the Dominions had already been released from treaties with Mexico and Sweden."

That is good news, and so far as it goes a vindication of Sir Wilfrid; but what will the new government do? When in opposition they declared that the cancellation of these treaties was impossible and unnecessary. Will they accept the change, or will they ask that the old treaties be restored? — Ottawa Free Press.

Collections will be taken to defray the general expenses.

All who desire delegates will be held in the Park St. Baptist Church.

GARBAGE COLLECTION WILL START ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

The first collection of garbage to take place under the by-law will be on Wednesday next, May 1st, when the following route will be covered by the wagons, starting at 8 a.m.: All the hotels, fruit and fish stores and restaurants in the district lying between Smith and Dalhousie and Reid and the river; the premises on Charlotte, Simcoe, Hunter and Brock between Water and Aylmer, and Aylmer from Charlotte to Murray.

POINTS TO MAKE A NOTE OF.

The refuse must be deposited in boxes or barrels of convenient dimensions, that is, of a size that can be handled easily.

Garbage cans, with tight-fitting lids, are recommended as more sanitary than barrels or boxes.

The garbage, that is, waste food, peelings, vegetables, etc., must be kept in a receptacle by itself, and not be mixed with the ashes and other refuse.

The receptacles must be placed in a convenient position for the collector to remove and empty them.

All ashes and other refuse accumulated during the winter months should as far as possible be removed before Wednesday next.

In any case the collector will only take refuse and ashes accumulating from May 1st.

Babies Have Itching Eczema

Itching, almost constant and well-nigh unbearable itching, is the marked symptom of eczema. The direct cause is usually friction or irritation of the skin. In babies the trouble often arises from infrequent changing of napkins.

Until you have used Dr. Chase's Ointment in a case of eczema you can scarcely realize the relief which this treatment affords. Gradually the sores are cleaned up and healed, and a new, smooth skin replaces that which has been irritated and diseased.

By keeping Dr. Chase's Ointment at hand, along with the bath soap and using it whenever chafing or irritation appears you can keep baby's skin in perfect condition, save him much suffering and yourself much anxiety.

PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE IN DANGER

The Examiner was informed to-day on good authority that the Pigeon Creek Bridge was in a dilapidated condition, due in a large measure to the buffetting received by the ice. The bridge has been closed to traffic for several days, and is likely to remain so for some time to come. Large sections of the structure may be found floating on the lake, and will later be salvaged as driftwood. The ice on Mud Lake shows little signs of depreciation, and should the wind veer around and increase in velocity, serious damage would undoubtedly result.

It is the consensus of opinion of those interested in the matter that a new bridge will have to be built by the coming summer, as the old structure in its present condition is beyond repair.

SPRING SEEDING COMMENCES.

The Examiner's informant also stated that the farmers of Emily Township are busily engaged in the preparation of the land for the spring crop, and that, weather permitting, spring seeding will be in full blast by the first of next week. The land is drying up rapidly, as also are the roads, and on some of the higher elevations the dust is beginning to assume the form of a measureable quantity.

Fall wheat, clover and other fall crops have emerged from the severe winter undamaged, and it is altogether improbable that any damage will accrue to them by late frosts at this advanced stage of the season.

Chatham Suggests That Auto Fees Be Paid to Municipality

Stratford Council has leased a gravel pit for 10 years for $600. It will secure the broken stone supply from this source.

Woodstock's by-law to build a $75,000 City Hall was defeated by a tie vote, 402 votes each way.

Alviston, Ont., is trying to have a sugar beet factory erected in its limits.

There is a feeling in Chatham that the town should receive automobile fees instead of the government.

The C. P. R. intend to spend large sums in Chatham building a new bridge, freight sheds and making some extensions.

Galt Council may begin the year with an overdraft of $955.

The membership of the Galt Board of Trade has been increased by 300 members. Plans are under way to "boost" the town.

Prince Rupert's public utilities are showing profits. The telephone department shows a profit of $1,147, and electric power plant gives a clear return of $1,469.70 for the past three months. Power may be reduced from 3 to 2 cents per Kilowatt hour.

Before The "Titanic" Disaster

The Hampshire Advertiser, published in Southampton, refers to the sailing of the Titanic, as follows, in their issue on the day following the departure of the ill-fated White Star liner:

Another link in the chain of friendship which unites the two English-speaking races on either side of the Atlantic was forged on Wednesday, when the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. will this summer begin to run a series of Observation Car Services on the Austrian State Railways, through the Tyrol, marks an epoch in the growth of the importance of Canada in the old world. Under a contract with the Austrian State Railways, the Canadian Pacific has arranged to build several observation cars in Austria on Canadian Pacific plans. The design is that of Mr. Waschar, Head of the C. P. R. Angus shops at Montreal, who has made a personal visit to Austria to study local conditions. They will differ slightly from the type as used in Canada, and each car will have platforms at both ends. The cars will be the longest first class cars in Europe. They will have a very spacious interior, and will seat thirty-two passengers. There will be accommodation for a typist, whose services will be at the disposal of the passengers; and an up-to-date library with all the latest magazines, just as on the C. P. R. transcontinental trains; will be among the features of the cars.

Both Austria and the Canadian Pacific Railway will benefit from the consolidation of the new scheme. The attention of vast numbers of travelling Canadians and Americans will be diverted from other parts of Europe to Austria, not only to see that interesting country, but to learn how these Canadian Pacific observation cars fulfil their mission. There will be three observation services to begin with. By arrangement with the Swiss Government, the first of these will run between Zurich and Innsbruck over the Arlberg Route via Landeck. The second will be between Innsbruck and Vienna via Zell-am-Zee and Salsburg. The third will be from Salsburg to Trieste over the

COCOA LOAF

Here's a table dainty that will surely attract at this between-seasons period of the year. To the lightly beaten yolks of three eggs add one and a half cups of water, one teaspoonful of vanilla and one and a half cups of sugar. Beat the mixture again thoroughly. To one and three-quarter cups of flour, add two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-quarter cup of Fry's Cocoa and a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Then sift this mixture into the first. To the whole fold in the whites of the three eggs, stiffly beaten. Cocoa Loaf should be baked in a fairly quick oven for about 25 minutes or half an hour.

As an agreeable finish you may add an icing made of one-quarter cup of Fry's Cocoa, mixed with two cups of confectioner's sugar and two tablespoonfuls of boiling water or cream.

RAILWAY NOTES

The appointment is announced of Mr. F. W. Bergman, Manager of the Chateau Laurier as general manager of all the hotels on the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific systems with headquarters at the Capital. Mr. Bergman succeeds Jno. Hy. Phillips as manager of the C. P. R. Banff Springs hotel in the autumn of 1910 to take over the management of the Chateau, and is conceded to be one of the most capable hotel managers on the continent.

An important railway extension was announced in Stratford recently when the Grand Trunk filed a route map for its main line cut-off through the Ontario Institute for the Blind grounds and across the Grand River to its Tillsonburg branch, a distance of five miles in all. This cut-off will not only open up a large new industrial district, but will also eliminate 20 level crossings around the city of Brantford. A four-span bridge over 300 feet in length will be thrown across the Grand, and the total cost of the work is roughly estimated at $250,000.

Unless one can afford the time and expense of a whaling ship and a voyage into the Arctic, there is no sea-hunting that excels sword fishing off New London, Conn. Really you do not fish for the sword fish—you hunt him; when you find him, you fight him to a finish—his finish or yours. The season is the two adjoining weeks of June and July. In the dawn of morning you sail, or steam, or motor, down the sleeping Thames out into the open sea. By nine o'clock you are anchored in the Sword-belt with two men aloft, in the lookout. They sight a fin, signal and the boat speeds ahead. If the fish is at rest on the surface, it is easy to approach him. He resists the boat with contempt. He dislikes meeting a boat head-on, and he resents being followed, but if you get him crossing under your bow the man in the "pulpit" away forward usually drives a harpoon into him, and then the fight begins. There are 400 feet of cable attached to the iron and a barrel at the other end. No, you do not make him "keep fast to your boat." Mainboard him the minute of the strike, he heads for the open sea. While this one is bobbing the barrel, you may spear another. In fact there have been as many as four barrels afloat from the same boat at one time.

When a barrel becomes comparatively quiet, two men put off in a small boat to fetch the fish. Often at sight of the small boat, the fish revives and makes a last desperate fight for his life. One big fellow in these waters drove his sword through a boat and through the man who was handling it, killing him instantly.

Usually the fighting boats are armoured, having a thin piece of sheet iron along the water line.

The average length of the sword-fish killed here is 10 feet; the average time taken to kill one is three hours, and they are worth in the fish markets about fifty dollars each.

A 30 foot boat with 15 ft. to 18 ft. beam is the usual thing for sword-fishing, and after a few cruises, following and fighting sword fish, the ordinary sports of the sea become tame.

The announcement that the Cana-

Daughters Of Empire Hold Meeting As A Memorial To The "Titanic's" Dead

The regular monthly meeting of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire, 57th Chapter, was held yesterday afternoon in the Armouries. There was a very good attendance, and eight new members were received. Mrs. E. B. Cledg was appointed to attend the annual meeting of the Daughters of the Empire to be held in Toronto shortly. Mrs. Mills was appointed to take charge of the shooting gallery and bowling alleys at the Armouries during the week of the summer fair. Arrangements were completed for the "At Home" to be held on Tuesday next in the afternoon and evening, which, it is hoped, will be largely attended. The members of the 57th Chapter are delighted with the interest that is being taken in the movement and the work that is being done.

The Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire is an organization for the promotion of social and intellectual intercourse, good will and philanthropy among women of British birth in the United States of America.

Many representative women of Canada are enrolled in this splendid organization. There are chapters in five states: New York, New Jersey, California, Florida and North Carolina, with a regent at the head of each.

Mrs. J. Elliott Langstaff, president of the whole organization, called a meeting at the Hotel Victoria, New York, the other day, to discuss means of practical aid to the survivors of the Titanic disaster, and as a memorial to the dead.

Other officers of the organization are: Vice-presidents, Mrs. K. H. M. B. Lapham, Mrs. Frances E. Parker, Mrs. Carl von Pustau; recording secretary, Mrs. James T. Robb; treasurer, Miss C. Grace Hay; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Augustine J. Wilson; hon. president, Mrs. James Bryce; hon. vice-presidents, Lady C. Pardee Clark and Mrs. W. Courtney Bennett.

The directors are Mrs. J. Elliott Langstaff, Mrs. Carl von Pustau, Mrs. Ralph Brydges, Miss Louise Henderson, Mrs. Beverly Betts, Mrs. Fred. S. Goodwin, Mrs. Joyce J. Omemee Man Drowned

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poisons which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stone, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly dissolved when the kidneys and bladder are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

HIGHEST IN 42 YEARS

Mr. L. J. Squair is in the city today from his mill in Lang. Mr. Squair states that he is informed by old residents of Lang that the water is higher in the river there than it has been for the past 42 years. It was thought that Hope's Dam would give away, but so far it has stood the strain. Those who are in the vicinity of the river are hoping that the water has reached its height for this year.

WONDERS AND ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE WIRELESS

First Message Sent From American Liner "St. Paul" a Little Over Twelve Years Ago

NEW YORK, APRIL 26.—Just 12 years and five months had elapsed since the first wireless message was sent from a ship at sea when the ether carried out the news of the Titanic's distress.

This first message was sent from the American liner, St. Paul, to the Needles, November 15, 1899, as she was completing her fifty-second voyage across the Atlantic. A heavy fog wrapped the Isle of Wight when from the land station there this call began to go out at regular intervals:

"St. Paul! St. Paul!"

At 2:45 p.m., when the fog had grown so dense that any observation of the liner would have been impossible, the answer came:

"Yes!"

"Where?" went the second query.

Put News in a Paper.

"Sixty-six nautical miles out," was the reply, and, and from the interchange of messages that followed, Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Trans-Atlantic Times was made up. W. W. Bradfield was its editor and H. H. McClure its managing editor.

To the layman the success of wireless telegraphy has only been assured since Jack Binns sent out the call for assistance from the White Star liner Republic after her collision with the Florida, off Nantucket on January 23, 1909.

Two months after the Republic collision the steamship Horatio Hall was saved in almost the same location. Four other times in that same year ships' companies were saved by aid summoned by wireless, including the rescue of 150 passengers from the steamship Ohio off the Alaskan coast. Not a month—hardly a week—has passed since then without some incident of the same kind, down to the finding of the torpedo boat destroyer Terry on January 9th, last.

Saved Many Ships.

Curiously enough, there have been few of these conspicuous achievements in the neighbourhood where the Titanic met its mishap. More curious still is the fact that the first notable incident in that region was the saving of the Canadian Government's steamship Stanley from the Titanic's fate. The Stanley was in the Straits of Belle Isle when a wireless message from Doctor Grenfell's mission on the Labrador coast warned her of the presence of an iceberg. The Stanley had been brought to when the berg took form out of the fog.

Cruiser Saved From Rocks.

On July 30, 1911, the wireless came to the rescue of the Canadian cruiser Niobe, on the rocks off Cape Sable. A dozen tugs and steamers answered a call for assistance sent out by the Niobe, but before they were needed a turn in the tide lifted it from peril.

The wireless station at Glace Bay, which is two miles from the village of that name on Cape Breton Island, works direct with Clifden, Ireland, a distance of 1,700 miles as its waves travel. It has, however, maintained a communication with Coltano, on the outskirts of Pisa, Italy, a distance of four thousand miles, but so far as its daily radius of communication with ships is concerned, it seldom exceeds six hundred miles.

That is what is known as the "short distance," and vessels equipped only with it are out of "talking" distance with either Clifden or Glace Bay, one-third of their time at sea. "Long distance" installations make "talking" possible over indefinite distances. Communication is frequently attained nowadays up to five thousand miles.

Carry "Short Distance" Equipment.

The White Star boats carry only "short distance" equipment, it was said in New York recently. The Titanic was barely able to "talk" to the mainland, in other words, for when it struck the berg it was 600 miles southeast of Halifax.

William Marconi followed investigation proceedings with lively interest.

"Wireless can't locate an iceberg," the inventor said, "but it can bring assistance to an iceberg's victim, as it has to the victim of every other danger of the sea. Without wireless the Titanic would not have been heard from yet. Without wireless another ship passing two miles away might not have known of her disaster, but with her wireless the Titanic was able to summons vessels two hundred miles away.

Appeal Was Dismissed

The following case of local interest was dealt with in the Single Court at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, yesterday. His Honour Judge Sutherland presided:

Re Port Hope Brewing and Malting Co.—W. R. Smyth, K.C., for Harrison Johnson. D. O'Donnell (Peterborough) for liquidator. An appeal from the report of the master-in-ordinary in a winding-up proceeding, wherein he placed the appellant on the list of contributors of the company. Judgment: Appeal dismissed with costs.

A Presentation

The employees of the Colonial Weaving Co. gathered at the home of Mr. Arthur Dunphy, Aylmer st., on Thursday evening, April 25th, to show their high esteem and friendship toward Mr. Jos. P. Zepp, who has been their superintendent for the last six years. A very handsome travelling bag was presented to Mr. Zepp, and an address read by one of the committee, which is as follows:

Mr. Jos. P. Zepp, Dear Friend:

We as a committee from the employees of the Colonial Weaving Company, where you have been employed until recently as superintendent, we assemble here to-night to show you our esteem and appreciation.

We feel as though we cannot allow you to depart from our midst without showing you by a slight token our appreciation of the admirable and praiseworthy manner in which you have discharged the [illegible] duties appertaining to your position.

As you have worked among us some years, we have learned to respect you and honour you for your faithfulness and the way you have discharged the trying duties which lay before you.

We will miss you very much from among us, and we ask you to accept this, not for its value, but as a slight token of friendship and good feeling and that it will serve as a remembrance of our many friends of the Colonial Weaving Co.'s employees.

We all hope that you may have a long and prosperous life and will gain many friends wherever your position calls you.

With this token on the part of those whom we represent, we wish you health, happiness and prosperity.

THEATRE PARTY.

Members of Marlborough Club Occupied Boxes Last Night.

Twenty-five of the members of the Marlborough Club composed a theatre party at the Grand Opera House last night, occupying the boxes, which were draped in the club's colours, yellow and black. As the members entered the boxes together their presence was acknowledged by the house; and one of the members, not to be outdone, responded with a graceful bow. Two large bouquets of American Beauty were presented by members of the club to the two leading ladies. As a theatre party the little affair was an entire success.

Girl Wanted To Marry Negro Lover

But Smith's Falls Clergyman Was Not In Favour With the Idea

SMITH'S FALLS, ONT., APRIL 25.—Provincial Officer Mackay, of Cobalt, arrived here yesterday to take back the girl, Annie Baker, who came here last week to marry the negro, Levi Arnvine, who was doing a vaudeville turn in a local theatre. Arnvine, when he saw there was trouble ahead, left town hurriedly Saturday night. The girl has since been cared for in the home of Rev. Dr. Stobo, the clergyman who was called to marry the couple, but who refused to do so when he learned that the prospective groom was a negro. Miss Baker, whose home is in Cobalt, was supposed by her parents to be attending Moulton Ladies' College, Toronto, and it was only by accident that they learned she was here. She appears to be completely infatuated with Arnvine, and stated that even though he was coloured and she a white girl she intended to marry him yet. She says she first met him last July while he was playing in her home town and that she loved him from the moment she saw him. She managed to get acquainted with him and when he left Cobalt she wrote to him. One of the letters, however, fell into her father's hands and from that moment the course of her love has run anything but smoothly. Every effort was made by her family to prevent any communication between the two, but in spite of that the girl has managed to elude their vigilance. She claims to be eighteen years of age, but looks much older. She is of large build and is not unprepossessing in appearance. Arnvine is rather good looking and of a finer type than negroes usually are. He is 23 years of age.

BURNED WITH LYE

Zam-Buk Brought Him Relief

Geo. T. Ryall, 452 16th Ave. E., Vancouver, while employed at a soap works, had his foot badly burned in caustic lye. He says: "After three months of ineffectual treatment by doctors, the burn was still an open sore, so I tried Zam-Buk.

"From the very first application this balm brought me relief. The inflammation and poison were drawn from the wound. Then healing commenced. "In a short time new healthy flesh filled in the wound, and my foot was quite sound again. I have proved Zam-Buk for other wounds and injuries, and in my estimation it is the finest healer in existence.'

Masonic Tribute

To Those Who Went Down With the Ill-fated "Titanic"

CHICAGO, APRIL 24. — Fifteen hundred members of Oriental Consistory stood with bowed heads in Medinah Temple last night while they acquiesced in a proposition to join in procuring the most beautiful floral tribute that Chicago might furnish in memory of the Titanic dead.

A great wreath will be shipped to New York today.

The opinion was expressed that all Masonic consistories in the United States will unite in this tribute, literally transporting a shipload of flowers to be cast on the sea.

The wreath will bear the inscription:

$18 IS PRICE OF HAY

Farmers Are Receiving a Good Sum For Their Loads

Farmers have been receiving $18 a load for hay during the past week, which is considerable of an advance over the price they have been receiving. It is not a scarcity in this district that has caused the advance, for there seems to be plenty of it coming in every day. It was said some time last fall that hay would be scarce, but several farmers on the market this morning stated that they had a good supply. The quality of the hay coming in now is declared to be generally good, and each day there is quite a number of loads sold. The farmers get their price in most cases. During the winter farmers received $15 and $16, but of late they have raised it to $17 and $18 and the latter price has predominated. Eighteen dollars for hay is considered a good price.

PETERBORO' IS HEALTHY

Splendid Record, in Spite of Practically Month Dry.—Water Supply Must Be Good

ONLY 3 CASES OF TYPHOID

That Peterborough is just about the healthiest place in the province, as far as typhoid is concerned, is evidenced by the monthly bulletin, issued by the Ontario Department of Health. Out of a list of twenty cities throughout the province this city makes a showing that is far away the best, that the difference is scarcely worth mentioning.

Hamilton and Guelph report a typhoid rate of 24 per hundred thousand; Peterborough comes next with 15 per hundred thousand; London has 17, and the other cities are strung out with Sarnia bringing up the foot of the list with a rate of 147.

For Peterborough, this means that three persons out of the city's population of 30,000 were ill with typhoid.

The showing is most satisfactory, and will undoubtedly stimulate to endeavor the city's health.

The list is as follows—Hamilton 19, Guelph 14, Peterborough 15, London 17, Kingston 23, Stratford 23, St. Thomas 26, Toronto 28, Kingston 36, Montreal 36, Windsor 37, Chatham 39, Brantford 39, Sault Ste. Marie 54, Woodstock 61, St. Catharines 69, Port Arthur 82, Niagara Falls 89, Ottawa 96, Sarnia 147.

Man Mastered By His Business

When a man cannot forget his business when he lays his head on the pillow at night, it is time to consider the condition of his nervous system. Otherwise his business will wreck his future by undermining his health.

For a time he may keep going on stimulants, but if health is to be restored and old-time vigour brought back the nerve cells must be revitalized by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

A few weeks' use of this great food cure will do wonders for any business man or woman whose nervous system has failed to stand the strain. Gradually and naturally the blood is enriched and vigour and energy are restored to mind and body. Appetite is sharpened, digestion improves, you sleep well and again the strength which makes you master of yourself and of your business.

THE COLLECTION OF GARBAGE.

Two experts from New York reported last November on the problem of garbage disposal in Toronto. The recommendations submitted seemed to entail heavy expenditure without commensurate return, and a rather cumbersome system of operation. The experts suggested that every householder should divide his refuse among three bins; one for ashes, one for rubbish, and a third for garbage, or vegetable matter. The first two substances would parade unproductive, but the third would have some commercial value. They calculated that this system would show a profit of $15,000 by the time the population of Toronto reached 500,000 persons. — Toronto News.

One Of The Funny Scenes

Marjorie Newton's Gay "Easter Issue" Causes Amusement in "Excuse Me"

In the issue "Excuse Me" had on the 21st months in New York came to the "Street" and Tuesday, April 23. Marjorie Newton rose away with a young army officer and takes her dog Spookiums, with her and incidentally keeping with the Pullman conductor, regardless of the protests of the porter, who explains:

"The rules says we live stock shall be carried in the steerage car 'cept'n' Sundays."

"Snootiness," retorts Marjorie, indignantly, "is more human than open air."

"Yis'm, Yis'm," asserts the porter, "Snootiness he is, but he can't make up de berths."

And Snootiness rides most of the way in the Pullman. Once Marjorie misses him, and is assured by Lieutenant Mallory, the man she has run away with, that the conductor has thrown the dog off the train. This train is a lightning express, carrying United States mail, running at a speed of a mile a minute, and it is a States' prison offence to stop it. But that signifies nothing to Marjorie. She pulls the bell cord, the engineer puts on the air brakes, and the train is suddenly stopped in a manner that hurls the passengers in all directions. It is a tremendously funny scene, as are all the scenes in "Excuse Me," which is a season of laughter from first to last. Henry W. Savage is sending the farce here with an excellent cast. The play is the biggest laugh maker for the day.

25,000 Motion Picture Houses

In the U.S. and Canada—125,000,000 Feet of Films Used Every Day

Gross earnings of the Eastman Kodak Co. for the year 1911 were $11,649,284. In 1905 they were $4,613,913. In 1911 the company paid 40 per cent. dividends on the common stock. In 1905, it paid 10 per cent.

It is not the manufactures of the kodak instrument alone which has brought about these enormous earnings. They are the result of the astonishing growth of the motion picture business during the past seven years, a monopoly of the manufacture of the best films for which is practically held by the Eastman Kodak Co.

Every motion picture theatre is showing an average of five separate pictures a day.

[illegible] of this is every picture, and as the number of picture theatres has reached the very large total of 20,000 in Canada and the United States, a close calculation will reveal the astonishing totality of 125,000,000 feet of films being used every day for the amusement and education of the public.

Every year, therefore, 45,000,000,000 feet of film are being used in this industry, and the business is growing. All of these films are used over and over again, as they are shown successively in different cities.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

MUTT AND JEFF.

Gus Fisher's heroes, "Mutt" and "Jeff" walked out of the columns of the Examiner and other newspapers onto the stage of the Grand Opera House last night, and for nearly three hours, the large audience was tied into knots of merriment and laughter. It was undoubtedly the funniest attraction of the season; people simply lay back in their seats and laughed until the tears ran down their cheeks. Richard F. Freeman as Mutt and George Edwards as Jeff, in make-up, physical appearance and actions, were life-like imitations of Fisher's creations and this funny pair kept the audience in a hysterical condition all the way through. They had the assistance of a clever cast of musical comedy artists and a vivacious chorus, who sang and danced splendidly. The music was catchy and the dancing specialties above the average, especially the terpsichorean efforts of Lillian Goldsmith, whose acrobatic dancing caught the fancy of the house and who was forced to respond to half a dozen encores. Several of the songs had the gallery whistling merrily. Costumes and scenery were on a par with the all round excellence of the cast and the production was most enjoyable.

LOCAL YOUTH MISSING.

Left Home Yesterday Without Warning.

A local youth, answering to the name of Blanchard, is causing his parents considerable anxiety by reason of his prolonged absence from home. He left the parental roof sometime yesterday and up to three o'clock this afternoon, had not returned. It was first thought that he had gone to Lakefield, but a telephone communication to that burg disposed of this theory. It is now believed that the missing boy is in the city, and that he is being sheltered under the hospitable roof of some of his friends.

HARPS ARE COSTLY.

And So Are Their Fancy Covers and Curious Looking Trunks.

Every harp should have a cover for its protection from dust and dampness, and these covers are made sometimes of canvas or waterproof cloth, but usually, for home use, of custom flannel, of felt or of corduroy. These covering are not simply loose bags to cover the harp, but in each case tailor made to fit the individual harp. Each harp covers cost from $2.50 to $10 each. Costlier harp covers are made of silk of any desired color to harmonize with a room or its fittings and cost perhaps $25 or $40.

New harps of American make, which are said to be the best in the world, cost from $600 to $2,000, while second-hand harps may be bought at $125 and upward.

Most new harps are shipped by their makers in wooden cases which are made to fit. The most costly harps are now shipped in harp plushes, in each case made for them.

Harp owners who do not own a trunk may have one made to order so that the trunk shall fit the harp. Harps weigh fifty to [illegible] five pounds each. A harp trunk weighs about 100 pounds and costs $25. The harp is placed within this trunk in its cover, and the trunk is so padded within as to hold the harp securely. There are made many odd looking trunks for various special uses, but a harp trunk is about as curious looking a contraption as any of them.—New York Sun.

SHRINES IN JAPAN.

Those Within the Guarded Gates of Asakusa Temple.

"Asakusa temple is dedicated to the goddess Kwannon, a tiny image of gold three [illegible] high," writes a traveler on Japan. "At the entrance to the temple grounds on either side of the immense gate stand two large and fearful looking figures, guarding the sacred precincts. Hanging outside the wide, grating open entrance to the sanctuary are 12 they wish to make a wish, and rice in sprinkled about. Many worshipper before entering the temple calls at a small building and, after contributing a small amount, washes his hands and rinses his mouth.

"In front of the main shrine is a large aperture in the floor covered with lattice work, into which the worshipper casts his gift. After clapping his hands to awaken or attract the attention of the god he kneels, but his prayer is only [illegible]. While there is one chief shrine there are many others under the same roof.

"One shrine especially attracted my attention. It was made of wood and quite disfigured and worn through the constant rubbing of hands on the spot corresponding to the afflicted portions of the sufferers' bodies."—Chicago News.

Horseshoes in Turkey.

In many parts of Turkey horseshoes are simply a flat plate of iron with a hole in the middle. An extraordinary method still obtains in portions of the Ottoman empire of shoeing the horse.

The farrier doubles a long rope and knots a loop at the end to about the size of a large horse collar. This is put over the horse's head after the manner of a horse collar, and the knot rests on the horse's chest. The next step is to bring the two ends of the rope between the animal's legs. Each rope then, taken by a man, is fastened on the fetlocks of the horse's legs and brought through the loop in front. Then by a hard, steady pull the hind legs are drawn up to the fore-legs, and the horse falls heavily on its side. All four feet are now tied together by the fetlocks, the horse is propped up on his back, and the farrier sits quietly down beside him, takes off the old shoes and puts on the new.—New York Herald.

What It Really Was.

The district inspector was visiting the school, and as this was an inquisitive event the pupils had been instructed to memorize a verse or two to recite for the entertainment of the visitor.

During the delivery of his verse one small boy was especially noticeable for the action with which he accompanied his item, so noticeable that the inspector complimented him upon the [illegible] with which he spoke and the practice which he must have devoted to the piece.

"It was fine, Johnnie," [illegible] in closing, "and shows a large amount of rehearsal. But how did you learn the gestures?"

"Taint gestures," replied the young genius, with a twist; "it's the hives."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Alike, but Different.

The teacher had the letters c-a-t on the blackboard and was trying to teach little Fanny Prevish to pronounce the word, but Fanny couldn't come it. "Think," said the teacher. "Oh, I know!" exclaimed the little Fanny, a great light dawning. "My papa!"—Galveston News.

The Trial Heat.

"Have [illegible] a week's [illegible] and I have never had a quarrel. Maud—Oh, I think you ought to have one before you are married. Otherwise you can't be quite sure whether you are going to have your own way or [illegible]—Bystander.

"Perhaps there is some particular reason why you are interested?"

"Why, yes—I'm a fat assessor."

"Well, it interested me too."

"You're not a tax assessor?"

"No; I'm a burglar."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Arbitress.

The proprietor of the employment agency was speaking.

"You say you are looking for a job as cook?"

"Yes."

"Well, there's a number of ladies fixed up. They all want cooks and have good references. Look 'em over and see if any of 'em would suit you."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

CLEVER BIRD TRICK.

The Wood Nightjar Has a Way of Openly Concealing Itself.

In his book "A Naturalist In the Guiana," Eugene Andre tells of the tricky manner in which one bird fools the hunters. He says:

"The wood nightjar is a difficult bird to detect during the day. He chooses for perching some mottled stump or branch so closely resembling his plumage that he appears to form part of the bough upon which he is sitting. I suppose that in my wanderings I must have passed quite close to a good many of these large nightjars, yet I must confess that only on one occasion did I get a good opportunity of observing the habits of this bird.

"We had had a morning's duck shooting and were resting in the shade of one of the mangrove trees which line the creeks, when what had appeared to me to be a dry stump jutting out of one of the branches seemed to move slightly. I threw lumps of clay and bits of stick at it, but it did not move until it was actually struck, when, to our surprise, a wood nightjar flitted a short distance away, alighting on a stump similar to the one which he had left a moment before. He immediately fluttered his tail against his neck and assumed an attitude which gave him all the appearance of being part of the stump on which he rested.

"I disturbed him repeatedly, and he invariably followed the same tactics. He always chose an resting place a snag or branch which his plumage resembled, and he took a position so suggestive of a piece of wood that I should certainly have passed him by had I not been watching his movements and seen him alight."

Why the Romans Decreased.

The visiting member of the board of education was examining a class in history, and of one of the brightest pupils he asked the question, "Why did the population of Rome decrease just before the fall of the empire?"

The reply came promptly from a little girl, "Because the Romans had ceased to practice husbandry."

MIDLAND LEAGUE MEETING TO BE HELD TO-MORROW

The Midland Football League will hold its annual meeting at the Y.M.C.A. at 1.30 sharp tomorrow. Representatives from Bowmanville, Whitby, Oshawa, Lakefield, Havelock, Belleney and two Peterborough teams will be present. General business will be gone over, after which the election of officers will take place.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

The Ottawa Citizen last night maintained a press agent's story to the effect that Pitchers Jim McGinley Ted Gather and Wilbert Corey, of the Toronto International League team, had been offered to the Ottawas, and that the Senators had turned the offer down. It was further intimated that McGinley was to go to St. Thomas, Corey to Brantford and Cather to Peterborough. President McCaffery, of the Maple Leafs, however, has denied the story, saying the only pitcher he is going to let go is Parnsen and the Toronto boy with the Leafs who will likely be turned over to London for seasoning.

It begins to look like the opening of the season. Manager Tompkin to-day received a consignment of some of his new men, with which he will shortly be repairing fences around the circuit.

One of Manager Tompkin's daily duties just now is to go down to the river every morning and survey the rolling Otonabee to see if the flood is abating any. So experienced has Old Folks become in this work that he can tell from the top of the Hunter st hill whether or not the river is lower. The ball yard is still under water but the skipper says the flood is receding.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

A local merchant suggested to Manager Cook the other day his intention of offering a suit of clothes to the first Ottawa player knocking out a home run on the home grounds. Louie replied such a premium was all o.k. for the first game, but the best inducement to get the best out of a good hitter was to give a prize for the total bases hit in one game. For instance a box of cigars to the players hitting five bases in one afternoon. That might include a homer and single, a triple and double, or three singles and a double; but it means more to the club in securing runs than the fellow who goes up with the sole object of ripping the cover off the ball.

A prominent sporting goods firm is placing a score board in one of the fields, either left or right, which will contain a record of every game being played in the Canadian league and posted inning by inning. The G.N.W. Telegraph Company announces loops have been placed in all the parks around the circuit so that fans witnessing a game in Ottawa will be kept wised up on all other games. Several of the leading hotels in the city are installing a ticker service.

GUELPH, APRIL 26.—Already the baseball fans of this city are beginning to get excited over the season's prospects. When Manager Matthews and four of his players were seen going down the street yesterday, in uniform, ready for the first workout of the season a big crowd of fans tacked in behind in time to get a look at the new material. Owing to the wet condition of the grounds the players worked out for an hour in the horse arena at the winter fair building, and they made a very favorable impression.

The man that attracted the most attention was Jimmy Neher, the Buffalo crack. One would have thought it was the middle of the season to see him zipp the ball into the mitt of Catcher Daniels, who also looked pretty swift to those who watched him work. Behan, the other pitcher who reported, also showed good form but did not let out as much as Neher. O'Connor caught him and looks good. Manager Needham was also in uniform and will soon get in condition.

Chas. Schumen, the big Buffalo wirler, who finished the season here last year, arrived at six o'clock tonight. The big fellow looks fine and says he is already in fair condition. The local fans were certainly glad to see him. Mason will not report till Monday next, but Orth will be in to-morrow.

Work on the diamond will be commenced at once, and it will not be said this year that Guelph has the worst grounds in the league.

BRANTFORD, APRIL 26. — John Fisher, M.P., who was appointed a patron of the local baseball team, has written from Ottawa, stating that it is his wish to donate a ten-dollar gold piece to the first player on the Brantford team making a home run on the home grounds, in a league match. Mr. Fisher closes by expressing the hope that the Brantford team will lead the championship this season. Needless to say, this handsome offer has been gratefully received and accepted.

It is more than likely that a feature of the local ball season this year will be interesting rivalry among the players for just such prizes as Mr. Fisher has donated so generously. Several local merchants have asked for suggestions as to what prizes should be given.

RIGHTS OF STEEL.

Ontario's Wheat Belt Must Be Viewed From Up.

"The great republic are based on conventions under which control is supplemented control of a power over the other. Thus Canada's future lies in the writer's mind as an arbitrator upon examination of the natural wealth and resources of Northern Ontario, so far as one small human being could cover a subject with a professional retort including judicious sense of good agricultural lands. What was stated is fully circulated in the lengthy report which will be published shortly by the Toronto Board of Trade. A few little stories as to the gathering of the information may prove interesting, says Fred W. Field in Toronto Star Weekly.

One of the most striking personalities met in Ontario's Northland was a mining speculator and. The first acquaintance was made at one of Haileybury's hotels, upon the beautiful lake. Dressed in a loud suit of the most approved racetrack pattern; a soft felt hat, the latest from New York; with an elegant gold-mounted cane, which he was flourishing as a bandmaster does his baton, the man, who weighed surely two hundred pounds, had a line of hotel officials in front of him whom he was denouncing with great gusto. The subject of complaint was the fact that he had not been awakened at the desired hour. Desk clerks, call boys, chambermaids were commanded to appear, one after the other, and finally, the hotel proprietor, who smoothed the enraged bumper. It was explained that at least three persons had drummed upon his door at the proper time. "That's no good," he bellowed. "I've got to be pulled out of bed. Good heavens," he added, with even more emphasis, "this north country climate is like chloroform to me."

The same evening some one introduced me to the man, who made his way around Haileybury as a mental, physical, and oratorical cyclone. Learning that it was a mere individual from Toronto whom he had in hand, the mining newspaper man immediately commenced to pour abuse upon Toronto people—all greenhorns. After reciting a list of all the mining camps visited in all the continents of the world, he proceeded to belabor with a long tongue the Haileybury folks, whom he dubbed as knowing only how "to grow potatoes." Then he explained how the mining man ran this world in general and in particular, until a listener interjected a remark to the effect that it was a good thing "somebody stayed at home to grow potatoes." The two hundred pounds of concentrated "hot air" was unconcerted. "Yes," he replied, his next taking on more size. "It's a good job somebody stays around to get food for us empire-builders." The last impression of this human whirlwind was that Haileybury would soon get tired and he would seek new fields for empire-building.

Remembering the "cushioned luxury" proverb, the writer went from North Bay to Temiskami in a freight train's caboose. Judging from the silence of the conductor, the passenger was regarded as a suspicious character. When a notebook was seen, however, he inquired if the country was being written up, and obtaining an affirmative reply, his face brightened and he got a promise to have copies of the articles sent to him. Which only shows that a man's chief interest is often and should be in the country in which he lives. At milepost 17, a French-Canadian sectionman is looking after the track and practicing the Boomerangian theory in the matter of families. He, a widower with nine children, married a widow with eight children; total seventeen. Milepost 17 is just out of North Bay, and our silent conductor gravely wondered what would happen if the sectionman moved to milepost 24.

Railroad Plans.

Railway construction and extension work such as the world has never seen in a similar period of time will be undertaken in western Canada as soon as the winter breaks. It is estimated that the Canadian Pacific, the Grand Trunk Pacific, and the Canadian Northern will spend during the coming summer months no less than $100,000,000 in extension work.

Owing to the enormous increase in coal traffic at the Canadian head of the lakes, the Canadian Pacific proposes to install a modern coal-handling plant at Fort William, a new 25,000-ton freight shed and a new dock for lake shipments. The great grain elevator will be increased to a capacity of 9,000,000 bushels. The company intends to pursue actively its policy of double-tracking.

The Grand Trunk Pacific will spend $20,000,000 this year for construction both of branch lines linking up the principal towns of Alberta and Saskatchewan, and of part of the main line to Prince Rupert. It is expected that only 200 miles of main line will remain to be completed in 1913. East of Winnipeg the main line construction is under the Dominion Government, and it is expected to take two years to connect Quebec and Winnipeg.

The Canadian Northern expects to spend $30,000,000 in western Canada during 1912 for betterments all over the line, new steel bridges, better stations, and new terminals, as well as a number of additional lines into new territory. This company hopes for a future transcontinental system, and will do much building this year west of the Rockies.

Labor Conditions.

There were twelve strikes in existence in Canada during February, affecting about 50 firms and 1,260 employes. The loss of time in working days was approximately 10,000, compared with 12,600 days lost from the same cause during January, and over 20,000 days lost in February, 1911. Eight strikes remained in existence at the close of the month.

According to the record of industrial accidents kept by the Department of Labor, 31 persons were killed and 178 injured during February. In January 39 were killed and 214 injured. In February, 1911, 30 were killed and 197 injured.

SHETLAND'S TAME GULLS.

Each Family Has Its Own Flock and the Children Feed Them.

There are many small villages in the world that have only one street but Lerwick, in Shetland, besides having only a single street, possesses only one tree. There are no birds there—not even a sparrow, but the seagulls are plentiful.

The seagulls are the sparrows of Lerwick, and as such they have a greater share in the town's life than the sparrows of London. In the morning you will note that a seagull sits on every chimney pot. Seagulls swoop and hover over every roof in town. The air is full of their strange, high plaintive, haunting cries.

Every house has its own familiar seagulls and every street its own band of them. But they never mix. The children in each house have a pet name for their own particular seagulls, and having called them by those names, they feed them every day.

Each seagull knows what is meant for him. No bird attached to one house ever seeks to eat the food scattered from the house next door. He does not dare to do so. So all day long the seagulls hover and call over the roofs of Lerwick.

The people of the town, if they come across a little pile of rice laid upon the roadway, step over it with care. They know that it has been placed there for some seagull. And at night the seagulls leave their appointed chimneypots and fly gracefully away to their resting places on the rocks of the Isle of Noss.—Fruit Magazine.

How Fishes Breathe.

By means of their gills fish breathe the air dissolved in water. The oxygen consumed by them is not that which forms the chemical constituent of the water, but that contained in the air which is dissolved in the water. Fishes transferred to water from which the air has been driven out by a high temperature or in which the air absorbed by them is not replaced are soon suffocated. They require aerated water to maintain life and they take it in constantly through their mouths and expel it through their gills, retaining the air. It follows that if the water in a lake should be completely cut off from contact with the air long enough to exhaust the supply of air the fish in the lake would die. It would take a severe and pretty long continued freeze to accomplish this, but it might happen and doubtless has frequently happened with a small body of water.—St. Nicholas.

According to Lawyer Who Says Business is Good

"I have had more business arising out of local real estate deals this spring than ever before," said a lawyer this morning. "I consider that is a good sign. Black Bass Hatchery.

Omemee, April 27.—At a meeting of the Fish and Game Protective Association of Bobcaygeon, it was decided to ask the Government to establish a hatchery for black bass at a central point in Kawartha Lakes. It was claimed that the depositing of four or five thousand fry in the chain of lakes each year was insufficient, considering the rapidly increasing numbers taken out each year by anglers. It was also decided to ask the close season to commence be from December 1 to June 15, both days inclusive each year.

Stratford Carries Four Bylaws.

Stratford, April 27.—Four bylaws were submitted to the property owners of Stratford yesterday, all of which were carried by substantial majorities. A recent amendment to the Ontario Municipal Act calls for a two-thirds majority of votes cast in respect to industrial bylaws, and a straight majority of votes cast in civic measures.

TO SURRENDER DR. NESBITT

Ample Evidence Upon Which to Give Him Up

A "HABEAS CORPUS" WRIT

Chicago, April 27.—U. S. Commissioner Mark A. Foote yesterday ordered the extradition of Dr. William Beattie Nesbitt, wanted in Toronto for the wrecking of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, of which he was president. The commissioner heard depositions of former officials of the bank and arguments of counsel on both sides.

The defence will resort to habeas corpus proceedings at once, according to Attorney Wm. K. Pottinger, counsel for Nesbitt.

Commissioner Foote declared that there was ample evidence that crime was committed by someone when the bank failed.

The testimony taken by the commissioner and the decision will have to go to Secretary of State Knox for final legislation. The Secretary, in accordance with the law, will review the evidence and facts in the case and make the final order for extradition.

Pending this order, Dr. Nesbitt will remain in the Cook County Jail.

Attorney Bulkley, representing Ontario, stated before Commissioner Foote yesterday that the alleged false statements made by Beattie Nesbitt were concerning the paid-up capital stock of the bank, and the amounts loaned by the bank on notes.

Counsel for Dr. Nesbitt, on the other hand, argued that his client was not guilty of any offence, and insisted that in signing the statements referred to, he had merely concurred, as president of the bank, in the statements prepared by trusted officials and that he had no knowledge that the statements were not correct.

He characterized all the circumstances of the arrest and detention of Dr. Nesbitt as a "fit subject for a [illegible]

Counsel for Dr. Nesbitt did not submit evidence to fight the charges of the Toronto authorities, but declared that the offence with which he is charged, is not extraditable, and also attacked the sufficiency of the warrant, asserting that the statute refers to a "willful falsification," while the warrant charges a "fraudulent falsification."

G. T. Clarkson, liquidator, who investigated the affairs of the bank, deposed that the returns were false and misleading as signed by Nesbitt, as to the capital stock and cash paid up by the shareholders. The statement included as item 16 "other assets of 300,000," which were nonexistent for the most part, particularly to the tune of $92,000.

Frank Grierson, a clerk in the finance department, in his deposition, gave it as his opinion that the statements submitted to the Government were false and misleading and professed to destroy.

"Move to strike that out," said the defence. "Grierson is no less than a clerk, and his opinion is no better than that of any other clerk in the finance department. Even in our western country crossroads, this would not be permissible as evidence." But the objection was overruled.

Walter Dunscomb's deposition set forth his position as chief detective of Toronto, the circular offering reward for Nesbitt and the warrant for arrest. This was referred to because the deposition referred to charges which were not before the commissioner.

John R. Cartwright's deposition was respecting Canada law, and that the charges against Beattie Nesbitt were indictable.

Mr. Bulkley analyzed the several amounts submitted in evidence to show fraud, and quoted the Canadian Bank Act, declaring the charges to be well laid on facts.

Speaking of the charges, Mr. Bulkley said the offence charged against Nesbitt is a crime in both the United States and Canada. After quoting from the National Bank Act, showing that any comptroller of currency, who made returns of a false nature in any respects, was guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to five years in jail.

He followed this up with the citation of cases where bank men in the United States had gone to jail for signing inaccurate statements prepared by clerks.

Bank Merger Going Ahead.

Montreal, April 27.—Negotiations are being continued at this end for the merger of the Traders Bank of Canada and the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The parties who have been buying Traders' Bank stock during the past few days are confident that the deal is going through. Representatives of the Traders Bank have been here for some days.

Prince Arthur Coming.

London, April 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It is understood that Prince Arthur of Connaught is obtaining special army leave so he can visit Canada next autumn. He will likely return with Princess Patricia, who will go to Sweden. Princess Patricia is unlikely to visit London till next year, as she will accompany her parents on the Dominion tour.

Wanted in Regina.

London, April 27.—Supt. J. A. Young, of the London Street Railway, who has been offered the superintendency of the Regina municipal railway, will probably accept.

Five in Chatham Theatre.

Chatham, April 27.—About 5.30 yesterday afternoon fire started in the Ophreum Theatre, situated on King street opposite the market square. The fire started in the operating room and it is supposed the films caught fire. The whole front of the theatre was ablaze inside a very few minutes.

The people in the house were successful in getting out before any danger occurred, although the vaudeville artists were forced to get out in their stage clothes. No one was injured, although the motion picture machine operator had his hair singed somewhat.

Two streams were brought to play on the building and the flames were quickly extinguished. The theatre is owned by Frank Smith and the damage will be considerable.

Calls Smith a Bully.

London, April 27.—The Nation, alone, among the weekly reviews which will appear to-day, finds much that is praiseworthy in the Senatorial investigation at Washington into the Titanic disaster. The Nation says:

"It would have been a deplorable mistake to permit even a week to pass between the occurrence and its record from the mouths of survivors. If we are to get the truth, it is absolutely essential to secure as much as possible of the primary unaffected and unguarded impressions and expressions of those present at the scene."

The Saturday Review terms Senator Smith, chairman of the investigating committee, a "blustering ignoramus" and "ignorant bully," and it calls on the British Government to protect its subjects.

Passengers Resentful.

Southampton, April 27.—Some of the passengers who were to stand by on the Olympic regard the action of the firemen and seamen in striking as utterly unwarranted, but many of them apparently feel also that they were badly treated by the steamship company because they were kept on board the vessel for two and a half days without, they declare, being informed of the actual state of affairs.

ROOSEVELT FLAYS TAFT

Replies to Charges in Sledge-hammer Fashion

THE CONFIDENTIAL LETTER

Worcester, Mass., April 27.—Merciless denunciation of President Taft was Col. Roosevelt's reply last night to the President's attack upon him yesterday. Some of Col. Roosevelt's assertions were:

"That President Taft had not given the people of the country a "square deal," but that owing to a "quality of foolishness," he had "yielded to the brazen and the great privileged interests."

"Each new speech of the President's attack upon him was the "cumulative kind of a deal," and "deliberate misrepresentation."

That the President "has not merely in thought, word and deed, been disloyal to our past friendship, but has been disloyal to every canon of ordinary decency and fair dealings such as should obtain even in dealing with a man's bitterest opponents."

"That Mr. Taft convicted himself of insincerity when he signed the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

"That in speaking of Col. Roosevelt's position in regard to the trust problem, President Taft 'is himself guilty of a crooked deal'."

Col. Roosevelt took up President Taft's attack on him point by point, flaying the President in one scathing sentence after another.

Col. Roosevelt said, in part:

"Mr. Taft's speeches yesterday contained statements that I must answer. Most of what he said needs no comment from me. When, for instance, he said that I have endeavored to minimize the importance of my Columbus speech, he says what he must know to be untrue."

"Mr. Taft says that I changed front on the reciprocity measure," said the colonel. "This is untrue. Incidentally, one of the unpardonable sins on the part of any man calling himself a gentleman is to publish confidential correspondence without permission; as to this I care nothing; but I warn Mr. Taft that in discussing negotiations with a foreign power, it is well not to publish such correspondence as that in his letter about making Canada 'only an adjunct of the United States.'

"I told him that I would support his reciprocity proposition. I did loyally support it, in several different speeches. I took the agreement on the faith of Mr. Taft's representation. Later, when I came to look up them after, however I became convinced that the reciprocity agreement as passed by Mr. Taft was unwise and undesirable, because it improperly sacrificed the interests of our farmers and fishermen, and because it carried indefensible action on paper. Nevertheless, because I had stated that I would support the treaty, I said not one word against it until it was dead.

"I do not think that Mr. Taft means ill; I think he means well. But he means well feebly, and during his administration he has been under the influence of men who are neither well-meaning nor feeble. It is this quality of foolishness in a nominally suitable man which pre-eminently fits such a man for us in high office by the powers of evil."

Taxicab Blown to Pieces.

Paris, April 27.—By the explosion of a bomb a taxicab was blown to pieces Thursday in the Rue du Lyon, five people being injured.

The cab had just set down a fare, who hailed the cab in Montmartre, when suddenly a terrific explosion occurred.

The chauffeur was lifted from his seat and was picked up badly cut about the head. The cab was completely wrecked, fragments being hurled to a great distance.

ROCKETS WERE SEEN

Sailor Says Captain of "Californian" Ignored Distress Signals

LATTER DENIES IT

Washington, April 27.—Ablaze with light from her saloons and cabins, the Titanic dashed full speed ahead to her destruction, according to Ernest Gill, a donkey engineman on the steamship Californian, who testified yesterday before the Senate committee investigating the disaster. He said that Captain Stanley Lord of the Californian refused later to go to the Titanic, the rockets from which could be plainly seen.

Gill submitted an affidavit to the committee and when sworn and put on the stand stuck to his charges against the captain of the Californian.

At midnight, Gill continued, he went to his cabin, where he remarked to his mate, William Thomas, that he had seen a big vessel, apparently a steamer, going along at full speed. He could not sleep and went back to the deck to smoke a cigarette. Ten minutes later he saw a white rocket, ten miles off to starboard, which he first thought was a shooting star. A second rocket in the same place, seven or eight minutes later, he saw distinctly, and he remarked to himself, "That must be a vessel in distress."

He did not notice the bridge or lookout, he said, because it was not his business and they could not have helped but see the rockets, and he supposed they would pay attention. Gill swore that he then turned in, and at 6.40 a.m. was awakened with orders to learn what to render assistance, that the Titanic had gone down. The Californian then was proceeding at full speed, clear of the icefields, but with plenty of icebergs about. He heard Second Officer J. C. Evans telling Fourth Officer Wooten that the third officer had seen rockets during his watch and Gill said he knew then it must have been the Titanic he had seen.

The entire crew, according to Gill, talked among themselves about the disregard of the rockets. Mr. Stone, the second navigating officer, was on the Californian's bridge at the time of the rocket signals.

Captain Lord entered a sweeping denial of Gill's accusations and resorts from the Californian's log to support his contention.

Cyril Evans, the Californian's wireless operator, told of hearing much talk among the crew who were critical of the captain's course.

Gill, he said, told him he expected to get $200 for his story when the ship reached Boston.

Evans told of hearing warned the

The White Slave Trade
"Dealers in White Women" is a moving picture subject, to be begun on Monday. It is an exposé of the "white slave" traffic, and has given the members of [illegible] Women's Christian Temperance Union of Canada, Rev. Dr. Shearer of Toronto, has endorsed its presentation. The film teaches a great moral and its attractive feature is not in the story it tells but in the advice it contains to young people, and to the old as well. It is an education to parents and young people alike. This is the story of the movie of "Dealers in White Women."

SAVING the EYES

The following rules have been introduced in a book of directions in the Chinese schools. They have a Chinese author:

1. When the eyes have to be rubbed frequently while reading it is time to consult a specialist.

2. Don't read with the light in front. This rules the eyesight quicker than anything else. The light should be obliquely from behind over the left shoulder. Never read with the sun shining directly on your book.

3. Don't go to sleep or even take a nap in such a position that your eyes will open directly on the light when awakening.

4. Always hold your head erect when you read, and hold your book fourteen inches from your face.

Use a shade over your light, even a candle. Shades are cheap, or can easily be made.

Be sure when reading, that the light is clear and good—neither too yellow nor too pale.

Avoid books of papers inferiorly printed or in small type.

Rest your eyes every little while when reading by looking away from the book.

Wash the eyes night and morning in pure water.

WOMAN SICK FOR YEARS

Wrote Other Women to Know How She was Finally Restored to Health.

Eastwood, Ont. — "I am passing through the Change of Life and for two years had Hot Flashes every few minutes, sometimes terrible ones at night, was nervous, and thought I was going insane. The doctor recommended me for a number of years but it did not help me, but I have been entirely relieved of the above troubles by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills, and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — Mrs. Louis Smallman, Sr., Eastwood, Ont., Canada.

New Brunswick, Canada. — "I can highly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any suffering woman. I have taken it for female weakness and painful menstruation and it cured me." — Mrs. DeWynn Ransom, Harvey Bank, New Brunswick, Canada.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"You are from the South!" he exclaimed, as though it was a discovery.

"Yes—and you!"

"My boyhood began in Virginia—the negro was an old-time slave in our family."

She glanced across at the black, now sitting up and eating voraciously.

"I thought he had once been a slave; one can easily tell that. I did not ask him to sit here because, if you do not object, we will eat here together. I have also been almost as long without food. It was so lonely here, and—and I hardly understood my situation—and I simply could not force myself to eat."

He distinguished her words clearly enough, although she spoke low, as if she preferred what was said between them should not reach the ears of the negro, yet somehow, for the moment, they made no adequate impression on him. Like a famished wolf he began on the coarse fare, and for ten minutes hardly lifted his head. Then his eyes chanced to meet hers across the narrow table, and instantly the gentleman within him reawoke to life.

"I have been a perfect brute," he acknowledged frankly, "with no thought except for myself. Hunger was my master, and I ask your forgiveness, Miss Maclaire."

Her eyes smiled.

"I am very glad to have any one here—any one—in whom I feel even a little confidence—that nothing else greatly matters. Can you both eat, and listen?"

Keith nodded, his eyes full of interest, searching her face.

"Whoever I may be, Mr. Keith, and really that seems only of small importance, I came to Fort Larned seeking some trace of my only brother, whom we last heard from there, where he had fallen into evil companionship. On the stage trip I was fortunate enough to form an acquaintance with a man who said that he knew where I could meet Fred, but that the boy was hiding because of some trouble he had lately gotten into, and that I should have to proceed very carefully so as not to lead the officers to discover his whereabouts. This gentleman was engaged in some business in Carbon City, but he employed a man to bring me to this place, and promised to get Fred, and meet me here the following day. There must have been some failure in the plans, for I have been here entirely alone now for three days. It has been very lonesome, and—and I've been a little frightened. Perhaps I ought not to have come, and I am not certain what kind of a place this is. I was so afraid when you came, but I am not afraid now."

"You have no need to be," he said soberly, impressed by the innocent candour of the girl, and feeling thankful that he was present to aid her. "I could not wrong one of the South."

"My father always told me I could trust a Southern gentleman under any circumstance. Mr. Hawley was from my own State, and knew many of our old friends. That was why I felt such unusual confidence in him, although he was but a travelling acquaintance."

"Mr. Hawley?"

"The gentleman whom I met on the stage."

"Oh, yes; you said he was in business in Carson City, but I don't seem to remember any one of that name."

"He was not there permanently; only to complete some business deal."

"And your brother? I may possibly have known him."

She hesitated an instant, her eyes drooping, until completely shaded by the long lashes.

"He—he was rather a wild boy, and ran away from home to enlist in the army. But he got into a bad set, and—and deserted. That was part of the trouble which caused him to hide. He enlisted under the name of Fred Willoughby. Mr. Hawley told me this much, but I am afraid he did not tell me all."

"And he said you would meet him here?"

Keith gazed about on the bare surroundings wonderingly. What was this place, hidden away in the midst of the desert, isolated in a spot where not even the Indians roamed? Could it be a secret rendezvous of crime, the headquarters of desperadoes, of cattle-rustlers, of highwaymen of the Santa Fe Trail—a point to which they could ride when hard pressed, certain of hiding here in safety? He began to suspect this, but, if so, who then was this Hawley, and with what object had he sent this girl here

You Should Take Zutoo

When you think a headache is coming on.

When you have eaten too heartily.

When you have drunk more than is good for your digestion.

When you feel you have a coming on cold—feel feverish or chilly.

These are times Zutoo tablets will ward off the coming disorder—nip it in the bud, and insure you against pain and suffering.

Every act he turned was to conceal mystery, or form a new puzzle. What was she might be—even the most bold answer he believed—she had been trickled here innocently enough. Even now she possessed only the most vague suspicion that she had been deceived. The centre of the whole plot, if there was a plot, must be Hawley.

"Yes," she replied, "he said that this was one of the stations of a big ranch on which Fred was employed, and that he would certainly be here within a day or two."

"You met Hawley on the stage coach? How did you become acquainted?"

"We were alone for nearly fifty miles," her voice faltering slightly, "and—and he called me what you did."

"Christie Maclaire?"

"Yes; he—he seemed to think he knew me, and I needed help so much that I let him believe so. I thought it could do no harm, and then, when I found he actually knew Fred, I didn't think of anything else, only how fortunate I was to thus meet him. Surely something serious must have happened, or he would have been here before this. Do you—do you suppose there is anything wrong?"

Keith did not smile nor change posture. The more he delved into the matter, the more serious he felt the situation to be. He knew all those ranches lying south on the Canadian, and was aware that this was no outstation. No cattle ever came across that sandy desert unless driven by rustlers, and no honest purpose could account for this isolated hut. There had been frequent robberies along the trail, and he had overheard tales of mysterious disappearances in both Larned and Carson City. Could it be that he had now, accidentally, stumbled upon the rendezvous of the gang? He was now a man easily startled, but this thought sent his heart beating. He knew enough to realize what such a gang would naturally consist of—deserters, outlaws, rustlers; both Indians and whites, no doubt, combined under some desperate leadership. Gazing into the girl's questioning eyes he could scarcely refrain frob hurting out all he suspected. Yet why should he? What good could it do? He could not hope to bear her south to the "Bar X" Ranch, for the ponies were already too thoroughly exhausted for such a journey; he dared not turn north with her, for that would mean his own arrest, leaving her in worse condition than ever. If he only knew who this man Hawley was, his purpose, and plans! Yet what protection could he and Neb prove, alone here, and without arms? All this flashed through his mind in an instant, leaving him confused and uncertain.

"I hope not," he managed to say in answer to her query. "But it is rather a strange mix-up all around, and I confess I fail to comprehend its full meaning. It is hardly likely your friends will show up to-night, and by morning perhaps we can decide what is best to do. Let me look around outside a moment."

Her eyes followed him as he stepped through the door into the darkness; then her head dropped into the support of her hands. There was silence except for the crackling of the fire, until Neb moved uneasily. At the sound the girl looked up, seeing clearly the good-natured face of the negro.

"Yo' don't nebber need cry, Missus," he said soberly, "so long as Massa Jack done 'greed to look after yo'."

"Have—have you known him long?"

"Has I knowed him long, honey? Ebber sence befo' de wah. Why I done knowed Massa Jack when he wan't mose'n dat high. Lawd, he sho' was a lively youngster, but mighty good-hearted to us niggers."

She hesitated to question a servant, and yet felt she must uncover the truth.

"Who is he? Is he all he claims to be—a Virginia gentleman?"

All the loyalty and pride of slavery days was in Neb.

"He sho' am, Missus; dar ain't nuthin' higher in ol' Virginia dan de Keiths. Dey ain't got much money sence the Yankees come down dar, but dey's quality folks jest de same. I was done born on de ol' Co'nel's plantation, and I reck'n dar wan't no finer man ebber libed. He was done killed in de wah. An' Massa Jack he was a captain; he rode on hossback, an' Lawdy, but he did look scrumptious when he first got his uniform. He done fought all through de wah, an' dey say Ginral Lee done shook hands wid him, an' said how proud he was ter know him. You kin sut'nly tie to Massa Jack, Missus."

The negro's voice had scarcely ceased when Keith came in again, closing the door securely behind him.

"All quiet outside," he announced, speaking with new confidence. "I wanted to get an understanding of the surroundings in case of emergency," he explained, as if in answer to the questioning of the brown eyes gravely uplifted to his face. "I see there is quite a corral at the lower end of this island, safely hidden behind the fringe of cotton woods. And a log stable back of the house. Is the creek fordable both ways?"

"I think so; the man who brought me here rode away south."

"And are you going to trust yourself to my care?"

She rose around the table with hands extended. He took them into his grasp, looking down into her eyes.

"Yes," she said softly. "I am going to trust you, Captain Keith."

He laughed.

"Captain, hey? You must have been talking with that black rascal there."

The swift colour flooded her face, but her hands remained imprisoned.

"I just done tol' her who de Keiths was down in ol' Virginia, sah," burst in Neb indignantly. "I sho' don't want nobody to' think I go trapain' 'round wid any low white trash."

The grey eyes and the brown, gazing into one another, smiled with understanding.

"Oh, well," Keith acknowledged, genially, "I cannot say I am sorry you know something of my past glories; if one can't have a future, it is some source of pride to have a past to remember. But now about the present. We're practically defenceless as any one, the way we're fixed, as we are unarmed."

"There is a big revolver hanging in a holster in the other room," she answered, "and a short, sawed-off gun of some kind, but I don't know about ammunition."

"May we investigate?"

"Most certainly," and she threw open the intervening door. As the two stepped into the other apartment she held the lamp in aid of their search. "There is the revolver on the wall, and the gun is in the opposite corner. Isn't it strange you should be out in this country without arms?"

Keith glanced up, the revolver in his hands. The radiance of the light was full upon her face, revealing the clearness of her skin, the dark shadows of her lashes. There was the faintest tinge of suspicion to the question, but he answered easily.

"We left Carson in something of a hurry. I'll tell you the story to-morrow."

CHAPTER X.

MR. HAWLEY REVEALS HIMSELF

A fragment of candle, stuck tightly into the neck of an empty bottle, appeared on a low shelf, and Keith lighted it, the girl returning the lamp to its former position on the front room table. Investigation revealed a dozen cartridges fitting the revolver, but no ammunition was discovered adapted to the sawed-off gun, which Neb had already appropriated, and

LOCAL TREATMENT FOR WOMEN'S DISORDERS

The above illustration will also show why ORANGE LILY is so successful in curing this condition. It is a local treatment, and is applied direct to the affected organs. Its curative elements are absorbed into the congested tissue, and from the very start the dead matter begins to be disintegrated. A feeling of immense relief, both mental and physical, accompanies it, and the improvement is constant and positive. This feature of the expelling of the dead matter is always present to a greater or less extent, and in some cases it is so marked as to be amazing. The case described in the following letter is not exceptional:

Dr. Coonley—I am thankful to Mrs. F. E. Currah, your Canadian representative, for my health restored by your wonderful remedy. I have suffered for 17 years, but not so bad until 2 years ago. Then I took a doctor, who told me I had a tumor, and could live no more than a year. If I went through an operation I would not live through it. A year later I went for him again, and he gave me up to die. My husband then went for another doctor, who performed an operation, and it did me much good. I doctored with him 3 or 4 months, but became so bad again that I thought I could live no longer, and I began to long to die. One day my husband came home and threw a slip of paper to me with Mrs. Currah's address and told me a lady had advised him to write to her for a treatment that would cure me. I said it was too late, that I would die anyway. I could not lift a teacup without hurting me. Then the first doctor told me I was worse than ever. However, my husband went for ORANGE LILY, and the third treatment brought away the tumor. Others followed, until 7 tumors had been expelled, 3 large ones and 4 small ones. I know if it had not been for ORANGE LILY I would have died, for I could not live much longer. I would have thought it cheap at one hundred dollars per a month's treatment, instead of one dollar. It is worth its weight in gold.—MRS. GEO. LEWIS, Huntsville, Ont.

The above letter is published with Mrs. Lewis' permission. All letters received are treated as being sacredly confidential, but occasionally some patient feels so grateful for being cured that she is willing to make the matter known for the benefit and encouragement of her suffering sisters.

ORANGE LILY is a positive, scientific remedy for all disorders of the female functions. As explained above these troubles are of local origin, and require local treatment. It is just as sensible to take medicine internally for female troubles as it would be to take medicine internally for a bruise, a cut or an aborated tooth. In all these cases some dead matter is being retained, and the cure is effected by employing local methods for expelling the dead matter. ORANGE LILY has antiseptic, soothing and healing properties, and also tones up and invigorates blood vessels and nerves. I am so anxious that every suffering woman may satisfy herself, without cost to her, that ORANGE LILY will cure her, that I hereby make the following

FREE TRIAL OFFER

I will send, without charge, to every reader of this notice who suffers in any way from any of the troubles peculiar to women, if she will send me her address, enough of the ORANGE LILY treatment to last her ten days. In many cases this trial treatment is all that is necessary to effect a complete cure, and in every instance it will give very noticeable relief. If you are a sufferer, you owe it to yourself, to your family and to your friends to take advantage of this offer and get cured in the privacy of your home, without doctors' bills or expense of any kind. Address Mrs. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

A DEED OF DARING

One of Mad Anthony Wayne's Remarkable Achievements.

STORMING OF STONY POINT.

This Brilliant Feat of Arms in Which Success Was Won at the Point of the Bayonet, Was One of the Most Desperate Incidents of Any War.

One of the most marvelous achievements credited to American bravery and strategy was that of the capture of Stony Point by Mad Anthony Wayne, who was one of the most picturesque figures of the American revolution. When he was entrusted in command of the Pennsylvania line, even after his brilliant success at Monmouth on June 28, 1778, a less aggressive and patriotic man would have resigned his commission.

It seemed the irony of fate that the setback in his career should follow so closely his official encomiums for his work at Monmouth, but that very setback gave him Stony Point—the greatest opportunity of his life—and he made good.

There were two important factors, discipline and valor, that entered into this remarkable achievement, the capture of a fortress on the Hudson held by the British and considered almost impregnable. Stony Point was an island and the fortress was built on a rock which was precipitous and rough. It was guarded by three redoubts and protected by a double abatis of logs that extended across the peninsula. The post was garrisoned by 607 men, who felt so secure in their position that they were wont to refer to the post as the "Little Gibraltar."

On July 14 General Wayne assembled all his troops at Sandy Beach, and at that moment none of his soldiers knew the plans of their commander. The following day the march began over a wilderness trail and in perfect silence. Not a man was allowed to leave the column under penalty of death. By 8 o'clock that night they were within one and one-half miles of the British fortress. Then the men were told of the desperate work ahead of them and the battle order read.

No man was allowed to load his musket, and the battle was to be won or lost with the bayonet alone. One portion of the order provided that any man found retreating a single foot was to be put to death at once.

Close to midnight the order to advance was given. The fort was to be attacked from all sides. Once in action General Wayne lost no time. The British opened fire with guns, both great and small. Seventeen of the twenty men in the advance guard were shot down, but the companies in the rear eagerly pressed on. General Wayne himself, struck in the head with a musket ball, fell stunned. He recovered in a moment and, rising on one knee, shouted: "March on! March on!" Then, turning to his aide he begged them to take him into the fort so that if his wound was mortal he would die at the head of his column.

General Wayne's wound drove his followers to a frenzy. They dashed up the hill and battered down all opposition. Colonel Fleury, a French officer in the American service, at the head of his determined band forced his way up the redoubt and as the soldiers poured into the fort grasped the British flag and lowered it. The victory was complete. The British lost 53 killed and 543 taken prisoners, of whom 70 were wounded. The Americans lost 15 killed and had 83 wounded. It was one of the most daring and desperate incidents of any war.

From every point of view the storming of Stony Point was a remarkable feat of arms, but back of the success of that night was a story of preparedness, the value which has always been overshadowed by the brilliancy of the result. General Wayne had trained his men, stimulated their pride, enforced rigid discipline, led them at the point of attack at the right moment and then with inspiring valor led them.

The victory at Stony Point materially aroused a tremendous enthusiasm, and it came at the right time. The country was depressed if not quite discouraged, and Stony Point was like a tonic. It gave the people more strength, more courage and at a time when they sadly needed it. Not only did General Wayne receive official recognition, but he was in receipt of hundreds of congratulatory letters expressing popular and professional opinion.—Chicago News.

A Cheerful Suggestion.

Has a Right to Be Resentful.

"I don't mind having my trousers, my coat, my necktie or even my collar splashed with mud by an automobile," says a South Second street man. "But when one motorcar spatters my spectacles so that I can't see to dodge the next one I think I have a right to feel resentful."—Newark News.

French Burial Customs.

The ancient custom of depositing valuables in tombs still prevails in France. But it is not only jewels and the like that are buried with the dead. A few years ago it was the custom in La Vendee to put a polished stone within reach of the corpse. This was supposed to guide the dead on his new journey. In the district of Dinan a piece of bread was used for the same purpose. The people of the Bordeaux district place in the coffin a sprig of myrtle blessed at Easter. This is considered to insure entry into paradise. On the borders of Brittany and Poitou a little pebble is placed on the tongue of the deceased. Without this it is thought he might plead his cause before the great tribunal with such volubility as would insure his condemnation without appeal.—Journal des Debats.

A Scene Not on the Bill.

An amusing incident in the Royal Opera House at Warsaw, Russian Poland, is described by the Paris Temps. By permission of the commanding officer a number of Russian soldiers were engaged as "supers" to take the part of Spanish soldiers. No sooner had they come on the stage than they saw a general sitting in the stalls. The corporal with them immediately shouted, "Attention!" The soldiers stood at attention. The general, realizing that the men were not likely to move until he gave them the order, cried from the stalls, "All right, my children, all right!" The corporal advanced to the center of the stage and, gravely saluting, said, "We thank you, excellency, for permission to continue."

Too Much.

An persuasive tones the good looking woman who had secured an interview with the taciturn manager tried to convince him that the company owed her $2.03.

"Something broke," she said, "and I was held up for forty-five minutes while the driver tinkered with the machine."

Her manner was so impressive that the manager was on the point of writing out a check for the money demanded, but before doing so he remarked:

"It certainly was a case of overcharging. It wasn't your fault the cab broke down, and he should not have charged you for the time it took to make repairs."

"Oh," said she, "he didn't. It isn't overcharging I am complaining about. He made me late for a bargain sale that closed at 11 o'clock, and when I finally got there I had to pay $4 for a blouse that had sold up to 11 o'clock for $1.98. It is the difference I am fighting for."

Then the manager closed his check book.—New York Times.

MYSTERY IN A CRATER.

An Alluring Puzzle That the Geologists Cannot Solve.

About forty miles from Flagstaff, Ariz., in the middle of a great plain, there is a queer shaped hollow about three-quarters of a mile wide and 600 feet deep. The rim of this strange crater rises between 100 and 200 feet above the surrounding plain. Rocky fragments are scattered for several miles around the crater. Among these rocks many fragments of meteoric iron, some containing minute black diamonds, have been found. The inner walls show that the crust of the earth was broken when the crater was formed, yet no volcanic rocks exist there.

Geologists have offered several theories to account for this strange phenomenon. One is that an immense meteorite made the hole and that the meteoric fragments just mentioned are remnants of the falling star.

Another theory ascribes the origin of the crater to a tremendous explosion of steam in the rocks beneath, and a third combines the first two by suggesting that the blow of a falling meteor, striking the earth's crust at a point where subterranean water had accumulated in the neighborhood of heated rocks, was the cause of the explosion.—New York Press.

Plants Breaking Up Ice Island.

The baynana would apparently associate great strength with so delicate and fragile a thing as maidenhair fern, yet if its roots have not sufficient room they will break the pot in which the plant grows. Blades of grass will force the cobblestones between which they spring up out of their place, and in a single night a crop of small mushrooms has been known to lift a large stone. Indeed, plants are on record as having broken the hardest rocks.

The island of Aldabra, to the northwest of Madagascar, is becoming smaller through the action of the mangroves that grow along the feet of the cliffs. They eat their way into the rock in all directions, and into the gaps thus formed the waves force their way. In time this will probably reduce the island to pieces.—London Telegraph.

Shaving the Bridegroom.

The shaving of the bridegroom on his wedding day is a Bulgarian custom which, handed down from pre-Christian days, is still observed with due formality, especially in country districts. While the barber is at his task a dancing crowd of young folks surrounds him and the bridegroom. As the latter's hair is cut the clippings are carefully collected by some of the girls for preservation in one of the bride's chests. The barber, when his work is done, receives a small white linen cloth as a present and also a trifling sum of money from each person there. Then the bridegroom kisses the hands of the girls, washes his face and dons his wedding dress, which must first be carefully weighed three times by each of the boys.

The Oldest Line.

The first mail between New York and Boston was established in 1672. The letters were carried by a messenger, who was expected to "go and return an office an hour a month." In 1693 a well organized system of postoffices was established in Pennsylvania and in other localities.—New York American.

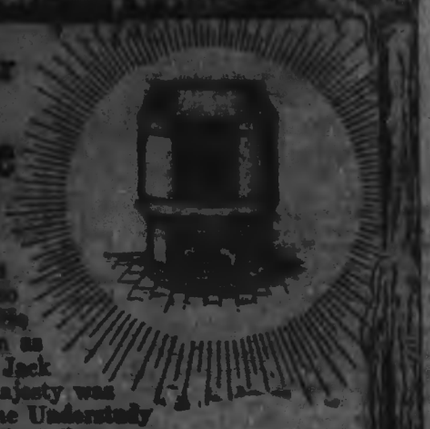
Jack Frost's Master
McCLARY'S
"Sunshine" Furnace



Jack Frost had the time of his life last winter. He waged against all elements and froze them stiff. Lakes and rivers he turned into solids; he also put a razor-like edge on the wind. He even bit into steel rails making them as brittle as burned glass. Outside, Jack reigned supreme, but his chilly majesty was licked to a frazzle inside by "The Understudy of the Sun"—McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace.

Think of the past winter when the mercury swung steadily below the freezing point—not for a day or a week, but for months at a time. How you shovelled coal, and how you talked about the appetite of that poor old furnace in the cellar. It simply ate up coal and then fell down when it came to heating the house evenly and comfortably.

McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace makes the most of very little fuel, and distributes a much greater percentage of heat throughout house than the ordinary furnace.

Ashes cannot bank up between the active fire and the walls of the Fire-pot in the "Sunshine" Furnace. It is an absolute guarantee of balmy June weather in the home, when Jack Frost's icy garments are jingling in the Arctic cold without. That's why the "Sunshine" is called "The Ice King's Master." The "Sunshine" Furnace is an excellent investment—It will last a life-time with ordinary care—and return you a handsome interest on the investment every year by the actual saving it effects.

Now, we want you to do us a favor—we want you to call on the McClary agent and ask him to prove every claim we make for the "Sunshine" Furnace—ask him to prove every claim true.

Ask him to show you—The fuel-saving features of the "Sunshine". — The mechanical reasons which make balmy healthy June weather possible in the home when Jack Frost is in his element without—Why the "Sunshine" saves money which other furnaces burn up, and—Why the largest makers of furnaces in the British Empire so simply and so fearlessly guarantee the "Sunshine"—The Understudy of the Sun.

Royal Taste in Perfumes

Though the publication turned that question of preference to an unenthusiastic issue, we find that Royal women are very fond of it, Queen Mary and Alexandra, for one time and another, have used the Coty brand, and that marvellous Californian product, Lilas Blanc.

Queen Alexandra's favorite scent is "Jose Phelps," a compound of ambergris, civet, violet, jessamine, sandalwood, and bergamot, which was once a favorite with English beauty, years ago.

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland uses a perfume specially prepared for her, "Hyacinthe dans Jardin Fleuri," in her bath every morning.

MURDERESS PARDONED

Shoreditch Flower Seller Who Poisoned Her Infant

A pitiable tale of a London flower-seller's distress and misery, caused by hard times and worry, is recalled by a notification issued to the effect that the Home Office had authorised the release of Margaret Murphy from Aylesbury Prison. She was sentenced to death by Mr. Justice Darling, at the Central Criminal Court, last year for the murder of her infant by poison. The jury strongly recommended her to mercy, and the capital sentence was commuted to penal servitude for life.

The woman had lived at Shoreditch apart from her husband, and had six children, three only of whom were able to work, and two of these had been out of employment. She had experienced hard times, and was worried at being unable to pay her rent. The day before the death of her seven months-old child she went to Epsom selling flowers, and lost all her money. Mrs. Murphy appeared to have purchased spirits of salts, a portion of which was given to the infant, causing death, and she herself was found unconscious. The child had not been properly fed, a doctor said, and it was further stated that since its death the father had died.

Dr. Sullivan, medical officer at Holloway Prison, told the jury that he [illegible] the prisoner, who appeared was in quite at the time of the act, but that she was emotionally unbalanced.

After the unhappy woman had been sentenced to death the judge said he would in every way support the recommendation of the jury, and had not the slightest doubt it would receive all the consideration to which, in his judgment it was most strongly entitled.

CROWN PRINCE NEGLECTS DUTIES

Heir to Throne of Germany Prefers Holidaying and Sports to Soldiering

An article attacking the German Crown Prince for neglect of his military duties is attracting great attention throughout the Kaiser's realm. It appeared originally in Der Tuermer, a monthly review, and was written by Herr Guenther von Vielrogge, a retired officer.

The writer declares that up to the time when the Kaiser appointed his son to the colonelcy of the famous "Death's Head" Hussars at Danzig last year, the Crown Prince had never done any military service worth mentioning. It was hoped that the Danzig command would at least fill the Prince, in whose veins the blood of so many warriors flowed, with some the enthusiasm for his profession. "Up to the present, however," the article goes on," the hopes aroused by the transfer to Danzig remained unfulfilled. The Crown Prince is absent far too much on leave. Indeed, one might ask when he is at the head of his regiment at all.

"Immediately after his appointment the august young gentleman went travelling for four weeks, principally to hunt. Soon after his return he was seen in Berlin, sometimes in the Reichstag and sometimes at the flying grounds. Later he spent a week in Silesia, hunting, and then returned to Berlin again. Between the last-named leaves he was prostrated by illness, which not only confined him to his room but to his bed. This illness could not have been very grave, otherwise the Berlin newspapers would not so soon have been able to report that he was dedicating himself to sports. After that he betook himself to Switzerland, and about two months later the Danzig Hussars saw their commander again."

CARE OF THE HANDS.

During the cold weather the skin on the hands is liable to chap and the finger nails are liable to become brittle and break off. Both give the hands a very neglected appearance, which with just a little care and time can be avoided.

Before retiring for the night rub cold cream or a preparation of rose-water and glycerine on the hands till it has been entirely absorbed, also after washing the hands rub on a bit of cold cream, not enough to make them oily but enough to soften the skin. This will prevent chapping.

"DEAD MAN" RETURNED

Remarkable Case of Mistaken Identity in Lambeth

An extraordinary case of mistaken identity, resulting in a Lambeth man being mourned for as dead, and an unknown stranger being buried in his stead, has come to light.

Some weeks ago Charles Herbert Skinner, an aged cab washer and laborer, sold up his home and went in search of work. His wife went into the workhouse. Three weeks later a man died in the Salvation Army shelter at Blackfriars road. He was "identified" as Skinner, and the body was buried in Streatham Cemetery. Before the coffin was closed several members of Skinner's family satisfied themselves as to the identity, and took away the dead man's clothes. The "widow" then went to stay with friends.

Recently Skinner re-appeared at Murphy street, where his sister-in-law lives, and, in this relative's own words, "frightened the life out of her." He told them he had tramped all round London, doing odd jobs. "I knew nothing of what had happened," he said; "but, having nothing to do this morning, I thought I would call and see how my wife was. I am very much alive."

The mystery for the authorities to unravel now is—who is the man buried in Streatham Cemetery in the name of Charles Herbert Skinner?

BERLIN'S BUSY LIFE

Electricity to Replace Steam on Suburban Railways of Capital

The long discussed electrification of Berlin's circular and suburban railroads is the object of a Parliamentary paper describing the present situation and the approximate cost of a change from steam to electrical traction. The trains are now seriously overcrowded on Sundays to such an extent as to endanger life. On weekdays the average number of passengers carried is 841,000, while on Sundays it rises to nearly 800,000. With steam, the utmost that can be managed is 24 trains an hour each way with seating accommodation in each train for 480 passengers.

When the systems are electrified it is estimated that the number of trains can be increased to 40 an hour in each direction, carrying altogether 48,000 passengers. A motor will be placed at each end of the trains during the heavy traffic hours of the day. The work of electrification is to take four and a half years and to cost in all about $20,000,000. The fares, now the cheapest in the world, will be raised.

PECULIAR PREROGATIVE

The King Could Claim all Automobiles That Killed Man or Beast

The rigid exercise of King George's prerogatives would in a few months make him the owner of an extensive fleet of motor vehicles, for he is entitled to all deodands. A deodand is "an article which has proved the immediate and accidental occasion of the death of any reasonable creature." This right was for hundreds of years enforced as a means of swelling the Royal exchequer, and, legally speaking, could still be enforced. If a man were killed by being run over, the vehicle and its contents, as well as the horse, became the King's property. The number of "reasonable creatures," if dogs be included, run over by motors would provide His Majesty with so many automobiles that he would have to set about building new garages to accommodate them.

Teaching Crabs Manners

Mr. Cary Gilson, headmaster of King Edward's High School, Birmingham, mentioned during a discussion at the local university that a friend of his had taught some crabs not to clutch a pencil. This he had done by putting them into a clear water bath every time they did so, until they learned not to.

GERMANY'S AIR FLEET

The movement for securing aeroplanes for the German army is growing. The appeal made by the sporting paper, "Flug Sport," at Frankfort-on-the-Maine, has produced satisfactory results. Several cities have subscribed sums of money. Minden has just voted a sum for the purchase of an aeroplane. An association to further the development of the German fleet has been started at Mayence under the patronage of the Grand Duke of Hesse.

SPRING REMINDERS OF RHEUMATISM

Raw, Damp Weather Starts the Pain, but the Trouble Lies in the Blood

Spring weather is bad for rheumatic sufferers. The changes from mild to cold, the raw, damp winds start the aches and twinges, or in the more extreme cases, the tortures of the trouble going. But it must be borne in mind that it is not the weather that causes rheumatism. The trouble is rooted in the blood — the changeable weather merely starts the pains. The only way to reach the trouble and to cure it is through the blood. The poisonous rheumatic acids must be driven out. Liniments and rubbing may give temporary relief, but cannot possibly cure the trouble. The sufferer is only wasting time and money with this kind of treatment and all the time the trouble is becoming more deeply rooted—harder to cure. There is just one speedy cure for rheumatism—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They act directly on the impure, acid-tainted blood. They purify and strengthen it and thus root out the cause of the rheumatism. Here is strong proof of the above statements. Mrs. Robt. Luffman, Midland, Ont., says: "About three years ago my grandson, Robert Luffman, was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism. He became so bad he could only walk when someone helped him about. One arm he had to carry in a sling, and we felt sure he would be a cripple for life. The trouble also affected his heart. The doctor said his blood was turning to water and we had little hope for his recovery. The medicine the doctor gave him did not do more than soothe the pain a little, then he would be as bad as ever. On a former occasion Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured my daughter of rheumatism, and we finally decided to try them in Robert's case. After the use of three or four boxes there was a slight improvement and he continued taking the Pills until he had used 12 boxes when the trouble had completely disappeared, and he has not been afflicted with it since."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TOLSTOI'S MANUSCRIPTS

By his will Tolstoi left all his manuscripts, "wherever found and by whomsoever kept," to become the absolute property of his daughter, the Countess Alexandra L. Tolstoi. Some trouble has arisen, however, in connection with a large number of diaries and letters which are now in the Moscow Historical Museum, which are of exceptional literary value. It is stated that the authorities of the Museum refuse to surrender the documents, on the instructions of certain members of the Tolstoi family, who do not desire them to be published.

An attempt is being made to stir public opinion in Russia and elsewhere, so that the documents may be given to the public. The great writer's daughter will not go to law on the matter, as it is against her father's and her own principles.

A GREAT CRUSADE.

A Wonderful Movement in New Zealand—A Stirring Campaign Against the Liquor Curse.

The Dominion of New Zealand is already preparing for the next election, at which the temperance women of the country hope by their votes and influence to make a great gain for the temperance cause. Details of this enterprise are contributed to the New Zealand Home Journal by Mrs. Agnes Anderson Hughes. Some weeks ago a lady, who is interested in every good work, lay at night, unable to sleep, meditating as the hours passed upon the evils of the traffic, and praying for its speedy overthrow. Suddenly, like a flash, came the suggestion, and then the thought: "The women of New Zealand can do it." The idea which had filled this woman's mind grew stronger as morning dawned, and sent her forth next day with a message to the women of the Dominion. The "Women's Crusade" movement was at once eagerly welcomed. Meetings were organized in each of the large cities, and, although only a few weeks have passed since the movement had its birth, already some thousands of women have become "Crusaders."

"A WOMAN'S CRUSADE,"

The organization, if such it can be called, is unique in its simplicity. Those who join are not required to subscribe to any fund, or to attend meetings. The whole responsibility rests in taking the "Crusade" pledge, which reads: "I promise to vote for No-License and National Prohibition at the next election, and will try to induce others to do the same." Dainty roll-books have been prepared, on the first page of which is seen our New Zealand flag, and resting on its folds a white cross, and a scroll with the motto: Deus Vult.

GOD WILLS IT.

This movement has been hailed with joy by many true-hearted women, who, burdened with business responsibility or the cares of home or motherhood, have looked with almost envious longing upon their more leisured sisters who could devote days and talents to the cause which meant so much to home and loved ones. Many a grey-haired woman, with tears shining on the wan cheek, has whispered, "Oh, that I might tell what I know of this cruel trade." Many a fair young wife, with her first great dread of coming sorrow, has prayed for some means by which she might save her dearest. Many a fond mother has pressed her darling passionately to her heart as the awful truth has been realized that the drink vulture waits for some mother's child, and from her lips has come the agonized cry, "Oh, God, not my child."

"NOT MY CHILD!"

While many others, tender-hearted and great-souled, have "wept with those that weep," and prayed, "Oh, that I might do something!" To all such women the "Women's Crusade" comes as a glorious opportunity. It opens a door to effective, practical, concerted, and yet easy service. No home need be neglected, and no duty shirked while each in her own sphere of enlisting friends, neighbours, and relatives as soldiers in this bloodless battle for the overthrow of the merciless traffic which degrades our women, brutalizes our men, and devastates woman's realm, "The Home."

I have heard the steady treading of ten thousand thousand feet,
True men and women marching on from highway, loop, and street;
They will never pause nor falter till the triumph is complete,
With God they're marching on.

Let the sobs of little children crushed by crimes the law allows,
Let the blighted lives of women lost through manhood's broken vows,
Let the sighs of hopeless sorrow every woman's heart arouse,
For God is marching on.

DRINK AND BRAIN WORK.

"I understand that you ask me what I think about 'Alcohol as a stimulant to the brain in mental work?' Speaking for myself (and perhaps I may add, for persons of my temperament) I can say, without hesitation, that I would just as soon take a dose of arsenic as I would of alcohol, under such circumstances. Indeed, on the whole, I should think the arsenic safer—less likely to lead to physical and moral degradation. It would be better to die outright than to be alcoholized before death. If a man cannot do brain work without stimulants of any kind he had better turn to hand work—it is an indignation on nature's part that she did not mean him to be a head-worker. The circumstances of my life have led me to experience all sorts of conditions in regard to alcohol—from total abstinence to nearly the other end of the scale—and my clear conviction is, the less the better."—Professor Huxley.

If the habit of drinking intoxicants could be abolished the Divorce Court might as well close its doors.—Lord Gorell, President of the Divorce Court (confirmed by his successor, Sir John Bigham).

WHAT TEMPERANCE BRINGS.

More of good than we can tell;
More to buy with, more to sell;
More of comfort, less of care;
More to eat and more to wear;
Happier homes with faces brighter;
All our burdens rendered lighter;
Conscience clean and minds much stronger;
Debts much shorter, purses longer;
Hopes that drive away all sorrow,
And something laid up for to-morrow.

BAKING PAN LIFTER

Wire Frame Slides Through the Grooves on Side of the Pan.

An ingenious little cooking utensil that will save the cook a burned finger or two has been designed by a Massachusetts man. It consists of a baking pan with a lifting attachment by which it can be carried about without touching the hot pan, even under the protection of a cloth. The opposite sides of the pan are turned down to form grooves. A piece of strong wire is bent into a handle and the two ends form loop prongs that can be thrust through the grooves on the sides of the pan. The prongs are bent slightly downward at the points so

DON'T PULL OUT THE GRAY HAIRS

A Few Applications of a Simple Remedy Will Bring Back the Natural Colour

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen will take its place" is an old saying, which is, to a great extent, true, if no steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that Nature needs assistance. It is Nature's call for help. Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hairs come, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable hair-restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is the old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage and sulphur, scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced and tested by experts.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff and gradually restores faded or gray hair to its natural colour.

Don't delay another minute. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur at once and see what a difference a few days' treatment will make in your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special agent, Warne Drug Co.

My Diplomatic Mission

It Was My First and My Last

By [illegible]

I am the daughter of an American admiral. When my father was retired he joined us in Washington, where we lived. At his death, his allowance being cut off, I found it necessary to do something to add to the small income of my mother and was given a clerkship in the navy department, but the salary was small, and I confess I looked forward to the humdrum life before me with dislike.

Notwithstanding our limited resources I maintained my position in society. Washington does not suffer socially from commercialism as other American cities. I was invited just as often after my entrance upon my clerkship as before. Indeed, I occupied a better social status than many newly rich people who, having suddenly acquired wealth, settled in Washington to spend it.

One evening during a reception at the White House the wife of a member of the Russian diplomatic corps sought me out and drew me away from the throng for a chat. She gradually led the conversation upon myself and asked me how I would like to enter the diplomatic service. Upon asking her what she meant she explained that diplomacy was carried on in this capital as in every other, and that the Russian embassy was at that time in want of an attractive woman to obtain a secret from a diplomat and that she would be paid liberally for the service rendered.

Of course the lady was sounding me to learn if I would undertake the matter. I neither accepted nor declined, leaving her, intending to think it over. I did think it over and came to a decision that may be considered peculiar. I determined that I would not dishonor my father's name by becoming a spy; but, being infatuated with the idea of swimming in that undercurrent of duplicity that had been mentioned, I resolved to accept the offer, but not for pay. I had an object in view that concerned my own individual self far more than Russia. When I had made up my mind I called on the lady who had been given the commission to employ me and told her I was ready to listen to a proposition.

I dare say that this may be considered whipping conscience around the stump, but at the time I was not aware of doing anything dishonorable. I was employed by the Russian embassy—no particular person in it was specified—to get a secret from the secretary of legation of Great Britain. It was suspected by the Russians that England was making a secret treaty with the sublime porte. Russia has always been at issue with the other European powers as to Turkey, and ever since the Czar Nicholas I. was outwitted by the British minister, just previous to the Crimean war, Russia has been eager to get even with England by some sharp diplomatic move. I was therefore employed to draw this secret from Edward Catherne, who would surely be cognizant of it, who had chosen diplomacy as a profession and was expecting soon to be raised to the rank of ambassador.

At the next important social function, given by the secretary of state, a member of the Austrian embassy asked permission to present his friend Edward Catherne. What the Austrian had to do with the matter I did not know. Evidently he was either in some way connected with the plot or was being made a tool of. That was nothing to me, but I experienced a peculiar sensation of pleasure at being launched on the whirlpool of diplomatic chicanery. I graciously permitted the introduction and found Mr. Catherne very agreeable. Indeed, he was of the best type of English gentleman, not noble, but well connected at home and in every way desirable. I refrained at this first meeting from anything connected with the work I had undertaken. I simply endeavored to make myself as agreeable as possible to him. I saw at once that he was an intellectual man, and I treated him accordingly—that is, I talked of anything but weighty matters. Girls make a mistake in thinking that men of depth wish deep women for companions. One might as well expect a lawyer to talk law for amusement. However, I permitted Mr. Catherne to do most of the talking, leaving him to chat as he liked. Such talk is all that can be introduced at social functions anyway.

Mr. Catherne asked permission to call upon me, which was, of course, granted. We occupied the same house as when my father lived, a two story brick near —— circle, and it had in it all the attractiveness of simplicity. My waiter told me during the evening that he would sail for England on leave of absence the next week. I told him that I was about to go abroad, and by comparing notes it turned out that I had engaged my passage on the same steamer on which he had engaged his—that is, I knew my friends of the Russian embassy would do my bidding in the matter. Mr. Catherne seemed very much pleased to have my company on the voyage and offered his mother's and sisters' hospitality during my stay in England.

I was offered a passage across the ocean and ample funds for other expenses by my employers, but Mr. Catherne knew that I was not able to travel expensively so I chose one of the poorest staterooms and declined to accept anything from the Russian embassy until I had finished my work. Fortunately I had enough for the purpose aside from my salary. I offered to resign my position in the navy department, but on account of my father's services was given a leave of absence. I learned afterward that those who sent me on my mission were much puzzled at my declining to be furnished with funds. But they continued to be puzzled till they heard definitely from me later, for I gave them no satisfactory explanation. I also learned that from this time they began to doubt me and took measures to get the information they desired through other parties.

Mr. Catherne was devoted to me on the voyage. He talked about everything except diplomacy, on which he maintained a rigid silence. I did not make the slightest attempt to draw him out in that line. Any effort to do so would have aroused suspicion. But it was not in accordance with my plan to draw him out. Something far deeper was in my mind. Besides, I soon learned from him what was necessary for me to know. He told me that he would remain at home only long enough to make a report at the foreign office in London, after which he would take a little trip on the continent. I well knew that this meant a visit to the sultan of Turkey.

Everybody knows what an ocean voyage is for matchmaking. We had not reached England before Mr. Catherne and I were engaged in what in America we call a flirtation. The flirting, however, if it really was flirting, was all on one side. An Englishman is not an adept in such affairs. The game at which he is especially expert is not the game of love, but of diplomacy. I was content, for the time being at least, to let him have his own way at the game of diplomacy provided I could have mine at the game of love.

I had not been in England eighteen hours before I received an invitation from a sister of Mr. Catherne to visit the family home, near London. I spent several days there, during which, I fear, the visiting was rather between Mr. Catherne and me than between me and his mother and sisters. Our affair reached a crisis one evening when he told me that he must run over the next morning to Paris on business. Before going he told me what I had been hoping for—not his diplomatic secret, but that he wished me to be his wife.

Before parting with him that evening—he was not to see him the next morning—he admitted that he was going farther than Paris. I asked him if he was going still farther, and he finally admitted that he would not stop till he reached Constantinople. I asked him why he was going there.

Heard the Same Sound Twice.

In the New York Telephone Review is a striking illustration of the speed with which sound travels over telephone wires as compared with the speed with which it travels through the atmosphere. The manager of a large manufacturing plant in Paterson, N. J., was standing at the telephone in his residence, which is about two miles from his factory, speaking with the superintendent of the works when the whistle of the factory blew for 1 o'clock. The sound came to him very distinctly over the wire, lasting about five seconds, then ceased, and a few seconds later the same sound of the whistle blowing came to him through an open window near which he was standing, this time coming via the sewer route—the sound waves of the atmosphere. He thus actually heard the same sound twice.

To Annoy Napoleon.

A curious anecdote is illustrative of the disposition of Talleyrand. It was resolved that each of the allied powers should designate a commissioner charged with the surveillance of Napoleon at St. Helena. Talleyrand proposed to the king for this office M. de Montchenu, described as "an insupportable babbler, a complete nonentity." On being asked why he had selected this man Talleyrand replied: "It is the only revenge which I wish to take for his treatment of me. However, it is terrible. What a punishment for a man of Bonaparte's stamp to be obliged to live with so ignorant and pedantic chatterer! I know him. He will not be able to support this annoyance. It will make him ill, and he will die of it by slow degrees."

People Who Do Not Whistle.

Arabia must be a heaven for those whose lives are made a burden to them by the whistler. The Arab maintains that a whistler's mouth cannot be purified for forty days and nights, and they assert of the whistler that Satan has touched his body and caused him to produce the offensive sound. Then there are the natives of the Tonga islands, Polynesia, who hold that it is a sin to whistle, as it is an act disrespectful to God. Even in some districts in north Germany villagers declare that if one whistles in the evening it makes the angels weep.

CROMWELL'S QUAINT SPELLING

Interesting Letters From Persons Who Helped Make History in England to be Sold

Some historical letters will be offered for sale at Sotheby's shortly from the Teevey collection, notable among them being a warning letter to one Robert Bernard, evidently suspect as a Royalist. This was early in 1642, when the future dictator was simply Captain Cromwell. The Letter reads as follows, being a good example of the phonetic spelling of the day, and of the writer's masterful ways:—

"Sir, Bernard, its most true my Lieftennant with some other soudiers of my troope were att your house, I desire freely to inquier after you, the reason was, because I have heard you reported active, against the proceedings of Parliament, for those ends they disturbed the peace of this countrie, and this Kingdom, with those of this Countye, whose have had meetings not a few, to intents, and purposes, too too full of suspect.

Its true Sir I knowe you have beene warie in your carriages, bee not too confident thereof, subtility may deceive you, integritie never will, with my hart I shall desire that your allegiance may alter, and your plausible. I would only to hinder men from incroaching the rent, from doeinge hurt, but not to hurt any man.

Nor shall I you, I hope you will give noe cause, if you doe, I must be pardoned what my relation to the publike calls for. If your good parts bee disposed that way, knowe me for your servant.—Oliver Cromwell.

Sir, I desire, favor words from men, shall neither deceive you or your houses," are your liberty.

Another interesting note is a letter which passed the way in the historic meeting between Henry VIII. and FRANCIS I. at the FIELD of the CLOTH of GOLD, and was written nearly 400 years ago (July 20, 1519) by Sir Thomas Boleyn, English ambassador at France, and father of the ill-fated Anne. Here is an extract from this missive which was addressed to HENRY VIII.:—

"The common dreyt amongs wyse prince here (and specially amongst all FRANCE ambassadours that be here resident) is how the ordre and governance of all kyndome restyth now in the pleasure of the Kinge highnesse, for they say playnly yf the Kinge grace be dyspossed to have peas amonge Princes there is nother Emperor nor King that dare wrest hym owtage of enterprise war."

There is another remarkable document from Charles II. to his brother the Duke of York, telling him in plain language to absent himself for some time beyond the sea, this being "absolutely for your good and my service."

There is a letter from the poet Dryden "thanking mouth cull-love and addressed to a fair cousin in 1664, while still an undergraduate at Cambridge. A beautifully-written letter in French from the boy-King Edward VI. to Henri II. of France, and a letter one to Henri III. from Queen Elizabeth relating to the renewal of the negotiations for her marriage with the Duc d'Alencon, are other curios.

WRETCHED HOMES OF WELSH MINERS

Beautiful Hills And Valleys Made Horrible by Grinding And Continued Poverty

During the big coal strike great many discoveries were made by London newspapermen who were sent to study conditions in the mining districts. "I was shocked at the conditions of the poor who are living in spite of the lovely valleys of Wales," writes one correspondent. "If the misery had been caused by the strike and was only temporary, I should think less about it, but it is permanent."

In the Rhondda valley, near the town of Merthyr, which owns the collieries and the tips cannot entirely disfigure, poverty, overcrowded into uninhabitable hovels is a shameless horror. Dowlais, perhaps, is an extreme example, but there is no word which adequately describes its wretched squalor. One leaves Dowlais ashamed of not having known what it has been, but by the fact that a civilized country, careful of its future and its growing life, should not find a remedy for existing conditions. Dowlais folk are cave-dwellers on a blackened hillside; its houses are built on the assumption that a laborer is worth no more than $3 a week.

Except that Dowlais is black, it reminds one in its smells, squalor, and heaped and promiscuous hovels, of the native quarter of Algiers. It is a huddle of dens; its rooms are as dismal as caves, and a decent life in such a place would be a heroic life. A large number of the houses are either back to back or built against the hillside. They have no thorough ventilation, and their meagre windows admit little light.

You enter a habitation from above, and find ladders and narrow passages ramifying into varying dens, where Spaniards, Irish and Welsh families are intermingled, and by luck—your head aching with the sulphurous smoke and the smell of garlic and things which cannot escape from the place—at last you emerge lower down the hill. Lodgers are arranged on a day and night shift basis in some Dowlais houses, the beds being always occupied.

"Though I felt sick and ill with what my guide was determined I should experience," the writer concludes, "he still had one more thing to show me. He took me to a two-roomed hovel where a large family lived, far below the level of the street. Before it was the steep slope of black refuse from the ironworks, and there, in a corner of that tiny kitchen, filled with children, was waiting for burial the coffined body of the mother's sister."

LAUGHED TOO SOON

Embezzler Was Enjoying His Own Escapade When Arrested

Conceit and laughter led to the arrest of a German postal employee, named Hofer, who had absconded from Chemnitz, Germany, with $40,000 in money and papers. By accident two Swiss detectives were in the restaurant of a large hotel at Baie, Italy, when a well dressed man, carrying a number of newspapers, sat down at the next table and laughed loudly as he opened each paper when he saw a photograph. The laughter and curious attitude of the visitor attracted the attention of the detectives, one of whom politely asked to see a paper, and found that the photo and description (with $250 reward) referred to the stranger himself, whom they promptly arrested. A large sum of money was found in his room.

POLICE ARE SILENT.

They Will Not Divulge What Ell Dunkelman Told Them.

Toronto, April 27.—Ell Dunkelman, now rapidly recovering at the General Hospital, has made a statement, in which he directly accuses Charles Gibson, held for the murder of Joseph Rosenthal, as the man who struck him down Good Friday night in rear of the Strachan avenue Hydro-electric transformer station. Dunkelman does not yet know that Rosenthal, who accompanied him to the lonely spot, is dead.

Dunkelman made his statement to Detectives Cronin and Mitchell at the hospital yesterday, but what he said the police firmly refuse to divulge.

Dunkelman tells a little, very little of his terrible journey from the scene of the murder to his home at Richmond and Simcoe streets. He says that he got as far as King street, where he attempted to get on a street car, but the conductor would not let him board it, and, in some way, he scarcely remembers how, he reached his home.

The story told by Dunkelman, it is said, clears away the few remaining open places in the link of the case formed by the police. The mystery of why men should go to purchase wire with no way of removing it is cleared away by the statement that there was a man who was to have carried the stuff away, but who did not turn up. This dispells the greatest obstacle in the minds of some close to the case to the story already formulated.

Dunkelman's recovery has been a marvel to the surgeons at the hospital, and so rapidly is he improving that it is possible that he may be able to tell his story at the inquest next week.

Black Year is 1912.

Paris, April 26.—Madame de Thebe, whom the New York Times' correspondent say Thursday, was unable to substantiate the rumor current in Paris that she warned the late Col. John Jacob Astor that he would lose his life at sea.

She stated, however, that six years ago she warned Wm. T. Stead that danger by water threatened him. She went on:

"Stead laughed at me then, and said that he would have due warning from his familiars in the spirit world if any danger menaced him. Since that time he had joked with me on more than one occasion about my premonition, pointing to his various long journeys accomplished without mishap. I only repeated my warning.

"The year 1912 is a black year. Other marine catastrophes will follow the Titanic wreck. Cataclysms threaten on all sides. The sea especially is marked out as a source of danger. The dangerous epoch will last until March 31, 1913."

Orchestra Player Dead.

Ottawa, April 27.—Soon after the special train bearing the members of the London Symphony Orchestra, reached here yesterday, Wallace Sutcliffe, a second violin player in this world-famous orchestra, was found dead in his berth. Coroner Baptie stated that death was due to heart failure and the funeral occurred yesterday afternoon to Beechwood cemetery here.

Deceased was 44 years old, and leaves a widow and child in London, Eng. For some days he had complained of pains near his heart, but he was well enough to play at Toronto Thursday night. He was seen at six o'clock yesterday morning about the car in which he slept, but went back to bed.

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 27.—A great ice blockade between the mainland and Goat Island yesterday cut off the flow of water over the American Falls. The American channel is practically dry and several people crossed on the river bed from Goat to Green Island. HAD A CLOSE CALL.

Empress of Britain Barely Avoids Bad Iceberg Collision.

Halifax, April 27.—A giant iceberg, similar to that which sank the Titanic, threatened disaster to the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain with 1,460 passengers aboard, which arrived here yesterday from Liverpool.

Passengers say that on Wednesday last at 10 a.m. the vessel, while in latitude 46 N., longitude 47 W., was swerved just in time to avoid a serious collision. Fortunately the ship was steaming slowly at the time because of the dense fog. Suddenly the lookout sighted a great iceberg ahead. He rang for full speed astern, and the propellers were reversed. Despite this the vessel struck the berg a glancing blow, but was not badly damaged.

There were many passengers on deck and all being familiar with the Titanic's fate, many were panicky until assured that there was no danger. The scene was only 250 miles from where the Titanic struck and sank.

The Empress of Britain was bound from Liverpool to Quebec, but because of the prevalence of gulf ice docked here instead of at Quebec.

Big Fire at Brunswick, Me.

Brunswick, Me., April 27.—Fifty buildings, mostly residences, were burning at 2.45 o'clock, in a fire which broke out a little after noon in the sheds of the Knight-Stanwood Coal Co., and it was difficult to estimate the probable extent of the total loss, although $510,000 was named.

"Dry" Plays Politics in Quebec.

Montreal, April 27.—The Dominion Alliance is out in favor of the Gouin Government. Last evening, J. H. Roberts, the secretary of the Alliance, gave out a resolution just adopted calling upon all good citizens and temperance people to vote for the Government candidates.

Russia is Firm.

St. Petersburg, April 27.—The Minister for Foreign Affairs, M. Sasonoff, in the course of a statement on Russian foreign relations made in the Duma yesterday, referred to the abrogation by the United States of the Russo-American Treaty of 1832.

If the United States should take steps to negotiate a new treaty Russia would take into consideration all the wishes of Russian society, he said, but, conscious of the national honor and in close union with all classes of the Russian people, the Government firmly intends, M. Sasonoff added, not to allow any interference with the indisputable sovereign rights of Russia to define its internal legislation as exclusively dependent upon its own needs.

CITY GIVES $100 TO FUND

Special Committee of Council Endorsed the Opening of "Titanic" Fund

IS LEFT WITH CITIZENS

A "Titanic" relief fund has been opened in Peterborough with the endorsation of the City Council and under its direction, and the city heads the list with a contribution of $100.

The special committee with Ald. Gordon presiding and Mayor Bradburn, Aldermen Morgan, Anderson, Graham, Johnston, Brown and Anderson present, met last night to discuss what action should be taken by the city.

Ald. Gordon stated that already over one million dollars have been subscribed in England, United States and Canada. The disaster had stunned the citizens of Peterborough, and great sympathy was felt for those who had been bereaved. Particularly was there a deep feeling for the members of the crew. If a fund is given the approval of the council it will probably be received with more interest. The fund when complete will be looked after by Mayor Bradburn, Ald. Gordon and Mr. F. Adams, city treasurer. The money may be turned over to the Southampton fund, or the Lord Mayor of London's fund, or in some manner of this kind its disposal can be placed in trustworthy hands and the citizens may feel that it will be distributed to those who need it.

Ald. Morgan wanted to make sure that none of the Astors and Guggenheims received a share. He claimed that in these cases the money often did not reach those who needed it most. Mayor Bradburn and Ald. Gordon pointed out that the money being turned over to the trustees of some fund in the Old Country, there need be no doubt as to its disposal. It would go only to those who required it.

Ald. Brown thought that the families might be left in a better position than they were, but Ald. Gordon reminded him that in many of the Southampton families the breadwinners have been cut off by the disaster.

Ald. Anderson thought that owing to the present amount of the fund it was not necessary that the city be extravagant.

Ald. Johnston thought that the city might give $100.

Mayor Bradburn agreed, and remarked that this sum was proportionate to that given by other Canadian cities.

Moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Anderson, that the city establish a relief fund for the benefit of the dependant upon those who lost their lives in the Titanic disaster, and that contribution lists be left in the newspaper offices and banks; that Mayor Bradburn, Ald. Gordon and the city treasurer be trustees of the fund, and that the city head the list with $100. Carried.

WHAT WE WERE TO GET AND WHAT WE HAVE GOT

What Peterborough lost when ... practically lost—in the way of sufficient and efficient wharfage for the ends of Trent Canal navigation, and what she is getting and likely to get, notwithstanding all the difficulties in an equipment and dock system, and of depth, crumbling landing for boats.

The present extent of river and lake navigation, with the canal only completed in the middle and closed at both ends, makes the existing wharfage of Peterborough, rudimentary in case by the Wolfe depot and Mark street wharves, and in grades by the cutting—or is it going?—now closed, entirely inadequate. When the canal is completed from end to end there will be, perhaps, a ten-fold increase of navigation traffic over the present, and certain to grow with the growth of the city.

We all expect to see Peterborough grow, and with faith to that end we should naturally provide for the future.

The late Dominion Government, which has done so much to push the extension of the canal to completion, when the matter was brought to their attention, recognized the importance and necessity of providing adequate wharfage for Peterborough, if the city were to receive the advantages of the full development of canal traffic. Accordingly, in the session of 1910-11, a sum of $20,000 was appropriated as a beginning, with the understanding that an additional amount up to $75,000 would be appropriated and spent, if that amount were necessary to provide adequately and substantially for the present and future navigation traffic needs of Peterborough.

A water site for the new wharf was purchased from Mr. G. W. Hatton, on the west shore of Little Lake, fronting the east side of George street, and extending southward from the outlet of Spalding's Bay, some four hundred feet.

The general idea was to construct a wharf on the level with George street, to occupy the whole frontage of the lot. The approach to the system of wharfage was to extend into the lake eastward 25 or 30 feet, or as far as was deemed necessary. This approach would begin on the north at the creek and extend southward parallel with George street. The face of this approach was not to be a continuous line fronting the water, like a mere landing; but three or more piers of concrete would be pushed into the lake, at right angles with the face of the land approach, to a sufficient distance to reach deep water. If, say, three piers were placed, that would provide four slips, that is two between the three piers and one each on the outside of the two outer piers. The four hundred feet frontage of the water lot would permit the placing of these piers of 30 feet width each, with four slips or basins of 75 feet wide (both of these widths to be subject to the exact length of the site) of a length corresponding to the distance they were built into the lake eastward. These slips would be dredged to canal depth.

This system of piers to be built of concrete (as also the approach to them) with their enclosing and abutting slips, would provide on a four hundred feet front of wharf site, a wharfage of 600 feet, if the piers were only built 100 feet into the lake; or, if the length of these piers and slips were made as was proposed, 250 or 300 feet, 1500 or 1800 lineal feet of wharfage would be provided, and there would be at one time accommodation in each slip for two or three steamers of 100 feet each, or in all ten or twelve steamers of 100 feet length could be berthed at the same time.

The proposal was to provide solid foundations for approach and piers. If satisfactory footing could not be found at a reasonable depth, the base of the foundation was to be placed on piling. The wharf was to be placed on a level with George street, so that vehicles could have easy access to it, or the street cars might be run upon it, or even in time, with development of traffic needs, a railway switch could be run upon it.

The $20,000 for the beginning was appropriated in the session of 1910-11, to be voted at the session of 1911-12, and expended in the latter, that is, the present year. But an election came on in the late summer and nothing was of course done in regard to the wharf building.

Of course work might have begun and a considerable parade made, if the object had been to make political capital to influence the election. But the plans were not ready; and in a work of such magnitude and importance, beginning work without plans prepared by competent engineers, would only tend to botch work, as we see lamentably illustrated to-day. And we also see what we are getting now as compared with what we would, nay, should have got, if the representation of West Peterborough and the government of the country had not changed.

A new government came into power, and in Peterborough a new man was placed at the helm. He was a political phenomenon—that rara avis, an honest politician. There was none of the designing politician about him. He was straight, and had no use for schemes—and no use, as the outcome shows, even for plans, especially engineers' plans. He was so anxious to show the people what real statesmanship was; he was so anxious to show his gratitude to those who helped him to his seat, to satisfy their hunger for jobs, that he took to wharf building, and began the construction of a landing on the site that had been purchased for a wharf or system of wharves.

The work was begun at a season when good work could not be done, and without proper plans, for with experienced foremanship, if there had been proper plans to be worked to, there would not have been the tinytanic disaster that befel a corner of this submerged monument of folly.

A concrete retaining wall was extended outward into the lake, from the bank at the south shore of the creek, and thence southerly a little over 300 feet, thence easterly about 100 feet. This was called a retaining wall; it retained the earth inside it but it did not even retain its own integrity. The creek in its little spring rampage a few days ago nibbled off the northeast corner of the wall and sucked away its foundations. But the extent of the damage cannot be seen for the merciful waters rose and hid the bungle from the public gaze.

And the water had nothing to boast of; it had only to rise a very little to overflow the landing, which is between three and five feet below the level of George street and approach to the front, resembles a toboggan slide, with an easy grade.

If what we can't see of Burnham's landing—the west side "Burnham's Point"—is as bad as what we can see, Peterborough will perceive what it missed when it preferred Mr. Burnham, and his collapsible landing, to a good, sufficient, solid, serviceable, adequate, system of wharfage, such as had been planned and provided for by his predecessor, and the predecessor of the Government that he and poulor delusion helped to make and maintain. They have landed on a "landing," instead of a good solid wharf,

FORMAL OPENING

Public [illegible] of Important Function in Connection With the New Protestant Home

A NUMBER OF ADDRESSES

The formal opening of the new Protestant Home building, which is announced to take place Tuesday, May 7th at 8 p.m., promises to be a function worthy alike the splendid efforts of the directors, and the imposing and well-equipped building on the hill, off Aspen street.

The public are cordially invited to attend the opening, and inspect the building.

The short dedicatory service is in charge of the Ministerial Association of the city.

The band of the 57th Regiment and Mr. Glidden's orchestra will discourse sweet music during the evening, thereby adding greatly to the pleasure of the visitors.

His Honour Mayor Bradburn will preside upon the occasion, and short addresses will be given by Lieutenant Governor Col. Sir John Gibson, K.C.M.G.; Dr. Bruce Smith, Judge Boggs and R. A. Peck, M.P.P.

J. H. Burnham, M.P., will give a short history of the home. It is expected that Senator Cox, who never loses interest in Peterborough, will be present also.

A vocal solo by Miss Howell and violin music by Miss Palmer will be attractive features of the evening.

Big Attraction At Red Mill

The White Slave Trade.

"Dealers in White Women" is a record-breaking series, to be begun on Monday next. It is an exposal of the "white slave" traffic, and has been given the attention of prominent clergymen in England, United States and Canada. Rev. Dr. Shearer of Toronto, has endorsed its presentation. The film teaches a great moral and its attractive feature is not in the story it tells but in the advice it quietly tells to young people, and to the old as well. It is an education to parents and young people, alike.

It is desired that accommodation sufficient to enable all those who wish to hear Mr. Kuhn be obtained. The executive will therefore be obliged to those wishing to hear Mr. Kuhn by signifying the same by 'phoning on Monday morning the secretary, Mr. J. McNichol at 1,888, or Mr. C. F. GREAT INTEREST IN THE ARRIVAL OF MORGUE SHIP "MACKAY-BENNETT" AT HALIFAX

Relatives of "Titanic" Victims Are Arriving on Every Train —Huge Squad of Reporters and Photographers Will Be Excluded From the Dock—Investigation at Washington is Being Continued To-day.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

HALIFAX, N.S., APRIL 27.—[illegible] travelled only by that which preceded the arrival of the Carpathia in New York, last week, is keeping pace with the expected arrival of the morgue ship MacKay-Bennett, Sunday night, or Monday morning. Each train brings relatives of people of all classes, who went down on the Titanic. They have come from all parts of Canada, United States and Europe. The officials of the White Star Line are trying to avoid publicity in connection with the recognition and identification of the lost wings by their relatives, and have ordered the exclusion of a big corps of reporters and photographers from New York and Boston. These newspaper men are very indignant at this exclusion, and are pulling all sorts of wires to try and get in to witness this sad scenes. They have wired Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, in case his influence as the MacKay-Bennett will land at the Government dock. To comply with the law, a coroner's jury Ms. been empanelled to view all the remains as brought in and formally pass a verdict of accidental death. There will be special funeral trains ready to depart immediately to Montreal, Calgary, New York and Chicago.

THE INVESTIGATION.

WASHINGTON, D.C., APRIL 27.—Capt. Thomas E. Moore of the Canadian Pacific Railway Steamship "Mount-Temple," arrived in Washington to-day, to testify before the Senate Committee of Inquiry into the Titanic disaster.

Passengers on the Mount-Temple, which was in the vicinity of the Titanic on the fatal night of Sunday April 14, have declared they saw the Titanic's lights and signals. Wireless Operator Cottam of the Carpathia, testified he had not believed the Mount-Temple got the Titanic's wireless signals of distress because the operator of the Mount-Temple had given him "Good Night" shortly after 10 o'clock that night. The committee has yet to examine a number of British sailors who survived the Titanic wreck, and contemplates putting some of them on the stand to-day. A. Onerlord, one of the stewards who was examined in New York, will also be recalled.

HALIFAX, N.S., APRIL 27.—The Canadian Government has ordered a guard of sailors from H. C. M. S. Niobe and soldiers from the Royal Canadian Regiment to reinforce the local police in guarding the approach to the Gun Docks, when the morgue ship comes in.

NOT THE "REAL REASON"

Mr. J. H. Burnham in an article displayed in the Times, says—in his usual wide-of-the-mark way of statement—that "Mr. A. H. Stratton (late Postmaster) is grumbling about the investigation not being to his liking." This is entirely wide of the truth. Mr. Stratton was relieved of office, which he was, as is admitted, efficiently filling, for an alleged cause, which did not exist, and in respect of which he demanded an investigation, such as was promised by Mr. Borden and by Mr. Burnham over his own signature. The late postmaster is not "grumbling" about something that never took place—an investigation. He naturally objects, as any man would, at being made the subject and object of an offence of which he was not guilty—on a charge that fair investigation, which was denied, would have absolutely disproved. How can dependence be placed upon any promise of Mr. Borden or Mr. Burnham being kept?

Expected That Riverside Park Will Soon Be Drained

The level of the water in the Otonabee is receding slowly, dropping several inches through the night, and it is expected that the next few days will see considerable diminution of the volume of water coming down the river. The flood has apparently reached its height and an improvement in the condition is looked forward to. It is hoped that the water line will soon be drained off Riverside Park and the grounds dried up sufficiently to permit Manager Tompkins to get to work improving the diamond for the opening of the season.

It is proposed to erect a new grandstand at the Park, situated behind the home plate and capable of accommodating 500 to 1,000 people. The old stand will be left as it is and will seat 600 more, while it is likely that bleachers may also be erected, although this has not been definitely decided upon. The management have several contractors over at the grounds this afternoon deciding upon what is to be done. Work will be commenced as soon as the water goes down sufficiently.

603 Ford Autos Made In One Day

Ald. Duffus Impressed by the Vastness of the Detroit Factory

Ald. J. J. Duffus returned yesterday from a convention of the Ford Automobile dealers in Central and Western Ontario. They proceeded from Toronto by special car to Walkerville and Detroit. On the last evening of the banquet they attended a banquet in the Hotel Cadillac, in the latter city. Among those present were Mr. Henry Ford, the maker of the first Ford auto, and Mr. G. M. McGregor, General Manager at Walkerville. The magnitude of the Ford works is impressive. The factory, by this time next year, will cover 46 acres, all under one roof. The present plant is being doubled to attain that size. The daily pay roll to all employees of the company is $164,000. The number of employes in this four-storey factory is 7,250. Every time the fly wheel in the power plant machinery makes 24 revolutions a new car is turned out. One day last week the maximum output was reached. 603 cars being the result of that day's work. Four trains of Ford cars are loaded at a time from the extensive shipping department, and the work goes on all the time. There are miles of belting in the factory, and, standing at one end, it is impossible to see the other end through the mass and network of belting. The output of Model T cars this year is 75,000, and next year's will reach 150,000. The power for the factory is obtained from natural gas on the company's grounds.

CHRIST CHURCH SMITH ST. CHURCH

The Street Railway curve at the corner of South and George streets cannot be satisfactorily remedied without carrying it over on to the north side of South street. Mayor Bradburn and Ald. Duffus interviewed Mr. Morgan, who states that if there were any way of changing the curve it would be done. He asked the city representatives to express the opinion of Mr. Hay in regard to lessening the sharpness of the curve. The City Engineer stated that no improvement could now be made there.

Ald. Morgan reported that it should be easy to make the change at Chestnut at South and George streets as was done at Hunter and George streets last night. The Council will likely ask the Street Railway to make a change there, as the curve in winter is regarded as a danger to those driving along that street.

IMMIGRANTS HAVE ARRIVED

Advance Party Reached Here Last Night in Charge of Mr. [illegible]

SAW "TITANIC" WRECKAGE

Nine more immigrants, outlook down about farmers storming the Wolfe, Ward's, behind cars, Hotels [illegible] rolled flat and generally like outpost—hope, and Mr. Howson, local immigration agent, always on the job, hovering through it all.

This was the condition which prevailed at the Wolfe street immigration [illegible] o'clock last evening. Sharp at 5.45 p.m. Mr. F. H. Collings, with a portion of his second annual contingent of immigrants in tow, trooped into the office. They had just arrived on the Grand Trunk flyer from Belleville.

Farmers Were on Hand.

A reception committee composed of about thirty-eight farmers were on hand to welcome the new arrivals. Many of these men had camped on the scene all day, and it is safe to say that many of them would have welcomed an all night blizzard, in return for the assurance that their fondest hopes would be realized.

By a clever piece of strategy, and a quick flank movement, the party was safely ensconced behind the wire cages which mark the boundary line between the inner and outer office. This left the farmers on the outside looking in, and vice versa. The mode of procedure was this: Each farmer was armed with a ticket, which bore the name of the person who was to share his burdens on the farm—the names had been forwarded ahead with the advice notices. The names being called out, and its owner located, the aforesaid mentioned party was introduced and with a "Come on, let's get acquainted" manner, the newcomer was whisked off to his new home.

All of the new arrivals, with the exception of [illegible] members of the party went out last night. The main body of the party, about forty in number, are expected some time to-day. They were held up by the customs at Halifax.

Encountered Wreckage.

Mr. Collings stated that the trip was an uneventful one. They came over on the steamer "Royal George," and while in the vicinity of the Titanic disaster encountered considerable wreckage, such as chairs, floating woodwork, etc. Several large icebergs were also encountered. The party sailed from Bristol on the 17th of April, two days after the disaster, and docked at Halifax on the following Wednesday.

Mr. Collings expects to bring a still larger party to Peterborough in July, sailing from England on the 16th and probably arriving here about the 23rd. He states that the immigration movement is exceptionally heavy this year. All bookings are filled up to June. Mr. Collings's brother is taking a large party of mechanics through to Edmonton and other western points.

One farmer drove a distance of twenty miles, and at 10.30 last night, he was compelled to make the return journey, without [illegible] secured a man. "I [illegible] while I was young," he remarked ruefully, "we didn't have to come to Peterborough to get men."

So anxious were the farmers to secure help, that many of them went to the Grand Trunk station and awaited the arrival of the train in the hopes that they might induce one of the newcomers. One man went so far as to change his name on his ticket and to correspond with the name of one of those who arrived last night. He manoeuvred this sleight of hand stunt by first interviewing the stranger and then placing his name on the card at the same time erasing the name which was originally placed there by Mr. Howson.

Make Early Arrival.

The 5.10 a.m. G.T.R. flyer from Belleville, brought to the main body of Mr. Collings' party this morning. There were about thirty altogether, including [illegible] women. For about fifteen minutes Mr. Howson and a local [illegible] were busy, and by 5.30 the entire party with the exception of one or two members, was satisfactorily disposed of. Even this did not cause to alleviate the demands for help, as was indicated by the large number of farmers who invaded the immigration office immediately the ship was one of the largest of the season, and it will be some time in July before the next party arrives. Mr. Collings left to-day for Toronto, where he will meet his brother, who is in charge of a party of [illegible] booked for Edmonton.

A COSMOPOLITAN COLLEGE.

The Ontario Veterinary College seems to deserve the title cosmopolitan, from the widely distributed character of the home habitat of its students. At the recent graduating examinations the following full-ched vote were distributed, as to country or province, as follows: United States 20; Ontario 12; Quebec, 5; Manitoba, 4; England, 4; British Columbia, 4; Saskatchewan, 4; New Brunswick, 2; Prince Edward Island, 2; Cuba, 1; Scotland, 1; Alberta, 1; Ireland, 1. It will be noted that the United States leads with a total of 20; Ontario comes next, with 12, which is the same figure as the four western provinces. England, the home of the horse, contributes 4, and Ireland ad Scotland one each. Two questions are suggested. Of the seventy-two, 37 or one more than half of the graduates are from outside the Dominion, while of the 72 graduates from the "Ontario" Veterinary College, only 12 are from this province. Is it worth while to maintain, partially at the public expense, an educational establishment from which outsiders as to residence and boundaries, get the chief benefit? Or does this circumstance find compensation in the practical tribute to the value and superiority of an Ontario educational institution, implied in the attendance of students from countries, that should lead in educational matters. Great Britain, 3,000 miles distant, with a thousand years of civilization—from King Alfred down—behind it, sends six students—to a college in Ontario, which a hundred years ago, as far as there is such a thing, was practically a pristine wilderness. The United States, "first in peace, first in war and first in the hearts (and self esteem) of its countrymen," sends thirty students. The Ontario Veterinary College may be a splendid advertisement for Canada, subject to the possibly debatable question as to whether the advertisement is worth the money.

THE BETTER WAY.

There was an address given in this city a night or two ago, in advocacy of old age pensions. Old age pensions are in the abstract, desirable, especially to the beneficiaries, who after a life of careless spendthriftness and improvidence, find it very comfortable to sit down and enjoy a pension, contributed by the industry, and to a certain extent, self sacrifice, which the average recipient of a pension did not practice in his earning days. The general tendency of an old age pension system is demoralising; it encourages careless habits of living and spending and develops more or less a spirit and condition of pauperism. It weakens character and substitutes a spirit of dependence for one of independence.

Contrasted with the results and effects of the Government Annuity system, it is vicious. The old age, self-earned annuity system applied, develops manhood, independence, industry, and the noblest trait of human character, self-denial or sacrifice. By a systematic saving and paying in of small sums from early manhood to 60 or 65 years of age, a man or woman will be in receipt of an income he has earned, reaping the fruits of his investment he has made and was able to make, by the practice of habits of thrift that made him a better man, self respected and respected by his fellowmen. He has not wasted his substance in riotous living, to sink into an old age of pauperism, the recipient of a dole to which he is not entitled except for the fact of his destitution, brought about by his own folly and improvidence.

A typical case like this illustrates the superiority of the Annuities system. A citizen living up to its requirements, practising the thrift its conditions involve, will be a stronger, more robust and in every way a more valuable citizen. He will not only contribute to the national sum of simply a nebler manhood, but will contribute to the financial strength of our thrifty people in the form of thrift of the people. Could such a thing as subscribing thirty-two times over a sixty million dollar item by, principally, the poorer classes, have occurred in a country under the paralyzing influences of an old age pension system—an incitement more to careless and improvident and foolish and even vicious spending—on drink—instead of to saving and thrift.

The French national habit of thrift, makes that country not only strong financially, but a potent political influence as arbiter of peace and war. In a recent European crisis, Germany's lack of money prevented war, and France's abundance of money contained in innumerable teapots, stocking and holes in mattresses, was available as it was in paying with her own money the immense war indemnity exacted by Germany in 1870. If we, through penny savings banks in schools and by the general application of the Government Annuities system infuse into the people of Canada a similar spirit and practice of thrift, we should have a citizenship that would be a source of financial and moral strength, something to be depended upon instead of being dependent.

EDITORIAL NOTES

One could understand what the captain of the Titanic meant when he cried to his crew, "Be British!" Contrast the significance of that utterance, says the London Advertiser, with the hollow hypocrisy of politicians, who cried to the Canadian farmers that it would not be British to sell more hogs and hay in the United States!

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden is in the United States for his health. He consented ad address by telephone to the Associated Press Club, New York, in these stirring words: "How often does the voice of idealism make itself heard above the roar of the market place in this great western continent?" How did the voice of political idealism make itself heard over the roar of the demands of Mr. Bourassa and the Nationalists?

TARDY JUSTICE.

I have no desire to broach party politics," continued Mr. Willison. "I have not been a severe critic of the naval programme of the Laurier Administration. At least, it was the beginning, and the first step is the hardest step to take in any revolutionary change in public policy. It is easy for us in Ontario to advocate contribution to Imperial defence because we have the decided support of public opinion, but I want you gentlemen to remember, and to hold in respect those French Canadian Liberals who fought a hard fight in the initial period of this struggle for contribution to Imperial defence."—Toriea News.

In these remarks tardy justice is done to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Lemieux, and other members and friends of the late Government at Ottawa. It is the first time that the case has been fairly stated on the Conservative side. No reader of the News during the recent Federal election would have suspected that the News admired Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and his friends for doing pioneer work in Quebec into the idea of supporting naval defence. During that election Sir Wilfrid Laurier was viciously attacked in Quebec for organizing a Canadian navy, which was to fight the battles of England, and he was viciously attacked in Ontario as the enemy of England. With that campaign the News was in complete sympathy. There was then no recognition of the position of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as a statesman striving with a difficult situation.

Mr. Borden and Mr. Hazen have a smoother path to travel. The pioneer work, as Mr. Willison admits, has been done. The dishonest partisan game of urging Ontario in one direction and Quebec in another, has been abandoned. The journals that did their worst to set Ontario and Quebec at each other's throats are now talking amicably of peace and unity. The Borden Government has a plain duty before it. Its difficulties will be of its own creation. It may, for instance, meddle in the local politics of Saskatchewan and Quebec, and thus waste the time and energy which ought to be devoted to the business of Canada.—Toronto Star.

NEW LINE IN OPERATION BY FIRST OF MAY

Advent of Fine Trains Over Georgian Bay Railway

Messrs James & Horne received a letter from the District Passenger Agent of the C.P.R. on Friday, advising them that trains would begin to run into Orillia over the Georgian Bay and Seaboard Railway about the 1st of May. Further inquiry, however, has failed to elicit any definite information, and from all that can be gathered it seems improbable that trains will be running before the middle of the month—and perhaps not till the first of June. The Lindsay Post says that a gang of navvies arrived in that town on Monday, to complete the ballasting of the line between that point and Bethany, and that it will take them two or three weeks to do the work. The station here will not be ready for some time yet. On the other hand, the C.P.R. steamers are fitting out at Owen Sound to come over to Port McNicoll, from which port they are to run this season; and it may be taken for granted that the C.P.R. will want to get the line open soon after navigation begins, in order to give good connection from the east. The steamers, by the way, are being fitted with wireless, and there will be wireless shore stations near Midland, at Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur, and probably at Tobermory.

An indication that the opening of the line is not far off is given by the following item from the Lindsay Post:

The many friends of Mr. James W. Anderson, C.P.R. station agent (and they are legion), will be pleased to learn that he has been appointed trainmaster on the Georgian Bay and Seaboard Railway. That he will fill the position with credit goes without saying, as the Canadian Pacific Railway Company could not have made a better selection. He has been local station agent ever since the C.P.R. entered Lindsay, and has filled the position with rare ability. His friends will be delighted to learn that Mr. Anderson's new appointment will not necessitate his removal from Lindsay.

The C.N.O.R. officials say they have no idea yet when their service into Orillia will begin.—Orillia Packet.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Kate Cameron

One of the unanswerable things my little talk on the usefulness of remembering birthdays called forth was an astounding one. I must pass it on. A letter about the way in which women seem to be kept in ignorance of a generation or two ago, then one of Dorothys, then a "Kate" of thirteen. My correspondent writes:

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," which was published, I think, early in 1852. I read aloud to about twenty women and girls to-day at that year. Our of the most notable characters in the book was Eva, and I have yet to find a woman of fifty who knows exactly what year she came into existence, even if she has passed the half century mark herself. I have asked between then if me and July of 1852 she was married. Eva. To one who can recall as far back as I can it is interesting to see that some of the names of our youngest school mates we tend to select them at birth and sometimes at four, years of age) are being drawn from the most notable characters in the book. Among the names I have noted are, with an Priscilla, "Esther," "Hester," "Margaret," "Barbara," Olive," "Molly," "Miriam," and many others."

To one of my readers who can remember the days of which she speaks, I think this comment might be especially interesting.

"It is a great trial to me," said a woman who was born before many uncle family and married into another, "that I cannot remember with ease all the birthdays in our two families, but it is simply impossible. Why, just think, I have fifteen sisters and brothers, real and in-law, twenty-seven nephews and nieces, and also 42 thirty-five uncles and cousins and cousins. That would mean more than two per week if I tried to remember them all."

To this woman and to you, if you are one of those people who like to remember the birthdays of your friends and relatives, but reckon too many of them to afford any real gift, I suggest the plan which one dear old lady of my acquaintance follows. She has a book in which she keeps the birthday dates of all her friends. With the help of this memorandum she sends each of them a card, telling them that she is thinking of them and wishing them happiness throughout the coming year.

Having been a recipient of one of these cards, I know the thrill of pleasure which one feels on being thus unexpectedly remembered and congratulated by someone who was under no obligation to do so.

I recommend the plan to anyone who likes to do kind things.

"I have made up my mind that many unpleasant things are said and done," writes one of my [illegible] "simply because people have not had the attention called to them, and it might [illegible] pleasant [illegible] for a luncheon table. I have never sittimes had my appetite leave [illegible] account of some vivid description of an operation, the speaker even going so far as to tell what the doctor found, and the amount of pus removed. Now I know this sentimentality will date of whom have been a very ignorant person who would talk of such things, but that is not so. I have in mind a woman of education and standing, who did this very thing."

I trust that my friend's optimistic belief that people do things like this simply because they have not had their attention called to them will be justified.

"FATHER AND THE BOY"
ADDRESS BY MR. J. L. HUGHES

Junior Department of Y.M.C.A. Entertain Fathers at Annual Gathering—Inspector Hughes Points the Way to a Broader Development of Boyhood into a More Perfect Manhood.

Written for the Examiner (By Roy Gilray)

Yesterday was red letter day in the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. It was the occasion of their annual banquet, but instead of enjoying it all to themselves, they invited their fathers to participate in the good things provided by the Women's Auxiliary to the Association. The invitation to the fathers was an innovation, but a sufficient number responded to assure the officers that there are a few fathers at least who are interested in the welfare of their sons. About 160 sat down to a sumptuous repast presided over by Mr. R. F. Downer, Chairman of the Committee on Boys' Work. To his left sat Judge Huycke, and to his right Inspector Jas. L. Hughes, the veteran educationist of the City of Toronto, who has occupied, longer than any other official on this continent, a high administrative educational position. During his regime of thirty-eight years, he has seen Toronto grow from a city with 66 teachers in charge of 5,000 pupils, to a city with 1,100 teachers, training 45,000 pupils. To keep abreast of such a rapidly developing system, and, at the same time, hold his high reputation as an educationist, bespeaks the possession of mental and physical powers of no ordinary kind. It is little wonder, therefore, that he impressed his hearers as they had never been impressed before; that he was able to present such an old subject in such a new light—the all important question of the development of the boy into perfect manhood.

Before his lecture proper Mr. Hughes was asked to present the Lang Trophy or Shield of general [illegible] to Meredith Huycke, who, past year, has proved himself to be the best all-round athlete in the Junior Department. He congratulated the winner on his achievement, and was pleased to note that his prowess along this line was helping him to distinguish himself in his other work as well.

The keynote of Mr. Hughes' address was the fact that there lies in every child a power to some one thing better than any other individual, and in the development of that power there would thereby accrue to the life of every boy, which, though individual, were as distinct as the three stages in the life of the butterfly. First, there was his boyhood; second, his youth; and lastly, his manhood. To illustrate the difference he referred to a man who picked up a grub and proceeded to acquaint the creature with the fact that some day it would become a butterfly, so, without wasting any time he would at once teach it to fly. Picking up a shingle he placed the grub on the end, and tossed it high into the air. Repeating the process several times he eventually killed the grub without imparting the knowledge of flight. This act was no more stupid than that of a woman who had a fond desire that her boy should become a minister, and always made him wear a stiff white necktie.

Addressing the fathers, he said in part: "A boy is not a little man. We weaken him by putting an adult theology into his young life. He cannot understand. First of all, let him be a real genuine boy. Let him play baseball if he will. Let him make things; let him produce; keep in line with his enthusiasm, which will eventually bring him to his own. If he is not interested in the things you are interested in, then by all means get interested in the boy's activities. Be his chum, his partner; always be younger than your boy. There is no reason for separation between father and son. Every boy has a right to his own life, then respect that right. The partnership is mutual, or should be. If you are decent with your lad he will respect you all the more. Let the boy plan. If he gets stuck and needs your assistance, render it by all means, but be careful that it is only assistance; a boy glories in a creation of his own designing, no matter how rude. One father, who was forever interfering with his boy's play—or to the boy, work—received a mild rebuke which he never forgot. Said the boy: "What is the use of my planning if you plan for me all the time?"

"Some fathers are so unkind as to say that boys do not like work. This is not true, and it is unfair to the boy to say so. A boy is a human transformer, changing everything he comes in contact with. He is in a new world unconscious of his own power. When we rob a boy of that power or tendency to transform things we rob that boy of his very life."

This was forcefully illustrated by reference to a Chicago youth, who, at eleven years of age, was considered defective. Although the father was a great writer and lecturer, he had never paid any attention to the development of the child. Mr. Hughes, while at his home, noticed a strange-looking structure in the yard, which was peculiar enough to be the handiwork of this boy, and through this discovered the boy's line of enthusiasm. The truth was [illegible] to the father, who was impressed with the possibility of directing the boy's seemingly useless life. When that boy was eighteen he stood highest in rank at a Technical School of Indianapolis.

In fact Mr. Hughes presented no truth without clinching it with an il-

ARE YOU FAT?

You know you can not stay fat, don't you? That is, you can not be fat and be stylish. The day when a fat woman was tolerated is passed. Nowadays all women must be in proportion or be ridiculous. This does not mean you should become skinny, however. You should not get below the hard muscle line. All you ought to lose is the bulky fat. That done you will find yourself to be a well-formed and therefore handsome woman.

Now, how can this be done? By exercising and dieting? Yes, and no. These two means will bring some results, but not easily nor soon. One is very hard work, the other is torture. Besides, neither can be depended on to cause a uniform reduction. They may take off a [illegible] shoulder, for example, and leave the double chin untouched. What you need, you see, is something pleasant to take that without injury to your health will take the fat off uniformly and quickly, say at the rate of a pound a day or so, until it is all gone where you want it to go.

For this purpose nothing is less expensive, safer or simpler than Marmola Prescription Tablets. Inexpensive because but three tablets a day, costing 75 cents only, will produce results; safe because they cause no wrinkles or stomach trouble, and because they prove the health and complexion, if anything; and simple, because they do all the work without asking thought or effort on the part of the taker. In short, they are the ANSWER, if you are fat and wish to be thinner. If your druggist is of the better kind he will have them. If not, write the licensee, The Marmola Company, Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

IS YOUR PANAMA GENUINE?

The Hats Are Not Made in Panama, but in Ecuador.

When the summer comes lucky is the young man who can sport a genuine Panama hat. Though these hats have become popular throughout the United States, few people know that the term is a misnomer.

These hats are not made at Panama, but in Ecuador, South America. It was because the first [illegible] of the country [illegible] Panama that the hats are known by that name. The high prices we must pay are due largely to the indirect duties and to the fact that they pass through the hands of a number of commission men before they reach the ultimate purchaser.

During the Paris Exposition, held during the reign of Napoleon III., two Panama hats from Ecuador were sold for $200 each and presented to the Emperor and to Marshal MacMahon. One of the finest hats ever made in Ecuador was presented to the late King Edward, and was so delicate and exquisite in weave that it would be folded into a cigarette case no larger than his watch.

The United States is the largest purchaser of Panama hats, and the importation of jippijapa from Ecuador amounting to nearly one million dollars annually. Germany, Great Britain, and France come next in the order named.

RICHARD HALL & SON

OPENING OF NEW PROTESTANT HOME WILL TAKE PLACE ON TUESDAY, APRIL 30TH

Handsome and Commodious Accommodation Has Been Provided for Peterborough's Poor—Sun Parlours, Spacious Verandahs and Balconies Find a Prominent Place in New Structure.

Situated on an eminence on Water street north, at the south side, commanding a splendid view in three directions, there stands the new Protestant Home, the doors of which are to be formally thrown open on April 30th. The building at present is receiving its finishing touches and when completed will in every detail be a modern and first-class structure. The designing of the building in the interior and exterior and the construction out on a generous, yet economical basis; generous owing to the ample accommodation it will offer, and economical in the sense that every available part of the building has been utilised for a useful purpose. The interior fittings especially reveal the most careful and conscientious workmanship.

The architectural features of the building derive their greatest commendation from their very simplicity. There is no unnecessary ornateness connected with it, and yet the most casual and untrained eye can readily detect that the building is planned to provide comfort primarily, and next ample accommodation.

Under Separate Management.

In many respects, the institute closely adheres to the workings of a hospital with matrons, wards, sun parlours, and especially commodious verandahs and balconies where future inmates may drink deeply of the exhilarating tonic, pure air.

The building is almost square and is comprised of three stories and the basement. In reality it is two buildings, as one wing will be devoted to the male inmates and the other to the women. The masculine inmates will occupy the western half. Between these two wings, and facing south, the same direction as the structure, is a large verandah and balcony. The balcony is divided off so that it will not be necessary for the women to mix with the men while sitting out. At the rear, there is a similar large verandah, and balcony with French windows leading out. The building is of red brick, and the woodwork inside is black birch throughout. This gives an elegant and extremely rich effect and one that will be much admired. There are sixteen rooms on the first floor alone, including the kitchen. The first floor is so constructed that the kitchen is only one story high. All other chambers are sunny and bright, with excellent lighting facilities. In fact the entire building is amply supplied with windows, and ventilation has been carefully provided for. While communication between the men and women's departments is only separated by doors, yet each wing will be under separate management and have its own staff in charge. They are excellent and convenient sanitary arrangements and a serviceable fire protection system on every floor. The building will be heated by two brand new Gurney furnaces.

In the basement which is all concrete floored is a little room, which will likely be one of the least used of any. This is a little cell with a barred door, in which any obstreperous inmate will be lodged, should such actions be found necessary.

Will Accommodate 75 Inmates.

Some of the wards are being furnished by benevolently disposed and interested parties.

Mrs. Hazlitt has donated two chandeliers for the women's dining room; Judge Roger will equip a private ward, the Sons of England, a couple of the men's wards; E. F. Mason, a mission room and the Misses Morrow another room.

Accommodation is easily ample for seventy-five inmates. The architectural success of the building was due to Mr. Sandford Smith, of the firm of Bond and Smith, architects, Toronto, and the construction was directed by Ald. Graham. Ald. Geo. Duncan had the contract for the painting and decorating and Mr. R. J. Sutherland the plumbing.

The expenses in connection with furnishing the institution, will be quite heavy, but if $3,000 is forthcoming everything can be arranged for satisfactorily.

The formal opening on Tuesday, April 30th, will likely be graced by the presence of the Lieutenant Governor and other prominent officials. There will be speeches and a high class programme. The invitation list will be limited to officials of the city, but the public are cordially invited to be present on the occasion, and form their own opinions of the institution which is in every sense a creditable addition to the beneficient institutions of this city.

"Sure Thing" Methods Of Water Commissioners Rile Aldermen

Want to Make Sure of Their Revenue on Bonacord St. and Require City to Place Two Hydrants to Help Pay for the Main.

COMMENTS OF COMMITTEE

A meeting of the Fire, Water and Light committee was held on Friday night with Ald. Johnston presiding, and the following members present: Ald. Buller, Morgan, Graham, Gordon, Brown and Anderson.

A communication from the Water Commissioners asked for a hydrant on a new main to be opened on Dufferin street, East City. It had been fully petitioned for. The nearest hydrant is on concession street.

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that a hydrant be placed on Dufferin street, at a position to be decided by the chairman.—Carried.

Ald. Johnston stated to Mayor Bradburn that the appropriation for hydrants this year is $365, each costing $27.50.

Bonacord St. Hydrants.

A communication from the Water Commissioners wanted to know if they would place two hydrants on Bonacord street.

Mayor Bradburn opened fire on this proposal. He was opposed to putting two hydrants on that street and considered it unreasonable that the Water Commissioners should expect the Council to put them in. The people living on the street should know that it is the Commissioners and not the Council who are responsible in regard to the putting in of a water service on that street.

Ald. Brown—The people know the circumstances and are suffering in the meantime.

Commissioners Want 10 P.C.

Residents of Bonacord street have asked for a water service on the street, but the Water Commissioners before laying a main require that it will pay a dividend of 10 per cent. of the cost. When the city installs a hydrant it costs $27.50 and afterwards there is always a charge against the residents.

Ald. Gordon said that the Commissioners put a water service into Byersville and the residents of that section paid taxes to North Monaghan Council.

This main and several others of a similar nature, it was pointed out, were laid under special conditions, and the Commissioners protected their financial interest.

Mayor Bradburn said he objected to the city supplying water to Byersville with the taxes of that section going to North Monaghan.

Ald. Johnston stated that he was not disposed to criticise the Water Commissioners. He considered their system a good one.

Ald. Brown—It is not a good system. When vacant property on a street is charged as a house, it is always charged that way, although it was put down as a house in the first place to secure the main for that street.

Council Merely a Machine.

Ald. Buller—I object to this Council being a mere voting machine for the Board of Education and the Water Commissioners.

Ald. Morgan—One hydrant is quite sufficient on Bonacord street for fire protection.

Ald. Johnston — But the people should have the water service. They have been paying taxes for years and have only recently been given a sidewalk and a light.

Ald. Buller—I agree with you there.

Ald. Morgan and Ald. Buller claimed that the Commissioners asked ten per cent. returns on that street and on many others they were receiving as high as 25 per cent. if not more.

Should Equalize Rate.

Ald. Morgan said this should be equalized for the benefit of the poor man on some side street who wanted the water, but for some reason or other could not get it, or for the diminishing of the rate to some who had the service.

Moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Mayor Bradburn, that Ald. Johnston interview the Water Commissioners with respect to the placing of hydrants on Bonacord street.—Carried.

The general feeling of the committee was that in this case the Water Commissioners should lay the main, even if it represented a slight loss to them, instead of asking the city to install two hydrants to make sure the Commissioners would receive the 10 p.c. they demanded. It was said that the difference was made up many times from the rate received on other streets.

WHAT ABOUT SPRING WEDDINGS?

Absence of Wedding Cakes Displays A Decline

When of late spring weddings and the wedding cakes that used to adorn the confectionery windows, usually figured forth? A glimpse of my observant eye here and recently that he could remember the days when the confectionery store windows of Easter season bore a wealth of wedding cakes to all the choice patronage of the contracting pair. It is said that wedding cakes have been supplanted, like various customs, and that the confectioners are being starvelinked. The cake is still an essential at the post-nuptial affair, but the said fact remains that the custom of the wedding's darts are not generally published. Possibly most people are waiting for June, the month of romance and that sort of stuff, but June is no more popular than it used to be. The decline in the number of wedding cakes shown at Easter is but an indication of the falling off in marriages.

Mr. W. J. Byers, postmaster, Byersville, received notification to-day of his dismissal from the position of postmaster, and the appointment of Mr. A. E. Saunders to succeed him. The Department evidently thought considerably of Mr. Byers' fairness and other qualities, as Mr. Saunders was instructed to have Mr. Byers sign the papers that relieved himself from office.

The Post Office has been changed from Byersville to Brownton, and the location from Mr. Byers' store to Brown street. The residents in this locality are displeased with the change.
